LETTER BARES FUND TO RAISE PRICE OF MILK

United States Offers Proof of the Dairymen's Scheme.

Evidence of a widespread plot among dairymen to raise the price of milk, backed by a letter revealing a $5,000 slush fund to help put the higher price propaganda through the Hoover commission at Washington, was submitted to federal authorities in Chicago yesterday by Edward J. Brundage, attorney general of Illinois.

The $5,000 letter, considered the most important piece of evidence yet uncovered in either state or national investigation of the alleged milk price conspiracies, is now in the hands of State's Attorney Hoyne, kept under lock and key subject to the call of the federal authorities, who are expected to present it before a federal jury when a demand for indictments is made.

LETTER REVEALS FUND.

This letter was written by President B. D. Cooper of the Dairymen's International league to W. J. Kittle, secretary of the Milk Producers' association, Chicago dairy district. It said that the directors of the Dairymen's International league in session in Utica, N. Y., last July had appropriated $5,000 and was prepared to give more toward the support of a producer who should be Mr. Hoover's "right hand man" in the deliberations of the food administrator preliminary to fixing a price on milk.

The evidence presented by Mr. Brundage also showed that an effort had been made by the dairymen to see President Wilson concerning the milk situation, but that this effort had failed.

In addition to this letters are in hand showing that, according to figures of the milk producers themselves milk could be delivered in Chicago at approximately 7¼ cents a quart on the 1st of October, when they raised the retail price to 13 cents a quart.

EVIDENCE OF BOYCOTT.

Further documentary evidence of the boycotting of dealers in Pittsburgh and elsewhere who refused to enter the price boosting deal, was also submitted by the attorney general.

Discoveries just made by representatives of Mr. Brundage and the United States attorney general, who are studying the mass of evidence seized in the raid on the office of the Milk Producers' association, indicate that the federal investigation into interstate operations of the milk trust will overshadow the case which is to be brought before the grand jury this week by James H. Wilkerson, assistant attorney general.

The evidence is impounded in the office of State's Attorney Hoyne by court order. Federal representatives were unwilling, last night, to indicate what action they intend taking.

PLANNED PLEA TO HOOVER.

In the $5,000 letter to Mr. Kittle, Mr. Cooper suggested that he call on Federal Food Administrator Hoover and inform him that the middlemen or the large retailers were making huge profits. He requested him to tell Mr. Hoover that the large dealers were making 76 cents a can clear profit. But Mr. Kittle replied that it would be indiscreet to take such a matter up with Mr. Hoover, and evidently the matter was dropped.

Evidence has been carefully complied showing each step in the proceedings which brought the price of milk up to thirteen cents a quart in Chicago. A few days after the secret meeting in the First Methodist church auditorium when the producers voted to fix the price of milk at $3.42 for a hundred pounds to dealers, C. H. Potter, chairman of the producers' milk board, sent out notices to dairymen telling them the Borden company had agreed to pay the price and was to be allowed to have milk. A similar notice was sent out by Mr. Potter regarding the Bowman company.

EXPECT U. S. TO FIX PRICE.

The producers passed a resolution that the price was to be not less than $4 for a hundred pounds after Nov. 1, but it is expected that the report of the committee appointed by Food Administrator Hoover to inquire into cost of producing milk, will be made before that date and that the price will be regulated by this finding.

Mr. Kittle's notice to the president of the association regarding the meeting of producers said:

"The months of November, December, January, February, and March are to be adjusted later, awaiting the action of

HOLDUP MEN IN AUTOS ARE BUSY ALL OVER CITY

Seven Robberies Are Reported After Midnight.

Automobile robbers were busy last night in all parts of the city. Up to 3 o'clock this morning seven robberies were reported. Cases were reported from the north, south, and west sides.

List of Victims.

E. C. COREY, 5056 Kenmore avenue; forced to give up a diamond ring valued at $250 and $15 in currency.

J. P. ANDERSON, a farmer of Centerville, Ia.; held up at North Menard avenue and West Lake street; robbed of his watch and $25.

Fraternity Men Robbed.

MARK KENRICK, PHILIP OSWALD, and THEODORE DAVIS, all residing at 5607 University avenue, the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house, were held up near that address by five men in an auto. A total of $43 was taken.

OSCAR CARLSON, 3235 Berteau avenue; robbed at Byron street and North Kedzie avenue by three men in an automobile of $18 and a watch valued at $150.

"We don't stick up doctors," two automobile robbers said to James Henderson, a student at the University of Chicago, when they accosted him at East Fifty-sixth street and Woodlawn avenue late last night. They mistook him for a doctor because he was carrying a small grip.

SOPHIE TUCKER MARRIED TO HER ACCOMPANIST

Not only did the Sox win yesterday, but Sophie Tucker got married. It was no met-in-the-morning married-at-night affair, either, for the bridegroom is none other than Frank Westfall, who has helped Sophie knock 'em down in vaudeville these five years. He is her accompanist and partner.

County Clerk Sweitzer performed the ceremony. The license showed that the bride's real name was Mrs. S. Belle Tuck, and before that she was S. Belle Aubuza.

Her friends were considerably surprised at the marriage, but not so much so that they couldn't gather at night at the Royale restaurant, where Garry Herrmann, president of the National Baseball commission, was host.

While the party was in progress Ignace Jan Paderewski, the pianist, accompanied by Mrs. Paderewski and John F. Smulski, entered the restaurant for dinner. The artist showed much interest in the affair, and the—to him—unusual music, caused him to make diligent inquiry.

Dr. Hillis to Tell of German Atrocities Today

The Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of the Brooklyn tabernacle, will speak on the subject of German atrocities in Belgium and France at the Auditorium theater this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Dr. Hillis has made a closer study of the atrocities, probably, than any man in the United States today. He made a personal investigation and earlier in the great war was permitted to conduct the investigation personally.

Austrian Navy Near Mutiny; Blame Poor Food

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The Daily News Rome correspondent says:

"From sources likely to be well informed I learn there is abundant evidence of growing discontent and loss of fighting spirit in the Austrian navy.

"In some cases it is said commanders cannot rely on execution of their orders, though the sailors have not yet dared to imitate their German fellow men and break into open mutiny. The particular cause of discontent is said to be insufficient feeding of the men."

THE WAR

German troops land on islands of Oesel and Dago at mouth of Gulf of Riga under fleet's protection. Move menaces Petrograd.

Rain continues to hamper British in Flanders, but Australians make new gains.

Paris reports Germans gained position in front line trenches north of Aisne, but were driven out.

PETROGRAD KEY TAKEN; APPEAL TO ALL RUSSIA

Nation Urged to Rise in Defense; Fleet Whips Forts.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 13.—The war office made official announcement tonight that German forces have been landed on two islands at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga and now are in a position to attempt an advance against Petrograd.

From these islands the Germans also might make an effort to flank the northern end of the Russian battle line, a movement which, if successful, would mean a retreat on a wide sector of Russia's defenses.

The announcement does not give the number of Germans used to deliver this new blow at Russia, but the fact that Gen. Verhofsky, the new minister of war, has issued an appeal to the whole nation to rise in defense of the country indicates that the movement is one of important magnitude.

FLEET DEFEATS BATTERIES.

The new invasion followed an engagement between the German fleet and the land batteries of the Russians which the official report admits resulted in a complete victory for the enemy. This report says the Russians put "up a stubborn battle, but were silenced by the heavy guns of the German warships."

The statement adds that the war office is making all efforts to check an advance by land against Kronstadt, the fortress which defends Petrograd, and that "measures have been taken to prevent the progress of the German fleet."

LAND IN TWO ISLANDS.

The war office says the Germans forced their landing in the Gulf of Tagalah, on the northern coast of the island of Oesel and near the village of Sarro, on the southern part of Dago island. Both of these islands are at the entrance of the Gulf of Riga, and from them an easy way is opened to the mainland over the intermediate islands.

That this further progress already is being attempted is shown by the official report, which says that the Germans, composed of one or two divisions, are attempting to advance in the direction of Hapsal. This is the port on the mainland nearest to the islands.

On Oesel island, where extensive aviation and other military bases are located, the garrison gave battle to the invaders and the report says the struggle is still in progress.

200 MILES FROM CAPITAL.

The German activity at the head of the Gulf of Riga may have for its purpose any one of three important campaigns. One is the advance on the capital, the second the flanking of the northern end of the Russian line to the east of Riga, and the third the complete conquest of the Gulf of Riga, begun with the capture of the city a few weeks ago.

Dago island is 200 miles from Petrograd but its main value, strategically, lies in the fact that is is almost at the mouth of the Gulf of Finland, at the head of which is Kronstadt. A railroad line follows the coast all the way from Hapsal, opposite Dago island, to Petrograd.

WINTER MAY HALT MARCH.

The imminence of the early Russian winter season lends color to the assumption that even if the German high command is taking these steps as a preliminary to a march on Petrograd, it will hardly essay the campaign this year.

It is pointed out, however, that the demoralized state of the Russian armies might make the operation a comparatively short and easy one now in comparison with the task a German army headed for Petrograd would have to face next spring if the Russian governmental plans for a regeneration of the army are carried through.

SEEK CONTROL OF GULF.

The more conservative view seems to be that the German effort is aimed at gaining complete control of the Gulf of Riga, so as to realize to the full the advantage gained last month by the capture of the city of Riga.

In any event, however, the move marks a notable continuation of the German northward creep along the Baltic coast. This has given them first of all Courland, then a slice of Livonia, and now has planted them in an advantageous position off the coast of Esthonia, where they will constitute a constant threat to the right flank of the whole Russian front, now somewhat loosely anchored on the shores of the Gulf of Riga some distance to the southwest.

ROADS URGE U. S. TO BOOST RATES

I. C. C. Is Asked for a Hearing; See New Wage Demand.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—Eastern railroads, seeking relief from conditions which their executives assert are rapidly approaching the point where they can no longer operate with profit, indicated today the form their efforts will assume in a letter to the interstate commerce commission, asking for a conference to consider rates not included in the advance allowed by the decision in the 15 per cent rate advance case last June.

Indications are that the railroads have in mind filing applications for increased rates on a large number of commodities not already raised if it should develop at the conference that the applications might meet with any measure of success.

The commission, replying to the request for "a short informal conference," notified the roads that it would be glad to hear them at "a public session" next Wednesday afternoon.

Letter Asks for Conference.

Following is the text of the railroad executives' letter, sent from New York and made public by the commission today:

"The trunk line traffic executives, after a discussion today, desired me to try to arrange for a short informal conference with the commission next Wednesday or Thursday (Wednesday preferred) to talk over the rates on traffic not favorably acted upon in the recent decision of the 15 per cent advance rate case, some of which are now covered by suspended tariffs and hearings arranged for, others covered by tariffs which carriers canceled at the suggestion of the commission; and possibly other matters germane to securing all the results originally asked for.

"The thought arises from the carriers' keen necessities as shown by the results since the case was presented, and was encouraged by the language of the commission as to amplifying its order if the necessity became apparent.

Hearing Next Wednesday.

"If a few of us could have the privilege of such a conference next Wednesday, it is thought it would be of great assistance at the present time in reaching a prompt conclusion as to future action."

Since the commission's dismissal of the 15 per cent case, statistics compiled by the commission show that the railroads have fully recovered from their setback of last winter due to the car shortage and congestion. However, another difficulty has arisen in rapidly mounting operating expenses.

WAR RESULT OF CAREFUL PLANS LAID BY KAISER

New York, Oct. 13.—Plans for starting the world war and a definite date for opening hostilities were arranged at a conference in Berlin, presided over by the kaiser, early in July, 1914, Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey, declared today in a signed article to be printed tomorrow.

Morgenthau said he received his information from the German ambassador at Constantinople, Baron Wagnenheim. He learned that Germany's army, navy, and financial chiefs were at the conference. The bankers asked a delay of two weeks in which to arrange their affairs. When all plans had been made, the kaiser went on a yachting trip to allay any possible suspicions.

The activities of German bankers in disposing of foreign securities were marked on the New York stock exchange several days before Austria's ultimatum went to Serbia, Mr. Morgenthau pointed out.

He also asserted that the Marquis of Pallavicini, Austrian ambassador at Constantinople, told him the Austrian emperor believed war inevitable in May, 1914, on account of Balkan conditions.

Here are Cold Facts to Stir U. S. Red Blood; War Loan Lags

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—The tardiness of the country in responding to the second Liberty loan is causing deep concern to officials here. President Wilson and his cabinet are watching the campaign with great interest.

With half of the campaign gone, treasury officials estimated tonight that not more than $600,000,000 had been subscribed and they considered this estimate liberal. It has become apparent to officials that a new and tremendous impetus must be given to the campaign if the subscription is to approximate the $5,000,000,000 hoped for.

The whole weight of the administration is to be thrown into the balance for the rest of the campaign, and a drive of dimensions unapproached heretofore is to be made during the two weeks that remain before the closing of the subscription books.

Hearten Host of Workers.

A new factor, calculated to hearten the host of workers and to galvanize the country into a realization that the most strenuous efforts must be made, will be introduced into the campaign, probably within twenty-four hours.

Notwithstanding the splendid receptions given Secretary McAdoo in the west, the efforts of thousands of workers and the most highly organized publicity campaign ever known in the country, the daily average of subscriptions has fallen far below what officials had hoped for. The time has come, officials feel, when the people of the country must be made to realize that they must subscribe without further delay to the full limit of their means.

$4,400,000,000 in Two Weeks.

The $600,000,000 estimate of the treasury takes into consideration all the "optimistic unofficial" estimates from the various reserve districts and that sum is only 12 per cent of the $5,000,000,000 desired.

This would leave $4,400,000,000 to be raised within the next twelve working days, an average of $367,000,000 a day if the $5,000,000,000 goal is to be attained, and $2,400,000,000, an average of $200,000,000 a day, if only the minimum of $3,000,000,000 is subscribed.

"Neither the average daily minimum nor maximum quotas for the second Liberty bond sale, set at the beginning of the campaign by Secretary McAdoo," reads the treasury announcement, "had been attained tonight when the first half of the great drive came to a close."

Chicago's Average $1,000.

Unofficial estimates of subscriptions from five of the twelve reserve banks showed a total of $523,000,000 subscribed. These banks and the estimated amounts of their subscriptions were:

New York	$325,000,000
Cleveland	65,000,000
Boston	59,192,000
Chicago	44,005,400
San Francisco	30,196,950

"These unofficial reports," the statement continues, "came from New England:

Massachusetts	$36,580,000
Connecticut	8,200,000
Rhode Island	8,082,000
Maine	2,700,000
New Hampshire	1,800,000
Vermont	1,760,000

"The average subscription in the Chicago district is $1,000. These details accompany Chicago's report:

Cook county	$23,387,000
Illinois, outside of Cook county	3,420,000
Indiana	4,645,400
Iowa	2,475,200
Michigan	5,701,000
Wisconsin	3,370,500

PASTOR OF HINDU MISSION KILLED BY AN I. C. TRAIN

The Rev. A. E. Ogg, said to be prominent in missionary work, in which until recently he has been engaged in India, was killed last evening by an Illinois Central train at Forty-seventh street.

Ogg is said to have suffered from ill health, with the result that he gave up his missionary work and went to Battle Creek, Mich., in an effort to regain his strength. He is said to have declared his intention of renewing his work after a short sojourn in California. He had been living with relatives at 549 East Forty-sixth street.

Yesterday he announced he was going to the ball game, after which he proposed to purchase tickets for the California trip. When he failed to return his relatives notified the police and were told of the death of a man at the Forty-seventh street station of the railroad.

STOCK AND HIS MEN WILL PLAY IN FT. SHERIDAN

Col. Ryan, in command at Fort Sheridan, tentatively expressed the opinion the other day that it would be a "nice thing for the boys" if the Chicago Symphony orchestra could go out to Fort Sheridan and give a concert. The suggestion was conveyed to Conductor Stock by somebody who thought it a joke on the colonel, for nothing like that, so far as is known, had even taken place in the history of either symphony orchestras or American soldiers.

There was nothing tentative in the adoption of the suggestion by Mr. Stock, the trustees of the Orchestral association, and the management of the orchestra. The complete organization will go out to Fort Sheridan next Sunday night, and, with Mr. Stock conducting, give a special program, yet to be put together and rehearsed.

RALLY YIELDS THREE IN 7TH, THREE IN 8TH

Rowlands Need but One More Game for World's Title.

THE DETAILS

Details of the White Sox victory over New York and a variety of features appertaining thereto will be found in the Sporting Section of this paper.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Apparently beaten—hopelessly, disgracefully licked by themselves instead of by the Giants—the White Sox staged a tremendous comeback late yesterday afternoon in Comiskey park and won the fifth game of the world's series by a score of 8 to 5 after almost all the fans who bet on them had torn up their tickets.

At the end of five innings nobody would have given a 7 year old rain check for the chances of the Rowlands. Before the game their club owner had lost the toss which decided the place for the seventh game, giving the Giants a big advantage if the series is fought out that far.

HAND GIANTS TALLIES.

The battle started all New York's way and at the end of five rounds the White Sox could feel their legs dangling over the precipice behind which yawned the chasm of oblivion. They had given the Giants a toehold of four runs to one through a series of blunders, boots, and bobbles that would have disheartened even the kaiser's press agent.

With nothing behind them apparently but thin air, the Rowlands rallied and fought themselves back to even terms before the seventh inning was ended, then routed the Giants so completely in the eighth that there wasn't an atom of baseball battle left in the whole McGraw outfit.

FOES RESORT TO TRICKERY.

The Giants fought madly, desperately, and with all the roughneck tactics they have learned in years of service under their old school manager. They blocked runners and shattered the atmosphere with profanity, calling the conquerors everything known to the vocabulary of a New Yorker.

At one time it looked as if Fletcher and Rowland would break into the pugilisitc column after the inning in which the Giant shortstop had handed the Sox the game.

Rowland was ready to put the belligerent shortstop out of commission for the rest of the series at the cost of being banished from the sides lines himself, but Umpire Evans rushed in between them and averted the slugging match that was brewing.

It was the rottenest, most uproariously exciting, rowdiest, and gamest fight ever seen in more than a decade of world's combats.

NO PLACE FOR RUSSELL.

Of the many mistakes, mechanical and mental, the first was when Boss Rowland listened to the pleading of Tex Russell to let him get a crack at the Giants and show them what a left hander could do to them. Tex declared he was right—with a capital R—and ready to set the enemy down without a hit.

In less than two minutes Rowland discovered his mistake, for the only thing Russell could get past the bats of the enemy was a bad ball. Five of these in succession passed one man and started the Giants toward victory. A loud single and a louder double, by Herzog and Kauff, respectively, scored one run and put two more Giants within striking distance of the plate with nobody out.

SOX FANS PULL FOR FOES.

Cicotte, who pitched a tough game on Wednesday, was rushed to the rescue and stopped that mess with only one more run scored against us. Then the Rowland support blew up behind Eddie.

It looked as if the Sox machine was going to smash because of the strain on its weaker parts. Five errors in three innings turned the rooters against the home team, and they were actually pulling for the Giants when at the end of the fourth the count stood 4 to 1 against Chicago.

In those four rounds the Rowlands had made only two swats off Slim Sallee, who, apparently, had their numbers even more accurately than in the opening game of the series. There was hardly a man in the ball park who thought the series would go beyond six games except Charles A. Comiskey.

The turning point came in the fifth. After two Sox were gone in that period Eddie Collins and Joe Jackson, the two left handed hitters whom Sallee was supposed to have faded off the map, slugged him for solid, unmistakable singles.

VICIOUS DRIVES EFFECTIVE.

Jackson's drive almost took both legs off the human slat on the opposition slab. They produced nothing, because Felsch rolled an easy bounder to Sallee. But there was something in the viciousness of those two drives that seemed to have its effect on both teams.

In the next round the Rowlands started the drive that carried them to victory. It did not get very far in the sixth, because three singles netted the Sox only one tally, and that left them two behind. In the staging of that attack Manager Rowland inserted Risberg for Cicotte at bat and the Swede delivered a single that sent in the second Sox tally of the day. That rally broke down right there, because John Collins and McMullin could not keep it up.

Claude Williams was sent to the slab in the seventh and encountered a bunch of tough breaks which put the Sox back in the hole out of which they were trying to extricate themselves. He struck out three men, but gave the Giants one run on a double and a single with a hard luck muff sandwiched between them. Williams caught a little bunted fly for what ought to have been a double play, but slipped, fell down, and dropped the ball.

Nothing daunted, the Sox, led by Jackson, assaulted Sallee in their half so hard that they fought themselves to even terms and cracked the Giant defense in a vital spot.

TIE SCORE IN SEVENTH.

That home seventh was a corker. Eddie Collins was out on a fly before Jackson whipped a single to left. Felsch duplicated it. Gandil, who had been one of the costly blunderers in the early rounds, more than redeemed himself by cutting loose a drive that went through right center for two bases, scoring Jackson and Felsch. The big concrete stands fairly trembled under the weight of the rooting, which now had switched to the home team.

Weaver made Sallee pitch a dozen balls, most of which he fouled off, before he rapped a bounder to Fletcher and was thrown out, putting Gandil on third. After a consultation, the Giants decided not to give Schalk anything good to swing at, so passed him, hoping to bring up Williams in the pinch. Rowland countered by sending Lynn to bat for the southpaw hurler. And Lynn struck out—but wait a minute.

START DOUBLE STEAL.

Before the whiff was completed Schalk started for second to engineer a double steal and score the tieing run if possible. Rariden threw to Sallee, trying to trap Gandil into certain death at the pan. Gandil spotted the trick and stuck to his base, so Sallee turned and relayed to second too late to get Schalk.

Cap Herzog made the blunder that proved costly, by letting Sallee's throw go threw him just far enough to permit Gandil to scamper home and knot the score. I did not think those steel and concrete stands were going to hold up under the tremendous pounding they received from the mad rooters, who danced and jumped and yelled and threw in the air everything that was lose. Almost none of them saw Lynn strike out, as the frenzy of their enthusiasm made them forget the game entirely.

FABER IN RESCUE ROLE.

Red Faber, who had worked a losing game only two days before, was sent to the slab in the eighth to hold that game if possible. It was already dark and the first ball Red shot across the plate told everybody the Sox could not lose. The worst they could get was a draw. Herzog struck out without knowing what he hit at, and Faber set down three men in a row.

The third successful sortie came in the Sox' eighth and ended in riotous victory that was a rout for the Giants before it ended. John Collins, who had been one of the goats in the fourth inning, led the winning rally with a Texas league fly which fell safely back of first with four or five Giants trying to get under it and only getting in each other's way. McMullin sacrificed, putting the winning run on second.

EDDIE COLLINS BRINGS JOY.

Eddie Collins delivered the blow that broke New York's last vestige of a vertebra for the day. It was a lusty single to center on which Shauno rode home while Kauff was fumblingly trying to get it in time to peg to the plate. Jackson, with two hits off Sallee already tabbed to his credit, tipped Collins to run, then slugged the ball safely through the hole in the infield made by Eddie's break for second.

Herzog and Fletcher tried to block Collins at second but did it in such raw manner that Umpire Rigler motioned him to go along to third. Collins beat the throw any way in spite of the interference, and Jackson went down to second on the play. Zimmerman relayed wildly to Fletcher trying to get Joe, and let Collins go the rest of the way home, while Jackson romped to third before the ball was corralled.

PERRITT REPLACES SALLEE.

Sallee was gone and McGraw mercifully relieved him by calling Perritt to the slab. Felsch dumped a Texas leaguer into short center on which Jackson registered. Then Perritt stopped them with the aid of Felsch's unsuccessful attempt to steal third.

Faber came back and got Fletcher, Robertson, and Holke in a row in the ninth, then the out patients of bedlam who had been trying to rock the stands till they wrecked them broke loose and tried to decapitate or otherwise mutilate the White Sox in the frenzy of their joy over the most remarkable reversal of form ever staged by a baseball team in the short space of eight and a half innings.

GIANTS TRY ROUGH STUFF.

The Giants pulled some of the rawest kind of tactics in blocking base runners without any possible right to do so, when there was no play being made by the blockers.

The first time they pulled it on Weaver in the sixth and came near getting away with it, as Rigler, who was umpiring at second, was not looking. Evans saw the rough stuff which Herzog and Fletcher attempted, and it would have been a tough proposition for him to penalize it. However, Buck reached his destination—third base—in spite of the blocking. The next time the two keystone guardians of the McGraw machine tried to block a runner it was Eddie Collins, and Rigler was looking.

The Sox compiled a total of thirteen hits off Sallee, who gave them such a battle in the opening game of the series. Perritt escaped with only one single against him. Eddie Collins, Jackson, and Felsch were the head wreckers with three safe swats apiece, but the hits made by the rest of the Rowland crew were extremely helpful.

M'MULLIN DEFENSE STAR.

Fred McMullin was the only regular who went hitless, but was a tower of strength defensively when the Sox were staggering in the early rounds. Twice McMullin came to the rescue of Cicotte and his erring comrades with double plays, one of them the result of a splendid one handed catch of a liner from Fletcher's bat.

RED CROSS GIVES; SELLS NOTHING

Here it is again, the story about the Red Cross selling goods to the soldiers and sailors. A TRIBUNE reader wrote:

"I would like to know if the sweaters knit by the women of Chicago are being sold by the Red Cross society to the soldiers for $8 to $10. This story is being spread and the women are beginning to be disgusted with the Red Cross."

THE TRIBUNE immediately forwarded the letter to the Chicago chapter headquarters, and here is the reply of Marquis Eaton, chairman of the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross:

"The Red Cross gives everything, it sells nothing, to the soldiers. These stories, which take a multitude of forms, all equally vicious, have been disproved times without number."

At the division headquarters of the Red Cross word was recently received from Washington that a widespread enemy plot to discredit the Red Cross is suspected on account of the way the stories appear simultaneously in different parts of the country. The national authorities are making every effort to trace them and all chapters are asked to coöperate by reporting them at once.

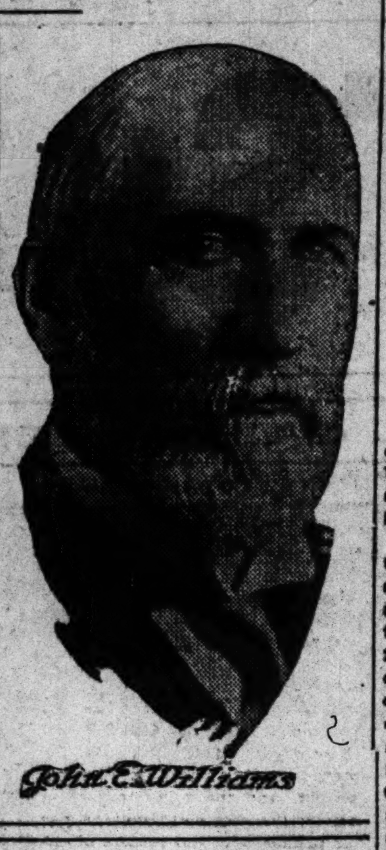
Mayo Reports Good Work by the American Fleet

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Plans for wider coöperation of the United States with allied fleets in European waters were discussed at a conference tonight between Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Admiral Benson, chief of naval operations, and Admiral Mayo, who has just returned from a secret mission to Europe.

Admiral Mayo reported that the American fleet on the other side, under Vice Admiral Sims, is performing an effective part in the operations against the German submarine.

Secretary Daniels refused to make any statement with reference to the subjects discussed. The secretary said he would have further conferences next week with Admiral Mayo and would make no statement until the conferences are concluded.

John E. Williams Appointed Illinois Fuel Administrator



John E. Williams

John E. Williams of Streator, Ill., whose name was proposed some days ago, was appointed fuel administrator for Illinois yesterday and will take immediate charge.

It is expected that Mr. Williams first will take up the Chicago coal situation. It is said this will embrace the problem of preventing the hoarding of coal which already has been started in some instances in the fear of a cold winter.

Waits Official Orders.

Mr. Williams, when seen at his home in Streator last night, said at this time it would not be proper for him to outline any of his plans. He remarked that he must hear from Washington, and learn the things expected of him before he could make any public statement of what he will do.

"Absolutely on the square," is the way Streator explains the man. This is apparent from his record. Since the war started he has been acting as federal mediator, smoothing out labor troubles at the various cantonments in the middle west.

For five years he has been chairman of the board of arbitration for the factories of Hart, Schaffner & Mark, the big Chicago clothiers. One of the most important jobs he ever held, perhaps, was the year and a half he spent in New York as umpire for the Garment Workers' protocol, presiding over the court of adjudication for 60,000 garment workers and 250 employers.

Record for State Work.

He has held appointments on state commissions under three Illinois governors—Deneen, Dunne, and Lowden. Mr. Williams was born in Wales in 1853, but came to America at the age of 11. When thirteen years old he went to work in the Illinois coal mines and remained a worker in them until he was 30. Next he became a newspaper reporter for a time and is still a contributor to newspapers and magazines.

After he severed active work with a newspaper he took up fire insurance and for the next thirty years sold insurance and managed the Streator theater. During all this time he never lost interest in the mines.

He was used as mediator and arbitrator for both the men and the operators for four years and sprang into some prominence at the time of the Cherry mine disaster.

SEEKS COAL FOR OHIO.

Cleveland, O., Oct. 13.—With schools closed in many cities, some hospitals cold, and industries running on an hour to hour coal basis, Homer H. Johnson, new federal fuel administrator for Ohio, faced the task of relieving the worst fuel crisis that ever confronted this state, today.

With the first blasts of winter bringing acute suffering in thousands of homes today, Johnson issued this warning:

"The public must hope for the best and be prepared for the worst."

Johnson conferred with Gov. Cox at Columbus this afternoon. He promised immediate steps to relieve conditions in several communities which are without coal for hospitals, schools, public utility plants, or private homes. Further seizures of coal by Ohio mayors, Johnson said, will be unnecessary.

TAY PAY WARNS IRISH TO BEWARE OF SINN FEINISM

Indicting Sinn Feinism as pointing the way to national suicide, T. P. (Tay Pay) O'Connor, Irish home rule leader and member of parliament, speaking at a luncheon of the Irish Fellowship club in the Hotel Sherman yesterday, told of the "oppression of Ireland."

Sinn Feinism has arrayed Ireland against all the civilized nations (meaning the allies) in the war, he said, and he called upon the Irish to abandon Sinn Feinism rather than raise America as an enemy of their motherland.

"The liberation of Ireland," he said, "will come either through tardy action of the British government or through the peace conferences. There is one obstacle to that liberation, and one alone, and that is the Sinn Fein policy, which brings me to America.

SLAYER OF TWO KILLS WIFE AS CAPTURE NEARS

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 13.—Fred Gallerani, sought by the police since the murder early Thursday morning of Clement Martini and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Della Gallerani, in their home in West Springfield, was captured this afternoon in a house in Feeding Hills, several miles west of this city, after a running gun fight with a posse of police and civilian volunteers and after he had killed his wife, Armelia Gallerani, and had been wounded himself.

PRICES OF FISH BOUND UPWARD; CAUSE A PUZZLE

Same Conditions Prevail in Fresh and Salt Water Products.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

The supply of meat is short. In the effort to save meat the people of the United States are advised by the food administration to use more fish. What is the result?

One year ago wall eyed pike, one of the best of the fresh water food fishes, sold in Chicago at wholesale for 15 cents a pound. This year, on the same date, the Chicago price for the same fish is 23 cents a pound. That is an increase of more than 50 per cent. The cost of labor and of materials has increased considerably in the last year. But, presumably, there are still plenty of pike in the lakes of the middle west. To the layman it would seem hard to justify an increase of one-half in the wholesale selling price.

Nor does that represent the biggest jump in the selling price of fresh water food fishes. Perhaps the best known of them all, at least in this part of the country, is the white fish.

Halibut Also Takes Jump.

When one turns to fish from salt water the same remarkable leap in prices is discovered. Halibut, for instance, has been known as the "poor man's meat." That title may have had some application when, last year at this time, it was selling in Chicago, at wholesale, for 18 cents a pound. Practically all the halibut which reaches this market comes from the Pacific coast. It came from the same place last year. But now the wholesale price in Chicago for exactly the same kind and quality of halibut is 27 cents a pound, which adds just one-half to the cost over 1916.

Blue fish is another salt water swimmer, which comes chiefly from the Atlantic ocean. Bad—even worse crop conditions must prevail there also. The blue fish which brought 20 cents a pound wholesale in Chicago in 1916 now sell at 35 cents. That is the biggest advance of them all—a jump of 75 per cent.

Oysters Join Advance.

One may go through the whole list of fish and shellfish and find similar advances in almost every item. Finnan haddie has gone from 15 to 22 cents a pound wholesale, oysters from $2.25 a gallon to $3, and scallops from $3.50 to $4.50 a gallon.

The chief weakness of the law under which the food administration is acting gets another good illustration in the matter of fish prices. By proclamation of President Wilson not only are all farmers and truck gardeners exempted from legal control, but also fishermen "whose business does not extend beyond primary consignment."

Such fishermen are not required to take out a license or to make reports of their catches and sales. Apparently the fisherman, who is the fish producer, as the farmer is the grain producer, may charge what he likes for his product, may store it or salt and hold it as long as he likes.

Once he disposes of his fish, the first purchaser and all other purchasers at once come under the rule of the law and must obey the instructions of the food administration.

It is possible the same situation may develop when the food administration gets around to taking up the prices now charged for canned tomatoes and their products. One year ago the wholesale price of tomato catsup was $9.60 a dozen gallon cans. This year it is $18.

For canned tomatoes the 1916 price at wholesale was $3.50 a dozen gallon cans. At the same time in 1917 it has risen to $8.50, an advance of only a little more than 140 per cent.

Hurley Calls Chicago Ideal Spot for U. S. Ship Yards

"Alert in everything else, Chicago has shown itself a laggard in the matter of shipbuilding, and it is time that she woke up," said Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the shipping board, here yesterday, in discussing the shipbuilding possibilities of the city.

"The curious part of it is," continued Mr. Hurley, "that there is no reason for Chicago's being behind the rest of the country in this respect, for there is no inland city whose natural advantages are superior to those of Chicago. Here are steel, fuel, lumber, abundant labor, everything that is required for shipbuilding. The city has excellent water front facilities and fine dockage. There is nothing lacking but initiative, a strange thing to say about Chicago.

"The demand for ships is more acute than ever before in the history of the world, in all probability. It will remain acute, no matter when the war comes to an end. If the war came to an end tomorrow the demand for ships would hardly be lessened. If the war ends we shall need them for our carrying trade.

Only One Yard Here.

"There is only one shipbuilding concern in Chicago today. It is not a large concern, relatively, and will, with its present capacity, construct only about five or six ships a year.

"Other yards could be constructed readily, not only to build ships in their entirety, but to 'fabricate' ships, which means that the riveting and manufacture of plates would be done elsewhere. Such yards could be made ready more quickly than yards which would build complete ships.

"Ships built on the great lakes cannot be larger than 4,200 tons gross weight. But the sea supremacy of England has been built up on the moderate sized tramp steamer, such as these would be."

Chicago Far Behind.

Mr. Hurley said that the lake ships already commandeered by the government would be used for coastwise traffic on the Atlantic, thus releasing a number of coastwise vessels which are suitable to transoceanic travel. He is here partly to arrange his private affairs and partly to look into the feasibility of the establishment of a government shipbuilding plant somewhere on the great lakes. He would say nothing regarding this project.

He did say that all other lake ports with shipbuilding possibilities appeared to have availed themselves of the present demand for ships except Chicago. He said Cleveland built about half the ships of the lakes, while Chicago's contribution to the annual total did not exceed 3 per cent, being surpassed by much smaller ports, such as Manitowoc, Superior, and Toledo.

Learning that Mr. Hurley was looking into sites for shipbuilding, Sanitary Commissioner Patrick J. Carr, chairman of the committee on real estate development of the sanitary district, wrote him yesterday setting forth the advantages of the lands along the drainage canal. He called attention to the possibility of direct ocean connection by means of the proposed lakes to gulf deep waterway, to the district's electric power plant, and other facilities for manufacturing and said that he would be willing that the district should let the government have the necessary land free of cost.

the food administrator in regard to feed. This was taken to indicate that the present 13 cent price was but a beginning and another jump was looked for by the producers next month.

The $5,000 Letter.

The letter from Mr. Cooper to Mr. Kittle furnishes one of the most important links in the chain of evidence that a plan had been formed to gain control of dairies in all the principal milk producing states. This letter is dated July 9, 1917, and reads, in part:

"Our directors' meeting was held Saturday in Utica, N. Y. They voted to pay my expenses as member of the commission and have appropriated $5,000 toward the support of a producer to be Mr. Hoover's right hand man. If this comes about, they are willing to appropriate further means as required."

In a subsequent communication from Kittle to Cooper the former refers to George Haskell, chairman of the Hoover committee on dairy products, as being "all right." He is said to be in the butter and cheese business. In another letter Kittle is not so sanguine,

Plan to See Wilson.

By far the most startling bit of evidence gathered by Brundage is a telegram showing that the representatives of the milk producers, who were active in Washington, had plans laid to see President Wilson. In some of their communications they jested about the easy way they were having with Hoover, but the prosecuting authorities deem the step to see President Wilson a bold venture.

The telegram mentioning President Wilson was sent by Chairman Potter from Washington to the Milk Producers' association here, and reads:

"Outlook unsatisfactory. Food administration undecided. Push organization of marketing company fast as possible. Must control distribution of milk to dealers. Hoover sidesteps draft issue. Doubtful if can see Wilson. Conference tonight. May be here until Tuesday. Others here, Cooper, Campbell, Pattee, Pearson, and Warren."

A note by Secretary Kittle explaining the urgency of organizing a marketing company was added, and reads: "Mr. Potter believes that, unless we are organized to sell our milk legally we may not be allowed to make a price this fall, as the tendency seems to be that the food administration may put the 'soft pedal' on all association activities. Do not sell any milk until notified by the milk board. Delegate meeting soon. You will be notified." This was sent to all locals.

Evidence of Boycott.

In support of the charges of boycotting of certain members by the Milk Producers' association a letter from F. H. Reese, treasurer of the association, to Mr. Kittle is cited. In part it says:

"I have been thinking of the little talk we had yesterday with regards to the man that I said we would force into the marketing company by not letting him sell his milk at a factory here. I presume I should have made myself a little more clearly understood. This man has been a slacker with us at all times. He never paid $2.50 but once and that was last year when we forced him and held his milk back until he came across. He is no member now, as he has not paid his dues this year, and I will not ask him for it until he has come across—the full way. We are all disgusted with him and will learn him to toe the mark."

Mothers Talk Boycott.

The Mothers' league, which met in the afternoon at the West Side auditorium, considered a boycott on milk as a measure to bring the price down. A vote will be taken at another meeting to be held on Wednesday night. The women are considering a protest parade to the state's attorney's office, general agitation in all parts of the cities by means of meeting and parades, and finally the boycott. The mothers believe that 10 cents a quart is the maximum which they can afford to pay.

SHE SAYS FINNS WANT FRUITS, NOT HORRORS OF WAR

Mme. Aino Malmberg Thinks People Look to America.

Finland as a nation looks to America for help in freeing herself from the yoke of Russia, believing that at the close of the war America will have the biggest voice in deciding the fate of the small nations. And yet Finland as a nation has conscientious objections towards helping America and the allies. These were the opinions brought out yesterday at a meeting of the Political Equality league when Mme. Aino Malmberg, member of the Finnish diet, spoke to the members on the subject of "Big Wars and Little Nations."

"We are expecting those who have always talked for democracy to help us," said Mme. Malmberg. "Why do you talk so much about Belgium and so little about Finland? People say to me, 'Why can you not be united with Russia, since Russia has become a republic?' Simply because we cannot be united with any nation. Russia is a republic, yes. But the first thing they do is to send people to Finland to restore our old laws, and the second thing they do is to send others to break them.

Might Have Waited.

"If Kerensky had been kind we should have waited. If he had promised us our liberty we should have believed him, but he said he would subdue us with blood and iron. We care nothing for blood and iron. We will not fight. We are a nonresistant nation. It is our philosophy. Your jails here are full of Finns who have refused to fight. We won a victory in 1905 without a fight. We simply went on strike; the whole nation refused to do anything."

Contrary Views.

Miss Margaret Dobyns of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association asked what the Finns would have done in 1905 if the German military machine had borne down upon them.

"Well, of course, I can't say," replied Mme. Malmberg, "as it did not happen then. But we did have the Cossacks, and everybody knows what they are."

Mrs. Harriet Taylor Treadwell announced soothingly: "It's just like the Quakers, isn't it? And we all love the Quakers, don't we? We shall all love the Finns in just the same way. Don't YOU worry, Mme. Malmberg."

There were others there, however, who did not feel in quite so amiable a mood towards the Finns, and the elevators buzzed with comments as the meeting adjourned.

TO SWEEP CITY WITH CAMPAIGN OF PATRIOTISM

Illinois-America Day on Oct. 21 to Start the Program.

Next Sunday is to be Illinois-America day in Chicago. It is to be the day upon which the neighborhood committee of the state council of defense will open its campaign of patriotism which will thereafter be carried on daily throughout the state.

The opening meeting is to be held at the Auditorium theater and the adjacent lake front. The chief speaker at the Auditorium will be Gov. Lowden. The only other will be Congressman Henry T. Rainey of Carrollton.

The Auditorium meeting is to be only a small part of the day's program, however. There will be two big naval bands to entertain the Grant park crowds—the Great Lakes naval station band, 200 strong, and the band of the national naval volunteers, sixty pieces, which will lead the Illinois jackies in an exhibition drill.

Chance to See the Eleventh.

The Eleventh regiment, the organization that was enlisted and mustered into the state service in eleven days, on the 11th of the month also will turn out with its own band.

Further, a large number of the companies of the auxiliary militia, sometimes called the home guard, are to turn out.

Still more is being arranged for the outdoor part of the demonstration. While Gov. Lowden and Congressman Rainey are to be the only speakers at the Auditorium, there will be a corps of orators for the outside crowds. The neighborhood committee is preparing a list. Gov. Lowden and Mr. Rainey also will speak at the outdoor meetings.

Ministers Appealed To.

The date for the meeting was purposely fixed for Sunday in order to give all Chicago an opportunity to turn out and demonstrate the city's patriotism. In order to give character to the occasion and arouse the interest of the public at large all ministers of Chicago of all faiths—more than 1,150 of them—have been requested by the state council to announce the demonstration from their pulpits this morning and again on next Sunday and to urge those of all denominations to attend.

The fraternal organizations of Chicago also have received similar requests to make announcements in lodge meetings.

Both the Republican and the Democratic county organizations are to have a hand in the demonstration. Organization leaders in both parties have taken the matter up with ward and precinct committees and expect to turn out thousands.

TIRPITZ PLEA HOLDS A HINT OF LOSING WAR

First Admission Is Made of British Advantage.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 13.—Admiral von Tirpitz, father of the ruthless submarine warfare, is the first high official in Germany who has voiced even a hint that Germany's power is not still in the ascendency. In an interview which has been granted to the Brunswick Landes Zeitung Admiral von Tirpitz says "England desires peace negotiations while her position is comparatively favorable."

The admiral still places his faith in ruthless warfare. In his interview he says:

"We are at the fateful hour of our existence. Germany cannot maintain her position as a world power unless that position is founded on might."

Says U-Boat Will Win.

The interview is a repetition of the claim that the submarine will be the decisive factor in the war if pressed to the utmost.

"We can expect a final triumph over England as long as we continue to sink vessels faster than she constructs them," Von Tirpitz says. "A submarine war success cannot be expected immediately, but if we pursue our aim firmly we shall find after some months that our position for negotiations with England will be quite different.

"England desires negotiations now while her position is comparatively favorable. The decisive factors are the shipping losses suffered by the entente and by neutrals who expose themselves to our U-boat war.

"No definite time can be fixed for our success. Economically and as regards raw materials our position today is stronger than that of France or Italy. How far England will be able to make her supplies last cannot be predicted. But the decisive factor is that while we supply four-fifths of our economic needs from our own productions, England has to fetch four-fifths of hers from overseas."

MICHAELIS TO STEP OUT?

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 13.—The German reichstag adjourned, leaving behind it a latent crisis which political observers believe will lead, sooner or later, to the retirement of Dr. Michaelis—the chancellor without a following. Although other parties are less actively in opposition to Dr. Michaelis than the Socialists, not a voice has been raised against the Vorwaerts' slogan, "Michaelis must go."

Recent arrivals from Berlin report that current gossip there is that Michaelis can scarcely last a month. The chancellor's blunder in springing the disclosures of the alleged naval plot against which, according to the National Zeitung, he was strongly advised, and his failure to make headway against the reichstag majority, appear to have lost him the conservative and pan-German support. Other parties, including even the Nationalists, are united in open condemnation of his actions concerning the naval plot. It is charged that the chancellor showed not only a lamentable lack of political acumen, but his act also resulted in the rehabilitation of the radical Socialists to a considerable degree.

Say Prestige Is Gone.

The Pan-German Lokal Anzeiger, the National-Liberal Deutsche Kurier, the Catholic Germania, the Radical Tageblatt, and the Socialist Vorwaerts agree that the prestige of Chancellor Michaelis is shattered and his position so shaken that his deposition is imperative.

The Kurier suggests that a change in the chancellorship has been temporarily deferred on tactical grounds, to avoid the impression that there had been a surrender to Socialist pressure.

Virtually the entire press sneers openly or covertly at the chancellor's attempt to get clear by shouldering the responsibility upon Vice Admiral von Capelle. It is pointed out that the chancellor himself went virtually as far as the minister of marine in the introduction of the subject and the subsequent debate.

Bitter Attack on Policy.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 13.—During the debate on the censorship in the reichstag on Thursday, says a Berlin dispatch, Deputy Heinrich Mueller of Meiningen said:

"The chancellor wants to lead but we are reminded of the worst times of the old Roman empire of Germany. We are suffocated under a heap of official paper prescriptions of mock justice, injustice, and arbitrariness. People sigh 'who will free us from this deluge of evil paper?' Confidence is ruined by the manner in which the state of siege is exercised.

"Homogeneity is lacking in the imperial leadership and the higher military leadership. The relations between the general command and the trade unions is becoming worse and worse. It is a scandal how the pacifist leaders are deprived of all their rights at a time when great concessions are being made to the government's pacifism."

After a strong criticism of the methods of the press bureau, the speaker continued:

"It looks as if there were elements in Germany working for an open conflict between the government and parliament."

SAY FATE IS SEALED.

[Copyright: 1917: By Press Publishing Company (New York World).]

THE HAGUE, Oct. 13.—The impression of a neutral eyewitness of the last reichstag discussion in Berlin shows plainly that the days of the chancellor are numbered. The German government was more or less compromised by the Socialistic revelations stating beyond doubt that the government had supported the action of the Fatherland's party. This has made a tremendous impression in the rechstag and on the public. The war minister and Vice Chancellor Helfferich made things worse by the autocratic manner they used in answering the justified accusations.

The war minister might have been forgiven, but Helfferich, who, anyway, was a persona non grata, spoiled the whole affair and reopened the crisis that had been latent since July.

Again the majority of the nation and the parliament is standing up against the chancellor, but whereas in July a majority composed of the elements were homogeneous, even now, for the first time since the war broke out, the German government has united against itself all liberal democratic forces.

Tries to Divert Storm.

Chancellor Michaelis is reported to have fallen back on methods which seemed to have been broken and tried to divert the coming thunderstorm against radical Socialists.

In parliament Von Capelle's maneuver saved the situation, but in the lobbies, after the incident, the general impression of the majority was that they had been fooled. Several Liberals regretted voting the new credits. Kuehlmann was the only member of the government rising to the situation. He saw at once the split about domestic affairs should be prevented from making an impression that there was a split over the war policy.

Going further than the plans in their heart of hearts, he found words which united the reichstag from the Conservatives and Agrarians to the left wing Socialists by pointing his finger to Alsace-Lorraine as the symbol of Germany's unification. This, indeed, was the only war aim about which all the parties were unanimous.

Speaks on Alsace.

Kuehlmann is rumored to have said that this would be his most difficult task, to convince Germany it should give back France certain districts of Alsace-Lorraine, about which in 1871 Bismarck and Von Moltke differed, as he believed this the only way to live in peace with France. But though probably this is his conviction, he abandoned it at once when he saw the unity of front toward the enemy could be saved by no other means.

In political circles it is generally believed this decided his chance to become Germany's next chancellor. Kuehlmann is the only member of the German government with modern ideas and western ideals, and at the same time he gives the impression of tremendous strength and an energetic will to grapple with the highest post in the empire. Kuehlmann was the only man in the critical session of the reichstag who showed no nervousness when he understood that Michaelis had compromised his position.

Fight to Last Ditch.

Talking with people, all classes give the impression that the nation, though longing tremendously for peace, will stand the war any length so long as the allies show their unwillingness to guarantee the integrity of the central empires and restore to Germany her colonies and desist from economic boycott.

There is not much talk now about the success of the submarine war on the part of the public, though believing that the British difficulties are growing important, but only U-boat fanatics believe that this will bring peace.

Dreams of a world domination have long since been given up. Now the ideals are to restore the German trade broken by the war and beat England in the world markets.

What is surprising is the serene calmness with which the public takes allied successes about Ypres. There is an adequate conviction that the German line cannot be broken. The confidence in Hindenburg is still unshaken, though the importance of the possession of the Flemish coast during the war is strongly felt.

NOT BOOKWORMS—JUST PATRIOTS

Thousands of Books Are Reaching the Public Library Every Day and Are Being Sorted Out by Squads of Girls for the Men Who Are Fighting Uncle Sam's Share of the War for Democracy.

Thousands of books for the soldiers reach the Chicago public library daily from Chicago and from nearby states, and a squad of girls is kept busy sorting them. Forty-one boxes reached the library from North Dakota yesterday.

C. B. Roden, acting librarian, said that 80 per cent of the books are satisfactory for use in soldiers' camps, and allotments are being shipped daily to national guard camps and national army cantonments. Chicago alone has contributed 30,000 books.

When notified the library will send books for the soldiers when there are ten or more to be sent.

PLEA FOR LIBERTY LOAN TO SOUND IN CHURCHES TODAY

Only Half Subscribed, with but 2 Weeks to Go.

The second week of the Liberty loan closed last night with a much better showing than the first week. But, although the campaign is now half over, the loan is far from half subscribed. Every possible effort will be made in the next two weeks to hurry the subscriptions along. Many wealthy Chicago corporations have not subscribed, and, although the reports of individuals have been promising, there are still more than 400,000 families in Chicago which have no second Liberty bond.

A plea in behalf of the loan will be made today in practically all of the Protestant churches of Chicago and the suburbs. Twelve hundred notices were sent to clergymen by the Chicago Church federation counsel and the Liberty loan executive committee.

There will be another church Liberty loan Sunday next week. Archbishop Mundelein has sent out instructions to all the priests in his jurisdiction to urge their parishioners to participate in the loan. In most parishes, the priest will have a personal talk with every man and woman in his parish regarding the loan.

Levy Mayer Subscribes $1,500,000.

Yesterday marked a number of large subscriptions in Chicago. Levy Mayer announced he would take $1,500,000 of the loan in three installments of $500,000 each. The first installment was cleared through the Continental and Commercial National bank.

The Crane company took $500,000 worth of the bonds. Of that amount $400,000 will be sold to its employés. The remaining $100,000 was taken by R. T. Crane Jr.

Although Friday was a holiday, the flying squadrons sold 2,276 bonds for an aggregate of $709,400. Yesterday they sent the total for the two days past 3,000 subscriptions, with considerably more than $1,000,000 in bonds. Their total for the entire campaign is $13,134,900. That amount is distributed between 29,388 subscribers.

Employes Co-operate.

In general the salesmen have had the finest coöperation from office managers and factory owners. As an instance, Thomas Watling, president of the Watling Manufacturing company, 1029 West Adams street, offered to pay one-half the cost of all $50 Liberty bonds bought by his employés. Every employé in the factory bought one.

Liberty bond salesmen, headed by Isaac Shapiro, secretary of the west park commission, descended on the firm of Shepard, Strassheim & Co., Union and Randolph street, yesterday and sold approximately $5,000 worth of bonds to employés. One young patriot started the ball rolling by writing "to the United States of America" on a $1,000 check.

Practically every organization in Evanston took part in a parade last night to stimulate interest in the Liberty loan.

CAMP GRANT RAISES $926,550.

Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—A total of $926,550 has been subscribed to the Liberty Loan by the men in Camp Grant. The bonds subscribed for during the day came to $189,650. The star outfit of the day was the Three Hundred and Forty-fourth infantry, which raised $84,450. The Three Hundred and Forty-first infantry was second with $30,800, and the Three Hundred and Forty-second infantry, third, with $18,450.

LIBERTY LOAN TIP

Here's How One Concern Got Half of Its Employes to Buy Bonds.

ONE Chicago concern, which asks that its name be not used, succeeded in getting 50 per cent of its employés to buy Liberty bonds after one of the salesmen had failed to sell to a single employé. The secret, according to the official who wrote to THE TRIBUNE, is a proper explanation of the loan and an easy payment plan offered by the company.

When the salesman failed, the employer started out.

"The office people were notified," he wrote, "a plan would be offered whereby they could buy the bonds on easier terms than those granted by the banks. More than one-half of the office employés subscribed. The same proposal was made to the factory people and now more than half of our employés have subscribed.

"We are satisfied that a plain straightforward statement of the case will bring as good results in the average establishment as it brought in ours.

"Our proposition is to allow the employés to pay for the bonds in fifty weeks, we allowing them interest at the rate of 3 per cent from the date of the first payment. Not all will take the entire fifty weeks, but we made it easy for them to enlist the largest possible number."

BOY GAMBLER THREATENS COP AND IS WOUNDED

Detective Sergt. Thomas Joyce saw 15 year old James McManus of 3920 Lexington street "shooting craps" in the rear of 520 South Peoria street yesterday afternoon. When he seized him James drew a revolver and said:

"Let me go, or I'll kill you."

Joyce let him go, and he ran down an alley. As he neared a corner Joyce fired low, hitting him in one foot. He jumped a fence and limped to a stop as Joyce covered him.

"I've got you. Don't be foolish, now," warned Joyce.

"I guess you have," answered the boy, hurling his revolver into Joyce's face. He was taken to the bridewell hospital. He escaped from the St. Charles School for Boys several months ago, Joyce said.

Liberty Loan Pussyfooters Nearly All Smoked Out

Neighborhood committees and county auxiliaries of the state council of defense yesterday reported their investigations have isolated most of the "pussyfooters" of the state who, for either political or pro-German reasons, have declined to take part in promoting the second Liberty loan. Names have not been given out, but officials of the council of defense are coöperating with the neighborhood committees to "smoke out" the unpatriotic persons.

FOUR MINUTE MEN PLAN TO ROUSE SPIRIT FOR LOAN

Tomorrow has been set aside as "Four Minute Man day." Throughout the United States the Four Minute Men will hold special meetings in connection with the Liberty loan, the subject upon which many thousands of them are speaking each night.

The campaign of Chicago's Four Minute Men, speaking nightly in the theaters, is now at its height. The most forceful speakers in the city are in the ranks. All will gather at Monday's meeting to receive a special message from Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. The guest of honor at the meeting will be Samuel Insull, chairman of the state council of defense. Among the other prominent Chicagoans who are expected to be present are:

Edgar A. Bancroft,
Percy S. Boynton,
Frederick A. Brown,
Frederic Burnham,
Henry P. Chandler,
S. J. Duncan-Clark,
James J. Condon,

"MAIL EARLIER" PLAN SUCCEEDS

The "mail it early" idea of Postmaster William B. Carlile is to become an institution. This was assured yesterday when the postmaster announced that not only had he received replies from most of the largest concerns here assuring him of their coöperation in sending their mail to the postoffice earlier than has been their wont, but that since his appeal a few days ago the postoffice is now receiving over 50,000 pieces of mail three to four hours earlier.

It had been the custom of a large percentage of these concerns to send their mail to the postoffice late in the evening. This had caused congestion, due to the shortage of help owing to war conditions, and the mail sometimes was delayed an entire day.

F. H. Galbraith, superintendent of mails, reported yesterday that over 50,000 pieces of mail are now arriving at the main postoffice three to four hours earlier. In a letter received from First Assistant Postmaster General John Koons it was intimated that if the plan here proves successful it will be adopted throughout the country.

Sixty Years Wedded.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Elliott of 448 Oakwood boulevard were married sixty years ago today. Their anniversary will pass without any especial observation, they said last night. They have spent thirty-five years of their married life in Chicago, and Mr. Elliott has been in the employ of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad for thirty-six years.

DELAY ON ARMS DRAWS THE IRE OF ROOSEVELT

Colonel Says That Rifles Should Be Ready for the Soldiers.

The following article by Theodore Roosevelt is printed by the courtesy of the Kansas City Star.

BY THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

[Copyright: 1917: By Kansas City Star.]

The chief of the ordnance bureau of the army, in commenting on the shortage of rifles, has said that it is of no consequence, because "every soldier will be supplied with a rifle when he starts for France."

Of course he will; otherwise, he cannot start. One of the leading papers of New York backs up the statement by saying that the "drilling in the camps without rifles is ended now," and that "Gen. Crozier delayed the work so as to get rifles with the same ammunition our allies are using."

Neither statement is correct. The last is the reverse of truth. On Oct. 2 in one camp there were still only 100 rifles for 20,000 men, and other camps were scarcely better off, and the delay in getting rifles during the last eight months has been due primarily to the refusal of the ordnance department to get rifles using the ammunition of our allies.

Should Have Been Ready.

If, during the two years preceding our entry into the war, our government factory had been run full speed, we would have had over 2,000,000 Springfield rifles instead of under 1,000,000. Our shortage was due solely to our policy of dawdle. Our factories produced a mere dribble of rifles, and no big field guns, until the inevitable happened.

War came. Having no rifles of our own for the new army, the war department decided to adopt English rifles—the Enfield, which was being built in this country at the rate of nearly 9,000 a day, in private plants. And by speeding them up the number could have been immediately increased to 14,000 a day.

But the authorities insisted that the Enfields should be changed to take our ammunition, and that certain parts should be standardized and made interchangeable.

No Excuse for Delays.

As regards this excuse, it is sufficient to point out that, in the first place, it was a grave error, while making the parts of our Enfields interchangeable, at the same time to make their ammunition not interchangeable with that of the British Enfields, for the number of Springfields on hand were negligible compared to the millions of rifles we would ultimately need.

In the second place the delay, even for this purpose, was wholly inexcusable. The German submarine note came on Jan. 31. An alert war department would have had its rifle program minutely mapped out within two weeks. The delay in furnishing final specifications to the factory was such that they could not begin on the complete rifle until the latter part of August.

Six months is a "perfectly endurable delay" only if we are content to accept the speed standards in war of Tiglath-Pilesor and Pharaoh Necho. The United States must learn to adopt the war speed standards of the twentieth century A. D., instead of those of the seventh century B. C.

Case of "Grave Unwisdom."

If in April we had been ready to proceed with the Enfield rifle, we would now have about 2,000,000 of the new rifles, instead of about one-fiftieth of that number. Gen. Crozier says that we have only had to wait "two or three months, a perfectly endurable delay." Surely if there is anything this war teaches, it is the vital importance of time. Two or three months' waiting in order to get a rifle which does not carry the ammunition of our allies represents not merely an undesirable delay, but grave unwisdom.

Gen. Crowder handled the draft to perfection, because he appreciated that the difference between sending a telegram at 5 or at 4:45 might be of momentous consequence. Gen. Grozier has bungled the rifle situation because of the attitude which makes him regard two or three months as "a perfectly endurable delay." For two years and a half before entering the war we relied upon broomstick preparedness. For the first eight months of the war we have followed the same policy as regards the vital matter of rifles for our troops.

TAFT ARRAIGNS LA FOLLETTE AS THOUSANDS HISS

"Disloyal Should Be Consigned to Perpetual Contempt," He Says.

Ten thousand persons gathered in the Coliseum last night to hear former President William Howard Taft excoriate Prussian militarism and anti-government politicians and plead for the success of the second Liberty loan. When Mr. Taft took up the case of Senator La Follette, whom he made the subject of a bitter verbal attack, the crowd cheered the speaker and hissed the name of the senior Wisconsin senator.

Later, when Mr. Taft unburdened himself of his opinion of politicians who play to the disloyalty, real or imagined, of citizens of German birth or parentage, the audience rose and cheered as one. Mr. Taft mentioned no names, but the shouts of "He means Thompson" were audible above the uproar.

"Consign to Perpetual Contempt."

"The people I have contempt for," he said, "the people who are so despicable that it is difficult to speak of them in polite language, are those politicians who have no such associations, traditions, and kinship, and who, because they believe their political constituency with such associations demands it, obstruct the government in fighting this war. Those are the ones we ought to consign in amber to the perpetual contempt of the American people."

At the opening of the meeting a contingent of jackies marched into the Coliseum. Then the Grant park camp band of the national naval reserves broke into "The Star Spangled Banner."

"Tay Pay" Denounces Bernstorff.

David R. Forgan, chairman, first introduced T. P. O'Connor, the Irish patriot, known as "Tay Pay." Mr. O'Connor said he had adopted the platform of the Security league when he learned its chief plank was: "Never to sheathe the sword until an American and not a German peace should be declared."

"In the whole course of modern history," he said, "there has been no baser, meaner, more audacious interference with the rights, work, property, and lives of the American people than in the campaign carried on at Washington by Count Bernstorff."

Early in his speech, Mr. Taft gave his opinion of Senator La Follette. Immediately his audience became voluble in sympathy.

When the Crowd Hissed.

"I don't like to have a man get up in congress or in a convention in Minneapolis or anywhere else," he said, "with the argument that this country is in the wrong in this war. In spite of the contempt I may feel, I like to be able to answer every argument."

Then he told the story of the sinking of the Lusitania.

"Senator La Follette says that while our citizens had the right to travel on commercial vessels, it was only a technical right," he said. "Was the right of those 114 men, women, and children sent to their death on the Lusitania, to life and safety only a technical right?"

It was at this stage of the speech that La Follette's name was hissed.

HONOR KAISER WITHOUT RIFLE

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Official Washington today was keenly interested in reports from London and elsewhere that German troops recently were paraded before Emperor William of Germany without their rifles, presumably through fear that violence might be attempted against the kaiser.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Oct. 13.—A new cabinet has been formed to succeed that headed by Ismael Tocornal, which resigned July 24. Eduardo Saures Mujica, the new minister of foreign affairs, is the former Chilean ambassador to the United States.

TAFT APPEALS FOR LIBERTY LOAN TO FIGHT WORLD MENACE

William Howard Taft, in his speech in the Coliseum last night in support of the second Liberty loan, denounced the disloyal, mentioning Senator Robert L. La Follette in particular and in reviewing the causes leading to the war said the United States was in the conflict to preserve the liberty of the world.

Mr. Taft's speech, in part, follows:

"The United States is engaged in a war of tremendous proportions. It involves an expense and a destruction of resources and lives that make previous wars insignificant. It calls for the utmost effort of all the people of the United States. It requires the immediate organization of an army of 2,000,000, and the possible increase of that army to 4,000,000 or 5,000,000. If we do as much as Canada has done, our army will reach 6,500,000 in number.

Why U. S. Must Borrow.

"The war material is more costly than ever before. The expenditure for ammunition and explosives and the complicated machinery in the air and on the ground and under the seas quickly mounts to billions. The current revenue of no government or combination of governments is enough to meet the cost of such a war. Taxes can be devised and imposed increasing our revenue to three times the ordinary income and still furnish only about one-seventh of what is needed for our annual needs in this war. The remainder must be made up of money borrowed from the people, which the government, as the representative of all the people agrees to pay back.

"The patriotism and voluntary action of its citizens who have money, in advancing it as a loan, has always furnished to the government the money it needed, however great the sum. When the government is at war, no matter what the issue, patriotic citizens will come forward and lend it money, but it certainly stimulates them to greater interest and effort if the righteousness of the cause commends itself.

Tried to Remain Neutral.

"When in August, 1914, this war began we took no part in it. Following the tradition received from Washington and Jefferson and Hamilton, we declared our neutrality. There were those who thought we should have protested against the invasion of Belgium by Germany in violation of her plighted faith, and there were some who thought we should then have joined the allies; but the great body of our people sympathized with the course of the president in sincerely seeking to pursue the course laid down for a neutral by international law.

"We were startled in May, 1915, by the sinking of the Lusitania, a great British commercial liner, unarmed, and loaded with passengers. It was done by the torpedo of a German submarine without warning, and 114 American citizens were drowned. We protested and carried on the correspondence with reference to it for more than a year. Meantime other vessels were sunk in the same way, some American and some British, and other American lives were lost.

Killed 200 Americans.

"She had deliberately killed by drowning upwards of 200 Americans either on American or British commercial ships which were unarmed. She had done this in violation of a rule of international law that for 100 years has been recognized fully by all nations, and in courts of the United States, of England, France, and of Prussia.

"Germany, therefore, in drowning our American citizens was guilty of what in domestic law would be murder, and international law supplies no other term. Not only was Germany guilty of these murders, but she announced her intention of committing others and she has kept her promise. What were we to do?

"Senator La Follette says that, while our citizens had the right to go upon commercial vessels carrying supplies to the allies, it was only a technical right, and one that we might well waive rather than go to war. Was the right of those innocent 114 American men, women, and children, sent to their death without warning on the Lusitania, to life and safety only a 'technical' right?

Takes Rap at La Follette.

"It shocks one's deepest feelings to think that a senator in the congress of the United States could use words of such an import. Those citizens had a right to be where they were and a right to life and safety.

"The murder of our citizens by German submarines was not confined to the drowning of them on British ships. There were many who went down on American ships. A citizen on the high seas on the deck of an American ship and under an American flag is as much within American jurisdiction as if he stood on American soil. The obligation to protect him is as high and as sacred as if Germany had landed an army on our shores and had fired into his home.

"Senator La Follette ignores the humiliation, the dishonor, and the lasting injury to our national influence of yielding the rights of our citizens, or withholding protection from them in the pursuit of their lawful trades on the high seas, at the dictation of a military power like Germany, because of a fear of that power.

"Had a weaker power done the wrong to the United States and threatened further invasions of its rights, all persons, pacifists, Senator La Follette and all, would commend the action of our government in demanding reparation and seeking security against further depredation. The only difference, therefore, is that Germany was the stronger. Defend our rights against the puny, but yield them to the mighty."

Blood All on Germany's Hands.

Mr. Taft then gave a review of the history of Germany as it had a bearing on this war, and continued:

"On Germany's hands is all this blood. Her diplomacy, unscrupulous and cunning, has enabled her to seem to be forced into a war she long had planned. It matters not what the details of the beginning of this war, the preparedness of Germany, the unpreparedness of her enemies, and her power to prevent the war had she chosen to turn her hand, show her guilt. She was merely awaiting her opportunity to strike, as she did before with Denmark, Austria, and France. The opportunity came, and under cover of Austria's ultimatum she struck."

"They Misunderstood."

Concerning the attitude of the German people under their present rulers Mr. Taft said:

"They assumed that the United States might be bluffed into acquiescence in their bullying destruction of American rights. They counted on the political weight in this country of the pro-German votes; they thought that even if driven into war, our country, divided in sentiment, would not prepare itself in time to be of any effective aid to the allies.

"They misunderstood the British people, the people of the British colonies. They misunderstood France. They have misunderstood the United States. For now at the crisis of the war they have called in to the assistance of the allies, when everything depends upon money, food, resources, and fresh supplies of men, this nation, fresh in its strength, which is better able to furnish them all than any other nation in the world. With their false philosophy under the influence of the Prussian military caste, with their determination to Germanize the world, the imperial German people constitute a continuing threat to the peace of the world. Not until the German military caste is defeated, not until the emperor as the head of the caste is brought to his knees by force, will the imperial German people be made aware of the hideous error in their policy.

Young Giant Putting on Armor.

After reviewing the activities of the United States since entering the war Mr. Taft made this plea in support of the Liberty loan:

"The young giant is making and putting on his armor. His prowess has been flouted by a nation that has been fifty years in its military preparation. That nation is to learn that its preparation was in vain because such preparation did not give it victory within a month. At the battle of the Marne it was turned from its prey. At the battle of the Marne it was held and driven to intrenchment, and then its enemies began the preparation by which it is ultimately to be defeated.

"All that is needed now to effect this defeat is the united effort of the American people. In no other way can they manifest their determination to win more completely, in no other way can they contribute more effectively to victory than by their ready subscriptions to these Liberty loans as they come. Thus they will furnish the sinews of war and enable our boys in the trenches to strike hard and true for world liberty and for world peace."

ARMY AVIATORS TO 'BOMB' CITIES WITH LOAN PLEA

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—American army aviators are to make a concerted attack on the central powers of Europe next Saturday when several thousand pounds of "bombs" will be dropped from machines upon more than a score of cities. It will be American cities, however, including Chicago, over which the birdmen will hover, and the munitions will be in the form of Liberty loan literature. Every person hit by the red, white, and blue missives will be urged to rush to the nearest bank and purchase a Liberty bond.

In addition each machine will carry one large "bomb," tightly sealed, and bearing a message from some Washington official high in the service of the government. Attached to the "bomb" will be long colored streamers, which will make its flight through the air easy to follow. Whoever finds this coveted prize is to take it immediately to the mayor of his town, to whom it is addressed, who will break the seal and read the message.

Reports to the adjutant general of the army indicate that officers, enlisted men, and permanent civilian employés of the army have subscribed approximately $6,700,000 to the second Liberty loan. Keen competition has developed between the cantonment camps, regiments, and companies.

Gen. Stuart to See Soldiers Get Their Mail on Time

Gen. James E. Stuart, postoffice inspector in charge in the Chicago district, is going to find out why it is that Uncle Sam's national army soldiers are having such a hard time getting their mail at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., and Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich. The general will conduct an inspection at each of the camps, as a result of a complaint made by Maj. H. S. Gillespie, of Camp Custer, that soldiers are suffering unusual delays in the distribution of their mail.

GERMAN ADMITS APPALLING LOSS IN HAIG DRIVES

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 13.—An unmistakable intimation of great losses sustained by the Germans in their attempts to stem the British attacks is contained in the latest comment of Lieut. Gen. von Ardenne, military critic of the Tageblatt of Berlin, on the Flanders campaign.

He refers to the German losses at Mars-la-Tour and Gravelotte in the Franco-Prussian war, averaging five-sixths of the officers and one-third of the men of the guard and Brandenburg regiments engaged.

The general then says these losses often are far exceeded in the present war and that in the third Flanders battle they have been so great as to induce the military authorities to publish them, feeling that the sacrifices of Prince Rupprecht's troops entitle them to extraordinary thanks.

Gen. Ardenne pays a tribute to the British tanks, which are able to deliver a most effective enfilading fire from their machine guns whenever they are able to approach the infantry lines.

Suspect Work of Plotter in $1,200,000 Grain Fire

New York, Oct. 13.—Reports of incendiarism in connection with a disastrous waterfront fire which destroyed an elevator and nearly 700,000 bushels of grain in Brooklyn today were revived tonight when Fire Chief Kenton issued a statement saying the cause of the blaze would be rigidly investigated. The property loss was estimated at more than $1,200,000.

"There have been fifty-six waterfront fires in New York City lately, and it is improbable that all resulted from natural causes," Chief Kenton said.

BORDEN GAINS FULL SUPPORT FOR CABINET

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 13.—Success for union government under Premier Borden was assured today when F. B. Carvell of New Brunswick took office as minister of public works and Premier George Murray of Nova Scotia consented to become secretary of state. Mr. Carvell has been the most active and effective opponent of the Conservative government. His attitude was more feared than that of any other single member of the opposition. He supported compulsory military service and broke with his leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, upon that issue.

EXEMPTION FOR DENTAL PUPILS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—An order practically granting the same military service exemptions to all dental students as recently were granted to medical students above the first year was issued by Provost Marshal Gen. Crowder today.

Under the new regulation all dental students, except those in their first year, who are members of the dental reserve corps, will be exempted on the ground that they already are members of the military establishment. Students not members of the corps who are called before local boards or who have been sent to mobilization camps will be allowed to apply to the surgeon general for enlistment in the dental reserve corps. If they are able to prove they are recognized dental students the adjutant general will be asked to order their release from camp and they will be placed among the enlisted reserve corps.

GERMANY DENIES POLAND PEOPLE FACE FAMINE

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 13.—The German administration of Warsaw has issued a denial of statements that famine conditions prevail in Poland. It asserts there is an abundance of food in the rural districts, and that the people in the cities are adequately nourished.

These statement contradict those made by a representative of the Warsaw town council, who is in Copenhagen endeavoring to arrange for the sending of a supply of food by way of Denmark, and also by the secretary of a Danish relief organization, who recently returned from Poland. Both give appalling pictures of conditions there, particularly in regard to the high mortality due to undernutrition in crowded Warsaw.

TRAIN SOLDIERS TO HIT BULLSEYE, PERSHING URGES

Declares Allies Now See Mistake in Not Being Better Shots.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Gen. Pershing, commander of the American expeditionary forces in France, has sent a second cablegram to the war department, it was learned today, declaring that his longer observation of the situation in France causes him to repeat his recommendation that infantry soldiers ought to be trained into excellent marksmen.

Gen. Pershing emphasizes the importance of soldiers being good shots, asserting that the most complete instruction and range practice are absolutely necessary.

The preparation which he urges would be met if the course prescribed in the American army's small arms firing manual should be rigorously pursued.

Ranges in France Scarce.

The Anglo-French armies appreciate now, Gen. Pershing asserted, their deficiency in small arms training, and to prevent the United States forces from repeating the experience of the allies he adds that it is difficult at the present time to procure a site for a target range in France.

Even should it be possible to secure an adequate and convenient area in France for a range, a great period would be required for the construction of the ranges and for the improvisation of target materials. The time that would thus be given for this purpose, Gen. Pershing stated, would be needed in the war areas for the intensive training of the American soldiers.

Urges Thorough Training.

For these reasons, Gen. Pershing said, he again sought to impress upon the war department the value of giving all soldiers thorough training in the use of small arms before they embark for France. He further stated that the special training in trench warfare which the new troops are receiving in this country ought not to be permitted to interfere with the small arms practice, nor with the training in "school of the soldier" companies and battalions.

The "school of the soldier" is a phrase employed in the United States army to describe the first steps in the training of a soldier. It includes setting up exercises, facing, and steps in marching, and the manual of arms.

Although a prompt military salute may not be well understood by Americans, even men in the service, its real object is to reveal the true soldier by an aggressive attitude of mind and of body.

Archbishop Ireland Ill; Condition Not Serious

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 13.—Archbishop John Ireland of the St. Paul diocese has been confined to his home for three days, suffering from a cold, it was announced tonight. Dr. Charles Mayo of Rochester, Minn., said tonight in a statement issued at his home that the archbishop's condition is not serious.

The Beautiful—Wonderful
Angelus Player-Piano—
Musically Correct—so different

—because other player pianos do not possess the following patented expression devices for "Music-Making Witchery" viz:

The Phrasing Lever
The Melodant
The Graduated Accompaniment
The Artistyle Expression Guide

—truly acknowledged to be an instrument of the highest musical possibilities by all persons of refined musical taste. If this were not true, the old and reliable firm of Geo. P. Bent Company would not say so—and if you do not already know it, you owe it to yourself to investigate this broad and truthful statement.

The Phrasing Lever—With this wonderful device you can prolong or hasten syllables in the rendition of songs without changing the marked tempo or time. By resting the hand on this sensitive balancing mechanism, it faithfully records the very thoughts—as it were—of the person playing.

This feature does away with the "humdrum" mechanical rhythm so universally heard and criticised in other player pianos.

With the Melodant—the theme (or as many call it, solo or tune) is brought out clearly and distinctly above the accompaniment—not a mere effect by softening the bass or treble end of the piano, one from the other, as is usually done.

Just think what THIS alone means to the refined musical ear.

With the Graduated Accompaniment you can get the most delicate pianissimos, or the fortes of the powerful hand of a Rubinstein and with the Artistyle Expression guide the non-musical person can play with the musical feeling of a practiced pianist.

The Phrasing Lever
The Melodant
The Graduated Accompaniment
The Artistyle Expression Guide

—all, are exclusive and patented features belonging and pertaining to Angelus Player Pianos alone.

—you must not and cannot expect to find these wonderful musical necessities in any other make of player piano, until such time as the Angelus patents expire.

The Angelus is—and justly—called the ARISTOCRAT of the Player family.

The Angelus Player Pianos do not cost any more than other player pianos of merit. We most cordially invite you to come in and see, try and hear them. QUALITY IS THE BASIS of TRIBUNE ADVERTISING

"SPLENDID," SAY CONTRIBUTORS TO CHRISTMAS KITS

Letters Commend "Tribune's" Plan for Gifts to the Soldiers.

Admiration for the brave American boys in France and expressions of the the old spirit of the old fashioned Christmas accompany many of the letters sent to THE TRIBUNE inclosing contributions for the yuletide kits to be forwarded to the war zone.

Some of the expressions, picked at random from the hundreds of letters, follow:

I. Weaver, Madison, Wis.—"God bless them."

Mrs. H. N. Roberts, Wilmington, Ill.—"I thank you so much for the opportunity of sending a bit of Christmas cheer to our brave boys 'over there.' And I certainly appreciate the simple and inexpensive method you afford us of doing so."

Charles F. Adams, Plaza hotel—"This is certainly a good work."

Mrs. F. D. Porter, 6336 Drexel avenue—"I think your plan of sending them this way very good. God bless our boys."

Incloses Christmas Cards.

Josephine B. Williamson, 5121 University avenue: "I would have liked to pack them myself, but would it be possible to send my own Christmas cards which I am inclosing?" Mrs. Williamson's cards will be packed with her kits. One carries this message: "From over the hills and far away comes the old fashioned wish in the old fashioned way. A merry Christmas."

Mrs. Louis Hunter Piper, 814 Nineteenth street, East, Cedar Rapids, Ia.: "Before I learned of your project I had already planned and almost completed Christmas boxes for twelve soldiers. They cost more and probably are not nearly so complete as yours. I am glad to know that you have had so many responses to your appeal and hope every person will contribute what they can."

Margaret E. Blunt, 158 North Euclid avenue, Pasadena, Cal.: "Am glad to know I can make one unknown, who is fighting for us, happy at that time."

Would Add Candy or Nuts.

Sophie S. Ross, 1621 Peoples Gas building—"It gives me great pleasure to be able to help a little, and my only regret is that I cannot do more just at present. Best wishes for the success of the glorious undertaking."

An Englewood man and wife, who sent $10—"Can't some candy or hard nuts be added? For Christmas isn't Christmas without them. Please do not publish our names, as we can only do small things, but our hearts are in the right place, so we would rather no one knew of it."

Earl Cavender Smith, 4330 Lake Park avenue—"With best wishes for the generous support of this movement on your part, which is particularly characteristic of what my mother and myself consider the greatest newspaper in the world."

Mrs. Albert L. Mohr, 2033 Fremont street—"For our dear soldiers in France."

William Ritchie, 139 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park—"I thank THE TRIBUNE most heartily for its disinterested services which will enable me, even in this feeble fashion, to show a few of our boys at the front that they are thought of at home at the season when every man's thoughts are of home." [Mr. Ritchie sent $10 and observed: "It's little enough, God knows."]

Thinks Idea Wonderful.

Marie E. Ahrens, 5210 North Clark street—"I think your idea is wonderful and sincerely hope it proves a big success."

Carrie M. Henderson, 152 Latrobe avenue, Austin—"I think your idea is splendid, and it will give me the greatest of pleasure to receive a return card from any one of the brave boys somewhere in France."

Mrs. Charles G. Avery, 715 North Cuyler avenue, Oak Park—"I can appreciate very much what your valuable paper is doing for our boys, as I had a father and five uncles in the civil war, and my husband was in the Spanish war and the Philippine insurrection."

INSPECTING AND WEIGHING-IN THE BABIES

A Semi-Weekly Scene at the Infant Welfare Station at the Stock Yards.

This work is conducted by the women of the Hyde Park branch of the Chicago Infant Welfare society. The station is at 4751 Loomis street. The annual cost of maintenance is $3,000. A benefit for this fund is to be given next Tuesday evening, Oct. 16, at Powers' theater, the proceeds from Otis Skinner's performance of "Mr. Antonio" to go to aid the nursery. Mrs. Frederick C. Test, 4620 Greenwood avenue, is president of the society, having the benefit in charge, and Mrs. Edward Swigert, 5001 Blackstone avenue, is treasurer.

COUPLE BRING PLEA FOR XMAS IN BELGIAN ARMY

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Norton, just back from France, where they have been doing missionary work in the trenches, arrived in Chicago yesterday with a submarine story and an appeal for Christmas boxes for what is left of the Belgian army—about 200,000 men.

It was on the return voyage to America that they met the German undersea boat. Mrs. Norton told the story:

"I was sitting in the stern. Suddenly one of the gunners cried:

"'Torpedo.'

"Officers on the bridge had seen it at the same time. It was skimming along directly toward us. The ship was swung at right angles and the torpedo cleared us by about twenty yards."

Mr. Norton will speak of his experience in the first line Belgian trenches this morning at the Moody tabernacle and in the afternoon at the Fourth Presbyterian church. Christmas boxes for the Belgian soldiers depend upon the generosity of the American people, Mr. Norton said yesterday. He has already raised sufficient funds for 31,500 boxes.

U. S. MUST SAVE MORE WHEAT TO LET ALLIES EAT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—Of this year's wheat crop only 77,696,000 bushels, or about 11.8 per cent, will be left for export to the allies and neutrals after the requirements of the United States are filled, unless Americans heed the call of the food administration and curtail their consumption.

Although Great Britain, France, and Italy are rigorously administering and economizing their food, the situation in wheat, according to the food administration, is one of greatest difficulty and concern.

Canada, figures available here show, will have a possible surplus of 120,000,000 bushels of wheat, and that added to the surplus of the United States will make a little more than 200,000,000 bushels. The allied countries, it is estimated, will have a deficiency of 400,000,000 bushels.

Austrian Refuses to Join Army.

Pana, Ill., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Frank Mlacnic, an Austrian, arrested here two weeks ago on the charge of being a slacker, after being trailed through three counties, was taken from the county jail to Jefferson barracks, St. Louis, today for court martial, on order of the war department. He refused to fight Germany because he had three brothers in the Austrian army.

DEDICATE Y.M.C.A. BUILDINGS TODAY AT CAMP GRANT

Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—All seven of the Y. M. C. A. buildings are completed now and at 6:30 tomorrow simultaneous dedication exercises will be held in them. It is the big feature of camp life for this Sunday.

The Rev. John Timothy Stone of the Fourth Presbyterian church of Chicago, camp religious director for the Y. M. C. A., will speak at two of the meetings.

At the Auditorium, which is the largest building, the Rev. Mr. Stone, L. Wilbur Messer, general secretary of the Chicago Y. M. C. A.; Col. H. O. S. Hiestand, division adjutant, and the Rev. John Gordon of Rockford will speak. William P. Sidley will preside.

At the other buildings the list of speakers includes the following officers: Brig. Gen. L. V. Lennon, Brig. Gen. George Leroy Corwin, Brig. Gen. Charles H. Martin, Col. B. F. Simmons, Col. C. E. Stodter, Col. A. E. Waldron, Col. S. B. Arnold, Lieut. Col. Arthur M. Shipp, A. M. Shoyer, W. F. Hipes, J. G. Perkins, P. A. Peterson, H. L. Pratt, W. J. Parker, J. C. W. Parker, and W. Q. Farquhar.

CHARITY BAZAAR SWELLS TOBACCO FUND FOR TROOPS

Canadian Woman, After Seeing 1,700 Wounded Men, Aids Cause.

Proceeds of a charity bazaar at 4527 Sheridan road, amounting to $150, have been added to "Our Boys in France Tobacco Fund." Mrs. Fred B. Nilsson was the originator of the bazaar. She was assisted by Miss Cecile Brown, 1242 Hood avenue, and Mrs. M. Rockenfeller, 4038 Calumet avenue.

"I am a Canadian," said Mrs. Nilsson, "and I have just come from Toronto, where I saw 1,700 wounded men. We know the horrors of war there and that is why I worked so hard to raise money to supply comforts for the soldiers. When the United States has a casualty list every one here will feel the same way.

"I had some rough experiences while working on behalf of the bazaar. One grocer refused to give anything, and finally became so angry he threw a bag of salt at me.

She Sells the Missile.

"I took the bag and sold it. Next day I told him the bag had been sold for 50 cents. He said I owed him 35 cents, then. I told him that was going to be his gift to the soldiers and that, moreover, I was going to get all the Liberty bond salesmen in the city after him.

"Most of the people were glad to help. Mr. Hannah of the Brevoort hotel gave us the use of a fine store at 4527 Sheridan road. The Osgood Sign company and the Broadway Sign shop painted signs for us and the Edgewater Press gave us a lot of help with printing. Several movie theaters used slides. I want to thank them all for what they did.

"The bazaar lasted three days, but rain prevented us from doing anything one day, so we raised the $150 in two days."

A contribution for $100 was sent in by Robert Allerton.

How Fund Grows.

Trial of Rioting Negro Soldiers to Start Soon

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 13.—An order for the courtmartial of more than 120 Negroes of the Twenty-fourth infantry, charged with participation in the riots at Houston, Tex., Aug. 23, to be held at Fort Sam Houston, is expected early next week, it was announced at southern department headquarters today.

Sixty of the Negro soldiers will be charged with mutiny and murder, it was indicated, the others with lesser offenses.

Save Your Life

They ADMIT fresh air, but PREVENT drafts and EXCLUDE dirt, rain, snow, and burglars.

Each one is a ventilating system in itself, assuring fresh air in comfort, no matter what the weather.

The Berry Window Ventilator is collapsible, operating like an accordion. It opens and closes with the window. It does not interfere with the operation of the window, and when not in use lies flat on the inside of the sill—out of the way.

The amount of air admitted is easily regulated by raising or lowering the window.

One can attach it to the window or detach it within a single second. When attached it positively locks the lower sash whether the window is open or closed.

The Berry Window Ventilator is indestructible, and cannot get out of order. It is made of non-rustable metal, heavily enameled and finished in oak or mahogany.

SOLEMN RITES TODAY AS POLES ASK VOLUNTEERS

Paderewski Battle Hymn Will Be Sung for the First Time.

On this, the one hundredth anniversary of the death of the great national hero of Poland, Thaddeus Kosciusko, Chicago Poles will present colors to the representatives of the French government and the Polish army in France, and make the first drive for volunteers to join the Polish army now in the trenches. The presentation of the colors will be made at the International pavilion, stockyards, this afternoon.

Five hundred Chicago Poles already have volunteered for service in France and will be sworn in with impressive ceremonies.

The flag, a replica of the field colors of the Polish army when Poland was a free state, bears a white Polish eagle on a red field and the Polish words meaning: "Free, United, and Independent Poland." With them the Polish army hopes to help drive the Germans from France and so defeat them that Poland will once more become an autonomous state.

Representative Gathering.

Among those who will attend are Prince Stanislaus Poniatowski, grandson of the last king of Poland; Ignace J. Paderewski, the pianist; representatives of the United States, France, Great Britain, Russia, Belgium, Italy, and Serbia; the Polish national committee, Polish clergy, under the leadership of Bishop Paul P. Rhode, and prominent Polish-Americans from all over the United States.

John F. Smulski will act as chairman.

Volunteers will be asked for to go in training in American and Canadian camps at once.

The ceremonies will begin with special services at St. Joseph's church, Forty-eighth and Paulina streets, at 1:30 o'clock. After the services a procession will march to the International pavilion, where memorial exercises will be held.

On the Program.

Prince Poniatowski, Paderewski, Mr. Smulski, and representatives of the various governments will speak. Secretary of War Baker was expected, but was detained on government business.

Paderewski has composed a new battle hymn for the Polish army, which will be sung for the first time by a choir of 300 Polish singers, rehearsed under Wronski of the Metropolitan Opera company.

The new flag of Freedom was conceived by Miss Emily Wisla of 2411 Cortez avenue and executed by the Polish National alliance, Polish Women's alliance, and the Polish Roman Catholic union.

It will be presented to the representatives of the French government and the Polish army in France by Miss Emily Napieralski, general secretary of the Polish Women's National Alliance of America, and Mrs. Valeria Litesynski, wife of a veteran of the last Polish insurrection.

Appeal for Men.

The following appeal to Poles in America to enlist has been issued:

"Providence has decreed that on the centennial of the death of Thaddeus Kosciusko there arises a Polish national army upon the continent where he so valiantly fought for freedom.

"France has given life to this army and has offered her aid and support.

"France does not require the sacrifice of Polish blood. She can prevail without our humble aid. Over 5,000,000 men now fight in her defense. France, the leader of civilization, like Poland, a frequent defender of the oppressed, is concerned chiefly that in this struggle of light against darkness, right against might, all liberty loving peoples may participate. Larger and smaller nations are already engaged and now the mighty United States of America has joined France and her allies.

An Everlasting Wrong.

"Should in this struggle for the freedom of nations the Polish colors be missing, it would be shameful. Should in this august union of the defenders of humanity the Polish nation fail to join, it would be an everlasting wrong against our future generations.

"Our army is needed not for France but for Poland. Occupied by the enemy, Poland is prevented from sending her sons to join the ranks of freedom's champions. But you are here, you, the worthy sons of a valorous race. In your hands rests the honor of Poland and her future.

"Conscious of our sacred duty to the motherland and humanity, we have long waited for this opportunity, with a full sense of our responsibility before God, the nation, and our own conscience. Today, having obtained assurances of protection, having received a favorable declaration by the United States government that enlistment into the Polish army of all those who are not legally subject to draft in the United States army shall meet with no objection, we call to you from the bottom of our hearts and challenge you:

TO THE RANKS! TO ARMS! TO BATTLE!

Like Worthy Sons.

"To a great and glorious struggle for the protection of threatened peoples, for the wrongs suffered by Poland, go, so the world may know that in your breast the knightly valor of your forefathers has not been stilled, that the fearless bravery of the Poles of old has not vanished. Go, to give testimony that the American Pole is a worthy heir to the glory of Polish arms.

"Without Goplo, Kruswica, Gniezno, and Posnan, the ancient cradle of the nation, there can be no Poland. On to the fight! Without Silesia's ancient homes of Piast there can be no Poland. On to the fight! Without Vistula and the seashore, without our ancient Gdansk [Danzig] there can be no Poland. On to the fight!

"Let the proud watchword of our forefathers be your watchword. Go with confidence and faith, proclaiming to all, and everywhere, 'We fight for your and our freedom.'

"The God of our forefathers, who made triumphant the swords of Chrobry, Lokietek, and Jagiello against aggressive Teutonic hordes, will answer the prayer of the immortal spirit of Kosciuszko and grant you victory and glory."

The appeal carries the signatures of I. J. Paderewski, T. M. Helinski, C. W. Sypniewski, Dr. Fr. E. Fronczak, J. F. Smulski, K. Zychlinski, H. Setmajer, P. Rostenkowski, Ks. Wl. Zapala, Ks. Br. Celichowski, A. Neumanowa, St. Szwajkart, Dr. T. A. Starzynski, Dr. K. Wagner, Dr. F. J. Drobinski, and J. S. Rybicki.

BRITISH CHIEFS OF MUNITIONS TO VISIT CHICAGO

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—Four members of the British ministry of munitions will leave Washington early next week on an extended tour through several middle western and eastern states. They will vist Chicago.

Their purpose is to place at the disposal of American industrial leaders, both employers and employés, Great Britain's experience in promoting the production of munitions, particularly from the standpoint of the distribution and effective employment of labor. The commission goes at the invitation and under the auspices of the council of national defense and the several state councils.

ARMY MEDICAL AIDS MEET IN CHICAGO OCT. 21

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—The general medical board of the council of national defense, which has been coöperating closely with the surgeon general's office in developing the medical resources of the country for war, will hold its next meeting in Chicago Oct. 21.

A large number of wealthy Americans have offered to the government the use of their country estates for war medical purposes. So far as medical experts of the army can now judge, it will not be necessary to utilize private estates for hospital or convalescent purposes. A series of commodious hospital buildings are being constructed in every military department of the country.

Committee Formed to Find Jobs for the Handicapped

The employment committee for the handicapped was born yesterday for the purpose of finding employment for men and women of Chicago who are handicapped by age or other impediment. The service will be free to both employer and employé. Mrs. Fred Rawitser is chairman.

Bullets Stop "Wanted" Man After a Chase

Burke Lancaster, who, according to the police, is wanted in St. Louis for safeblowing and robbery, was arrested last night by Lincoln Park Policeman Paul Klapzac after a chase in which the policeman fired a number of shots.

WHAT SEVEN KIDS CAN DO TO ONE PEACEFUL HOME

Mrs. Lynn Found Two Youngsters Hiding Under Bed.

Margaret's mother says if she hadn't come home just about the time she did she'd have had to start housekeeping all over again, for the furniture and the carpets would probably have been taken along with the other things.

However all that may be, Mrs. Martin Linn of 1619 West North avenue, Margaret's mother, came home when she did and she caught two of the prowlers cowering under the bed. With this important capture to start on, the police force soon had two more of the prowlers in hand. Three are still at large.

"Some Kids."

Eddie and Celia and Martha and Mattie Schrader are the four little culprits who were captured. Eddie is 4, Mattie and Celia, who are twins, are 5, and Martha is 9. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schrader of 1542 North Ashland avenue, just around the corner from the Lynn flat on North avenue.

It happened like this: Mrs. Linn went away early Friday afternoon. When she returned at 5 o'clock she heard a noise as she entered the house. Not only the noise, but she looked about her. Something was obviously awry. Drawers were ransacked. The floor was scattered with edibles and clothing. Then she looked under the bed.

Found Hidden Key.

In a moment she had pulled Hattie and Celia out, and they sobbed out the story. They and their little brother and sister and three other children of their age had discovered where Mrs. Linn hid her key in the hall. They had entered for fun, and then they got the idea to take a few things away with them. They did take a few things—quite a few—ranging all the way from Mr. Linn's shirts to watches and jewelry and jars of jelly and pictures.

Mrs. Schrader works all day in a fruit factory, and the children have no one to watch them while she is at work.

Mr. and Mrs. Linn have already recovered their watches, a necklace, and other jewelry. Mr. and Mrs. Linn feel rather "sorry for the kids," and they'll let it go at that, in all probability.

RUSSIA'S WORD

Ambassador Sends Message of Encouragement to Polish Meeting Here.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 12.—Boris Bakhmeteff, Russian ambassador to the United States, sent the following telegram today to the Polish national department at Chicago:

"In this momentous hour I wish to address you as a representative of the Russian provisional government. I am happy to be able to complete the brotherly appeal through which the Russian provisional government has already called the Polish nation to determine its own fate and to transmit to you the latest statement made by the Russian minister of foreign affairs with reference to the Polish question.

"Explaining the reasons why new Russia should not consider the last peace proposals formulated by the vatican as acceptable, Mr. Tereschenko spoke as follows:

"'The Polish people cannot be satisfied by the new administrative regulations for Poland which have been offered lately by the German government. The concessions of Germany being but a proof of its weakness, still leave the motherland of the Poles disunited. Russia is opposing to that its firm resolution to bring into life its appeal to the Poles of April 12, 1917, proclaiming the reconstruction of the free Polish nation.'

"The Russian government has just proposed to the allies to publish a common act which would confirm and sanction the above proclamation."

BENTLEY DIED FOR AN IDEAL, LETTER REVEALS

Received Cross After He Was Wounded; Expected to Recover.

Fred W. Bentley, father of Paul Cody Bentley, who died Sept. 16 in France, received several letters yesterday from American boys who were in the war, toiling and fighting on the west front, and who knew his son. Paul Bentley was wounded by a bursting shell on Sept. 13.

The next day he was presented with the Croix de Guerre with full military honor. At that time there was no thought that his wounds were mortal. The letters from his friends say that when he was given the signal honor he replied with these words:

> I am glad to fight for France because of her ideals and because of what she has done for my country. I am glad to fight for humanity, and I hope to see this war brought to a conclusion by the execution of international criminals.

Splinter Caused Death.

Two days after he was wounded it was discovered that a splinter of shell had penetrated his chest and that the point of the sliver was only a quarter of an inch from the heart. An operation was performed, but he had been gassed before this and his lungs were in such condition he did not recover from the anesthetic.

Young Bentley's body was buried in a metallic casket in the military cemetery at St. Guilles on the Aisne river. His comrades were not permitted to put any tablet or other special marker upon his grave, because under the military law all who die for France are of equal distinction.

One letter from Noble W. Lee, Bentley's driving companion for months, received yesterday by Lee's father, Edward T. Lee, 5615 Kenwood avenue, gave the first detail of Bentley's death.

At the time it was posted, Lee was confident that his friend would survive. Lee gave up driving the car which Bentley was using the day before, as he was granted a furlough. Lee was making a last drive in a special car following behind Bentley.

Ran Into Shell Zone.

The story, as told by Lee, is that Bentley and his companion, a man named Ricks from California, started back from a post near the firing line with four wounded. They ran into the shelling and before they were aware of the danger, shells were bursting behind them as well as in front. A shell landed about five feet behind the car. After being hit, Bentley managed to pull the car out at the side of the road.

Bentley was taken to a hospital beyond the point where he should have been left, due to the inability of the French drivers to understand English. After the chief surgeon had looked at Bentley, he began to issue orders and men began to move with great rapidity. Lee said he realized something serious was the matter. The X-ray examination showed a shell fragment near the end of his breast bone and close to his heart. The doctor said he had a bare chance of living. He would die without an operation, but might recover if he could be operated on. In the operating room they found him too weak for an operation, and they decided to wait two hours, and gave him stimulants to strengthen him.

On the day the letter was written, Lee says they learned by telephone that Bentley was the same, and a few minutes later, just before the letter was mailed, a boy told Lee they had made a blood transfusion, operated, removed the fragments, and that Bentley "was coming through all right."

Cinderella of Salem Inn Proves to Be Mere Man

Patrick King, 2915 East Ninety-fifth street, was weaving from one side of the walk to the other at 2 o'clock this morning as he made his way along Commercial avenue, South Chicago. On one foot he wore a shoe, on the other a slipper. Policeman John Hayes arrested King, whose slipper was the mate to one found in the Salem inn a few nights ago. Two bottles of whisky had been stolen from the inn, which is located at 9100 Commercial avenue, and the slipper was the only clew. King was fined $10 on a charge of disorderly conduct and sent to the bridewell hospital for treatment. He has a wife and six children.

DANCES INTO WEDLOCK

Divorced Wife of the Late Fritz von Frantzius a Bride for the Third Time.

Saharet

Saharet, divorced wife of the late Fritz von Frantzius, is married again.

It is the third matrimonial venture of the dancer. Her first marriage was with Ike Rose, a New York theatrical man.

The Chicago banker was her second husband. Their married life was brief. After the death of Von Frantzius she married Maxim P. Lowe, a Chicago theatrical agent, with offices in the Majestic Theater building.

The marriage took place in New York on June 2. Saharet is in New York. Her husband is in Chicago.

'BUDDY' AND ROSE TOSS EACH OTHER A BRICK OR TWO

A. B. Collingbourne, president of the Western Thread company, who was shot on Friday by Miss Katherine Rose, whom he had discharged, and replaced by Miss "Buddy" Asp, remained silently in his home at 656 Woodland park, permitting his wounds to knit yesterday. But the two girls were far from silent. Each sharpened a verbal snickersnee for the other.

"She has defamed my character," said Miss Asp in her home at 600 East Seventy-first street. "She'll have to pay for it. The charges against me are false."

Miss Rose curled her Spanish lip in a pseudo Castilian sneer.

"Why, that little snip," she said. "Everything I said about her is true. If she says I didn't see her and Collingbourne together in the College Inn, she lies. It's not hearsay, for I saw her with my own eyes."

There were intimations by Miss Asp that the shooting of Collingbourne was caused by a cold. It was Collingbourne's cold in the head that caused them to have the door to his private office closed while Miss Asp took dictation.

END OF WAR STILL FAR OFF, REPORTS AMBULANCE MAN

Robert Redfield Jr. Back from France; Others Return.

"The beginning of the end of the great war is not yet in sight. War weariness—a sort of dull, depressed spirit—is over all the fighting armies of the allies in northern France and Belgium. The prisoners taken say it is the same, doubtless worse, behind the German lines, where the morale is weakening.

"Underneath the depression and weariness, due to the long months of struggle, the allies hold to their dogged determination to see it through, cost what it may. The mere presence of the Americans is an immense help to the morale."

The foregoing is the opinion of Robert Redfield, Jr., a Chicago boy who has just returned from France after several months in the ambulance service.

Gemmill's Son Returns.

Six other American ambulance drivers, who served the six months in the war zone with young Redfield, reached home last night. They are William B. Gemmill, son of Municipal Court Judge William N. Gemmill; Buell Hutchinson, son of Dr. E. B. Hutchinson, 1351 East Fifty-sixth street; Vernon Beatty of Decatur; Norman S. Smith of Oak Park, a University of Illinois student; Dave Annan, and George Scholes.

One of the Chicago boys did not return. He was Paul Cody Bentley, Harvard university student, a son of Fred W. Bentley, 4750 Kenwood avenue. He made the supreme sacrifice for his country and was buried in France. He died from wounds inflicted by a German shell while he was helping the wounded back to the hospitals.

A Tribute to Bentley.

Young Redfield and Bentley were teammates in the ambulance service for weeks, working, eating, and living together. Redfield last night, at the house of his father, Attorney Robert Redfield, Sr., paid a tribute to Bentley.

"Bentley was one of the finest fellows I ever met," he said. "He was one of the best drivers in our section. He never complained. He took the dangers as they came without flinching. Everybody who came in contact with him admired him. That they got him was not unexpected. Anyhow, Bentley was every inch a man—a true man. He died as he worked—bravely."

Redfield brought with him Bentley's personal effects for his father and mother. Bentley and Redfield were shifted to separate groups a few days before the former was killed.

Smith Praises Gemmill.

None of the boys had much to say of his personal experiences, but all were telling how courageous the other fellow was.

Norman Smith, who served in the unit that got the Croix de Guerre, passed it off lightly so far as he was concerned, but had a fine word for "Bill" Gemmill, and all of them.

"Nothing to speak of," he observed casually. "We just did what was required of us. We drove our machines over roads that were under constant artillery fire. Paul Bentley was killed, many of the boys were wounded, and all of us suffered from gas attacks, but we all came through except Bentley. Bill, Judge Gemmill's son, had his machine shot out from under him and on another occasion was hit by a piece of shrapnel."

Some Long Stretches of Work.

"The boys didn't always work on an eight hour day schedule," Redfield said. "Sometimes we were scarcely off the seat for forty hours. We had two days on and two days off, unless there was something particularly urgent doing, which was quite often. The boys didn't seem to mind it much, after we got into it, though they were within shell range most of the time."

"You never pay more at Bernards'"

TURK POSITIVELY "DID NOT DEAL WITH BECKER"

Sergeant Exclaims and Explains at His Trial.

The police trial board yesterday took under advisement the testimony it heard in the trial of Sergt. Charles E. Turk of First Deputy Westbrook's office, charged with conduct unbecoming his position.

Turk denied he had conferred with Francis A. Becker, Twenty-first ward politician, now under indictment, in connection with the efforts to have the saloon license of Louis A. Berger, 1657 Wells street, restored.

He Makes a Bet.

"I will stake my life against a 1 cent piece that I have never been in Becker's office and that I never had any dealings with him," said Turk, passionately.

He explained how he happened to notify City Prosecutor Harry B. Miller about a story told him in which it was alleged that money was being paid to have Berger's license restored, instead of notifying First Deputy Westbrook, his superior officer.

"I was told that money was being passed to have that license restored," said Turk. "I knew that Mayor Thompson would not stand for such a thing, and I believed it my duty to have him informed of the facts. The closest person to him that I knew was Prosecutor Miller. I believe I acted rightly, and I think I should act the same way today if a like situation arose."

Explains Mazer Matter.

In explaining the charges made by State's Attorney Hoyne that he (Turk) had recommended Attorney Willis E. Melville, former law partner of Mr. Miller, to Richard C. Mazer, 2150 North Clark street, after the latter's hotel had been raided by detectives under the direction of Turk, to defend Mazer in court, the sergeant said:

"I have known Mazer for some time. After the raid had been made on his hotel, I was called up at my home at 3 o'clock in the morning by Sergt. Edward Martin of the first deputy's office. He told me Mazer wanted a lawyer to defend him. I told him that either Melville or two other attorneys whom I mentioned were capable of taking care of his interests. Now I don't think that that was wrong, because every man is entitled to a trial and the protection of an attorney."

A QUEEN'S THANKS

Marie of Roumania Tells of Gratitude for Aid Sent to Her People by the United States.

JASSY, Roumania, Oct. 9.—[Delayed.]—Queen Marie of Roumania asked the Associated Press today to convey her thanks to the United States for American Red Cross aid. She pledged Roumania to fight to the end. The occasion was the raising of the stars and stripes and the American Red Cross flag over the first relief hospital established on Roumanian soil.

"Our hearts have been warmed by gratitude and our hopes reinspired by this evidence of America's generosity in our hour of suffering," her majesty said. "We have 50,000 orphans and a large civilian population in a precarious position on account of the lack of food, clothing and medical aid. America's assistance came at a critical hour.

"I voice our gratitude to the great ally from over the seas which is the whole hearted expression of six millions of my people. With the help of the United States and our other great allies we are determined to prosecute the war until the cause to which we consecrated our lives has been vindicated. Adversity has made Roumania all the more decided not to give up the struggle which has caused her so much in blood and tears."

RED CROSS WILL FEED PASSING TROOPS TODAY

Any man in uniform is invited to come and be fed today at the Red Cross kitchen, which will be ready for callers at 11 a. m., on Michigan avenue, near the south end of Grant park. Free coffee and sandwiches will be served by Mrs. George McKinlock's corps of canteen workers.

Besides feeding the general naval and military population of Chicago, Mrs. McKinlock, by special order, prepared for the refreshment of a group of thirty-six engineers who are passing through.

Mrs. McKinlock said yesterday that the members of her corps stood ready with coffee pot and bread knife to meet any and all demands upon the briefest possible notice. Two hours would suffice to get the canteen kitchen in full blast at almost any designated point within reasonable distance of the loop.

M'GOVERN 'FIXED' CASE, SAYS JUDGE; ORDERS ARREST

Court Calls Mrs. Duvall, Who Dropped Burglary Charge.

The order dismissing the case against Charles McGovern, charged with burglary, made Sept. 10 by Judge Bernard P. Barasa, was vacated yesterday. A warrant for his arrest and a subpœna for Mrs. S. A. Du Vall, 4750 Winthrop avenue, in whose residence McGovern was caught, were issued by the court.

Judge Barasa explained his new action by saying he was the victim of "fixers." He said that from now on he would do the "fixing," and hinted that other warrants, charging the compounding of a felony would be issued.

McGovern was arrested in the home of Mrs. Du Vall the night of Sept. 9. It was charged he was attempting burglary.

"Mistake."

When he was arraigned before Judge Barasa in the Sheffield avenue police court, the following morning, Mrs. Du Vall and her attorney, Samuel Friedlander, told the court they did not care to prosecute, saying they had made a mistake.

Judge Barasa said yesterday he had learned Mrs. Du Vall had been paid $150 by McGovern, and he considered this was the reason the case was dropped.

The order issued by Judge Barasa yesterday follows:

"On the court's own motion, the order of Sept. 10, 1917, is hereby vacated and certified and cause is reinstated and set for trial Oct. 17, 1917. Warrant of arrest is ordered and bail is fixed at $10,000."

Case Shocks Judge.

"McGovern was brought in before I arrived at the station," said Judge Barasa, "and when Mrs. Du Vall's attorney stated that they did not wish to prosecute because of a mistake, I thought it was one of those cases in which there had been a fight and all sorts of crimes were charged.

"I was shocked when I read the story concerning the case in THE TRIBUNE, as I am the last one to condone anything of the kind."

New War Pension Law.

Read Hannah, special examiner for the bureau of pensions, yesterday received a copy of the newly enacted war widows' pension law. The law provides $25 a month for widows of soldiers who were active in the civil, Spanish-American, and Philippine wars, but no others are beneficiaries.

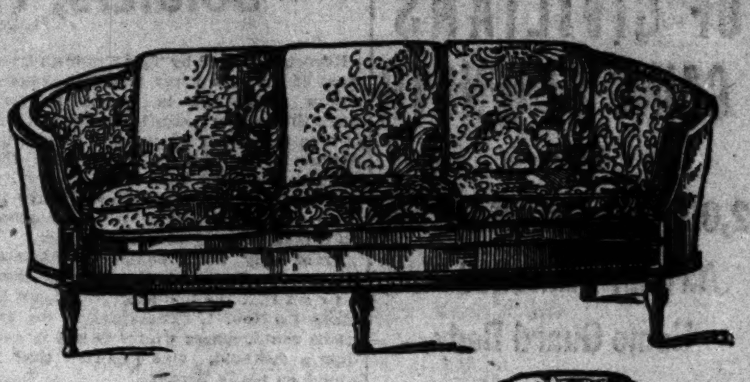
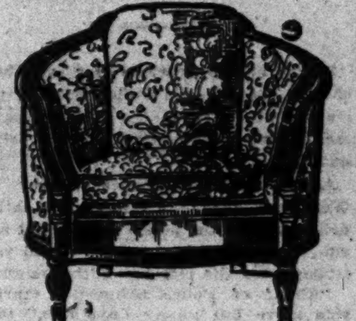
Scholle's Good Furniture





Hepplewhite Davenport and Chair in brown mahogany, covered with blue silesia with old gold velvet piping.

Davenport, $156.00
Chair, 92.00

YOU know what it means when we say—"This is Scholle quality upholstered furniture." That is, you know, if you've lived long enough in Chicago or vicinity.

The house of Scholle has specialized for years on the production of the finest upholstered furniture that could be produced; not meaning finest merely in wood and tapestry and such things, but finest also in the parts that really make upholstered furniture good or otherwise; the covered up parts; springs; anchorage of springs; tying of springs; tufting cords; frame work and all such things that keep the furniture good through generations.

Well these pieces shown in this illustration are fine examples of Scholle quality upholstered goods. Come and see them; sit in them; buy them; and if they aren't always and in every way satisfactory—return them.

POLICE RESERVE OF CIVILIANS GAINS STRENGTH

2,000 Picked Men Are Already Enrolled in Home Guard Body.

Scores of applications for membership in the Chicago Police reserve, the civilian auxiliary to the police department, have been received by the police authorities.

Acting Chief of Police Wesley H. Westbrook and John Bauder, the latter drillmaster of the police department and colonel of the reserve, were elated yesterday over the success of the venture.

"Chief of Police Schuettler started this move but ninety days ago," said Acting Chief Westbrook, "and now we have approximately 2,000 men drilling 'to beat the band.' We want to have 5,000 men."

Follow New York Plan.

The acting chief went into details of the formation of the "home guard" and the precautions which are being taken to make it one of the strongest organizations in the country.

"Chief Schuettler got all the details of the New York plan from Commissioner Woods of that city," said Westbrook. "Mayor Thompson was consulted about having a civilian reserve for Chicago and immediately approved the idea.

"The primary idea is to have the organized support of good citizens during the war period to aid in maintaining law and order. There are 15,000 men in the New York organization.

"There is no politics in this move. There will be no men in the organization who might want to use politics to gain ulterior ends.

Plenty of Experience.

"Col. Bauder is a veteran of the Spanish-American war. He has had about twenty years' experience in the militia.

"To test out the early candidates the chief ordered drills three nights a week. To show how the men are taking to the idea we still have the men we started with. It must be remembered that the men have not yet been sworn in. They have no powers other than those of any private citizen, but they have drilled for two hours a night and have stuck for ninety days.

"There will be forty-two captains, with one in charge of each police district. There are three majors, one each for the south, north, and west sections of the city.

"The applicants for membership are carefully selected. First the police captain in the district an applicant resides in reports on him. Then the civilian captain makes a further investigation. There is not much chance for anybody wanting to aid the enemy getting into the organization.

Four Hours a Day.

Acting Chief Westbrook said that the applicants can state what work they prefer. They are expected to devote four hours a day to the work. They can elect to do this by reserve duty, foot or automobile work or reserve automobile work.

"A man can remain at home with his automobile handy," said Westbrook, "and still be ready for us.

"We are getting a high class lot of citizens. The reserve will be death to hoodlums.

"There will be no opportunity for anybody getting into the reserve to pay off any private grudges."

Army Camps, Housing Thousands of Honor Soldiers, Prepare for Siege of Winter Cold

Reports received by THE TRIBUNE from most of the new army training camps—camps which are in reality military cities that are to house tens of thousands of men each, and which have sprung up almost in a night—indicate that the buildings will be completed by Nov. 1 and that the troops who are to live in them during the winter will be reasonably insured against cold weather.

From only three camps—at Atlanta, Macon, Ga., and Fort Worth, Tex.—came a report that the buildings would not be ready by Nov. 1. These are in the extreme south, where winter is late in getting a foothold. One reported that it would be ready Nov. 15.

Some of the camps announce the provision of water heating plants, insuring bathing facilities in addition to other comforts for the cold months. The men at one of the camps are reported as much more concerned in the plans in progress for an open air swimming pool than in the precautions against possible suffering from the cold.

Uniforming the Soldiers.

A variety of conditions appears to prevail in regard to the uniforming of the men, eleven camps reporting all troops on hand fully uniformed, nine as partly uniformed, and one with none of the men in uniform. Indications that the government is rapidly rushing orders for army apparel is indicated in some of the reports, but at present the troops at several of the camps are compelled to appear in garb that is part khaki and part civilian. The fact that winter overcoats are not yet on hand at some of the training points is, perhaps, the most foreboding hint conveyed in any of the reports, and yet the camp commanders invariably report that full provision will be made for the comfort of the men.

In National Army.

Apparently the camps as yet have little more than 50 per cent of their full quota, as indicated by the reports, a tabulated summary of which follows:

	No. now at camps.	Full quota.
Camp Grant, Rockford	29,550	38,895
Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich.	17,600	36,800
Camp Dodge, Des Moines, Ia.	23,754	48,830
Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass.	36,000	40,000
Camp Travis, San Antonio, Tex.	......	46,000
Camp Upton, Yap Hank, L. I.	21,574	42,230
Camp Meade, Annapolis Junction, Md.	25,000	45,000
Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va.	29,000	47,000
Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville, Ky.	22,000	44,299
Camp Pike, Little Rock, Ark.	17,402	42,000
Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga.	17,198	41,000
Camp Lewis, American Lake, Wash.	30,000	46,127

IN NATIONAL GUARD.

	No. now at camps.	Full quota.
Camp Logan, Houston, Tex.	15,216	30,852
Camp Cody, Deming, N. M.	15,000	40,000
Camp Bowie, Fort Worth, Tex.	18,000	30,000
Camp McArthur, Waco, Tex.	23,000	30,000
Camp Doniphan, Fort Sill, Okla.	20,000	29,000
Camp Shelby, Hattiesburg, Miss.	20,000	40,000
Camp Hancock, Augusta, Ga.	26,000	......
Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga.	12,000	....
Camp Kearny, Linda Vista, Cal.	10,000	35,000

Information as to equipment of the men with guns was obtainable at a number of places, nine camps reporting all the men on hand as being supplied, while several others reported a partial equipment. The men are still drilling with sticks at one or two places, but it is announced that a supply sufficient for training purposes will soon be received.

At Camp Grant.

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—There is no question that Camp Grant will be ready for its quota of nearly 40,000 men by Nov. 1. The work on the buildings has progressed with a speed which has been the amazement of recent visitors to the camp who were here a month ago.

There need be no concern about the comfort of the Illinois men who will spend their winter weeks of training here, according to the officials in charge—an opinion that is shared also by the men apparently. The buildings will be warm and there will be plenty of provision for the comfort of the embryo fighters. The number of enlisted men at the camp Thursday was 29,550, and it is being increased almost daily. The present full quota for the camp is 38,895, but an increase of that figure before Nov. 1 is confidently expected.

Many of the men still continue to drill with wooden guns, ax handles, broomsticks, bed slats, or anything that is available. The failure of the Springfield rifles to arrive has a decided effect on the camp as big men drilling with makeshift guns fail to work up much enthusiasm.

At Camp Custer.

Battle Creek, Mich., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Camp Custer, home of the Eighty-fifth division of the new national army, will be ready for its full quota of 36,800 men by Nov. 1 and a few additional thousand, if the provost marshal sends them here. There are today 17,600 conscripted soldiers in camp, all drilling forty hours a week. Ninety-five per cent of them are uniformed, though not adequately. The only exceptions are men who came last week, under military guards as "slackers" or voluntarily, in cases where the mails went wrong.

The chief scarcity is in woolen trousers, and many of the men are wearing khaki below the belt and woolen above. Military discipline forbids this, which has kept many men within the camp. Sixty per cent of Camp Custer's soldiers are supplied with rifles, but the balance still drill with broomsticks or laths. The thing missed the most is heat. Only one steam plant is now operating, but by Nov. 1 all will be finished. Airtight stoves are being distributed, first allotments being to infirmaries, hospital wards, and buildings where clerical work is done.

At Camp Dodge.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Including 167 officers and men of the First Iowa engineers, the present strength of the Eighty-eighth division now at Camp Dodge numbers 23,754 officers and men, both drafted and enlisted. The division when at full war strength will number 48,830, of which 2,424 will be officers. Division officers say the entire camp will be ready for full strength by Nov. 15. By Oct. 15 barracks and accommodations will be ready for the third increment, an additional 18,000 men.

By Oct. 15 the completed barracks will be supplied with six heating furnaces each, burning coal, and hot water will be supplied in all lavatories and shower baths. Fifty per cent of the barracks now completed and practically all of the occupied barracks, housing the 23,000 men now here, have stoves in operation. Virtually all the men in regular organizations have been given their entire personal equipment.

Twelve thousand men were in line, all equipped, at an informal review by Maj. Gen. Plummer Saturday. Only the 3,000 men in the depot brigade, which will be equipped by the Thirty-fourth division when they reach Deming, N. M., have not been supplied with the main articles of army clothing. All have overcoats and sweaters, leggings, hats, shirts, and blankets. Every man in camp will have complete winter uniform by Nov. 1. There are now but 5,000 rifles in the camp and these have not yet been issued to any of the infantrymen.

At Camp Zachary Taylor.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—About 22,000 men are now at Camp Zachary Taylor. The camp is ready to care for 44,299, the number that will be sent here. The barracks will be heated by stoves, and construction officers say the buildings will be comfortable. The uniform supply is short, but shoes are plentiful. About half the men are now in khaki. Winter overcoats may be delayed, but the officers say they will be on hand within a few weeks. There is no information available as to the supply of guns.

At Camp Logan.

Houston, Tex., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—There are 14,451 men and 765 officers at Camp Logan. The full quota is 30,852. The camp is ready now, and if the present weather continues they will be warm. All are under canvas and all are uniformed. All the national guardsmen have guns.

At Camp McArthur.

Waco, Tex., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—There are now at Camp McArthur 23,000 guardsmen and officers of Wisconsin and Michigan. The camp's quota is stated at 30,000, but Gen. Haan is expecting the number to be nearer 40,000, as a great number of the Michigan selective draft men will be sent here. Camp McArthur is ready now to care for 35,000 men. All tents are floored and sidewalled. Latrines, tents, and bath houses are electric lighted and the latter are now being equipped for hot water. Every regiment has its own temporary hospital and at the base hospital there are fifty-seven buildings completely equipped to care for 1,500.

NO LABOR DRAFT, GOMPERS' CLAIM

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, said point blank today with some heat, "There will be no conscription of labor" for navy yards and munition plants.

"The men are all working. What more do you want? What more can there be?" he added.

Marshal Joffre to Spend 2 Days in U. S. Army Camp

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Marshal Joffre will leave Sunday for a two days' visit to the American training camp.

BUSY PROGRAM FOR BLACK WATCH ANNOUNCED HERE

In preparations for a great spurt of recruiting for the British army next week under the stimulus of Black Watch recruiting rallies, a committee of the Daughters of the Empire met yesterday in their war shop in the Stevens building to rush work on comfort bags for outgoing recruits.

Telegrams today to Col. F. C. Jamieson report the Canadian Black Watch rolling westward, cheered at every stop, from New England to a whirlwind swing through Michigan en route to Chicago.

In Chicago, military and civic honors will be shown the officers and men of this famous regiment, of which three battalions are now in the fighting in France.

The announcement was made by the Chicago British committee on allied recruiting, of the program arranged for Wednesday and Thursday as follows:

Wednesday there will be a military parade through the loop, with noonday massmeetings in theaters and factory districts. In the evening a patriotic massmeeting will be held in the Second Regiment armory, Washtenaw avenue and Madison street, at 8 p. m. A military drill and trooping of the colors by the famous Black Watch regiment will be a feature.

Thursday noon the regiment will participate in the Liberty loan parade and noon meetings will be held. In the evening a patriotic massmeeting will be held in the ballroom and casino at White City, Sixty-third street and South Park avenue. Mr. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, may address the gathering.

Yates Urges Liberty Bonds.

Montgomery, Mo., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Former Gov. Yates of Illinois and Assistant United States Treasurer Vandiver spoke for the Liberty bonds at Mexico, near here, this afternoon to a large and enthusiastic audience.

U. S. Will Buy Comforters, Due to Blanket Shortage

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—There is no intention of changing specifications which govern the manufacture of army blankets, it is stated at the war department, the reason being that it is impossible to get under the present conditions the tens of millions of blankets needed for the new forces.

The quartermaster general, realizing this situation, has authorized the purchase of thousands of comforters, such as are used in almost every civilian home.

In addition the department has even adopted the expedient of cutting overcoat materials into blanket size. The rapid approach of winter has made the acquisition of these and almost any other substitute necessary, it is said.

Wives of Army Officers Barred from War Zone

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—Women and warfare will not mix, the war department has decided. Hence it has instituted the policy of sending home any American officer who permits his wife or mother to go to France to be near him.

Gen. Pershing holds that the presence of such near and dear relatives demoralizes single-minded devotion to duty.

Chicagoans in Training for Marine Service

Paris Island, S. C., is the camp home of a number of Chicago men in the military service who expect soon to be transferred to Quantico, Va. Many marines have been trained at Paris Island and in the Chicago contingent are J. P. McInerny, E. W. Hanson, E. W. Hofher, E. W. Schmidt, T. F. Grannan, M. J. Sheehan, J. F. Meehan, C. J. Michalec, and T J. McCarthy.

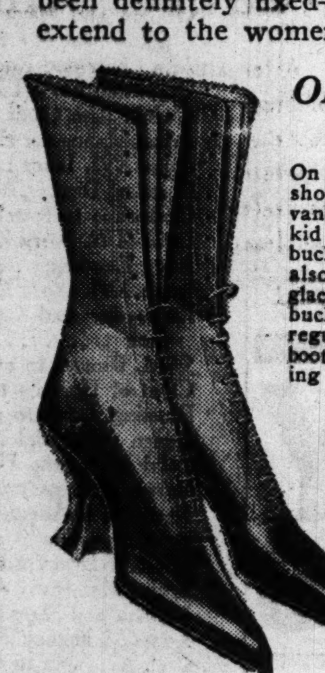
OPENING
MONDAY, OCTOBER 15th

FOR weeks feminine Chicago has been agog over the forthcoming opening of an I. MILLER Shoe Store in this city. After many "to-be-expected" delays incident to an opening of this character, we are pleased to announce that the date has been definitely fixed—that tomorrow we shall be ready to extend to the women of Chicago the "hand of welcome."



OPENING WEEK SPECIALS

On the left we show an Havana brown kid boot, fawn buck top—this also in black glace kid, ivory buck top; our regular $12.00 boot; for opening week only

On the right we show an all tan Russia calf boot, Cuban leather heel; positively our regular $8.50 boot. For opening week only we'll sell this boot at

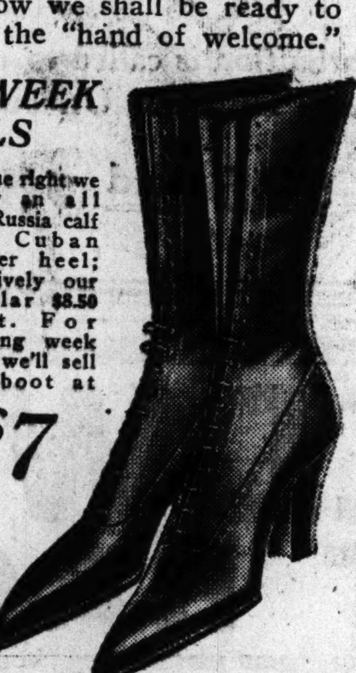
These are the best numbers now selling in our New York stores.



DURING "getting acquainted" week we hope to meet many thousands of Chicago's smart dressers; we want you to come and learn for yourself why I. MILLER Shoes have become the highest standard of "style and quality" among the society women of New York, as well as many of our most notable stars of stageland.
Remember the opening date—tomorrow, Monday, October 15th

EVERY MAN AT ROCKFORD IS TO BE A 'GAS EATER'

Fritz's Favorite Atrocity Is to Be Nullified by Training.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., Oct. 13.—Every Camp Grant soldier is to be taught to put on a mask and walk through blinding, paralyzing gas, as he would don a waterproof and step out into a rainstorm.

Actual experience with the deadly stuff is counted upon with certainty to eliminate terror resulting from ignorance and to reduce danger from such attacks to a scientific minimum.

To carry out the plan a gas school will be opened as soon as the construction of the necessary gashouse can be completed. When the school is in operation every one of the 28,000 men in camp will be given a two weeks' course of instruction. Its most startling feature will be ten hours drill—two hours a day for five days—in a big room filled with gas.

Gas Causes Little Trouble.

Every man will "smell" the gas without his mask, and then be shown that with his mask on he can breathe in the gas filled room with only a trifle more difficulty than he has breathed every day of his life, that he can move around freely and do his work, and that his officers can give oral commands required for drills.

Capt. John S. Sweeney of the medical reserve corps, who until he was assigned to the big gas school at Fort Sill last summer, was Dr. John S. Sweeney, Palmer house, Chicago, will have charge of the work. He is one of the thirty-two divisional instructors who received protracted special training under French and British officers.

"The school at Fort Sill was operated without an accident," said Capt. Sweeney today, "and there need be no fear of anything going wrong here. First the medical men, then the line officers, and finally all the enlisted men will be taught how to protect themselves almost instantaneously. They will learn to adjust their masks in six seconds or less. Immense electric horns, like gigantic auto signal devices, instead of the old bells and gongs now are used to sound the warning against gas.

Men to Be Watched.

"The classes taken into the gashouse probably will be groups of twenty. There will be an officer inside each door, and there will be windows through which other officers can watch for the slightest slip on the part of any soldier and see that he is rushed to the open air before any damage can be done. As you know, the Germans have used thirty different kinds of gas, but the United States will be prepared to meet every one of them."

ARMY ORDERS

Cantonments in West Affected by Changes of Details.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—The list of army officers at Camp Grant and the cantonments of the middle west was further swelled today by the assignment of additional officers to those camps by the war department.

Officers ordered to Camp Grant were:

First Lieut. James F. Hudson, signal reserve corps, for duty with the Three Hundred and Eleventh signal battalion.

First Lieut. Russell McK. Herrington, Eighteenth cavalry, for duty in connection with military map making.

Maj. Walter S. Cornell, medical reserve corps, was relieved of duty at the signal corps aviation school at Belleville.

Drs. Walter J. Marcley and Harry R. Nordelry, contract surgeons, were relieved of duty at Fort Snelling and ordered to Camp Dodge, Des Moines.

Capt. Clarence Van Epps, medical reserve corps, was ordered to the state university at Iowa City to procure material for lectures at medical officers training camps.

Maj. Louis J. Campbell, infantry national army, and First Lieut. Matthew J. Isaac, field artillery, national army, ordered to duty at Camp Zachary Taylor, Louisville.

First Lieuts. John J. Lancer and Milton R. Watler, medical reserve corps, were relieved of duty at the Fort Benjamin Harrison training camp and ordered to duty at the aviation recruiting depot at Fort Wayne, Mich.

CAMP LOGAN TO TRAIN NEW ARMY MEN FOR STRAPS

Camp Logan, Houston, Tex., Oct. 13.—Plans are being made to receive a number of national army men, who will receive training to become officers, and a number of additional men to form a depot brigade. The regiments now in camp are being moved to occupy only one regimental section. The section was made to accommodate only 150 men, which was full strength under the old order. Now 250 men must occupy each mess hall and nine men must occupy each tent.

Some of the new assignments of officers came out today. The new assignments apply to three majors of the Fifteenth infantry. Maj. William B. Culbertson commands the Two Hundred and Thirteenth machine gun battalion and Maj. Floyd M. Putnam commands the One Hundred and Twenty-fourth machine gun battalion.

According to a statement issued by the state authorities of the camp, the health here is better than in any army camp in the country. Among the 13,000 men there has not been one natural death in the two months since the division has been in existence. Three deaths have been of accidental nature.

The sick list is less than 2½ per cent.

RAINBOW TROOPS BLOSSOM OUT IN NEW OVERCOATS

Men Growl at New Styles, but Submit, as It's Cold.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Camp Mills, L. I., Oct. 13.—Hundreds of Rainbow division soldiers, wearing new three-quarter length army overcoats, just issued today, invaded Broadway tonight. The men were not altogether pleased by the shorter coats but accepted them with the best grace possible.

The rainbow division is beginning to feel the cold. At reveille this morning a hundred mess shacks were hoary with thick frost and the surrounding fields were white.

The rainbow opened one eye and pushed one foot out from beneath three army blankets, pulled back the foot, shut the eye, and shivered. The bucks had slept for the most part without taking off their clothes.

No Heat for 149th.

Buckets in which water had been left standing over night were covered with a film of ice. In other regiments many officers have oil heaters in their tents but there is not a single heater in a sleeping tent of Col. Reilly's command and no one can boast a tent floor of wood. The regiment is schooling itself to what it will encounter in the line of hardships overseas and is learning to crawl out on cold gravel and smile.

All shower baths are open affairs, the water is the same temperature as Lake Michigan.

After Capt. D. L. Smith of headquarters company came out of a shower this morning he narrowly escaped a fall on ice formed from the spray.

Infantry Inspection.

Infantry inspection was the order of the morning. Pup tents were pitched in the battery streets and all equipment laid out on blankets. There are new articles in the packs, trench mirrors and combs.

There's indigestion tonight in headquarters company. Private Peterson, the company cook, obtained leave to marry a New York girl. He wanted to be married in front of the regiment, with all the bucks as best men, but his bride decided in favor of a church. Headquarters company reluctantly selected a substitute for tonight's mess, and the biscuits he made will give the regimental dentist much to do in fixing chipped molars.

Fine and Prison for Operation.

Bedford, Ind., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Ray Jackson, charged with attempting a criminal operation upon Miss Barbara Fraiss, whose death followed, was found guilty by the jury, who assessed a fine of $400 and imprisonment in the Indiana reformatory. The verdict carries with it a penalty of from three to fourteen years.

APPEALS TO THE ITALIANS OF CITY FOR AID

Pasquale R. De Carlo Urges Cash for Ambulances.

At the request of THE TRIBUNE Pasquale R. De Carlo, director of "Il Cittadino di Chicago," has appealed through that journal to the Italians of this city to assist the American Poets' Ambulances in Italy fund. Under the caption "The Great Heart of the American People" he prints in English and Italian THE TRIBUNE'S request for this aid, states the object of the fund, and expresses the hope that aid will be forthcoming.

We know the Italians of Chicago will respond generously to this cause. In Memphis the Italian colony in one week collected $2,000. It was wired to New York and from there cabled to Milan. Two days later the ambulance was on the Isonzo front.

Die That Italy May Live.

The Isonzo front! That is where great things are happening and will happen. It is where many think the decision of the war will be reached. It is where the Italians gladly die that Italy may live.

Have you read George Edward Woodberry's sonnet, "The Italian Front, 1916"?

The patriotism of Angelo Lo Russo has been stirred by the appeal of the Poets' Ambulances in Italy, and from his employers, the American Radiator company and his fellow employés he has collected a fund of $147. In his letter transmitting the checks he says:

"The quick and generous response to our appeal has been given gladly and unreservedly. This makes me believe that the total amount needed for the two ambulances in Chicago could be readily obtained if a few willing people would ask some of their friends to help out the noble cause and join in making their contributions.

"Chicago's spirit is noble and generous, and I have faith that it will once more plentifully respond to the American poets' most inspiring appeal.

"ANGELO LO RUSSO."

DOUBLE PATRIOTS

Fort Sheridan Men Lead Bond Buying While Learning War.

Fort Sheridan, Ill., Oct. 13.—The 4,000 candidates for commissions have subscribed for $393,450 worth of Liberty loan bonds since last Monday. This is $27,100 more than the amount subscribed by Camp Funston, the heaviest subscriber in a list of seventeen camps sent out by the war department.

The First regiment, comprising men from Missouri, Kansas, and Colorado, leads with $221,400. The Third regiment, composed of Illinois men, is second with $100,050. The Second regiment, made up of Michigan and Wisconsin men, is third with $72,000. One man took $25,000, while another took $11,000 worth.

Funston	$366,350	Kearny	299,150
Shelby	266,200	Meade	224,350
Upton	126,150	Jackson	111,150
Bowie	70,450	Taylor	62,500
Gordon	51,100	Travis	49,950
Sherman	34,900	Greene	27,550
Devens	21,350	Sevier	19,400
Wheeler	18,800	Logan	15,100
Wadsworth	6,400

The total subscription by the army is approximately $3,000,000. Camp Kearny has subscribed more than $26 per capita. The largest subscription by any one regiment is that of the Eighth Illinois infantry, which has signed up for $54,100 worth of bonds. Every man in Company G, Second Washington infantry, has subscribed.

Soldiers Needed at Home May Be Released

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Reopening of a number of exemption claims was forecast at the office of the provost marshal general today when it was learned that a number of men have been accepted for service in various parts of the country who are the sole support of bona fide dependents.

According to the appeals that have reached headquarters through state governors it appears that some boards either misinterpreted the regulations with respect to men with dependents or else were uncertain as to the justice of the claims made.

Where the evidence warrants these cases will be reopened and if necessary the men will be recalled from training camps and returned to their former occupations.

Lord Bishop of Newfoundland.

St. Johns, N. F., Oct. 13.—Canon White, rector and subdean of the Anglican cathedral in this city, has been elected lord bishop of Newfoundland.

OFFERS ORIGINAL SCORE OF ELIJAH TO AID BOOK FUND

Dr. Gunsaulus Plans to Have Manuscript Auctioned.

THE TRIBUNE will be pleased to receive and acknowledge subscriptions to the war library fund of $100,000 now being collected in Chicago.

The following subscriptions were received yesterday:

M. W.	$ 1.00
Mrs. N. M. Chapin	1.00
The Ray school	12.00
Mrs. Adolph Stein	10.00
C. W. Christiansen	10.00

E. R. M.	1.00
A. E. Crocker	1.00
Helen Sturgis	1.00
Marion Sawyer	5.00
Ruth Marshall, Lane Technical High school	1.00
Employés Utilities Development corporation	10.65
Previously acknowledged	653.00
Total to date	$733.65

Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus has offered Mendelssohn's original score of "Elijah" to be auctioned off for the benefit of the war library fund. The score was dedicated to Jenny Lind and given to her by the author.

The plan is to have the manuscript auctioned off at the concert given by John McCormack at the Auditorium theater next Sunday, and Mr. McCormack will be requested to be the auctioneer. Dr. Gunsaulus believes the gift may encourage others who possess old manuscripts of a similar nature to give them for the fund. F. H. Rawson, chairman of the war library committee, wrote a letter to Dr. Gunsaulus yesterday accepting the gift and thanking him.

City Hall Offerings.

The police department leads the city hall in the amount of its contributions to the soldiers' library fund. The following are the figures:

Police department	$823
Department of public works	606
Fire department	308

The collections were made by Walter D. Moody, one of the team captains.

PEARLS

TOMORROW (Monday) we shall receive from our New York establishment a very important shipment of ultra fine pearl necklaces.

The unusual size and beauty of the gems alone will attract widespread attention. But because they were purchased prior to the market advance they are marked at prices impossible to duplicate at current quotations.

The ascending value of pearls (due to the tremendously increased demand) makes them now a most attractive investment. Where a few years ago they would hardly have been thought of they are today being most eagerly collected.

CAPITALS SHOW HOW BATTLES GO ON MANY FRONTS

Official Reports Issued by Nations at War Tell of Armies' Moves.

FRENCH FRONT

BRITISH.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—There was a heavy rain throughout the night, which is still continuing. No counter attacks by the enemy have developed thus far on the battlefront. On the rest of the British front there is nothing to report.

FRENCH.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—On the front north of the Aisne the Germans during the night delivered several attacks against our positions in the sector between Hurtebise and Chevreaux. Notwithstanding the violence of his efforts, the enemy was able only to gain a footing momentarily in our advanced line at one point.

West of Hurtebise monument and south of La Royere we dispersed German detachments which attempted to approach our lines.

On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) there was heavy artillery fighting in the region of Chaume wood. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

During yesterday the artillery was very active in the sector of Moulin de Laffaux and in the region of Craonne.

Further information concerning the enemy's surprise attacks Thursday night in the region of Souain and Auberive, which we repulsed, show that they were carried out by heavy effectives and were preceded by a bombardment of thirty-six hours.

Three attacks were made by detachments of about 140 men each, including shock troops and pioneers. They were received by our artillery fire and the fire of our machine guns. These attacks resulted in lively engagements in which we clearly showed our superiority. The enemy left ten prisoners in our hands. The enemy's losses were very heavy.

NIGHT STATEMENT.

The two artilleries were active in the regions of Craonne and Laffaux in Champagne, in the sector of Mont Sasnom, and on the right bank of the Meuse in the region of Samogneux, Hill 344, and the Bois le Chaum.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria: After a brief interruption the battle in Flanders was again renewed yesterday. This time the English launched their attack on a narrow front of about ten kilometers between the Langemarck-Houtholst and the Zonnebeke-Horslede roads. Their employment of gunpowder was especially strong.

After several fruitless assaults the English infantry succeeded in advancing in the crater land between the station and the village of Poelcappelle. In desperate fighting, lasting all day, our troops threw back the enemy on both sides of the Pendsbeek.

Our positions in and south of Poelcappelle were again vainly attacked in the morning, and with fresh forces in the evening. The strong pressure of the enemy was directed on Passchendaele, but here also the English had to content themselves with a narrow strip of our forefield. Passchendaele is in our possesion.

East of Zonnebeke an enemy attack collapsed and near Gheluvelt a strong attack also failed. Altogether, the enemy's gain, purchased with heavy sanguinary losses, amounts to two points of about one and one-fifth kilometers, where our lines were broken into. Everywhere else their efforts were in vain.

Between the Lys and the Comines-Ypres canal the artillery duel, which continued throughout the night, this morning again increased to drumfire. According to reports at hand there were no new attacks.

Front of the German crown prince: In some sectors on the Aisne front the fighting activity again was lively yesterday. On the eastern portion of the Chemin-des-Dames, Tharingen storming troops, after effective fire preparations, broke into French positions north of the Vauclerc mill. On a breadth of 400 meters several lines of trenches were wrested from the enemy and numerous prisoners were taken.

RUSSO-ROUMANIAN FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 13.—Northern front: There were fusillades and reconnaissances. On the western and southwestern fronts the fighting was limited to fusillades. The gallant Col. Fastykovsky, temporarily commanding an army corps, was wounded by a bullet while inspecting the trenches.

On the Roumanian front there were fusillades.

In the Baltic, in the region of the Gulf of Riga, the enemy made several air raids. On Wednesday nine enemy aircraft dropped twenty-three bombs in the region of Cerel on our transports. One transport steamer was slightly damaged. Our airmen by a daring attack dispersed the enemy machines and drove two of them into the sea.

The enemy is working stubbornly to clear the entrance to the Gulf of Riga, near the Courland coast. Yesterday under cover of naval forces several times superior to our defending detachments the enemy landed detachments on the coast of the Gulf of Tagalah, on the island of Oesel. Another detachment was landed near the village of Serro, on the southern part of the island of Dago.

The coast batteries were silenced by the powerful fire of the enemy dreadnaughts. The enemy activities have been rendered difficult, however, by moles which we constructed and owing to bad visibility.

The garrison of Oesel is engaged in fighting the enemy forces which have been landed and all measures have been taken against these invaders.

In the Black sea yesterday an enemy submarine bombarded the port of Tuapse and discharged twenty shells. Our coast batteries opened fire, supported by rifle fire, and the submarine submerged and quickly disappeared.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—From the Dvina to the Danube there has been no extensive fighting.

TURKISH FRONT

RUSSIAN.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 13.—On the Caucasian front, in the region of Erzingan and Kalkit, the Turks attempted to approach our positions but were repelled.

EAST AFRICAN FRONT

BRITISH.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—In the Mbemkuru valley area on Thursday our right column, advancing from Kilwa, having moved southwest up the valley to Mlemba, and thence southeast, occupied Ruponda, an important junction of the tracks at the northwestern end of the Muera plateau and on the flank of the line of retreat by the enemy's main body, whose rear guard is being pressed by the British moving south from Nahungo.

The rapidity of our advance apparently surprised the enemy, who was making for Ruponda.

In the western area a strong enemy detachment has been dislodged from positions overlooking the Luwegu river drift near Opondas, fifty-three miles south of Mahenge, and it retired six miles in a northeasterly direction.

MACEDONIAN FRONT

FRENCH.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—The artillery fighting was quite spirited at the Cerna bend yesterday. There was less activity on the other parts of the front.

GERMAN.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—Apart from lively artillery activity in the Cerna bend and reconnoitering engagements at Doiran lake, which were successful for the Bulgarians, there was nothing special to report.

ITALIAN FRONT

ITALIAN.

ROME, Oct. 13.—Thursday night in the Costabella region an attempted attack by the enemy was promptly crushed. Yesterday on the Julian front our patrols harassed enemy working parties and took prisoners.

There was considerable artillery fire from the Rombon to the sea. On the Carso our batteries dispersed marching detachments of the enemy east of Castagnavizza and fired an ammunition dump in the San Giovanni region.

GERMANS IN NEW THREAT AT PETROGRAD

The landing was made with support of battleships, which silenced the Russian shore batteries.

It is believed this move is the first step in efforts to outflank the present Russian line northeast of Riga. Opposite Dago island is the Russian port of Hapsal, from which a railroad skirts the southern shore of the Gulf of Finland, direct to Petrograd.

CALLS BALKANS KEY TO VICTORY FOR WHOLE WAR

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Neither the Franco-Belgian nor the Russian front is the vital one for Germany, but the Balkans, the gate of the east. If she retains that front, she will win the war, for its retention would mean another war in the course of time, when she would regain more than she might lose now if allowed to hold that gate. Only the erection of a Jugo-Slav state will close this door to world empire.

This statement was made today by Dr. Hinko Hinkovitch, Croatian deputy in the Hungarian parliament; deputy in the Croatian parliament, and member of the Jugo-Slav committee of London.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

THE issue of the 7th inst., reporting new incorporations, changes in capitalization, etc., said that Mather & Hutson, Chicago, had dissolved. Richard H. Mather and Willis H. Hutson are attorneys in partnership, with offices in the Otis building. They have not dissolved that partnership.

Mather & Hutson appeared as attorneys for the Opoznauer company, seeking formal dissolution, and in that capacity filed the papers in process with the secretary of state. The error was due to faulty copying of the records for the Springfield correspondent of THE TRIBUNE.

"THE FOOTWEAR FASHIONS OF AMERICA ARE DETERMINED BY O-G SHOES."

A Few Words on How We Maintain Exclusiveness:

WE KEEP O-G SHOE STYLES EXCLUSIVE BY MAKING ONLY A LIMITED NUMBER OF EACH; NO MATTER HOW GREAT THE DEMAND, WE ADHERE TO THIS ADVANCED POLICY. AND THE MOMENT A LINE BECOMES DEPLETED IN THE COMPLETENESS OF ITS RANGE OF SIZES WE REDUCE THE PRICE AS A SORT OF BONUS TO OUR LOYAL CUSTOMERS. THIS MEANS THAT THERE IS NEVER A DAY WHEN SOME RARE BARGAIN IS NOT AVAILABLE TO THE DISCERNING SHOPPER. (TRY IT.)

MANY MEN ARE GUESTS OF OUR WOMEN'S SHOPS AND SEEM TO ENJOY SELECTING PRETTY SHOES, OR MAKING NOTE OF DESCRIPTIONS FOR LATER IDENTIFICATION, AS MUCH AS THE WOMEN DO.

How About Your Motor Car This Winter?

Many a "suburbanite" has been driving his gasoline car to and from office and home throughout the past summer, with but little thought given to the troubles in store for him this winter—but now we are confronted face to face with the winter motor car problem.

Are you satisfied to go through another winter of unsatisfactory service and heavy expense?

Or are you going to travel a better way—the modern way—the Detroit Electric way?

All the motor car troubles you have labored with during past winter months are characteristic of every gasoline car—all engine cylinders chill—all radiators freeze—all carburetors refuse to work.

No mechanical genius has ever overcome these inherent defects in the gasoline propelled vehicle.

But with the Detroit Electric, all these sources of exasperating troubles are eliminated.

A simple storage battery connected to a powerful electric motor, controlled by a lever operated by the slightest pressure of the hand—constitutes all the power equipment of a Detroit Electric.

With a Detroit Electric Car you can depend upon instant service, no matter what the weather may be.

And consider further—that the suburban trips you made last summer are well within the radius of one battery charge of the modern Detroit Electric.

Why not own an automobile equally reliable for your winter travel, as well as your summer trips?

Leopold Godowsky

who appears at Cohan's Grand today at 3:30, writes as follows regarding

The Knabe
PIANO

In the midst of my extensive and strenuous American tour I must express to you my hearty appreciation of the noble qualities of your instruments.

The requirements of modern piano playing are so great and manifold, demanding of the instrument orchestral volume and variety of color as much as utmost delicacy, clearness and that pearly quality peculiar to the piano passages, that it is a most perplexing problem to the piano manufacturer to satisfy all the demands of the XXth century pianist.

You meet every conceivable wish of the most exacting artist, and to me your instrument is a most desirable companion on my tour.

Cordially yours,
Leopold Godowsky.

KISSELKAR

ALL-YEAR Car Show Week

October 13th to 20th

All this week at our salesrooms showing Kissel's Original Idea that Changed the Motoring Habits of a Nation

First showing of the new 4 Passenger Sedanlet. Made famous over night

The new Kissel triumph in body designing and building. The Sedanlet combines all the comforts of the Sedan with the utility and economy of the Roadster. All windows in the ALL-YEAR Top, excepting the rear one, may be raised or lowered. The new Semi-Victoria Style Summer Top is standard equipment.

This week you will have the opportunity to see the convertible car idea in its highest state of development.

"The Ultimate in Motor Car Utility, Economy and Completeness" was the verdict of show visitors at yesterday's opening

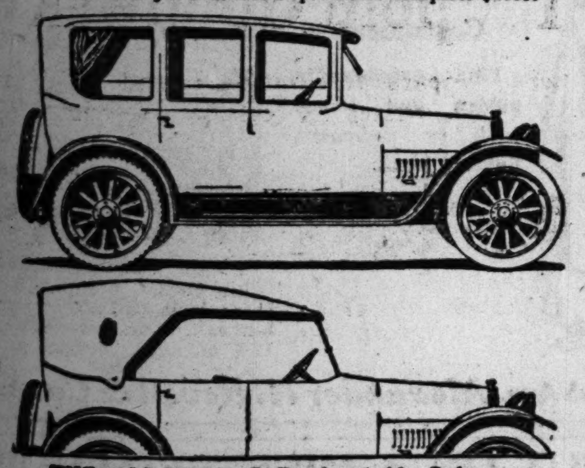
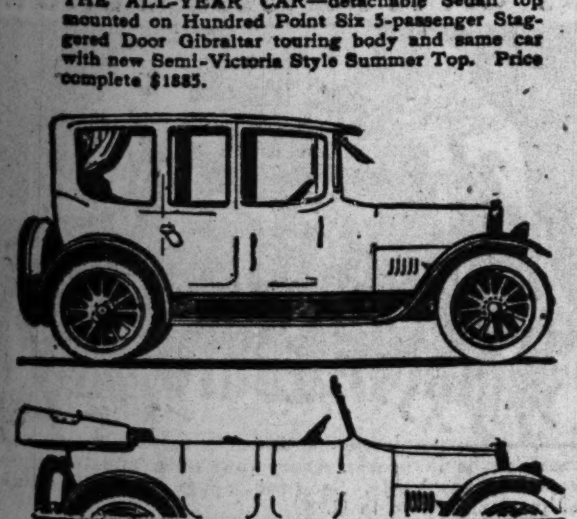
THE ALL-YEAR CAR—detachable Sedanlet top mounted on Hundred Point Six 4-passenger Gibraltar Sedanlet body and same car with new Semi-Victoria Style Summer Top. Price complete $1885.



THE ALL-YEAR CAR—detachable Sedan top mounted on Hundred Point Six 5-passenger Staggered Door Gibraltar touring body and same car with new Semi-Victoria Style Summer Top. Price complete $1885.



THE ALL-YEAR CAR—detachable Sedan top mounted on Hundred Point Six 5-passenger Gibraltar touring body, and same car with top detached. Price complete $1735.

DURING the next six days you have an opportunity to compare, check-up and prove to your own satisfaction that the Kissel ALL-YEAR Car reaches the very topmost point in the development of the two-cars-in-one idea.

Never before has there been such an enthusiastic gathering of local car buyers and owners as at yesterday's opening. They saw how, through the exclusive Kissel construction, the ALL-YEAR Top is built-in, not on, with no visible fastenings or attachments—how all draughts, leaks, rattles and squeaks are eliminated.

They inspected the Hundred Quality Features of the famous Hundred Point Six, including the new Kissel-built power plant, and found the reasons for the remarkable performance of this car—its perfect construction, its quiet, easy-running motor, the low up-keep cost and slow depreciation.

The New Kissel Four-Passenger Sedanlet, a Constant Source of Admiration

THIS latest Kissel triumph in body design and construction with the ALL-YEAR Top that is not only entirely removable, but in which all windows except the rear one may be raised or lowered, proved one of the big surprises of the opening day. Its roomy tonneau, wide aisles and doors, its three-cars-in-one convertible features—created a new standard in this style of automobile. The new Semi-Victoria Style Summer Top was voted the most original top ever shown.

Be Sure to Attend the ALL-YEAR Car Show this Week!

THIS special ALL-YEAR Car Display will be on exhibition every day this week. You are cordially invited. Stunning effects will be shown in body color, upholstery and interior refinements. We want you to be sure and see them. Never before have we had the privilege of standing sponsor for such an attractive group of cars.

LEVANTINE TAINT SHOWN IN ACTS OF BOLO ET AL.

Gwinner, Behind Peace Schemes, Plans a Trade Coup.

BY EX-ATTACHE.

Although the Levant, strictly speaking, stands for the land where the sun rises, and in the days of the old Crusaders was synonymous with the Holy Land, yet the term Levantine has long since become a term of reproach. From the fifteenth century to the end of the eighteenth, it suggested not only corsairs but likewise those white renegades who enriched themselves by betraying Christian men, women, and children of the southern coast towns and villages of Europe, into the horrors of Moslem slavery.

Since, however, the elimination of piracy from the Mediterranean, largely through the efforts of the United States navy, the word Levantine has been used to designate the unscrupulous adventurer of nondescript nationality and faith, born of the male and female scum that are indigenous to the shores of the great inland sea, who prey on society, unhampered by any sense of honor, of patriotism, or of conscience.

Some Modern Levantines.

To levant, is to welsh. That in itself shows what is meant when a man is stigmatized as a Levantine.

No class of people has furnished a larger quota to the annals of crime. That extraordinary assassin, Pranzini, who expiated his many murders on the guillotine in Paris, some twenty years or so ago, was a Levantine. So, too, was the ex-convict, Vigo, who, under the name of Almereyda, enjoyed since the beginning of the war to so great a degree the intimacy of the now disgraced French minister of the interior, Malvy, that the two men addressed each other familiarly as "thou," and who, arrested for treason three weeks ago, was found strangled a day later with his shoe laces, in his cell, his death, and his consequent silence, coinciding with the downfall of his protector.

Bolo Pasha in Same Class.

Paul Bolo Pasha, too, now confined in the military prison at Paris, awaiting trial by courtmartial on charges of treason, of espionage, and of being in the pay of the enemy, is a typical Levantine. Born in some gutter of the Levant, he turned up as a boy in his teens at Marseilles, where he made his debut as a garcon-coiffeur, or barber's assistant. Dismissed, it is alleged, for dishonesty, he started a species of soap lottery. When the police interfered, he embarked in the lobster business. Before a year was over that came to grief, his partner being ruined, whereas he, with a well stocked purse, made his way to Lyons, where he first of all ran a photography establishment and then went into business as an agent for wines and liquors with a German, Baron Saalfeld.

In the course of time the baron, like most of those associated with Bolo, came to grief, and Bolo, this time with several warrants out for his arrest on charges of fraud, moved on to Paris, where, at the time 25 years old, he became the lover, and then the husband of a sexagenarian, whose most reputable portion of her career had been spent behind opera bouffe footlights. She was fairly well off, and when she died Bolo inherited the gains she had amassed in the days of her youth and pulchritude.

Bolo next turned up in Egypt, where he found himself in his element, since it has from time immemorial been the happy hunting ground of the Levantine adventurer. In due course he found means of securing access to the khedive and then of obtaining the ear of Abbas. The latter found in Bolo the very man that he needed for the shady financial operations in which he was at the time engaged.

Bolo, the Levantine, was always an instrument. He never attained the dignity of a principal in any of the nefarious schemes in which he was concerned, no matter whether in behalf of the ex-khedive personally or in behalf of the Germans, but, thanks to the facilities accorded to him by the now disgraced Malvy and by the latter's equally disgraced prefect of police, was able to travel to and fro between Paris and Geneva without any let or hindrance and to spend freely the money placed in his hands for purposes of espionage and peace propaganda in France through ex-Khedive Abbas by Arthur von Gwinner, the head of the Deutsche bank of Berlin and far and away the most powerful captain of finance, of commerce, and of industry in the entire German empire. He also spent some years in the Levant.

Ready for Coup with Peace.

Gwinner, who has frequently visited America, for the first time in 1896, when he played here a leading rôle in the reorganization of the Northern Pacific railroad in behalf of the foreign shareholders, is recognized as the greatest expert in Europe in the matter of American railroads.

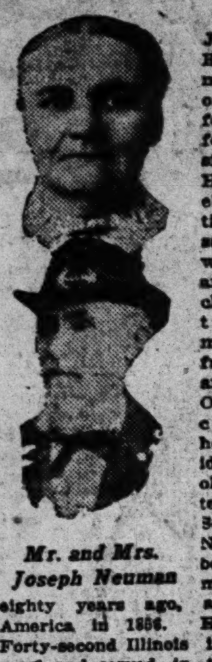
All that Gwinner is waiting for now is for an early peace in order to put into execution his plans for oversea trade in the pursuance of which shipyards have been set up at every available portion of the Baltic and North sea coasts for the construction of ocean liners.

That Arthur von Gwinner has been the prime mover and the superman in the elaborate propaganda carried on for some time past in France, in Italy, and in the United States, in favor of separate peace with Germany, abandoning England to either carry the struggle on alone, or to submit to such terms as the kaiser, or rather I should say Arthur von Gwinner, might impose, is abundantly clear from the cable messages published by the state department.

To imagine that the Deutsche bank would send a cabled order to pay a sum of nearly two million dollars, without exacting collateral or guarantees, to a nondescript, unknown Levantine adventurer, is not to know Arthur von Gwinner.

FIFTY YEARS WED

McHenry Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding Day.



Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Neuman

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph and Elizabeth Neuman, formerly of Chicago, but for the last four years residing at McHenry, Ill., celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedded life among their children, relatives, and many friends from McHenry and Chicago on Oct. 10. A reception was held at the residence of their oldest daughter, Mrs. A. Schneider. Mr. Neuman was born in Germany over eighty years ago, and came to America in 1856. He joined the Forty-second Illinois infantry regiment and served in the civil war under Gens. Grant, Thomas, and Rosencrans.

NEW CABINET OF RUSSIA CALLED CONSTRUCTIVE

Kerensky Makes Leaders of Big Business and Labor Advisers.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
(Special Cable to Chicago Tribune.)

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 13.—The new Russian cabinet means an emphatic gain for forces of construction and may be declared another Kerensky success. Though the Socialists dominate it by ten to seven, it marks a nearer approach to a genuine coalition than anybody in Russia, save Kerensky, believed possible a fortnight ago, or expected yesterday, and for that reason it is a Kerensky success.

It illustrates that statesman's astonishing gift for "being without edges" in times and conditions so vexatious and difficult that it is almost impossible for even inconspicuous men in Europe to avoid developing a morbid strain of querulousness and truculence. Kerensky's less sympathetic critics have counted his edgelessness against him as a weakness, but if it is a weakness, he has made it a source of strength.

It has safely carried him through the most acute ministerial crisis revolutionary Russia has ever known, and some of his adversaries are beginning to wonder whether what they formerly considered almost ignoble compliance may not be lofty patriotism and skillful statesmanship.

Gains Strong Advisers.

From his last cabinet Kerensky retains six members, among them important men like Avksentieff, a growing figure; Nikitin, also a growing man; Prokopovitch, Kartaschoff, and Terestschenko, whom I sketched in my cablegram of Aug. 19. He has lost vigorous, gifted men like Peshechonoff, Zarudny, and Kokoschkin, but he has gained big men like Grosdev, a tower of strength from the organized labor standpoint, and Konovalov, who will help reconcile big business to a socialistic ministry if the genuine Socialists in it do not show a disposition to bear hard on business.

Socialistic irreconcilables like Tchernoff and Skopeleff disappear from his cabinet, but although their departure takes away good talents and stern convictions, it may increase the possibility of getting forward with constructive work.

This is a war cabinet insofar as any cabinet can be a war cabinet in face of the present condition of the Russian army. The great question and the great peril confronting it is: will the Soviets and Bolshevikists ruin it as Korniloff ruined the last one with his half baked revolt which compromised that cabinet in the proletariat's opinion.

Cabinet Already Threatened.

Already there is the threat of such a ruin, for even before the new cabinet was announced the Petrograd Soviets adopted a resolution in the usual irreconcilable Bolshevikist strain in which it protested against a cabinet based on the coalition with the bourgeoisie and declared that the all Russian Soviet congress soon to assemble would create a genuinely revolutionary government. That this is generally regarded no idle threat is indicated by the fact that although a majority of the Russian press welcomes the new cabinet with satisfaction, it fears the period of calm and repose which a reconstruction period seems likely to bring, will be short because of this impending general Soviet congress.

Another very important factor in the situation is the presence among the ten Socialist cabinet ministers of three who define themselves as Independent Socialists and in considering their party designations the emphasis must go on the word "Independent." They stand outside the Socialistic organizations and therefore are not genuine Socialists.

May Join with Cadets.

Hence, they are uncertain and might throw their strength with the four cadets in the cabinet and thus decisively overcome the present apparent Socialist dominance, especially if Foreign Minister Terestchenko, who used to be a Socialist revolutionist, but now is set down as "no party," and Tretchakoff, also set down as "no party," join them. In any general survey of the new cabinet the outstanding, disconcerting fact for the observer who believes Russia's salvation lies in unity of action, is that there is not a Soviet man or a Bolshevikist in the cabinet.

Evidently the Soviets are adhering scrupulously to their long sustained policy of holding aloof from actual participation in the government until a policy of forming ministries on a basis of compromise and coalition has been proved utterly futile, as they believe they then can step in and inaugurate the purely Socialistic government of their dreams. When you consider the new cabinet from that viewpoint, it is not so very difficult in essence from the last one and such being the case it may go the same way as the last one.

Milioukoff's newspaper, the Cadet organ, Retsch, pronounces the new cabinet "the last effort to save the situation"—Retsch's idea of saving the situation being, of course, a bourgeoise constitutional monarchy or republic with big business in the saddle.

CO-ED LANDSLIDE

Th' Men—Bless 'Em—Didn't Have a Look-in at the Northwestern University Election. The Suffragists Won Everything Except One Lone Office.

Th' wimmen—durn 'em! The suffragists at Northwestern U. do not picket; they just pick it. Polly the politician, and Vera the vote-getter were victorious yesterday in the annual class elections at N. U.

Although it was a co-ed landslide, one man got in, Wendall Gessler, who was elected president of the senior class. Dorothy Howell got the vice presidency, Katherine Brown was chosen secretary, and Katherine McPherson made chairman of the social committee.

In the junior race these were picked: President, Marjorie Baxter; vice president, Ora McDonald, and secretary, Vera Peabody.

LIQUOR ORGAN CALLS CABARETS PUBLIC MENACE

Three Loop Houses Named as Overstepping the Bounds.

"A public menace—the cabaret. It made Springfield dry—it will make Chicago dry if not stopped."

These lines, illustrated by a wild cabaret scene, appear in the current issue the Champion of Fair Play, the official paper of the retail liquor trade of the west. The cartoon appears on the front page, full width.

The illustration is more or less typical of many a cabaret in Chicago. In the foreground is a young woman, seated over liquor with an old, spectacled man—of the age when hair and teeth vanish together. Hovering over the table is a maturer woman, labeled hostess.

"Hostess" a New Phase.

This "hostess" is a recent development of the cabaret. Her duty is to "introduce" men and girls. In the picture is that familiar girl of the cabaret—she of the slicked back hair and the clothes that fit tight, showing curves.

Then there is that ever present pair, the ones who dance in close embrace. Also present are the girls who are lonely, sitting alone at tables, waiting—

Three Loop Houses Rapped.

The same publication declares that certain loop hotels and cabarets are not living up to the laws which govern the conduct of the cabaret. It names three of them—the "Blue Bird Room" at the Bismarck hotel, the States restaurant, which, it says, recently drew a police reprimand, and the Morrison hotel, which, it says, "became notorious" as a result of housing Harry James and his "fox trot" club.

The same publication of the liquor dealers publishes articles to show that anti-cabaret crusades have been started in St. Louis, San Francisco, Atlantic City, Kansas City, Erie, Pa., and other places.

Shopping Tour Winds Up Bernhardt Engagement

Sarah Bernhardt celebrated the close of her engagement in Chicago yesterday by going on a State street shopping tour. After she had bought furs for herself and her granddaughter she said: "I am wonderfully surprised. The furs here are more exquisite than any I have found in Paris and I believe the workmanship superior."

One piece she bought was a handsome white fur robe lined with heavy white duchess satin to be used as a coverlet for her bed. R. M. Maxwell, a linguist, acted as her interpreter and assisted her in her buying.

More Facts About Cadillac Concentration

One Purpose—One Product—One Risk

The Cadillac car did not reach its present eminence by chance or luck.

Cadillac concentration has achieved this ideal car. And that concentration goes farther than you think.

In the Cadillac organization there is but one purpose—but one product—but one risk—the world's finest passenger car.

In this respect the Cadillac stands alone—the only organization devoted exclusively to producing high-grade passenger cars.

All capital—all engineering talent—all equipment—all energy—all the forces of a vast organization are concentrated.

Is it any wonder each year shows the Cadillac in a position of more pronounced leadership?

Risking everything on the market for a perfected passenger car has developed the only car which justifies the risk.

With these facts in mind, the course of good judgment is clear as day. You know you are right when you buy a Cadillac.

URGES TEACHERS TO AID CAMPAIGN OF FOOD SAVING

Teach Children to Spread the Plea, Advises Speaker.

Mrs. William S. Hefferan, member of the woman's committee of the national council of defense, spoke on "The Preservation of Educational Standards and Ideals During the War" at a meeting of the Chicago Teachers' federation in the Masonic Temple yesterday.

"The most important thing for the teachers to do at this time is to teach the children to conserve fool," Mrs. Hefferan said. "The children will go to their homes and explain the meaning of the president's appeal for conservation of food and in that way nothing will be wasted. Teach the children not to waste food and to bring to the schools old clothing and pieces of cloth which are not of any use to them or their parents, so that it can be made into clothing for refugee children and those in need right here in Chicago.

Urges More Knitting.

"The knitting of sweaters and scarfs for soldiers now in France and those in training camps is another important thing. One of my sons recently returned from France, where he served five months driving an ambulance before this country declared war. He is now at the officers' training camp at Fort Sheridan. In his letters while in France he complained of being cold and said that they could not get sweaters in France and that the price of coal is so high there that it is being used only for cooking purposes."

Mrs. Hefferan also asked the teachers to urge non-English speaking women to attend classes in the schools for the purpose of learning the English language and courses in cooking.

Instructors Promised.

"The board of education has promised to furnish instructors for these classes if twenty-five women apply for the courses," Mrs. Hefferan continued. "Another important thing for the teachers is to urge the parents of boys between the ages of 14 and 15 years to keep their children in the schools as long as possible.

"Of course there are families in great need of the money which these boys would earn if they left school and went to work because of older sons having gone into the army. Go to the parents and inform them of better work which can be accomplished by their sons if they are given the full education offered by the high schools and colleges."

Nine More Cars Stolen, Making Total of 244

Add nine more automobiles to the police list of those stolen within twenty-six days. The nine were taken within twenty-four hours ending with the report issued by the detective bureau yesterday morning. Altogether 254 have been taken by automobile thieves. These are latest victims:

J. E. Pollard, 2409 West Lake street; Kullak Electric company, 411 South Jefferson street; Dr. A. F. McKenzie, 2400 West North avenue; Dr. A. T. George, 465 West Jackson boulevard; Edward Burke, 2580 East Seventy-second street; H. G. Fisher, 3421 North Harding avenue; J. J. Seaman, 231 West Sixty-sixth street; H. J. MacFarland, Park Ridge; J. A. Frynch, 5560 West Grand avenue.

Settlement Worker Robbed.

Mrs. Fred Busch, 109 East Oak street, a settlement worker, was robbed of her handbag containing $10, a check for $50, and a pair of opera glasses, by a young man in Wentworth avenue, near West Forty-eighth street. He escaped.

RETURNED

Young Woman, Missing Six Days, Says She Was Held in Rockford Jail.

Mrs Mildred Wieland

When Mrs. Bertha Schrieber, 2156 West Ohio street, opened her back door to get the milk early yesterday morning she discovered her daughter, Mrs. Mildred Wieland, 17, a "war bride," who has been missing six days, sitting half frozen on the porch.

Annie Mutisek, 17, 2204 Mango avenue, who disappeared with Mrs. Wieland, returned to her home some time yesterday.

Mothers of the two girls notified the police of their disappearance on Friday, saying they thought their daughters were in the automobile that plunged into an abandoned quarry near Hinsdale.

According to Mrs. Wieland, she and Miss Mutisek started out on last Sunday to visit her brother, William Schrieber, at Camp Grant, Rockford. They were offered a ride by two Italians, giving the names of Mike Yuli and John Rosa. At Rockford the men became insulting and the girls left them.

While walking from Rockford to Camp Grant they were arrested, and according to Mrs. Wieland, were held in jail from Monday until Friday, when they were "lectured by a judge" and sent home.

Wanta Buy a Picture of Woodrow at Princeton?

President Wilson has made a personal donation, it was announced yesterday, to the great "white elephant" sale to be held Nov. 7, 8, 9, and 10 for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital. The donation consists of a specially autographed photograph taken during the president's Princeton university days. It will be sold to the highest bidder, and the proceeds will help swell the fund for sick children of our soldiers and sailors. The "white elephant" sale exhibits are to be seen at the old Calumet club, Twentieth street and Michigan avenue.

IT'S TAG DAY TOMORROW FOR POOR KIDS

Tomorrow will be the big, authoritative Chicago "Tag Day" for the children. Every street corner in the loop, every prominent corner outside the loop, and practically every important building will be visited by the women selected to "tag" the citizens in aid of the children's charities.

Many prominent citizens have sent out letters appealing to the public to recognize the approved children's day for obtaining funds. The fact that dozens of enterprises have made use of the same means of collecting money is said to have confused the big event in the minds of many. But the officials of the Children's Benefit league are determined to establish the old relations between the public and the children's charities.

The women and girls who will tag for the children will be at their posts early in the morning and every citizen is asked to exchange money for the badge of honor suspended from the lapel.

Will Sing 'Martha' Tonight at Strand; Faust Tomorrow

The final performance of "Martha" will be given by the Boston English Opera company at the Strand theater tonight instead of last night, as inadvertently stated in the amusement advertising columns of THE TRIBUNE. For the week beginning tomorrow night "Faust" will be the bill.

GRACE POTTER, MISSING 12 DAYS, BACK IN HOSPITAL

Asheville, N. C., Oct. 2.—[Special.]—Miss Grace Stewart Potter, Chicago pianist and protégé of Mrs. George M. Pullman, who disappeared from the Hight hospital Oct. 1, was found this morning on the outskirts of Asheville, walking toward the hospital. She gave no explanation of her absence except to say vaguely she had been in the country. Soon after her arrival at the hospital, where she is undergoing treatment for a nervous ailment, she went to sleep and was still sleeping late tonight.

Miss Potter appears to be in the best of health and to have been well treated. When found she was tired, evidently having walked a long distance.

It is believed Miss Potter passed the time in a farm house somewhere in this county. She has disappeared several times, but always returned within a few hours or a few days at the longest.

Haywood Fails to Win His Freedom on Bail

William D. Haywood, I. W. W., chieftain, who is among the many indicted here as anti-government conspirators, failed yesterday to obtain his release from jail on a bond. Otto Christensen of counsel for the I. W. W. defendants, presented a bond, but Judge Landis declined to accept the security.

PIERSOL, ON THE STAND, DENIES KIDNAPING BABY

Marshfield, Mo., Oct. 13.—The defense in the trial of Claude Piersol, charged with abducting Baby Lloyd Keet, rested its case today after the youthful defendant had successfully held to his story through a grilling cross-examination. The prosecution in rebuttal finished late this afternoon. Court adjourned until Monday, when the arguments will be heard.

Piersol maintained he had had absolutely nothing to do with kidnaping Baby Lloyd Keet nor plots to abduct any other person. He steadfastly clung to the denial that he wrote the so-called ransom letters and rendered an account of what he claimed were his actions throughout the day and night of May 30.

In explaining discrepancies between his testimony of today and statements he made to Springfield, Kansas City, and St. Louis authorities, Piersol asserted that he had been coerced into talking while held in the various jails.

He declared a federal officer from Kansas City, while questioning him at Springfield, threatened to club him and have him shot as a spy. While in the St. Louis 'holdover' he was awakened many times at night and questioned, he said, adding that for twenty-three nights he slept on a plain board.

In rebuttal the prosecution called Judges Farrington and Johnson of Springfield.

GIRL LEAVES HAIR IN WIFE'S HANDS IN HASTY FLIGHT

William and Marie were married on July 12, 1912, and they lived quite happily until last week. William owns a café at 1859 South Allport avenue. But William chanced to meet one "Dorothy" and Marie found out about it.

William fled through a door and was soon stepping on the gas in his motor. But Dorothy didn't have any car and she hid under a bed. Alas, the camouflage proved transparent—Marie saw her hair and grabbed it. She held on so tightly that she did not see Dorothy jump out of the window, leaving Marie with a chair in one hand and a beautiful brown wig in the other.

A divorce bill drawn by Attorney Anton Zeman was filed for Marie in the Circuit court yesterday.

Freiberg's and Colosimo's Are Refused New Licenses

Acting on orders from Mayor Thompson, Deputy City Collector George H. Lohman yesterday refused to issue new liquor licenses for Freiberg's dance hall and Colosimo's restaurant. The proprietors of the places have appealed to the courts to prevent the mayor from revoking their licenses. Chief of Police Schuettler recommended to the mayor that the places be closed. The license period expires Nov. 1.

PARENTS CHANGE MINDS REGARDING HEALTH GUARDS

A delegation of citizens from the vicinity of 1423 North Lawndale avenue called on Health Commissioner Robertson a week ago and protested against their homes being quarantined.

This was before an examination of the exhumed body of Margaret Peterson, 6 years old, who died at that number, developed infantile paralysis was the cause of death.

Yesterday the delegation sent word to the commissioner it wanted every precaution taken to protect their children and to take any steps he wanted to guard them.

Seven new cases of the disease were reported yesterday.

Vocational Education to Work Through 5 Centers

Washington, D. C., Oct. 13.—Designation of five regions for the administration of the vocational education act and the appointment of eleven agents to establish regional headquarters was announced today by the federal board for vocational education. New York City will be headquarters for the eastern states, Indianapolis for the east central states, Kansas City for the west central states, San Francisco for the Pacific states, and Atlanta for the southern states.

CHICAGO YOUTH TELLS OF LIFE IN TEXAS CAMP

Writes Home Detailing the Work They Do at Houston.

THE following letter received by the Illinois Paper Box company from one of its employes now in the service, is an excellent description of camp life in Camp Logan:

A Gloomy Glimpse on the Way.

"Camp Logan, Houston, Tex. Our soldier life in Chicago consisted of a two hour drill at Humboldt, Garfield or Douglas park, and for the most part a baseball game in the afternoon. We were examined seven times, including three inoculations and one vaccination. When they finished with me I was composed mostly of laudanum, cartilege, paregoric and eucalyptus.

"Our trip south was interesting because of the many incidents along the way. Our first stop was at Menard, Ill., where we were shown through the prison. There are 1,100 prisoners there, 400 of them serving life terms for murder. The very small cells and big iron doors sent a chill through me. It's a splendid place to keep away from.

"I saw raw cotton growing for the first time and thought it was flowers. I'll send you a sample, also a piece of army hardtack as soon as I get some.

"When we arrived we cut down trees, put up our tents [which are equipped with electric lights] and dug rain trenches around them. The climate is the same at all times, hot at daytime, delightfully cool at night, hasn't rained since we've been down here.

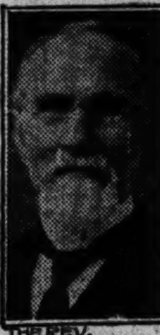
"The grub is good, fresh and well cooked and there are few complaints. Our best dish is beef stew with broth which the soldiers call slum. When we run out of meat they give us Argentine canned beef and when out of bread we get hardtack. The captain, his wife and his lieutenants eat with us and sometimes the major.

"Houston is a city on a hill for the most part, and has the cleanest streets and best car service I have ever seen anywhere. They built a special car line to our camp to accommodate us. It has twenty-story buildings, large theaters and hotels. We are allowed to visit the city every night if we want to.

"I have tried my hand at teaching the boys etiquette and astronomy; they don't care anything about the science of manners, but I can interest them all in the heavenly bodies. The great 'nebulæ of Orion' is directly overhead and hangs low in the heavens. They thought it was the 'milky way.' What are stars? Where did the moon, the earth and the sun come from? were puzzlers for them for a while."

LOOKING BACKWARDS

The Rev. Joseph H. Stevenson Takes a Peek at What's Already Happened in His Life and Finds It's Been a Pretty Busy One After All.



THE REV. G.H.STEVENSON

Looking back from his eighty-sixth birthday party yesterday, the Rev. Joseph H. Stevenson of 148 Yale avenue, River Forest, president of the Borrowed Time club, recalled that:

He had been a pastor in the Presbyterian church for more than fifty years, had preached 5,725 sermons, had officiated at 308 marriages, 754 baptisms, 406 funerals, had conducted memorial services for Lincoln, Garfield, Grant and McKinley. And, what he values most highly, he was instructor of James Whitcomb Riley in the Greenfield, [Indiana] high school.

A number of the members of the Borrowed Time club helped the Rev. Mr. Stevenson to celebrate his birthday.

THE TRIBUNE has just received the following letter from four boys in khaki who are soon going "over there" to "blaze a trail" via the "milky way" to Berlin.

These Boys Want a Doughnut.

"Kelly Field, Sixty-sixth Aero Squadron, South San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 2.—[Editor of The Chicago Tribune.]—We hope that you will pardon the liberty that we are taking in writing you this letter, but we feel sure that there are many persons in Chicago that are very much interested in our particular branch of the service and would like to hear what this new branch is like.

"We have been in training here for the last three months and leave for France within a short time, and we will be among the first to blaze a trail to Berlin via the milky way.

"We know that our beloved city is doing much to make those boys who have gone 'over there' more comfortable—and we agree that they should come first, as they went first. But as we are so soon to follow we wonder if those who would have liked to go and couldn't won't do their bit by sending us a book, a smoke, or a doughnut?

"Trusting you will be able to find space in your paper to mention the above facts, and believe us we will uphold our city's name when we have the kaiser looking upward as well as backward.

"Your four Chicago boys in khaki,
"LEON C. WHITEHEAD,
"JAMES J. McNAMEE,
"WM. F. O'CONNOR,
"JACK WINN."

WAR SURGEONS TO ADDRESS 3,000 PHYSICIANS HERE

A special session of the medical board of the council of national defense is to take place in Chicago next Sunday. The session will be attended by some of the best known surgeons who have seen service in the field.

"This special session of the board, which ordinarily meets in Washington, is to take place here for the purpose of affording the thousands of surgeons who will be in attendance at the clinical congress of surgeons first hand information about what has been and is being accomplished in the way of military preparedness by our government," said Dr. Franklin Martin, member of the council of national defense and chairman of the general medical board.

Chicago members of the board include Drs. Frederic A. Besley, William A. Evans, Charles E. Kahlke, W. H. G. Logan, Franklin H. Martin, A. J. Ochsner, and George H. Simmons.

It is expected there will be an attendance of fully 3,000 at the sessions of the clinical congress of surgeons. The opening session in Orchestra hall Monday evening, Oct. 22, will be addressed by Sir Berkeley Moynihan of Leeds, England, senior consulting surgeon of the royal army medical board of the British army. Dr. George W. Crile of Cleveland, who has recently returned from service in France, will tell what surgeons from the United States are doing at the base hospitals. Surgeons General Gorgas, Braisted, and Blue are also to take an active part.

Boys Play with Revolvers; One Shot Above the Heart

Roy Noren, 7 years old, 236 West One Hundred and Tenth street, was shot above the heart last night by Sigfried Pheander, 14 years old, of 8 East One Hundred and Thirteenth street, while they were playing with loaded revolvers. Young Pheander, according to his story, while examining his revolver, accidentally discharged it. At the Pullman hospital it was said young Noren probably would recover.

BIT OF HOPE, JUST A BIT, GASOLINE MAY DROP A BIT

The Standard Oil company of Indiana, it is announced in Washington, D. C., is considering the question of releasing the secret "Burton process" of extracting gasoline and other by-products from low grade oils, to all independent refiners.

Some time ago, it is said, the Standard offered the use of this process to independents, coupled with the restriction, however, they should not sell the products in territory in which the Standard operated. This the independents regarded as a doubtful benefit, since the Standard covers practically the entire country.

The process, so said independents, would be of no use to small refiners, since the cost of installation is huge, ranging from $80,000 upward, according to the number of stills installed.

The independents were agreed, however, that if the Standard would permit the use of the Burton process by any who wished, it would tend to stabilize and perhaps decrease the price of gasoline.

Calls Newspaper Ad Rates Low Considering Results

That rates charged by newspapers and publications for advertising space are low compared to returns realized by the advertiser was the declaration yesterday of B. E. Carroll, addressing 200 members of the Associated Business Papers in twelfth annual convention at the Congress hotel. Mr. Carroll is editor of the Textile World Journal, New York City.

"Considering returns realized by the advertiser, rates charged by newspapers and other publications for space are low. Even the smallest advertisement inserted in a publication usually brings surprising returns."

Falls and Fractures Skull.

GIVE UP HOPE THAT CAMPBELL ESCAPED DEATH

Andrew Courtney Campbell, a corporal in the Lafayette escadrille, who recently was reported missing in France, is probably dead, according to a cable to the United States state department. News of his fate was procured by the state department upon request of Senator Lewis in response to inquiries from the boy's father, who lives in Kenilworth and has cattle brokerage offices in the Rookery building.

The message received by the state department from the American ambassador at Paris read: "Campbell missing and believed killed. French observers report seeing him fall in German lines after fight against odds."

Campbell was awarded the military medal for bringing his machine safely to earth after the left wing broke off when he was a mile in the air. The feat was considered little short of miraculous.

Young Campbell had several German machines to his credit. He went to France with the intention of driving an ambuance. He was 25 years old and a graduate of the University of Virginia.

HEYWORTH SLATE ACCEPTS BATTLE AT SOUTH SHORE

Country Club Members Say "Regulars" Are Autocrats.

Shouting the battle cry of freedom from autocracy, Lawrence Heyworth's followers have flung back their answer to the opposition in the presidential campaign of the South Shore Country club.

The opposition, it will be recalled, last week announced a platform and ticket, which is headed by Everett C. Brown for the presidency. The ticket is known as the "Regulars." Mr. Heyworth's being known as the "Members."

"There always are some men," reads the platform announcement of the regulars, "who dream of personal power or social prestige through club offices."

"The Members" Reply.

This was interpreted by some as an attack on Mr. Heyworth's candidacy and his followers, the "Members," had the following to say in their pronunciamento of yesterday:

"It has been the uniform experience, since clubs were first formed as social organizations, that self-perpetuating officers and governors bring about a condition of dry-rot, and result in the utter destruction of club spirit. The members' ticket offers itself to the members, under the by-laws, without wasting time or club courtesy in accusations or recriminations, which are barred by the usages, customs and regulations of all clubs.

"It is, indeed, to be regretted that the so-called regular ticket has so radically departed from the club custom and the customs of good society.

"From the 2,300 members it certainly is possible to select, under the members' ticket plan, as provided by the by-laws, men of ability sufficient to direct the affairs of the club. The more so when backed by the active individual support and intelligence of the body of the membership.

Lesson from the War.

"Under war conditions we have all had examples of the efficiency present under autocratic government, based upon militaristic control, involving immediate reward or punishment of the individual by the master."

Here is the "Members'" ticket:

President—Lawrence Heyworth.
Vice president—Harry H. Merrick.
Treasurer—Edgar F. Olsen.
Secretary—Harry A. Hubbard.
Directors—Three years: W. O. Duntley, W. H. Simpson, George B. Bell, C. M. Owens, J. Fred Sheehy, Robert H. Morse. Two years: Guy D. Randle.

Answers "Dry Rot" Charge.

Everett C. Brown did not let the Members' pronunciamento go unanswered.

"As to the 'dry rot' charge," he said last night, "I would like to point out that the last year has been the most successful—financially and socially—in the history of the club. The candidates of the Regulars are the same that built the clubhouse in 1915 at a cost of approximately $450,000. Contractors and builders have told me this year the clubhouse could not be duplicated for less than $600,000.

"The present administration reduced the outstanding debt during the last fiscal year approximately $40,000. When it assumed office three years ago, club memberships were selling at $200. They are now selling at $400, with a good waiting list.

Autocracy? Never.

"As regards the 'autocracy' charge, the present candidates were the unanimous choice of the nominating committee of twenty-two club members. The reason the same men were selected again was that it was thought perilous to change generals under war conditions, and that men who have had from ten to twenty years' expert experience in club management could conduct the club better than amateurs with practically no experience in club office."

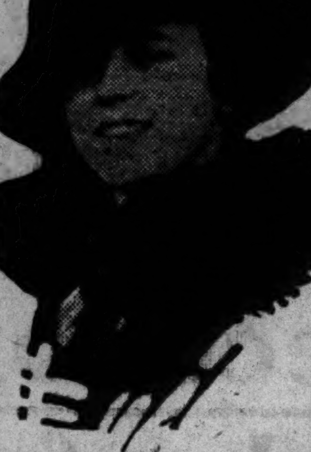
Governor's Daughter, Who Underwent Operation for Appendicitis.



Miss Harriet Lowden, 17 years old, daughter of Gov. and Mrs. Frank O. Lowden, was operated on yesterday for appendicitis in St. Luke's hospital by Dr. L. L. McArthur.

Mrs. Lowden, who spent the day with her daughter, said late in the afternoon Miss Harriet was doing well. "Miss Harriet returned to her home in Springfield from school Friday and complained she was not feeling well," Mrs. Lowden said. "I called a physician, who said her appendix should be removed. I brought her to Chicago and she was operated on at once.

"The doctor said it was not a serious operation because we did not wait a minute longer than was necessary to get her here."

Miss Harriet attends the Westover school at Middlebury, Conn.

Gov. Lowden did not accompany Mrs. Lowden and Miss Harriet. He 1 sin Springfield.

LIQUOR PROFITS $21,000 A YEAR, SUIT SETS FORTH

J. Wallace Wakem, head of Wakem & McLaughlin, 223 East Illinois street, was made defendant in a suit for a partnership accounting filed in the Circuit court yesterday by his brother, Harold R. Wakem.

H. R. Wakem sets forth in his bill that in 1905 he and his brother decided to conduct a wholesale liquor business and that by oral agreement he was to be manager and salesman, while his brother was to give it the use of the firm name of Wakem & McLaughlin and to extend credit.

According to the bill, H. R. Wakem sought to terminate the agreement. An accounting shows, the bill alleges, the profits have averaged $21,000 a year, and the courts are asked to decide how the proceeds shall be divided.

Is Your House the Plaything of Old Man Winter?

Unless your home is as warm as a "day in June" regardless of what Old Man Winter is doing outside, you are not enjoying the comforts that thousands of other homeowners and tenants are enjoying. Listen to this:—

The Dunham Home Heating System, built around that little guardian of the coal pile, The Dunham Radiator Trap, gets every last bit of heat from the coal you burn. And it saves coal because it never lets the fire burn more than is necessary. It prevents overheating and underheating—maintaining a uniform temperature during the day, and at night keeping the temperature of the house between two predetermined levels.

A Dunhamized house cools off at bedtime and the temperature rises again at getting-up time—all without anyone going to the cellar to regulate the dampers. You merely set The Dunham Thermostat (in your living room) as you would an alarm clock.

The DUNHAM SYSTEM OF HEATING

The DUNHAM Radiator Trap

This device is one of the fundamentals of the Dunham Home Heating System. It is known the world over to heating engineers as the device that revolutionized Vacuum steam heating. Leading architects everywhere use it.

A Dunhamized home is absolutely free from the nuisance of gurgling, hammering, spurting, hissing radiators.

The Dunham Home Heating System will not only save you money on your coal bill, but will enable you to render a real service to the Government. The war has made, and will continue to make, severe drains upon the Nation's coal resources. Not a ton must be wasted. The national supply must be conserved and equitably distributed. The Dunham System will help you to help your Country. The coal the Dunham System saves you will release that much coal for war needs.

Ask your architect or any heating contractor about the Dunham Home Heating System.

Free Booklet. Home builders, tenants, real estate men, architects, contractors and others should read our latest booklet, "Dunham Heating for the Home." It tells why. Write, phone or call.

SOX "BIG PUSH" BRINGS BEDLAM

SOX PROVE UP TO ESTIMATE OF JACK LAIT

Superior Stamina Is Deciding Factor in Uphill Battle.

BY JACK LAIT.

The White Sox lost four games and won one yesterday afternoon between 3 and 4:30. But the one blotted out all the rest, and fumbles, foibles and fizzles became mere box score items affecting no one. The heroic comeback of the game south siders alone remains to count.

On behalf of the O. Henry side of the baseball writers' great world series, it may be immodest but forgivable if it is pointed out here that two days ago the following was written and published under this signature:

"There is this alone to say for Comiskey's birds: They play their best and fiercest in defeat, whereas the Giants, when they meet a similar kick in the esteem, quit like quarter breeds. Thus, with the totals fifty-fifty, we are as good as we were before the series, with the stamina on our side and very helpful."

And Our Stamina Won.

The stamina pulled us out yesterday. The Sox had blundered and muffed and skidded and fanned and erred. The Giants were like lions—all except Fletcher, who was like a wolf, snarling, and outraging the ethics of decent animals. In the lead from the first ball pitched by Russell's sore wing, the easterners cavorted and sneered and ran wild. Until they made their first serious bobble they lorded it over creation. And when Sallee threw to Herzog at the wrong time and Herzog stuck his hand in the wrong direction the prides of Broadway went to pieces. After that Comiskey's backboned men made it a good one. And Chicago again stands where its team should have it—first.

Never before in a world's series game has such unspeakable conduct been displayed as was bluntly executed by Fletcher. He deliberately blocked two runners, Weaver and Jackson, after they had turned second, once with arms outstretched and unmistakable intent, when the ball was being fielded in center field and he could not possibly have had any legitimate business where he was.

Giants Get the Breaks.

Every break favored the Giants. The Sox hits kept coming at the wrongest times and their errors came at times still wronger. Weaver crowded a whole off year into three innings. Russell passed the first man and gave the next two a single and a two bagger, retiring after eight balls.

Felsch drove the ball to the left field fence so hard that it came many yards back on the rebound, defeating itself into a two bagger after it had been a three base slug or maybe a homer. Again and again Gandil and McMullin batted into the open jaws of fate when a single would have changed world history.

Did Rowland quit? In the sixth he shoved Risberg in to bat for Cicotte, who was pitching lovely ball. Risberg slammed out a hit and in a run, and even then it looked hopeless, for the score was 4 to 2.

Williams was sent in. With typical Sox luck he fanned three men when it was too late—after a fifth run had been counted.

But Ah! the Lucky Seventh.

Then came Chicago's proverbially lucky seventh. Jackson and Felsch slammed the ball out. Gandil, who had three times flivvered in crises, knocked the ball to the weeds for two bags and two runs. It was now 5 to 4 and there was hope. Sallee left the ground and passed Ray Schalk. Lynn was shot in for Williams. He took two pitiful pokes at it. Sallee turned to trap Schalk, who was stealing, and threw low to Herzog, who couldn't reach low, because he, too, was off terra firma. The ball trickled out in the world at large and Gandil lumbered in. There was now a tied score and a riot.

After that the Giants had no more chance—though the score was tied—than the Joliet Greens would have had. The juice of victory was frozen in their veins; the red corpuscles were turned to yellow.

Shano Starts the Rout.

So, in the next act, John Collins hit to right and the demoralized Giants staggered all around and saw it fall safe. Eddie Collins whanged one out and Joe Jackson cracked one out and after that assurance was triply cinched and only Fletcher remained true to his colors, fouling Jackson in criminal manner as Shano scored and Joe passed second. Felsch corked the contest by sizzling one where the crosseyed New Yorkers couldn't even see it, let alone stop it, and Jackson ambled in with the third run to the good.

Dirty Fletcher came up to do his bit, but Weaver laughingly threw him out. Jackson nailed the fly of Robertson, who had gotten eleven hits in the series, and poor Holke, who had beaned himself with a foul while Williams was pitching, and who was winging and unsteady, tapped one to third, the death trail.

The teams left last night for the Polo grounds. Last time they journed thus they lost then two games instead of one in the fire, the Giants got a lucky rainy day to draw their breath, get slapped on the back by encouraging friends who had money on them and save their hide while the hectic Sox cooled off and killed their engine trying to shift into high.

Why Fear Benton?

If it doesn't rain on Monday, Rowland will put Faber, who finished yesterday's game brilliantly, in the box against McGraw's choice, probably Benton. Benton never pitched before as he did in the first New York game of this series, and probably can never pitch that way again. If he can, the score should be 0 to 0, for Faber is as right as a gold coin.

It will be a question in that game of a few hits placed where and when they count, and that huge factor, heart. The thoroughbred Sox have shown that they can come up from behind. The Giants have shown that, within a game, they can't. It looks like the Sox's series and Comiskey's world trophy, and the gamblers who were betting 6 to 5 and in some cases even more absurd odds on the slugging Giants, can profane the fact that they overlooked the decisive element in sporting contests when they got behind the cocky form faves.

In the event that Faber loses on Monday, Rowland still has Cicotte, whom the New Yorks have never hit hard, and McGraw will not have a hurler left whom the Sox have not either knocked out of the box or otherwise beaten.

If yesterday's game hadn't yet been played the Sox still would look like the better proposition. As it came out, it listens like a sorry year for the Broadway bookmakers, who begged Chicago money like famine sufferers. I hate to think of the Friars' club draped in mourning and Louis Mann doing a Hamlet, but when any one raises a team like Comiskey's it is public notice to the world to step aside or be run down.

In the Wake of the News

By RING W. LARDNER

It was announced in the Bards' room that at half past one the site for the seventh game, should such be necessary, would be decided by the flipping of a coin. But, as everybody concerned had just come back from New York, no coin was available for flipping.

It was a quarter to two before they found a policeman willing to loan them half a dollar. Mr. Fullerton, who witnessed the ceremony, came in and announced to the Brother Rats that Mr. Comiskey had won the toss, and the seventh contest would be staged here, so we all knew that Mr. Comiskey had lost the toss and the seventh game would take place in New York.

I arrived at the Rathole in time to see George Burns walking to first base as a personal favor from Albert Russell. After that, Albert got only one ball past a batsman. He wasn't in the game even as long as Jim Thorpe, though he saw twice as much action. Jim stayed in the batting order till it was his turn to bat. Then he put his ugly brown sweater back on and resumed his habitual seat in the wigwam.

When Russell had pitched to three guys he was removed to give the outfielders a rest. The White Sox pitching staff succeeded him and immediately his support began to behave as if it were the first day at the training camp.

In three innings, five boots were rolled up, probably because of the strangeness of the grounds or the coldness of the air or something. If this isn't a world's series record, it ought to be. The Sox busted another record by scoring a run in the third. Only the oldest of the fans could recall their last previous tally.

They scored again in the sixth, but only through the rather shady method of inserting a Swedish pinch hitter in Cicotte's place. Eddie now has nothing to do 'till Monday.

In the New York half of the sixth, Mr. Zimmermann, having failed three times to deliver when there were Giants waiting to score, repeated his classic remark of the other day in New York: "You ain't showed me nothin' yet, Sy-Cotte." As a matter of fact, Heine's batting average against Sy-Cotte, for this series and city series of the last two or three years, could be computed on the fingers of one thumb.

The break of the game called lucky seventh, when a foul tip hit Walter Holke in the head and knocked most of the brains out of the New York club. Sallee lost the stuff he had had, if any, and his support crumbled just as had Cicotte's earlier in the day. Herzog, Fletcher, and even the incomparable Zim fell victims of a fatal attack of boots and white-stockinged athletes began to circle the bases in swarms, despite the fact that Fletcher attempted to block practically everybody who passed his station. Mr. Fletcher is a cheerful soul when his team is winning. When it is tied up, or behind, he's as genial and clubby as a mad dog.

Seeing the two teams in action, I must protest against the term "world's championship series." It is doubtful that either of them could win one game in seven from the Riverside married men, who at least would not allow the thought of a few paltry dollars to upset them.

The boss has just informed me that I won't have to go back to New York with the other Rats.

"Why not?" I asked him. "Don't you like my stuff?"

"Yes, indeed," he replied. "But you can write it just as well from here."

Add beg your pardon column—Joe Farrell, Chicago Tribune correspondent with the Bards, desires to state that when he wrote that story about Michael Colohan scalping a ticket, he didn't mean Michael Colohan, but Michael Callahan, who resides at the corner of Michigan boulevard and Howard avenue. The error was made by a wireless operator in Liverpool.

Maybe Sox and Scribes Are More Friendly Now

Here's a Sy Sanbornism: Going east the Sox players had their chests out so far they wouldn't talk to newspaper men. Coming back newspaper men wouldn't talk to the players. We ought to have a social time this trip.

BATTLE AT NEW YORK WEDNESDAY IF SEVEN GAMES ARE REQUIRED

If it is necessary to play seven games in order to decide the world's championship in baseball, the seventh game will be played at the Polo grounds in New York. This was decided just before the White Sox and Giants started the fifth game yesterday on the south side. The toss of a coin was the manner in which the decision was made.

Members of the national commission, together with President Comiskey of the White Sox and President Hempstead of the Giants, assembled in Comiskey's private office, and Chairman Herrmann of the commission did the tossing. He took a 50 cent coin and as he tossed it into the air Comiskey called "heads." The coin settled on the rug of the floor, and it was tails.

Comiskey was terribly disappointed, but simply said to Mr. Hempstead, "You win." Commy meant by that he won the toss, not that he was going to win the series. If the seventh game is necessary and if the weather does not interfere with the schedule, it will be played in New York on Wednesday. In order to make it necessary the Giants must win the sixth game. The sixth is booked for New York on Monday. Then if the seventh has to be played, Tuesday will be left open to give the public a chance to purchase reserve seats.

MAYOR BIG BILL USES BILLIKIN

Mayor Big Bill passed around the billikin he wears attached to his watch chain and requested each occupant of his box to rub it for good luck at the start of the "Lucky Seventh." It was the same good luck emblem he passed around among the conferees when the street car strike was settled. Big Bill thinks it started the White Sox rally.

Scalpers Get a Trimming, 4,600 Short of Full House

Chilly weather and two defeats in a row caused many empty seats at Comiskey Park yesterday. The paid attendance showed 4,677 of a capacity 32,000 crowd. As a result scalpers lost heavily and many sold their pasteboards at cost. As was the case in the first two games, the crowd was handled like a machine.

Chief Meyers Released by the Boston Braves

Boston, Mass., Oct. 13.—Catcher John T. (Chief) Meyers today was granted his unconditional release by the Boston Braves, to which club he came last August, when the team was sorely pressed for a backstop. Before that Meyers had been unconditionally released by Brooklyn.

MR. HONEST MAN STILL HOLDS $15

If there had been a world's series in his day, Diogenes surely would have found the honest man he sought. Let us present Mr. Sidney Kahnweiler.

After New York's Giants scored twice in the fourth inning yesterday, the count stood 4 to 1 against the Sox. In the grand stand some fan, who never quits, offered to bet $5 to $10 that the Sox would pull the game out of the fire. A few seats below another party promptly grabbed the bet. The $15 was handed Mr. Kahnweiler, who was chosen stakeholder.

As the game dragged, with the Sox still trailing, the man with the Chicago end of the bet left his seat and wandered to the top of the stand. When the Rowlands put on their wild drives in the seventh and eighth, the person who had staked the ten spot left hurriedly. When the game ended Mr. Kahnweiler found himself with $15 belonging to a man whom he couldn't find.

Besides being an honest man, Mr. Kahnweiler hates to see a fan as game as the Sox backer lose any money. So he called up THE TRIBUNE and asked us to locate the man whose abiding faith in the Sox was rewarded. He is certain he can identify the bettor.

Mr. Kahnweiler is a real estate agent at 79 West Monroe street. His home address is 5218 Ingleside avenue.

LUCKY SEVENTH ALL DEPENDED ON ONE PITCH

Gotham Scribe Sees Ump Factor; Ball to Jackson Fatal.

BY WALTER TRUMBULL.

[As wired to the New York World.]

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 13.—The Chicago White Sox defeated the Giants at Comiskey park today in a battle which, from a spectator's point of view, probably never has been equaled in the entire history of the world's series. The score was 8 to 5.

It was the fifth game of the series, in which Chicago now leads by a count of three victories to two. From a technical standpoint it was not a well played game. No pitchers' battle this, but a wild, hair raising, soul stirring, nerve breaking melee filled with terrific hitting, spectacular plays, foolish errors, and a savage fighting spirit seldom displayed in post-season games.

Bitter Pill for Giants.

It was a bitter contest played upon a bitter autumn afternoon, but bitterest of all to the Giants was the fact that defeat came only after victory seemed sure. Up to the last half of the seventh inning the White Sox were reeling and broken from the power of the New York attack. The Giants had scored five runs to their opponents' two. They had driven Lefty Russell from the hill after only three batters had faced him and they had pounded Cicotte hard.

The White Sox appeared to be fighting desperately but hopelessly. The crowd of over 27,000 rooters sat in sullen silence and dismay. The warriors whom they had come to cheer apparently were outclassed by a stronger foe. Then came the sudden, sweeping onslaught which turned the Giants' offensive into a rout and hurled them from the very heights of victory to the valley of defeat.

Attack Too Deadly, Too Sudden.

It was as if a brigade of soldiers, having gone over the top, had passed the perils of No Man's Land and hurled the enemy from their trenches only at their moment of triumph to be scattered and annihilated by a sudden flame of death from batteries hidden and unsuspected. There was no chance to rally or reform the battle line. The onslaught was too deadly and too sudden and unexpected.

In those last three innings the White Sox, who up to that point had made only four hits off Slim Sallee, suddenly turned upon him and battered him to the extent of nine hits and six runs. Perritt, who was rushed to the rescue, yielded another hit, which accounted for Chicago's final tally, but the battle was already lost, and this last run was merely in the nature of painting the lily.

Too Cold for Sallee.

It always is easy to make a second guess or to do the proper thing in retrospect, but many persons wondered why McGraw left Sallee in there after the sixth inning. It was too cold a day for the veteran left hander to be at his best, as was indicated by the fact that he gave three bases on balls in the first three innings, and might possibly have given more had the White Sox displayed more patience in waiting him out.

In the sixth inning Gandil swung at the first ball pitched and was thrown out at first. Then Weaver, Schalk, and Risberg, who batted for Cicotte, all singled in a row, the result being one run. Still Sallee had pulled himself out of a tough place in the first frame, when the bases were filled with Chicago runners, and McGraw still had confidence in him. He justified this by disposing of John Collins and McMullin. That made nine Chicago runners who had been left stranded on the bases.

Umpire's Ruling a Factor.

It may be that Sallee would have weathered the storm even then had he been given perfect support. This, however, is doubtful. That seventh inning opened peacefully enough, as Eddie Collins swung at the first ball pitched and flied to Fletcher. Jackson missed the first pitch and fouled the second, which did not look promising from a Chicago standpoint. Sallee pitched again and O'Loughlin called a ball. Both Sallee and Rariden were loud in protest. Whether or not they had any justification, the decision made a big difference, for in place of being struck out Jackson singled solidly to left. Felsch followed with a single and Gandil with a double, which scored two runs.

Weaver's infield out put Gandil on third. This made the score 5 to 4 in the Giants' favor. While Sallee could not have desired to put the winning run on first base, he at the same time had no idea of permitting Schalk to hit a good ball. Schalk refused to bite at a bad one and as a result he finally walked.

Clever Play Ties Score.

Then Chicago pulled a smart bit of baseball. With Gandil on third Schalk was sent down to second to draw the throw. Rariden, to check any attempt at a double steal, threw to Sallee, and the latter, seeing that Gandil had not started in, wheeled and shot the ball to Herzog. There only was an outside chance to get Schalk at best, but when Herzog muffed the ball squarely there was no chance at all, and Gandil came in with the tying run. Williams had pitched the first half of this inning for

Worlds Series Notes

Sixth game in New York tomorrow.

Joe Jenkins, captain of the bull pen, had one of the busiest days of his career in the pen. He warmed up four different fellows for service and had a fifth on the fire when the game was over.

The two teams of champions left for New York last night by different routes. If they had gone on the same train there would have been only a few shreds of clothing left of them.

Jim Thorpe, the Oklahoma Redskin, was booked to play right field, but never appeared, because Reb Russell didn't last long enough. As soon as a right hander went to the slab Robertson was sent up in place of the Indian.

The song boosters who have been with us from the start were the only fellows at the park yesterday who seemed to possess the same enthusiasm as on opening day. They get paid for it, so much per hour.

The crowd was a disappointment just as it was in New York and although the weather conditions here had more to do with it than in New York, it does seem as if there is a misunderstanding somewhere between fans and magnates.

Felsch almost slammed a home run into the left field bleachers with E. Collins on ahead of him in the second inning. The ball hit the screen and rebounded so far that Burns held Felsch on second, but Collins scored all right.

There is going to be some fighting in Gotham unless the national commission gets busy in the interval and warns the players that the rough stuff has gone far enough. The Sox have been the victims thus far, but are willing to take a chance even against a New York crowd.

Thorpe started in right field in the batting order, but never got into active service. Before it came his turn to bat in the first half inning Russell had been sent to the shower, so McGraw substituted Robertson, who drove in the second run of the game.

It was the last game of the series that Chicago will have a chance to see as the sixth combat is booked for New York and the seventh also, providing a seventh is necessary. However, Chicago's fans saw enough yesterday to last them for another eleven years.

Zimmerman opened the third with a little fly that fell safely in short right center. In a moment Cicotte caught Zim off first but he bluffed to go to second, drawing a throw from Gandil. Weaver muffed the ball, letting Heine sneak back to the first sack in safety. On the next ball Fletcher smashed a liner to McMullin and Heine was doubled up helplessly.

Holke knocked himself completely out in the seventh inning. He was up trying to sacrifice with runners on second and first, and nobody out. He tipped a foul that hit him in the face and rendered him unconscious for several minutes. After being revived Holke wanted to go to first base, but O'Loughlin called him back and reminded him he had been hit by a foul tip and not by a pitched ball.

Williams was the victim of an odd mishap in the seventh. After Fletcher opened on him with a single Robertson hunted a little fly to Lefty, who caught it all right but slipped and fell in the act. As he hit the ground he dropped the ball, then recovered it and tried to double Fletcher off second. O'Loughlin allowed the out on the fly, until the Giants appealed to Evans, who said Williams dropped the ball.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

There wasn't much interest in the world's series in Chicago until the end of the seventh inning yesterday. After the seventh round had been fought there were about a half a million people who wanted to bet that the Chicago White Sox would be the champions of all the planets.

The reason for this unrestricted outburst of enthusiasm was because the White Sox came from away behind and tied the score, and the New York Giants, who had sailed along like a two million dollar ball club for two games and seven innings of the third, blew all to pieces. Now the White Sox have to win only one more game and the thing is at an end, and it looks like the Sox have fully recovered from a state of coma which enshrouded them after they had won the first two games.

Red Faber a Hero.

Although it hasn't been proven, it was said that the screaming at Comiskey park yesterday at the close of that seventh inning could be plainly heard in Cascade, Ia. No doubt most of the inhabitants of Cascade were hanging around the narrow gauge railway station getting the clicks off the wire, because Cascade knew that before that seventh inning was over it was up to Red Faber, prominent citizen of the town, to come forth and save the game.

Red did come forth and he saved the game, largely because the Giants continued to blow all to pieces, while Red pitched in his steadiest and truest form, and when his mates garnered three runs in the eighth, it was all over except the shouting in Cascade.

Chicago's fans waited a long time for the White Sox to wake up, but when the awakening finally came it was strong enough to wake up all the suburbs, too. There has been many a scene of enthusiasm at Comiskey park in days gone by, but never was there one which equaled that of yesterday when the Giants went to pieces and let the tying run come home.

Buck Weaver Goes Wild.

All we can remember except the din of noise from the throng present was the capers of Buck Weaver in front of the White Sox bench. He danced around in a manner which indicated he had completely lost himself. He tossed his cap into the air and followed with his sweater and a dozen bats and three or four hats that belonged to spectators, and if there had been anything else within reach it, too, would have gone into the air. Everybody was in the air, figuratively speaking, because the Sox had come from behind and tied the score in a ball game that looked impossible to win.

The scene was repeated in the eighth when the Sox went out and put over three runs to win the game, but that was to be expected. When the White Sox tied the score the game really was won.

Sox Awaken Just in Time.

It took a long time for the Sox to come back to life, but it was worth while when the thing finally came. For several days, ever since they won the second game, the south side team was null and void. They started the fight yesterday in that same mood. They couldn't see, if one were to judge from the things they did in the early part of the game, but along when the seventh inning started some one on the Sox team, possibly Eddie Collins, realized there was a pile of money at stake and it was about to slip away into the hands of McGraw and his New Yorkers.

There might have been some other reason, but the general opinion among the friends of the White Sox was that the money situation finally got to the minds of the boys on the south side and immediately they flew into their annual post-season rage. In a jiffy they had tied the score, and in another jiffy they had scored, not one run with which to win, but three. When that money idea once gets into the heads of the Sox players there is no stopping them.

Crowd Silent Like Players.

The crowd of yesterday trailed along with the White Sox players. There wasn't anything to yell about until the end of the seventh, and although the Sox were battling on the field for the championship of the world and were being thoroughly licked for the first two-thirds of the game, the crowd kept still. There wasn't a real noise made until the thing was tied and then Chicago, almost 30,000 strong, cut loose and rejoiced in a loud voice.

It was clearly demonstrated that the Sox rooters had lost heart when one took a glance at the crowd at the time the game started. A lot of perfectly good seats at a dollar a throw hadn't even been taken. The reserved sections, the boxes and grand stand, were filled, but out where they began letting them in at 10 o'clock in the morning, there were a lot of vacant spots.

Possibly the weather man had something to do with it. He advertised in the papers that it would be clear and cold, with the thermometer at about 29 degrees. That is three degrees below the freezing point for water, fingers and noses, and it scared a lot of perfectly good baseball fans away. They decided it would be more appropriate to freeze their fingers and noses at a football game, so they gave up hope of seeing the Sox and Giants play. No one seems to have thought that one might just as well freeze at a baseball game as at a football game.

Not So Very Cold.

As a matter of fact, though, it wasn't so cold as all that. If one had a thick coat, reinforced by a sweater and an automobile blanket, a pair of mittens and a box of cigarettes, one could actually feel humid at the game, and if he happened to live in Chicago or Cascade, he would have perspired a bit along at the end of the seventh and all through the eighth.

There were a few New Yorkers in the throng, and one of them is worth talking about. He was a man with a bank roll. He sat near some members of the Woodland Bards who hadn't yet fully recovered from train sickness after their ride back from New York. This New Yorker was loud and boisterous, just as he should have been with the Giants away out in front and all indications pointing to a victory for Broadway. Consequently the New Yorker yelled, and it annoyed the Bards who sat disturbed in mind and stomach.

Fine for This Bard.

Finally one of the Bards could stand it no longer and arose in wrath, without looking at the score board and declared that he would bet fifty right then and there that the Sox would win the game. The New Yorker looked at the board, and, as it was the end of the fourth inning, he saw the Giants were leading by a count of 4 to 1.

Being a regular fellow and not a regular gambler, he addressed the Bard that it wouldn't be right for him to take fifty that way, so he would give him $100 to his $50. If he had been a regular gambler he would have given about $300 to $50, but he was just a New Yorker. The Bard took the bet and after the game the Bard was wondering how it happened he had so much money in his pocket.

There was a lot of betting on the game, most of the money being wagered down in loop places before the contest was on. There was so much New York money in town that the New Yorkers had to offer odds to get it up. It was easy to get 6 to 5 on yesterday's game, even before one had eaten lunch. On the final outcome of the series one could get better odds than that, and the Chicago fans kept their pocketbooks closed.

Fans Trail Sox East.

Last night, when the Sox left for New York to battle the Giants in the sixth game, a lot of Chicago rooters went along without an extra shirt, pajamas, or tooth brush. All they had was a lot of money, and if the Giants happen to play the same kind of baseball there that they did last Wednesday and Thursday, the boys will come back without even the shirts they have on their backs.

"IT'S EASY NOW," THE BOSSES SAY

BY CHARLES A. COMISKEY.

[As told to James Crusinberry.]

The White Sox finally found themselves in the seventh inning of the fifth game and I think the rest is easy. The boys suffered from overconfidence after beating the Giants in the first two and it took them a long time to get back into their stride. I was afraid they weren't going to get into it until next season, but they finally awoke and went through in great shape. It was one of the most enthusiastic games of ball I ever have seen in all my career in baseball, and I'll admit that I was considerably excited in the seventh inning. When the score finally was tied I would just as soon have gone home to supper beause I knew the boys would win out. New York played in the same aggressive style shown in New York until the seventh and then went to pieces. I hope it winds up in New York Monday.

BY CLARENCE ROWLAND.

[As told to James Crusinberry.]

We finally got them, but it took a long time, and I think the rest of the way to world's championship is easy. I fully expect to see the White Sox win the next game, because after that game of yesterday was over they were back in the same winning mood they had after two games had been played. It wasn't possible for any team to beat the Giants as they played in New York, but we finally made them break down here and let us come from away behind and win the game. The Sox still is the best short series team in the world and I think all the fans in the country will agree with that about Monday night.

Detail of Game.

FIRST INNING.

GIANTS—Burns walked on four pitched balls. Herzog up. Ball 1. Strike 1. Herzog singled to right and Burns dashed to third. Cicotte and Williams were now warming up. Kauff up. Burns scored on Kauff's two bagger to the right field fence, Herzog going to third. Zimmerman up. Russell was taken from the slab and Cicotte sent in. Cicotte had only a few seconds to warm up in the outfield before taking his place on the rubber. The crowd booed Zimmerman. Strike 1. Weaver took Zimmerman's hot grounder and Herzog was run down between third and home, Weaver to Schalk. Kauff moved to third. Fletcher up. McMullin took Fletcher's hot smash and threw to Schalk, who touched out Kauff as he slid into the plate. Robertson took Thorpe's place at the bat. Robertson up. Ball 1. Ball 2. Zimmerman scored on Robertson's single to center. On Felsch's throw to the plate Fletcher went to third and Robertson to second. Holke up. Ball 1. Foul, strike 1. Foul, strike 2. Cicotte threw out Holke.

Two runs. Three hits. No errors.

WHITE SOX—John Collins popped to Zimmerman on the first ball pitched. McMullin up. Ball 1. Ball 2. Ball 3. Strike 1. McMullin walked. Eddie Collins up. Ball 1. Ball 2. Strike 1. Collins singled to center, McMullin going to second. Perritt was now warming up for New York. Jackson up. Ball 1. Jackson filed to Burns. Felsch up. Ball 1. Fletcher booted Felsch's grounder and the bases were full. Gandil up. Foul, strike 1. Strike 2. Ball 1. Gandil popped to Holke.

No runs. One hit. One error.

SECOND INNING.

GIANTS—Rariden up. Ball 1. Rariden singled past Collins. Sallee forced Rariden at second, Gandil to Weaver. Burns up. Strike 1. Ball 1. Strike 2. Burns whiffed. Herzog up. Ball 1. Weaver made a bobble on Herzog's grounder, Sallee moving to second. Kauff up. Strike 1. Ball 1. Ball 2. E. Collins threw out Kauff.

No runs. One hit. One error.

WHITE SOX—Weaver up. Ball 1. Foul, strike 1. Ball 2. Strike 2. Fletcher got Weaver's smash and threw him out. Schalk up. Fletcher also threw out Schalk. Cicotte up. The crowd cheered Cicotte. Strike 1. Ball 1. Ball 2. Strike 2. Ball 3. Cicotte walked. John Collins up. Ball 1. Strike 1. John Collins fouled out to Rariden.

No runs. No hits. No errors.

THIRD INNING.

GIANTS—Zimmerman got a Texas leaguer into right center. Felsch lost the ball in the sun. Fletcher up. Ball 1. Strike 1. Foul, strike 2. Ball 2. Zimmerman was almost caught off first and run down, but Weaver dropped the ball, the play being Cicotte to Gandil to Weaver, the ball getting away from Weaver. Zimmerman ran back to first. Fletcher line-filed to McMullin, who doubled Zimmerman with a quick throw to Gandil. Robertson bounced a single off Cicotte's glove. Holke up. Strike 1. Ball 1. Foul, strike 2. Holke struck out.

No runs. Two hits. One error.

SIX PITCHERS THROW 239 BALLS; FOUR SOX HURL 127 OF THESE

The quartet of Chicago pitchers pitched 127 balls in the nine halves of innings in which they faced the Giants, while the pair of New York hurlers used 117 in the eight halves which they pitched. It was very near an even break in the matter of expended energy.

Forty-five balls were called on the locals and forty-six on the visitors. Thirty strikes accumulated to the credit of the winners and twenty-five to the losers. The luck on foul strikes broke for the Chicago slabmen, as Giant batsmen had sixteen of these called on them, while the White Stockings yielded six.

A summary of the work of the pitchers follows:

BALLS.

	Balls	Strikes	F. strikes	Fouls	Field outs	Hits	Totals
Off Russell	5	1	0	0	0	2	8
Off Cicotte	29	17	8	1	16	8	79
Off Williams	8	6	4	2	1	2	23
Off Faber	3	6	4	1	3	0	17
Totals	45	30	16	4	20	12	127

Russell pitched to three men; Cicotte pitched six innings; Williams, one; Faber, two.

NEW YORK.

	Balls	Strikes	F. strikes	Fouls	Field outs	Hits	Totals
Off Sallee	43	24	6	6	19	13	111
Off Perritt	3	1	0	1	0	1	6
Totals	46	25	6	7	19	14	117

Sallee pitched seven and one-third innings; Perritt, 1 and two-thirds.

KAUFF GOT START AS MULE DRIVER

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Benny Kauff, star of the fourth game of the world's series, who knocked two home runs for New York on Thursday, was formerly employed as mule driver at $1.40 a day for Capt. Tom Jones of Middleport, O., commander of an Ohio company at Camp Sheridan, near here. Jones operated a coal mine in the Virginia mountains when Kauff was under him.

One day one of the baseball teams of the Virginia mountain league got intoxicated en masse. Capt. Jones recommended Kauff as one of the substitutes. Kauff knocked a home run in that game, was signed for the team at once, and Jones had to hunt another mule driver to accept his $1.40 per.

Pickpockets Find Good Picking Among the Fans

Street cars crowded with baseball fans proved good picking for pickpockets yesterday afternoon. Four men robbed while on their way from or to the Sox park notified the detective bureau. They are: Harry Miller of New York, robbed of $85; R. H. Cook, 3333 Michigan avenue, Kansas City, Mo., robbed of $32 and his railroad ticket; E. P. Jones, 3115 Franklin boulevard, robbed of $27; Joseph Pearovich, 2836 South Fifth avenue, robbed of $5 and his draft registration card.

New York Offers Odds in Wagers Before Game

New York, Oct. 13.—The fact that today is the 13th had no effect on the usually superstitious baseball fans in New York and they were offering odds of 5 to 4 this morning that the Giants would defeat the White Sox at Chicago this afternoon. A number of bets of 10 to 9 were made that the Giants would win the series.

LUCKY SEVENTH ALL DEPENDED ON ONE PITCH

Chicago, and Lynn, who batted for him, struck out, but the damage was done.

The confidence of the White Sox, which had ebbed far out, came back in the shape of a tidal wave. It was a tidal wave under which the Giants were buffeted and beaten. The whole psychological aspect of the battle was changed. The crowd, which had been so gloomy and apathetic before, was by this time roused to the point of frenzy, and from then until the end of the game never ceased its clamor. The populace was awake in earnest. Following the morning star of hope that had arisen with Gandil's double, the frantic fans saw the first glittering rays of the rising sun of victory.

Sox Hear Plea of Mad Fans.

They were no longer sullen. They were not silent now. Shouting, screaming, pleading, they begged their favorites to carry on the charge, and the White Sox responded nobly to the call. Red Faber went to the pitching mound, and in the two remaining innings retired the New York batters in order. Meanwhile Chicago made its final drive.

John Collins was the first man up in the eighth, and on the first ball Sallee pitched him he cracked a single to left. Zimmerman made a pretty play on McMullin's sacrifice, but it put Collins on second with the winning run. Eddie Collins let one go by and then he singled to center, and John Collins raced across the plate to be greeted by a grand stand that was a perfect imitation of an asylum for the violently insane. Jackson followed with a safe drive to right and Robertson whipped the ball to third in an effort to cut down the speeding Collins.

Had Zimmerman come up on the ball he might have had a play at third, but he stayed back. Then, seeing that Jackson was making for second, he tried to head him off. The throw was wild. It hit the ground and, bouncing up, caromed off Fletcher's arm. Collins scored and Jackson continued to third. This was where Sallee was taken from the game.

He was replaced by Perritt and Felsch greeted the right hander with a single to center which scored Jackson. Then Gandil filed to Burns and Felsch was out trying to steal second. But the game was over.

Fans "All In" at Finish.

Also the crowd was through for the day. The fans had run the gamut of emotion. They had experienced anticipation, dismay, despair, resignation, hope, frenzy, and triumph. Their team had won and they wanted to talk it over, and knew that they should talk it over, but they were on the verge of nervous prostration and their voices were gone.

The comparatively few Giant fans who had witnessed the massacre were in no mood for calm and dispassionate discussion. They wanted to go far away by themselves to some broad and deserted expanse of country where there was room to say what they thought. They wished to use language such as no dictionary contains or no religious society would permit. Their observations would not have been passed by any censor. Any mind reader could have had them arrested for what they were thinking. In fact, their disappointment was keen.

Rivals Make It Rough Fight.

The game was permeated with considerable ill feeling between the players, and at times it was roughly played. There were collisions on the base line which were hardly accidental and which occasioned conversation that was acid in the extreme. There was also some verbal exchange on the matter of a runner who slid to first base. No weapons were used, but with that exception the game was far from gentle.

It was a battle of many errors and most of them were on easy chances. At times infielders and outfielders vied with each other in making misplays, and pitchers and catchers did their share. Schalk's throwing to bases was wretched. Both teams wasted many chances on both defense and attack. For this very reason it was truly a wonderful game to watch. Suspense was always there like a fuse in a stick of dynamite. Nobody ever knew who was going to touch it off. Any player is apt to make an impossible stop or an error or a home run or a strike out at any time.

Title in Grasp, Giants Falter.

The Giants should have had this series practically sewed up tonight. Had they left this city one game in the lead, with the next game to play on their home grounds, and also the seventh game to play there, if it was necessary, for they won the toss today, they would have had almost an insurmountable advantage. They pitched and kicked that advantage away.

They still may have an edge in the matter of pitchers. Rowland will be forced to start Faber or Williams on Monday, and if he loses, Cicotte will have had only two days' rest for the final game. Still Cicotte pitched only a little over five innings today. Williams did not do so badly against the Giants in the one inning he pitched. Fletcher hit him for a double and Rariden for a single, but he struck out Holke, Sallee, and Burns.

Benton for M'Graws Tomorrow.

McGraw practically is sure to use Benton in the game again on Monday, and to come back with Schupp in the seventh game, if there is one. Had the Giants won today, it is more than doubtful whether there ever would have been a seventh game. One thing is certain, and that is that neither of the teams that are playing this series for the world's championship can be counted out until the last putout is made in the final inning.

Eddie Collins said after the game, "I have been in many a world's series game but never in one like this of today."

SOX REAL CHAMPIONS OF THIS W. K. EARTH, VETERAN PAGE SAYS

C. T. Page of Atlanta, Ga., stopping at the Union League club, and who, as stated in yesterday's TRIBUNE, is one of the oldest players of the national sport, says:

"I have been a constant reader and admirer of THE TRIBUNE for almost sixty years, or since 1860, when I first began to know what a newspaper was.

"I admire Ban Johnson and particularly his interest in Uncle Sam, while his country is undergoing such a crisis in its history. Mr. Comiskey and I are such close friends from long association that he honors me by calling me 'Uncle Charles.' Clarence Rowland is, of course, of later years, but I admire his energy, ambition, and unfailing perseverance.

"I want to mention Charlie Williams, secretary of the Chicago Cubs, particularly mentioning his kindness to me during the played-off game in New York, occasioned by the famous 'Merkle bonehead play,' where he hoisted me over the fence when I arrived in New York an hour after the game had started.

"Baseball Honest Sport."

"Now, as to the game, I remember a few years ago, sitting with Mr. Comiskey on the grounds here, watching a game between the Detroit Tigers and the White Sox, that Mr. Comiskey turned to me and said, 'Don't you think that there is 50 per cent luck in the game?' and I replied, 'Certainly, and more, and that is what satisfies the public, knowing it to be an honest sport.'

"Mr. Comiskey will remember that it has been my good fortune to have rarely seen the White Sox beaten; in fact, I don't recall when I ever did see them beaten, it has occurred so few times when I was present. This afternoon was the nearest to defeat, but all the others sharing the same box with myself will verify the statement that I never gave up—that I said, 'We will beat them. We are bound to win.'

Sees Victory for Sox.

"I feel just as confident of the ultimate outcome as I did today when things were dark. I think the break of the game, which I had felt sure was coming, was in the seventh when Gandil rapped out a double, bringing in two runs. These are the impressions of Uncle Charles."

Mr. Page is a personal friend of ex-Gov. Deneen. He also numbers among his many friends and acquaintances Harry Grabinger, whom he characterizes as displaying "untiring zeal"; J. J. Badenoch, for many years his partner in business; Mr. Higgery of the First National bank, and Mr. Enright of the Union League club, and says he is extremely gratified that all of these are with the government against the kaiser and his crowd.

Sees All Sox Triumphs.

He attaches considerable significance to the fact that the Sox have won the three games of the series at which he was a spectator, and entertains not the slightest doubt that they will be the victors in the 1917 world's championship race.

Ciceros Will Play Romeos in Trophy Contest Today

The second game of the series for the Sweitzer-Tearney prizes will be played this afternoon at Forty-eighth court and Twelfth street with the Ciceros and the Romeos as the contending teams. Sweitzer and Tearney will act as the battery for the first pitched ball. The opening contest went to the Ciceros, 6 to 3. Dick Cantwell and Frank Kafora will be in the points for Cicero, while Sam Lafferty and Jim Fleming will look after the interests of the Romeos. The schedule for today is as follows:

Logan Squares and Albany Park at Kimball and Wilson avenues.
Central League Stars at Garden City park.
Normals at South Chicago.
Ragens and American Giants at Schorling's park.

PEREZ CAPTURES K. C. FINAL BY HEAVY HITTING

Defeats Americus Council for League Pennant by Score of 9 to 5.

Perez won the Knights of Columbus league pennant yesterday by defeating Americus council, 9 to 5, in a free hitting game at Normal Park. Ormsby's hitting, added to his steady pitching, clinched the victory. He was hit hard in only one round, the eighth, when Americus got four runs. Feeley, [illegible] from Camp Grant, to play with Perez, was presented with a wrist watch and sweater. Score:

Garden Citys to Play League All-Stars Today

There being no world series game here today, the Garden City's manager stands ready to fill in the gap for thirsty ball fans, and has billed his club to tackle a team of touring all stars, mainly made up of Central leaguers. Torkelson, tried as Cleveland hurler just before the majors closed, is slated to pitch for the barnstormers. Other well known faces with the Stars will be Catcher O'Farrell of the Cubs, Charley Pechous of the same team, and Chucky Stewart, who a few years ago tried for an outfield position as a Cub under Chance.

Senators' Hurler to Wed Sweetheart of "Kid" Days

Hackensack, N. J., Oct. 13.—The engagement of Miss Bessie Brewster, daughter of former Sheriff George Brewster, to Harry Harper, star left handed Washington pitcher, has been announced. Harper and Miss Brewster have known each other many years.

Harper pitched for the Oritani nine here before joining the Washington team several years ago. The wedding is to take place this winter.

Latonia Will Stage One Liberty Bond Race Daily

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—The Latonia Jockey club today announced Liberty bonds of the second issue would arbitrarily take the place of cash purses in at least one race each day. This race will be known as the Liberty Bond race, and the purses are expected to total over $35,000 dollars in bonds. A booth for the sale of Liberty bonds will be installed at the track.

MAROONS CRUSH SOUTHERN TEAM IN 48-0 GAME

Vanderbilt Knocked Flat by Stagg's Newly Built Machine.

BY MAROON.

John D. Rockefeller's school of football training proved vastly superior to Cornelius Vanderbilt's course in gridiron tactics when Coach Stagg's revamped Maroons handed Vanderbilt university of Nashville a 48 to 0 trouncing at Stagg field in the opening local battle of the Maroons' season.

The Chicago team pounded away at the Commodore line with such relentless persistency that touchdown after touchdown was piled up by Stagg's bench of kids. It was a complete rout before the affair was over and will go down in the books as another feather in the cap of "Old Man Stagg."

Maroons Look Good.

The Maroons put up a brand of football so much better than their first exhibition last year against Carleton that there is no way to compare the two teams. Where the 1916 eleven floundered when touchdowns looked certain the brand new Midway eleven put on an extra burst of speed and made every score look easy.

Stagg's men did not exhibit anything startling in the offensive line, but, what was far more pleasing, they carried out their few simple plays with a smash and bang that was pleasing after the series of flivvers that marred last season's defeats. Some of the charging was high, but Stagg can change that.

If football is to take a back seat this fall, there was no sign of it yesterday. With a world's series game going on less than two miles away over 6,000 fans turned out for the gridiron battle. For the first ten minutes there was considerable wild rooting for the Maroons, but when the ticker scores of the ball game began to roll in it looked as though there were 6,000 Sox fans in the stands. The Maroon band, tooting in "cits" garbs because their new khaki uniforms were delayed in the rush of army supplies, and a new set of cheer leaders made it look like a regular battle in the matter of trimmings.

Slow for Visiting Rooters.

There were only a dozen Nashville rooters who made the trip to Chicago, and they had only one short chance to empty their lungs. That came early in the third quarter and was over nearly as quickly as a Maroon fumble which gave it birth.

The Maroons won the toss and received the kickoff, and for two plays the Commodore line held. Then Higgins broke through for first down, and Rouse twisted loose for twenty yards more. Five successive first downs put the ball on the one yard line, with Elton, Rouse, and Higgins tearing the southern line to pieces with a terrific series of plunges.

At this point young Blocki, the kid who was playing his first game of football, had enough nerve to call for the play that would have won several games for the Maroons last year. He ducked right through the legs of Gorgas for the first touchdown and Jackson kicked goal. Straight back down the field rolled the Maroon tank for another score. Higgins crashed into the goal posts, but bounced off across the line.

Two More in Second Period.

In the second period another parade down the field brought the third touchdown, Higgins making the score. Blocki tore off a thirty yard run, but was called back for stepping out of bounds, so Rouse pulled an identical sprint and stayed within the line, making the fourth touchdown in the first half.

A Maroon fumble gave the Commodores a chance on the ten yard line in the third period, but the Chicago line held three times and a forward pass went wild. Some dandy punting by Schwill of Dan McGuigan's crew and one fizzling spiral by Higgins kept the Maroons from scoring in the third period.

Jackson Boots Six Goals.

Higgins, Rouse, and Chappell horned into the point column for touchdowns in the final quarter. Red Jackson kicked six of seven goals for the Maroons. Lineup:

WILLIAMS' RALLY UPSETS CORNELL

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 13.—With the score 10 to 0 against it in the fourth period, the Williams football team staged a sensational rally and scored two touchdowns, defeating Cornell, 14 to 10. Hoffman dropped a field goal for Cornell in the second period. In the third period Colvin blocked a punt and Cornell got the ball on Williams' fifteen yard line. Hoffman carried the ball over.

In the final period Williams, outweighed, but faster, fairly swept the Cornell eleven off its feet. Cornell's line weakened and, in striking distance of the goal, Boynton tossed a forward pass over the line to Brown for the visitors' first touchdown. A few minutes later Williams recovered a Cornell fumble with the ball on Cornell's forty-three yard line. Boynton sped the remaining distance for the second touchdown. Lineup:

New Ohio Star Comes to Fore as Team Buries Purple, 40-0

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Columbus, O., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Outclassing and outplaying in every department, Ohio State, which won the conference championship last year for the first time in its history, ran over and around Northwestern today in the season's first game between "big ten" teams, to the tune of 40 to 0.

There was no doubting the ability of Coach Wilce's team. It was equally strong at open and close play, and its decisive victory stamps the team as one which will make a strong bid to retain the honors won last year by defeating the same eleven.

It was a revelation to see such a team in form so early in the season. Not only did the team show unexpected offensive strength, but the players tackled in such a manner on the defense as to show that Coach Wilce has not overlooked the rudimentary tactics of football, the efficient points which count in deciding a football game.

New Star Ranks with Harley.

Chick Harley of Chicago, who learned to play football on Chicago's lots, was the backbone of the team last year, and practically single handed won the title for the Buckeye institution, has a rival in a peppery 150 pound star who learned the gridiron tactics at Fostoria, a little town fifty miles north of here. His name is Gail [Pete] Stinchcomb, and he played left half back. He is a sophomore in college, and he only scored three touchdowns in today's game.

Stinchcomb is without a doubt just as good a man as Harley, who was the unanimous selection for half back on the all-American team last year, and with such a pair of ground gaining backs, backed up by men who can play offensive and defensive football, the Buckeye eleven will be a hard one to beat this year.

Purple in Losing Fight.

Northwestern never had a chance to win after the game was three minutes old. Even at that early point it was apparent the Purple was doomed to defeat. As soon as the teams lined up after the kickoff, the offensive and defensive strength of the Ohio eleven was shown. When it got possession of the ball it plowed through the Purple line, drove off the tackles, and ran the ends in a manner which brought applause from even impartial rooters.

They executed forward passes with the perfection of a team which had been groomed for months. Not only did the players execute almose perfectly every play known to offensive football, but they were strong on the defense. Northwestern never once seriously threatened the locals' goal line and were unable to do a thing with the best plays which Coach Fred Murphy had taught them in the short time since the conference practice season opened.

Start with Opening Whistle.

After the first whistle blew, Ohio gained possession of the ball in the midfield. From this point by line plunges and off tackle drives with Stinchcomb and Williaman carrying the ball, the oval rested on the Purple thirty-yard line. An end run signal was given for Stinchcomb to carry the ball. He skirted the Purple right end for a touchdown. Harley failed to kick the goal, leaving the score 6 to 0.

In the second period the local eleven played rings around the Evanstonians. After the kickoff, Ohio obtained possession of the ball in its own territory. Again Stinchcomb was given the ball, and he went through the entire Purple team for his second touchdown. Harley kicked the goal, making the score 13 to 0.

After the next kickoff an interchange of punts and scrimmages left the ball in the Buckeye possession. Again the pigskin was handed to Stinchcomb and again he wafted his way through the Purple team for his third touchdown. Harley kicked goal; score, 20 to 0. Time was called shortly afterward for the end of the first half, with Ohio again threatening to score.

Keep Rolling Up Points.

Northwestern kicked off in the second half and after a little battle in the middle of the field, the Ohio team by concentrating its attack in line plunges and off tackle drives, took the ball to the Purple one yard line. On the next play Yerges dove between the center's legs for another touchdown. Harley kicked goal. Score, 27 to 0.

Northwestern chose to kick off and by a steady march the Buckeyes carried the ball down the field. When they were on the Purple twenty yard mark a perfectly executed forward pass, Yerges to Peabody, resulted in the latter's catching the ball back of the goal line, for one more touchdown. Harley failed at goal. Score, 33 to 0.

Northwestern fought gamely to stem the tide of defeat, but the rushes of Ohio were too much to stop. Ohio got the ball on its forty yard line and by straight line smashing carried it the remaining distance to the Purple goal, when Boesel was sent over for a touchdown. Yerges kicked the goal, making the final total 40 to 0, and time was called shortly afterward.

O'Flaherty Wins on Bets.

It was an ideal football day. There was just enough tinge in the air to make the players keep moving and fully 8,000 persons saw the game. There were few Northwestern rooters in the stands and O'Flaherty, the Evanston restaurant man, who bet 5 to 1 on Ohio, must be a happy man tonight.

NEBRASKA ROLLS OVER IOWA, 47-0

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 13.—University of Nebraska formally opened its season by defeating the University of Iowa team, 47 to 0. Both teams used straight football in the early stages of the game, but the inability to gain of the lighter Iowa men soon forced them to resort to kicking and forward passing, neither of which was notably successful. Nebraska's smashing attack piled up a lead of thirty-four points in the first half. The third quarter was hard fought, neither team scoring, but in the final period the Nebraskans added thirteen points to the total. Lineup:

Northwestern College Wins at Finish, 20 to 19

Kankakee, Ill., Oct. 13.—St. Viator was defeated by 1 point in the game with Northwestern college when the visitors scored a touchdown in the last two minutes of play. Score was 20 to 19. Corbett and Fitzpatrick played stellar games for the locals and Stanger and Dahn for the visitors.

ILLINOIS OPEN PLAY TOPPLES OKLAHOMA IN 44 TO 0 CONTEST

Urbana, Ill., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Even if Coach "Benny" Owens' university of Oklahoma eleven was smothered under a 44 to 0 score by Illinois today, the red sweatered Sooners put up a game that was a lot better than the topheavy total indicates.

The westerners started out like whirlwinds. They had a fast and crafty backfield and a quarter back who pulled numerous criss-crosses and other complicated strategems which kept Zuppke's men worried to death. They were also adepts with forward passes. Headed by Abbott and Wilmath, they performed so brilliantly that twice in the first half the Illini were compelled to defend their goal at close quarters. One the Illini broke up a forward pass which balked the Sooners' attack, and another time the invaders fumbled on the Illinois five yard line.

Sternman Plays Good Game.

"Dutch" Sternman signalized his return to the game by leading the local attack after Zuppke's men finally got their breaths. The little back made the first touchdown and soon performed the most spectacular feat of the day, a sixty yard run for a touchdown, after intercepting a Sooner forward pass.

The first half ended with the Illini leading by two touchdowns, but the visitors looked as if they might continue to make things interesting. They were gradually worn down, however, and when the final period dawned Zuppke was able to insert an entirely new team, which added two more touchdowns. Ingwersen, Zuppke's new center, place kicked a goal.

Schlauderman Makes Good.

Abbott was the bright star of the Sooners, often scaring the life out of the Illini by his open field runs. The visitors tried more passes than the Illini. Zuppke's men followed the ball well but fumbled occasionally.

The experiment of big Schlauderman at end left him a fixture there. Lineup:

MICHIGAN RUNS OVER MT. UNION

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Michigan administered a sound drubbing to Mount Union, 69 to 0, in one of the most one-sided games ever witnessed on Ferry field. Mount Union came to Ann Arbor with one of the weakest lines the Ohio school has ever had and it proved far too weak to withstand the terrific attacks of the heavy Michigan backs. Straight football was used almost exclusively by both teams.

Mount Union expected to show Michigan an exceptionally fancy display of the open style game and Yost had drilled his men for the last week to combat them, shifting Hanish from his place in the back field to the end position on offense. Illness, however, prevented the big back man to take an active part.

The game was featured by the brilliant runs of Weston, quarter back, and the long, erratic gains on Froemke, who, up to today, had been one of Yost's understudies. Cresa, going into the game near the finish, stopped the Ohioans' only chance at scoring when he intercepted a long pass by the Mount Union quarter. The honors for the big scoring displays were divided among Rye, Wieman, Weston, Froemke, and Gennebach. Lineup:

NOTRE DAME TEAM BATTLES WISCONSIN TO SCORELESS DRAW

Madison, Wis., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Evenly matched lines, and ineffectual open field attacks on both sides resulted in a scoreless tie between Wisconsin and Notre Dame today. Frequent fumbles, any one of which might have proved costly, gave both teams splendid openings, but always the necessary drive was lacking to put the ball over for a touchdown.

Notre Dame's big chance came early in the first quarter, when Wisconsin fumbled on its own ten yard line. Two end runs and a line play failed to gain, however, and an incompleted forward pass gave the ball back to the Badgers on their own twenty yard line. Richards' men missed an opportunity in their turn, when Simpson returned a punt to the Catholics' fifteen yard zone, and Jacobi made it first down on the five yard line. Three line plays failed and a pass went wild, the Badgers losing the ball.

Invincible on Defense.

Jacobi, Davey, and Simpson advanced the ball many yards for Wisconsin, but met an impregnable defense when they got within the danger line. Brandy and Basan gained most of the ground for the visitors, while Rydzewski got away for twenty-five yards when he grabbed a Badger pass. Simpson of Wisconsin outpunted Phalen, but neither of them managed to put the ball over the bars from the field.

The Wisconsin rooters held their breaths in the last quarter, when Phalen tried a goal from placement from forty yards. The ball was headed straight for the bar, but struck one of the standards, wavered and bounced back. Lineup:

Downers Grove Topples Des Plaines Eleven, 30-0

Downers Grove High school beat Desplaines, 30 to 0, on the latter's gridiron. In the second period Desplaines worked the ball to the eight yard line by a succession of passes, but could not deliver the scoring punch on close play. The weight advantage was with Downers Grove, aiding in smashes for the count after marches down the field. Downer was the Downers Grove star with three touchdowns and two passes, Dewitt to Vaughn, paved the way for other scores.

Syracuse, 14; Rutgers, 10.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 13.—Syracuse university defeated Rutgers, 14 to 10, in a well played football game in the Archbold stadium. Malone's forty-eight yard run around right end for a touchdown at the beginning of the fourth quarter was the feature of the play, the Syracuse half back taking the ball on a double pass and scoring by fast footwork.

HARRISON TECH HANDS BEATING TO ENGLEWOOD

Champions Fall as Foes Score Two Markers in 12-7 Game.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Harrison Tech football players leaped right into the center of the stage with the general launching of play in the Chicago High School league yesterday. Playing on their gridiron, the heavyweights handed a 12 to 7 defeat to Englewood, last year's winner of the city public school title. Bromstedt, Englewood's right half, who starred on the two championship elevens of 1915 and 1916, did royal work for the losers, but alone could not stop the west siders.

Harrison, whose team displayed crude strength in previous games, although it sustained defeats, showed it had been speeded up early in the opening quarter and Canty went over for a touchdown, which was the only score until the second half was well under way.

In the third period Full Back Vaughn tore off a fifty yard run for Harrison and Bromstedt kicked goal. Palmer scored for Englewood in the same period. Janovsky's punting helped Harrison gain ground. Lineup:

Tech Minors Beat Parker.

Harrison gained more glory when the 135 pounders held last year's Parker lightweight champions to a scoreless draw. In the first half Harrison was on the verge of scoring, with the ball about a yard away, when the whistle blew, but the second half was an even battle, Parker losing on punting exchanges, but fighting gamely. Hyde Parkers Win Two.

Another double winner in No. 2 division was Hyde Park. The Blue and White heavies whipped Lane Tech at De Paul field, 20 to 0, in a morning game. Lane's line held staunchly in the first half, but weakened in the second, when Neff and Murphy, Hyde Park's two stars, did all the scoring. The victors found split bucks a sure method of advancing. NEW TRIER USES STEAM ROLLER ON PROVISO, 39-0 Victory Puts North Shore Team in Front Rank for League Flag.

New Trier's heavyweight eleven stepped prominently into the limelight in the Suburban league when it conquered Proviso, 39 to 0, on the latter's Maywood's grounds. Quarterback Searle played an all around game and directed the Kenilworth boys' telling attacks. Proviso never was within the ten-yard zone before the winners' goal, and threatend the goal only twice from that distance. In its three games this season, New Trier has piled up 107 points to its opponents' 6, and the north shore boys have visions of a championship. Lineup:

Oak Park Majors, 35; Deerfield, 0.

Both Oak Park teams kept their winning records unsullied, the heavies taking their first league game by drubbing Deerfield, 35 to 0, at Highland Park, while the lights held forth on the home gridiron at the expense of La Grange and won, 21 to 6. Phelps was Oak Park's star in the major encounter, twice making sixty yard dashes through the field to the home team's goal. Lineup:

U. High, 0; Thornton, 0.

University High and Thornton High of Harvey played each other to a standstill on Stagg field in a morning game. Neither team got near enough for a chance to put the ball across. In the final minutes Thornton put up a strong bid on a series of forward passes. Wiedemann grabbed one for a long run, but U High braced in the pinch. Lineup:

N. W. M. N. A., 33; Sharon, 0.

Lake Geneva, Wis., Oct. 13.—[Special.]—Northwestern Military and Naval academy beat Sharon, Wis. High school, 33 to 0. Spectacular runs by the cadets bewildered the high schoolers. One dash by Wallace was for seventy yards, and Ross dashed through the field on a sixty-yard score. He made two touchdowns and a field goal, and Frost made two touchdowns. Fullback Toll was Sharon's best player.

GEORGE O'NEIL GIVES RULES FOR PUTTING

Study and Practice Bring Success, Expert Says.

BY GEORGE A. O'NEIL.

THE PUTTER.

Putting is the part of the game in which individuality runs wild. In no other part will you see such variations in shape of club, method of gripping, form of stance, and style of stroke. The reason is clear. Putting is both the simplest and the most difficult thing the golfer has to do. With any form of club, gripped in any fashion, a player can, from any stance, using any style of stroke, hole a considerable proportion of his putts; while on the other hand no player has yet appeared who can, with any form of club or style of stroke, even distantly approximate the accuracy of the billiard player.

Of course it will be objected that no putting green is as smooth as a billiard table, but such objectors will hardly maintain that the majority of putts that miss do so because they are thrown off the line by inequalities in the surface of the green. The fact is that most putts that miss were not played properly—and that is the whole trouble.

The few that are actually turned from their true path by some obstacle are too few to count, even if there was exaggeration in Alex Smith's jesting reply, when asked why he did not brush away the worm casts from his line of putt: "Hoot, mon! It a'coomes oot a'richt; sometimes they 'll knock me in." A well hit ball will hold its path surprisingly in spite of pretty formidable interference.

Study and Practice Essential.

The fundamentals of putting are a good eye for direction, an accurate sense of the force required, and a firm and precise stroke. If you have these treasures, improve them by frequent study and practice. If you lack them, try to acquire them by still more frequent study and practice.

Space does not permit the discussion here of the defects and advantages of all the methods of putting, or even of all those used with success by prominent players. It will perhaps be sufficient to describe the method which the present writer—after much observation and experience—believes to be the best.

THE CLUB

It is not desirable to be dogmatic about the style of club, except with regard to three features. The club head should be heavy enough to transmit some momentum to the ball without requiring too hard a blow to do so; for it is momentum which keeps the ball rolling and causes it to keep its direction. The face of the club should be straight, in order to prevent either choking the ball into the turf or putting back spin on it.

The lie of the club should be very erect—that is, the shaft should form nearly a right angle with the sole of the club—in order to allow the eye of the player to look directly over the ball to the hole in fixing the line of direction. A putter that combines these desirable qualities is the well known aluminum putter, or a steel putter with the same lie and pitch.

GRIP AND STANCE

The club should be held firmly, but without producing tension or strain in the forearms. This means that it should be held in the fingers, not in the palms. Let the shaft of the club lie in the fingers of the left hand and hold it in place by letting the ball of the thumb rest on the left side of the shaft. Place the right hand below the left and grip the shaft with fingers and thumb of this hand also.

The hands should be close together; and the little finger of the right hand may either overlap the forefinger of the left or interlock with it. The putter should not be gripped too short. In my opinion, it is best to grip it about two inches from the end where it balances best.

The stance should be firm but easy. The feet may be at an angle of about seventy degrees, with the heels six or eight inches apart. The player should face the hole slightly, and the ball should lie opposite the left heel.

GETTING THE LINE

Before getting into position for the stroke, the player should study the intended path of the ball carefully but not painfully. Any slope or thick grass or other unevenness that must be traversed must be taken account of and allowed for as affecting both direction and what may be called effective distance. Too much study of these matters will produce nervousness and uncertainty. The trained eye can see the necessary path of the ball and estimate the required force in a rapid glance; and the habit of doing this with ready decision should be cultivated.

THE STROKE

After getting a clear sense of the proper path of the putt and the force necessary to make it, take up your stance promptly with the putter at right angles to the path of the putt. A slight bending of the knees will help to relieve tension and promote a proper state of the muscles. Draw the putter straight back, using wrists and forearms in coöperation, and then strike the ball a sharp tap, letting the head of the club pass the hands immediately after the moment of impact. The stroke should be a hit or tap, as has just been said, not a pendulum swing, nor a jab, nor a tap checked as it reaches the ball. The speed and force come from the action of the wrists and the coöperating forearms.

For short putts, take the club back without turning the wrists or the face of the club. For long putts—approach putts of twenty feet or more—the wrists may be turned to secure the required power, but this will be at some sacrifice of accuracy.

LONG PUTTS AND SHORT

Don't strain to hole putts of eighteen or twenty feet. The effort to do so does not pay in the long run. You are too likely to overrun so much as to require two more putts to go down. In general try to make these long putts useful aids rather than sensational failures. Sometimes they will go down, but that is incidental and almost in the nature of a gift.

Above all things, try to obtain the ability to hole everything up to six feet. With the ability to do this and confidence in your ability—both of which will come with studious practice—you are likely to lay most of your approach putts up within this distance. In practice and in play, draw an imaginary line from the hole to the ball and then play the ball with enough force to carry it a few inches beyond the cup if it misses. Many persons who ascribe their mad putting to lack of confidence find by watching themselves that the lack of confidence operates by creating a vision of the ball rimming the cup and that their aim is really determined not by their intention but by this vison born of fear.

STUDY OF SLOPES

Really effective putting is unattainable without frequent studious practice. Practice without study is worth very little. Merely to take a dozen balls to a putting green and try to hole them again and again from different positions and distances is almost a waste of time. Attention should be given to every detail of the green—its slopes, the quality and length of the grass, etc.—and to every detail of the stroke and its results in direction and distance.

Variations in length of swing, in speed, in force, must be tried over and over again, and the effects consciously noted. Thus, and perhaps only thus, can you acquire that sense of knowledge and mastery which result in the confidence, the freedom of action, the perfect coördination necessary to give putting its proper place in the game, and make it a pleasure instead of an ever threatening bugaboo.

Woods and Waters by LARRY ST. JOHN

MORE ABOUT HER VON MUSKIE.

THE muskellunge lives a solitary life and wages ceaseless warfare on every living aquatic creature large enough to attract his attention. He kills even when he is not hungry, but, fortunately for the angler, he is hungry most of the time. Many of the stories told about wild folks are plain every day fib, but we have never heard a tale of the muskie's ability to eat that we thought was unbelievable—we caught one once that had recently gobbled up a fish duck!

The muskie is the largest fresh water game fish. He reaches a weight of 100 pounds (the record hook and line muskie weighed 61 pounds), although the average, of course, is a great deal less than this. Because of his large size the novice should not believe that Herr Muskie inhabits the deepest waters. They will usually be found, during the fishing season, in water well under eighteen feet in depth. Those taken from deeper water are caught in very warm weather or are taken from a "kettle" or hole or "pocket" between two bars or weed beds, such a place being natural feeding ground.

In lakes, water from eight to twelve feet deep with rocky or gravel bottom covered with short "grass" makes excellent muskie cover, as do the edges of weed beds, lily pads, the vicinity of sunken logs and boulders. In rivers look for them in the deeper stretches near fallen or overhanging trees, old roots, cut under banks, and log jams.

The muskie doesn't like rapids and will enter them to feed only when driven by hunger. A single lily pad or a few rushes, with which he camouflages nicely, offers him cover and he often lies in such places for hours waiting for an unsuspecting victim to pass. Then he glides out, silent as a shadow, swift as the darting of a swallow on the wing; there is a snapping of cruel jaws and he leisurely returns to his lair—he seldom misses!

Herr Muskie is not much of a traveler, but patrols a regular beat. As with bass and trout, the strongest fish takes the best feeding ground and holds it and rules it until some angler lures him to his doom or a better fish drives him away. That is why the guide will sometimes persist in taking you past a certain spot—he knows a fish is "using" there.

The sea rods and forty pound lines of the heavy tackle brigade are unnecessarily heavy and crude. On the other hand, don't believe all the light tackle cranks tell you about how easy it is to land a muskie on a light bass rod and a ten pound line. True, you hear of many muskies being landed on light tackle, but they never tell of the frequently smashed rods and lost fish. You never know when you will connect with a thirty or forty pounder, and a forty pound muskie is a steam engine for strength and, while his facial angle indicates that he is a microcephalic idiot and he has a sloping brow, similar to that of the would-be hero of Verdun, don't underrate him—he is a tricky fighter.

If we were asked for advice we would say let the rod be a heavy caster, say of five foot length and weighing six ounces or a trifle more in bamboo, and eight ounces in steel. Such a rod would be suitable for casting a heavy lure and for trolling. Casting a five ounce sucker on a light rod is abusing the rod, and a fairly stiff rod is necessary for trolling—it is almost impossible to set the hook in the tough mouth of a muskie with much line out and with a "whippy" rod.

A good muskie line is a hard braided silk casting line, testing from eighteen to twenty-two pounds. This is plenty strong enough if you will be careful to test off the last foot occasionally while casting. It is a good plan to use a metal leader to prevent the sharp teeth of the muskie cutting the line.

Bass size lures are large enough for muskie fishing. Spoons the size of a Pumpkin Corners constable's badge and feather duster flies are not necessary to catch big fish. Spoons from numbers four to seven are the most popular with the old timers. The larger sizes are for roilly water and rough weather. The red and red and white wooden "minnies" are also well liked.

The best natural muskie bait is the black sucker, while large shiners, chubs, fallfish, frogs, and even yellow perch are often successful. Some anglers refuse to use live bait—they seem to forget that while a muskie doesn't know anything about "scientific angling" he knows what he likes!

THRILLS GALORE FOR FEW PEOPLE AT MOTOR RACES

Dangerous Collision, but Pilots Escape; Eyelash Finish Also.

BY SHEPPARD BUTLER.

The smallest crowd ever gathered at the Chicago speedway turned out yesterday afternoon for what, from the standpoint of thrills, were the best motor races ever staged there. Somewhere between 2,000 and 2,500 people were scattered thinly about the huge inclosure, and they gave their chief attention and interest to megaphoned announcements of the Sox-Giants game, with only incidental glances at the stunts being staged on the oval.

These latter including a hair raising finale, in which five cars crossed the finish line within the space of three-fifths of a second, and a spectacular spill, in which two of the racing crews narrowly escaped serious injury.

Accident in Last Race.

The accident came toward the end of the last race, which had been reduced from 100 to fifty miles, because it was getting late. As Ralph Mulford, Tom Milton, and Tom Alley entered the turn beyond the grandstand Milton's front wheel hooked into the back of Mulford's car, slewing Milton across the track and into Alley's machine. Mulford plunged ahead, but the other cars skidded wildly, tore out a long section of the track barrier, and came to a frantic halt.

By some miracle their occupants came up smiling—with hardly a scratch. Pete Henderson and his Roamer, thrown out of the first two races by mechanical trouble, was rewarded for his persistence by winning this event in 28:30:56, an average of 105.2 miles an hour. Mulford, the only other driver to finish, took second in a Frontenac.

Mulford Wins in Last Lap.

In the preceding race, also at fifty miles, Mulford nosed his way to victory in the last lap, overtaking Alley and Milton, who had been in front from the start, by a magnificent burst of speed. Mulford's time was 28:18:75, or 106 miles an hour.

This was the thriller that Fred Wagner, the veteran starter, called "the greatest finish ever seen on a speedway." Mulford, Gil Anderson, Alley, Dave Lewis, and Milton, in the order named, tore across the tape so closely bunched the electric timing device nearly had a conniption fit.

Alley Takes 20 Mile Event.

Alley, in his Pan-American, won the twenty mile race handily and got a rousing cheer from the otherwise apathetic crowd for doing it, for it was the Chicago driver's first victory in any event of importance. His edging in ahead of Chevrolet and Mulford, regarded as favorites, was one of the minor sensations of the day. Alley drove the twenty miles in 11:22:10, an average of 105.5 miles an hour.

Chevrolet's much touted Frontenac came to grief toward the end of the second race with a broken connecting rod and ceased to figure in the proceedings. Of the ten entries, not more than five managed to finish in any one race.

Cup Goes to Mulford.

Under the bookkeeping system of points agreed upon, Mulford took the Grand Prix cup and the lion's share of the prize money with his first place in one of the fifty mile races, second in the other, and third in the twenty mile event. Henderson ran second in the final reckoning, Alley third, Gil Anderson fourth, Lewis fifth, and Chevrolet and Milton were tied for sixth money.

No astonishing speed was made and no records broken. Several false starts delayed the program, but when the racers did get under way they staged what, with a regular crowd, would have been a stirring matinée.

At the last minute another series of races was announced for 3 o'clock this afternoon, open to any of the drivers who appeared yesterday. There will be five short contests, ranging in length from ten to fifty miles. One will be a handicap affair.

"GRID" LEAGUERS OPEN PLAY TODAY

The Chicago Football league will inaugurate its season this afternoon when twelve of the sixteen clubs swing into action. The Opals and the Tornadoes, both home clubs, will not play their regularly scheduled games. The Opals were booked to meet the Cornell A. C., but they were unable to get the Cicero park, their future home grounds, where the Sweitzer cup series is being staged. The schedule follows:

Vincennes vs. Hamlin Hanks, Forty-eighth and Lawrence; Racine Cardinals vs. Mohawks, Albany and Lake; Oakland Autos vs. Thorns, Pullman soccer field; Britt-Midways vs. Standards, Sixty-first and Racine; Evanstons vs. U. S. Ball Bearing, Cragin park; Iroquois vs. Igorotes, De Paul field; Stayms vs. Opals, Fifty-second and Adams; Horlicks vs. Tornadoes, Seventy-ninth and Woodlawn.

Howe, Grid Star, Second Lieutenant.

Heyne Howe, for three years a member of the champion Oak Park High school football team and for three years center at Michigan, has obtained his commission as second lieutenant in the field artillery and left last week for Plattsburg.

X-Country Run Nov. 29.

Sinai Social center will hold its fourth annual championship A. A. F. cross country run on Thanksgiving day, Nov. 29. Entries close Nov. 27 with Morris Berk at 4622 Grand boulevard.

HYDE PARKERS KEEP LEAD IN SCHOOL SOCCER

Harrison, with Only Ten Men in Lineup, Beaten, 3 to 1.

Hyde Park heavyweights kept the lead in the southern section of the Chicago High School Soccer league, defeating Harrison, 3 to 1, at Jackson park. Boeling of Hyde Park wrenched a knee and had to be carried from the field. Friend headed the ball into his own goal. Crane and LeGoff played well for Hyde Park, Spatny and Friend doing excellent defensive work for the losers. Lineup:

Hyde Park [3].		Harrison [1].

GOLF

WILLIAM BETHERIDGE clinched the championship at North Shore by defeating A. Hedrick, 2 and 1, in the thirty-six hole final. In class A A. J. Hicks defeated O. T. Reeves, 4 and 3. Results in the first round for the Gallie cup were: L. A. Bowman defeated E. L. Angle, 1 up; O. T. Reeves defeated A. J. Hicks, 4 and 3; W. Betheridge defeated J. D. Roth, 1 up. Betheridge and L. A. Bowman tied at 68 in the handicap, the former winning, 1 up, when they matched cards.

North Shore.

William Betheridge clinched the championship at North Shore by defeating A. Hedrick, 2 and 1, in the thiryt-six hole final. In Class A A. J. Hicks defeated O. T. Reeves, 4 and 3. Results in the first round for the Gallie cup were: L. A. Bowman defeated E. L. Angle, 1 up; O. T. Reeves defeated A. J. Hicks, 4 and 3; W. Betheridge defeated J. D. Roth, 1 up. Betheridge and L. A. Bowman tied at 68 in the handicap, the former winning, 1 up, when they matched cards.

Skokie.

The only event at Skokie was the first match round for the W. M. Hoyt cup. G. Ridgeway defeated G. W. Ristine Jr., 3 and 2, while P. Soulé triumphed over C. d'Aix, 5 and 3. F. W. Hill won from L. C. Mowry by default, while L. M. Allen won a similar victory over J. R. Bradstreet.

Westmoreland.

R. J. Nichols won the sweepstakes event at Westmoreland by registering a card of 91—16—75. F. A. Vickers with 94—13—81 tied with F. Burnaby, who had 93—12—81. In the blind bogey F. C. Rolland, who had 101—18—83, was first; R. L. Walcott, with 102—18—84, second; H. B. Oakley, 97—15—82, tied with N. C. Naylor, who had 100—18—82, for third place.

VERNON A. BIGGS won the Glen Oak championship by defeating C. T. Ripley, 2 and 1, at thirty-six holes. The Harvest Home handicap netted Sunday dinners for three players. J. F. South Shore.

A two ball sweepstakes was the only event at South Shore, and first honors went to F. T. Hamlin, who finished 5 up against bogey. J. F. Sheehy, with 2 up, was tied with J. H. McCabe, who held a similar margin.

Edgewater.

R. A. Maginnis defeated A. J. Kasper by 1 up in nineteen holes in the semi-finals of the club championship at Edgewater. The match between R. R. Moore and H. A. Lundahl was postponed. In the second flight V. Wyman defeated J. S. Holmes by 4 and 3, while E. M. Kerwin won from C. Ross by 3 and 2 in the third division. W. C. Miller and F. L. Macomber, with cards of 92—13—79, tied in the handicap event.

Glen Oak.

Vernon A. Biggs won the Glen Oak championship by defeating C. T. Ripley, 2 and 1, at thirty-six holes. The Harvest Home handicap netted Sunday dinners for three players. J. F. Wayman with a card of 100—31—69 won a turkey, V. A. Biggs with 82—9—73 secured a goose, and H. R. Foster with 98—23—75 took home a chicken.

Hinsdale.

In the first round for the Directors' cup at Hinsdale, G. D. Ostrum defeated H. E. Skinner, 2 and 1; N. G. Symonds defeated J. F. Johnson, 4 and 3; R. S. Hyney defeated H. M. Cox, 5 and 3, and the duel between S. S. Jackson and R. G. Maxwell was postponed.

Pittsburgh Pros Defeat Chick Evans and Sawyer

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 13.—Charles E. [Chick] Evans, national amateur and open golf champion of the United States, and D. E. [Ned] Sawyer, national champion runner up, were defeated in a thirty-six hole best-ball match play by Peter O'Hara and Charles Rowe, professionals of Pittsburgh clubs, 1 up. Hundreds of fans saw the match, staged for the benefit of the Pittsburgh chapter of the American Red Cross.

Buy Before the Boom
Motor Car Prices Sure to Advance

Buy your Saxon "Six" now and you buy at the bottom of a market that's going up shortly. Wait and you'll pay for it.

$935 is probably the lowest price at which Saxon "Six" will be sold for a long time.

We can prove to you—or you can prove to yourself—that there is no car costing $200 or $300 more than Saxon "Six" that will match it in fine-car quality.

For instance, one of Saxon "Six's" important features — Fedders radiator — is also found on 8 cars selling for more than $3,000. Saxon "Six" costs $935.

Again, another of the important features of Saxon "Six"—Timken axles—is also found on seven cars selling for more than $1,700.

And there are 8 other of the big features of Saxon "Six," such as Timken bearings, Timken axles, Continental motor, Stromberg carburetor, Remy ignition, Fedders radiator, Spiral Bevel gear, found on 30 cars selling for more than $1,150.

These being facts, it is obviously not the best of business judgment to purchase any "four" priced between $800 and $1,000 when Saxon "Six" can be purchased at $935 f. o. b. Detroit. Buy now!

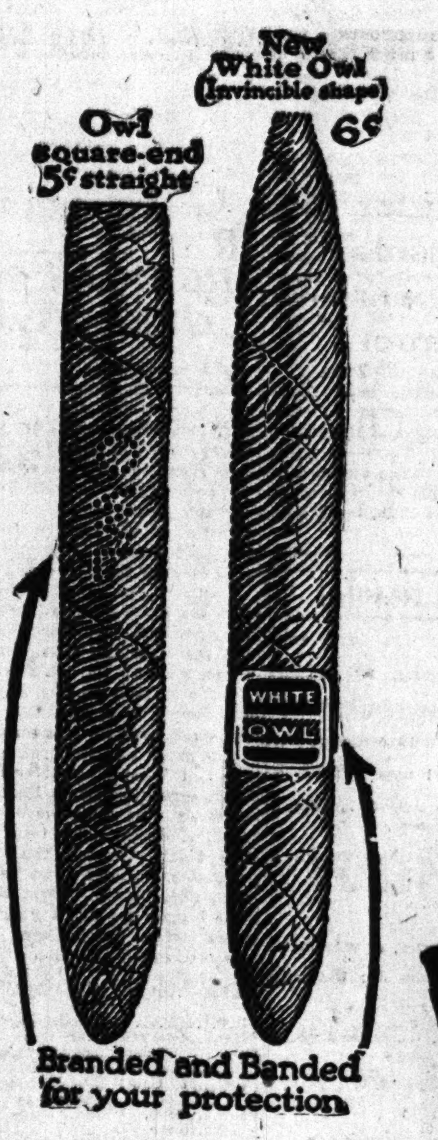
"DEPENDABILITY"
--OWL'S answer to the oft-repeated question
"What's in a name?"



Owl square-end 5¢ straight
New White Owl (invincible shape) 6¢
WHITE OWL
Branded and Banded for your protection

Probably tne greatest common quality to all well-known, trade-marked articles is—Dependability. The superiority you find once you expect to find always.

These articles mean something to you not merely because they are good but because they are always good.

For many years the makers of OWL and WHITE OWL worked over that greatest of all problems in cigar-making—the production of dependable cigars.

Only a few years back did we find the answer. It was, "Keep constantly on hand at least One Million Dollar's worth of tobacco so that every leaf which goes into an OWL Cigar will be thoroughly aged." Since that time the average age of all leaf going into OWL Cigars has been 18 months. That makes them time-ripe, even-burning, uniformly mellow.

Thus Dependability came "for good" to OWL Cigars. And this Dependability is linked unbreakably with the OWL name.

As a final mark of our service to smokers, we brought out WHITE OWL—a brother to the long-favored OWL 5c Cigar. WHITE OWL, being larger and more expensive to make is priced at 6c.

But both have the same fine smoking qualities. And (this is important) both carry the OWL name—for your protection.

Air-in

"The coat with lungs"

AT LAST!-SOMETHING NEW IN A RAINCOAT

AIR-IN, "the Coat with Lungs," is a raincoat with a brand new idea. First of all, it's a real raincoat—it will keep you dry and comfortable in a down-pour. But an AIR-IN doesn't look like a raincoat, because it's made to look well when the sun is shining. In appearance an AIR-IN resembles a smart, snappy top-coat—it has the fabric look. Ten feet away it looks like a stylish top coat, because it is made in a variety of fashionable fabrics and in the newest styles.

THE REAL RAIN-OR-SHINE COAT

IT'S VENTILATED! ▼ IT'S REALLY RAINPROOF!

The First Big Feature

The special AIR-IN construction makes it a ventilated raincoat. Under the plait in the back of every AIR-IN are a series of vents or openings which open or close as the wearer moves or walks. Inside these vents are thin folds of perforated rubber sheeting which let in the air but keep out the rain. The expulsion of heated air and the admission of fresh air through these vents keep the body temperature even and normal. The wearer of an AIR-IN will never experience any uncomfortable perspiration under the arms or around the neck and shoulders or that feeling of "stuffiness" that some raincoats give.

The Second Big Feature

An AIR-IN is really rainproof—not just shower proof. Between the outer fabric and the inner lining there is a thin film of rubber which makes an AIR-IN absolutely waterproof. You are sure to keep warm and dry in an AIR-IN because all seams are double sealed with cement and everlaid with tape.

You will get a world of wear from an AIR-IN because it doesn't look like a raincoat. There are several popular models ranging from the newest belted trench coat to staider styles for the more conservative.

PAVING CHARGES MAY GO DIRECT TO THE CITY COUNCIL

Trial of Efficiency Staff May Be Dispensed With.

Charges made by Joseph J. Elias, deposed member of the board of local improvements, that the board sanctioned various irregularities in paving matters were not discussed at yesterday's meeting of the city council committee on finance.

It was learned after the session that a plan is afoot to have Mr. Elias make his charges direct to the council. In the event that this is done, the finance committee will have authority to go into them.

Faherty Is Represented.

M. J. Faherty, president of the board, was represented before the committee. Edward J. Glackin, secretary of the board; C. D. Hill, chief engineer, and William H. Blencoe, a member, represented the president. They conferred with Ald. Capitain and Lipps, members of the committee, regarding charges against the committee's efficiency staff.

The charges against the efficiency staff were the result of a former paving scandal. Ira O. Baker, a professor at the University of Illinois, conducted an inquiry into paving matters about a year ago. Mr. Faherty afterward filed charges against the efficiency staff because it dwelt on conclusions reached by the professor.

Efficiency Case Postponed.

The efficiency staff was to have been placed on trial tomorrow before the civil service commission. While no definite announcement was made yesterday, it was learned that it had been agreed that the trial would be postponed. It may be canceled by the withdrawal of the charges.

F. H. Cenfield, assistant chief of the bureau, told the conferees that the staff was not responsible for the conclusions reached by Prof. Baker.

BOISTEROUS

That's What Mrs. Susan Richards Said Earl Was, and in Addition He Stayed Away from Home at Night, She Declares. She Wants a Divorce.

CARL C. RICHARDS, decorating contractor, was sued for divorce yesterday by Susan Richards, 4521 Magnolia avenue. She says he was cruel, boisterous, and that he remained away from home at night.

Irma Holinque charges Ferdinand F. Holinque, part owner of the French hand laundry, at 2163 North Clark street, with gross neglect. She adds that he sips frequently from malt liquor filled glasses, and that he missed many an evening meal "when business didn't interfere, either."

Mildred H. Burden avers that James was "too much of a kid to be a good hubby."

William H. Stryker alleges Lillian was fond of the "bright lights."

Wright Webb charges Helen with desertion.

Emma Peck accuses Theodore A. Peck of desertion. She asserts he has an income of $5,000 a year.

Petition for Co-Receiver for 'Katy' Road Is Denied

URGES 6 MONTHS' CLOSURE OF N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE

Nation Facing Catastrophe, Says Samuel Untermyer.

New York, Oct. 13.—[Special.]—The closing of the stock exchange and the declaring of a moratroium for a period of six months were suggested by Samuel Untermyer today as a means of correcting the depreciation of securities.

"For years," he said, "I have preached to deaf ears that the stock exchange be placed under government supervision and that short selling be stopped. The far reaching power of these men and their allies in the banking world has stifled the voice of reason and caution until we have been driven to the verge of the worst financial catastrophe the country has even known. If some drastic step is not instantly taken we shall go over the precipice.

"Perhaps the wisest and most effective action would be to close the exchange and declare a moratorium for six months of all stock exchange transactions and all loans by members on stock exchange collateral.

"The country experienced no great discomfort when the exchange was last closed. The governing committee would never have taken that action but for the fact that the members were then in peril. They were saved thereby.

"Now the public is in peril, and the power must be lodged somewhere else than in the members to determine this question of surpassing importance."

$13,000 U. S. Fees Ordered Paid.

Federal Judge Carpenter yesterday ordered the Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver for the Graham & Sons bank, to pay $13,000 in fees to Richard Campbell, United States naturalization commissioner. The fees had been deposited in the Graham bank.

RAILROADS USING CITY PROPERTY TO BE MADE TO PAY

Railroads using city property without compensation are about to be ousted or made to pay for its use.

Chester E. Cleveland, first assistant corporation counsel, asked the city council committee on finance yesterday for authority to readjust salaries paid the law department's attorneys so that a special lawyer could be retained to bring custer proceedings against the offending railroads.

Mr. Cleveland said the railroads laid tracks on streets and other city property without any authority, and that proceedings ought to result in several thousands of dollars being paid to the city.

The new Packard Touring Car, seven passengers

'How long will it last?

The staying power of the Marathon runner signifies something more than mighty thews and sinews.

The economy of effort, which carries him mile after mile, springs from the soundness of his body-machine. He knows how to use the force which good health and careful preparation have given him.

It is fundamental soundness of design that creates in the Twin Six motor its smooth flow of driving energy with positive economy of gasoline—and gives to the Packard car a long and speedy and healthy life.

Initial cost is not the great factor in your year-by-year and mile-by-mile outlay for safe, swift and comfortable transportation.

The staying power of the car is the thing that counts—its continued efficiency, its low maintenance expense, its high market value at the end of the first or the fifth season.

One decisive test of Packard staying power is the substantial prices which used Packards uniformly command in this most unstable market.

The oldest Packard is still a going car.

G.O.P. COMMITTEE PLANS A SPECIAL CHICAGO MEETING

Session Will Be Held to Agree on Policy to Be Pursued.

The Republican national committee is getting ready for a meeting to be held, probably in Chicago, before the next session of congress begins in December. The real purpose of such an unprecedented action is not disclosed. The best available information tends to the conclusion that it will give an opportunity to the Republican national managers to agree to a policy that can be pursued during the remainder of congress, with the presidential campaign of 1920 as the main chance.

News of the projected session came almost coincidentally with the visit to Chicago of Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, who was recognized as one of the Republican leaders of high degree in the national convention that nominated Mr. Hughes last year. Senator Smoot had some inside conferences with certain Chicagoans, important in the financial and political world, at the Chicago club. It is believed that the suggestion that the national political situation, with the presidency in 1920 as the big consideration, was discussed in some of these conferences, and discussed favorably.

Vacancy Is Technical Excuse.

A technical excuse for a special meeting of the national committee is found in the vacancy of sergeant at arms of the committee caused by the recent death of William F. Stone of Baltimore, for many years the man who attended to most of the national convention preliminaries and was in charge of the party headquarters during four year intervals between campaigns. There is to be no real fight over his successor, it is understood, in view of an understanding that seems to be extant, that Col. E. P. Thayer of Indianapolis, who was Col. Stone's first assistant in three national conventions, is to have no opposition for Col. Stone's vacancy.

The reports that have been brought in by returning members of congress and men who are interested in national politics agree that the Republican party men are becoming anxious over the 1918 congressional prospects and are somewhat worried with respect to the next national campaign.

The public position of substantially all of the Republican governors, as evidenced by the speeches of Gov. Lowden of Illinois and Gov. Whitman of New York, has been of unqualified support of the administration in its war policies. The Republicans in congress, as a whole, have voted regularly with President Wilson.

The Republican congressmen are returning to their home districts, however, to find Democratic postmasters and federal appointees, and Democrats in general are preparing to put up candidates against the sitting Republicans on the platform that President Wilson must be given a vote of confidence by the election of a lot of new Democratic members of the house of representatives. The same idea is being carefully cultivated in Illinois in particular, and in other states that have United States senators to elect in 1918.

Oh! Look Who's Here!

Moreover, the Republican national politicians have come to the realization that Col. Roosevelt is now to be considered as a full-fledged candidate for the Republican nomination for president in 1920, and that his Rockford speech to the Camp Grant national army men, in which he directly criticised the supply department of the army and the national administration, by close inference, really marked the beginning of the colonel's campaign.

All reports from the inside suggest that the old guard is no stronger for T. R. now than it has been at any time. "We had a h—l of a time walloping him in 1912. In 1916 he was easy. In 1920 it will be a pushover," is the way one of the ablest among Republican national convention regulars expressed it in Chicago yesterday.

T. R. a Minnesota Issue.

The recent showdown in Minnesota over the election of a national committeeman that was won by Senator Frank B. Kellogg by a majority of one vote in the Minnesota state committee now turns out to have been a straightaway Roosevelt and anti-Roosevelt fight, and Senator Kellogg, Col. Roosevelt's close friend, won.

One of the duties of a special national committee session, it is suggested, would be to fill the Minnesota vacancy. There is no doubt, however, regardless of the Roosevelt or anti-Roosevelt sentiment within the national committee, that the Minnesota committee's recommendation will be followed and that Senator Kellogg will be elected. This is understood to be a fast and binding precedent within the national committee, that the state committee's choice must be recognized.

The real basis for the movement for a special session of the national committee seems to be a determination among the men who will be held responsible for the conduct of the 1920 presidential contest that the party shall not be double crossed politically, with peace always an imminent possibility, while control of the next congress and the presidency for four years are directly at stake.

COUNCIL READY TO O. K. LIBRARY BOARD SLATE

Assurance Mayor Can't Name Chief Halts Opposition.

Chicago has reasonable assurance that the new city librarian will be selected from the best available material in the whole country.

As stated in yesterday's TRIBUNE, Mayor Thompson has no power to appoint the librarian, that power being vested alone in the trustees of the library. This was the city law department's opinion yesterday to the mayor.

The opinion said that the new librarian could be selected only by a civil service examination. It cited various laws and amendments to show that if there had been a plan to turn the library over to a spoilsman politician, by making an appointment outside of civil service, the plan could be laid on the table, as the trustees of the library are bound by the same laws to select a librarian by the merit rule route.

To Act on Trustees.

Two weeks ago the mayor appointed eight trustees. The city council will pass on these at tomorrow's meeting. THE TRIBUNE polled the appointees awaiting confirmation and found a majority of them saying they favored selecting the librarian by civil service method.

Henry E. Legler, who was librarian from 1909 until his death recently, was chosen by civil service. The examination for this, which was open to librarians in the entire United States, was unique, inasmuch as only one question was asked in the examination. This was:

"What would you do if you were librarian of the City of Chicago?"

Opposition Is Removed.

The law department's opinion is expected to cause the aldermen to act more favorably toward the mayor's appointees than they would have otherwise done, now that the position has been removed from the spoils system.

The opinion was prepared by Assistant Corporation Counsel H. C. Foster and was approved by Corporation Counsel Samuel A. Ettelson.

Stockholder Seeks Order to Scan Company's Books

Jesse F. Goldberg yesterday filed a petition in the Superior court for an order compelling the Reckitt corporation, a roofing supply concern, to permit him to examine its books and records. Mr. Goldberg states that until Jan. 1 last he was vice president and general manager of the company, but he severed his connection because Sol. H. Goldberg, president, and Ernest Reckitt, secretary, were "attempting to manipulate the affairs of the company to further their own interests."

Service School for Women to Open in Washington

A new national service school for women is to be opened March 1 in Washington, according to a letter received yesterday by friends of Dr. Effie Lobdell, who is a prominent member of the medical women's military reserve of the women's section of the Navy league, now known as the Women's Naval Service, Inc. The government has given land and buildings for the purpose.

Smart People choose the Owen Magnetic

They are the sort of people who have a town house on the Drive and a place in Lake Forest—whose names are among Grand Opera Guarantors and box holders. Such men and women are connoisseurs.

The Owen Magnetic means to these discriminating patrons the quintessence of motoring.

It brings a delightfully different sensation—a relief from the tension of usual motor motion.

It means no more gear shifting, no more throwing out of clutch, and no more grinding—but a smooth, quiet, floating sensation—wholly inconceivable until experienced.

No longer are there the jerks and jars, common with ordinary cars. For power of "a thousand speeds" is transmitted from the engine to the wheels through an air cushion.

Like Magic

At the touch of a finger the speed is diminished or increased from standing still to 60 miles per hour. So also is the Magnetic Brake controlled.

One rolls over the roads, the car clinging to earth. Shut your eyes and it is like a journey in your favorite easy chair.

Most of the time one is "coasting," often up grade. Never a jerk nor a lunge. And no noise.

All this means remarkable economy of gas and tires, too.

For the Elect

This Aristocrat of cars, like rare jewels or paintings, does not come in bulk. So only a fortunate few may be accommodated from month to month. Prices from $4100 up.

Upon appointment, an Owen Magnetic will be at your door, to take you on the most remarkable and enjoyable ride you've ever had.

Not until you actually "feel" this car can you appreciate—as do Chicago owners—this great triumph of engineering. As you sit next the driver, and note the new simplicity, you can't resist taking the wheel yourself. Then comes an unforgetable experience.

A luxurious Owen Magnetic will be at your door at the appointed hour if you telephone Calumet 4712.

IN your anticipation of the delights of the approaching Opera Season let the same reasons that govern your selection of the reservations you are now making also govern your selection of the motor car you will use to carry you to the theatre.

Driving the Woods Dual Power is automobiling without worry or fear

PICTURE your present high-grade motor car giving you the same speed, mileage and power results without a clutch pedal, without a foot brake, without an emergency brake, without change gear lever, without spark control—this is the Woods Dual Power.

Recall your worry when driving through traffic—the frequent and laborious going through the gears—the occasional use of the starter as the motor stalls—the constant labor of working clutch, brake, gear lever, spark control at once—and imagine what motoring would be without all this trouble—this is Woods Dual Power

Consider the satisfaction of getting into your car—turning on the switch—setting your hand control—releasing one pedal and starting away—with no more worry—with every range of speed under the control of the one pedal with a power plant that cannot stall—this is Woods Dual Power.

Realize what it would mean to take the trips you are now taking—but as easily, as free from effort or worry as though you were sitting in your library and the road were passing by you—this is riding in Woods Dual Power.

Already Chicago, New York, Philadelphia, Los Angeles—all the big metropolitan centers—have accepted Woods Dual Power as the final achievement in real motor car usefulness and safety.

See the car—ride in it—drive it—you have a new conception of motoring in store for you.

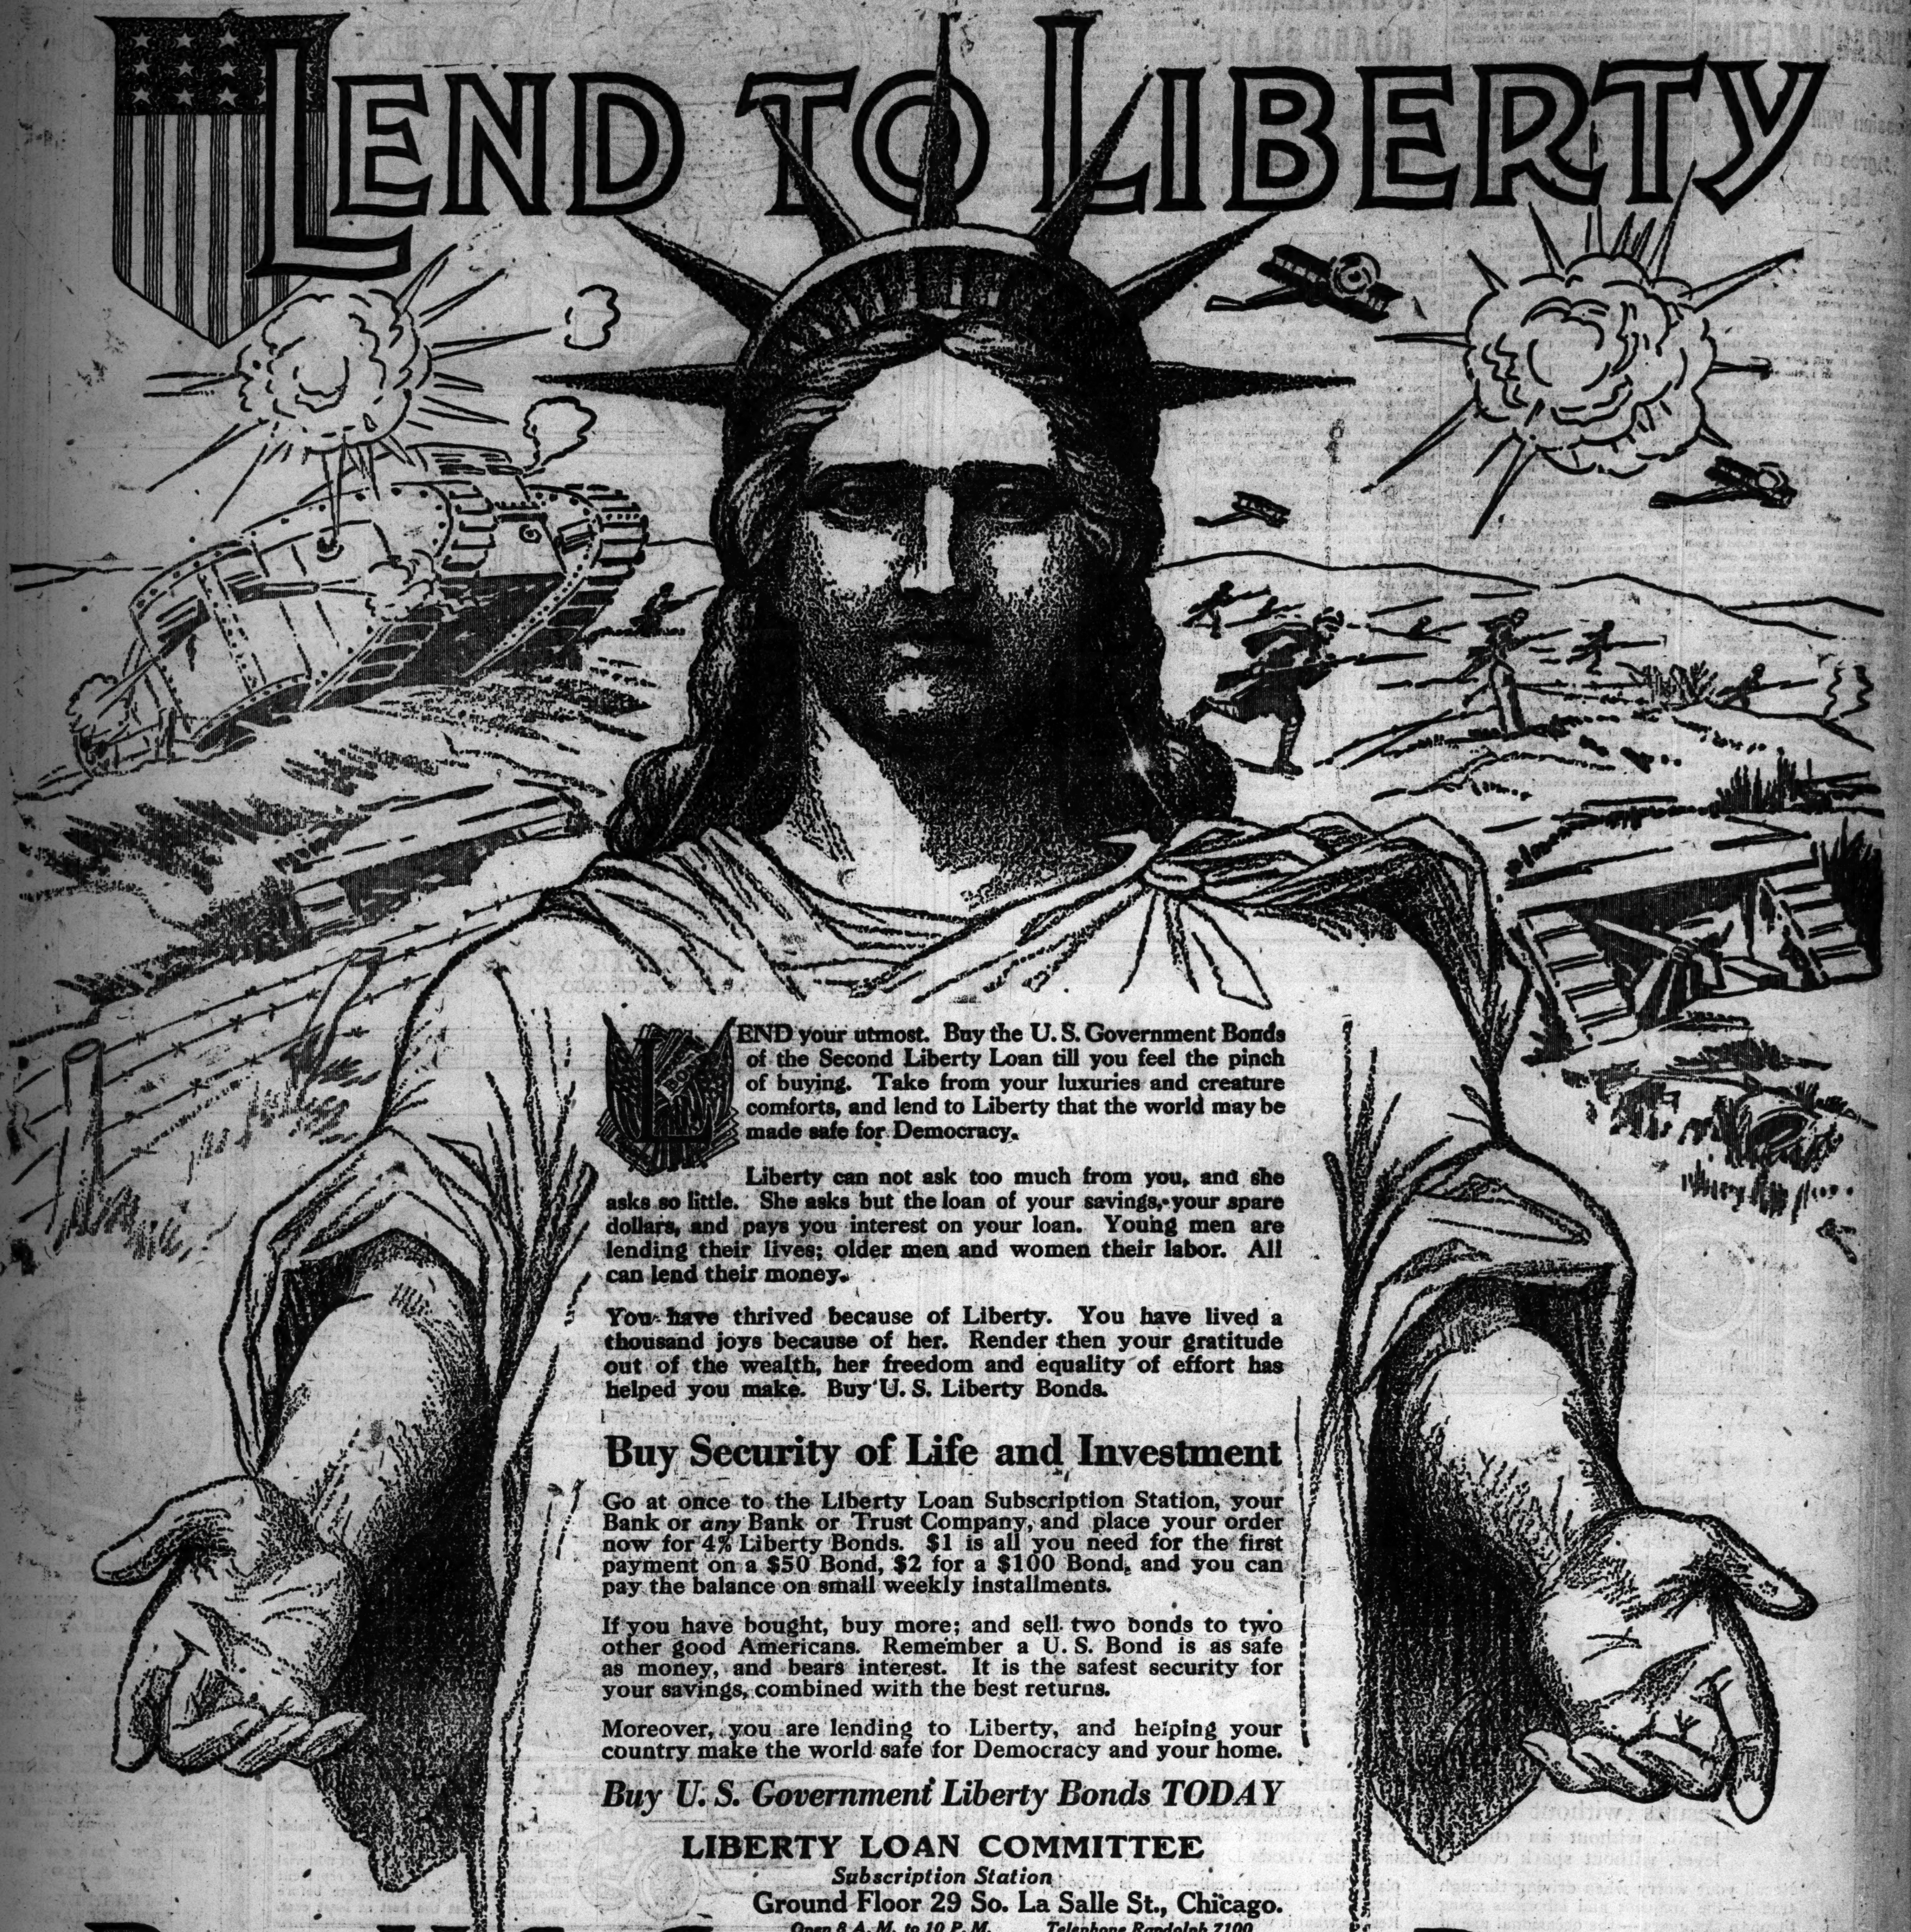
LEND TO LIBERTY



LEND your utmost. Buy the U. S. Government Bonds of the Second Liberty Loan till you feel the pinch of buying. Take from your luxuries and creature comforts, and lend to Liberty that the world may be made safe for Democracy.

Liberty can not ask too much from you, and she asks so little. She asks but the loan of your savings, your spare dollars, and pays you interest on your loan. Young men are lending their lives; older men and women their labor. All can lend their money.

You have thrived because of Liberty. You have lived a thousand joys because of her. Render then your gratitude out of the wealth, her freedom and equality of effort has helped you make. Buy U. S. Liberty Bonds.

Buy Security of Life and Investment

Go at once to the Liberty Loan Subscription Station, your Bank or any Bank or Trust Company, and place your order now for 4% Liberty Bonds. $1 is all you need for the first payment on a $50 Bond, $2 for a $100 Bond, and you can pay the balance on small weekly installments.

If you have bought, buy more; and sell two bonds to two other good Americans. Remember a U. S. Bond is as safe as money, and bears interest. It is the safest security for your savings, combined with the best returns.

Moreover, you are lending to Liberty, and helping your country make the world safe for Democracy and your home.

PRETTY SOFT! PRETTY SOFT!—Everywhere they go in England and France the American soldiers are objects of adoration by the femininity. Above is a party of United States regulars in conversation with a couple of girls in a London street.

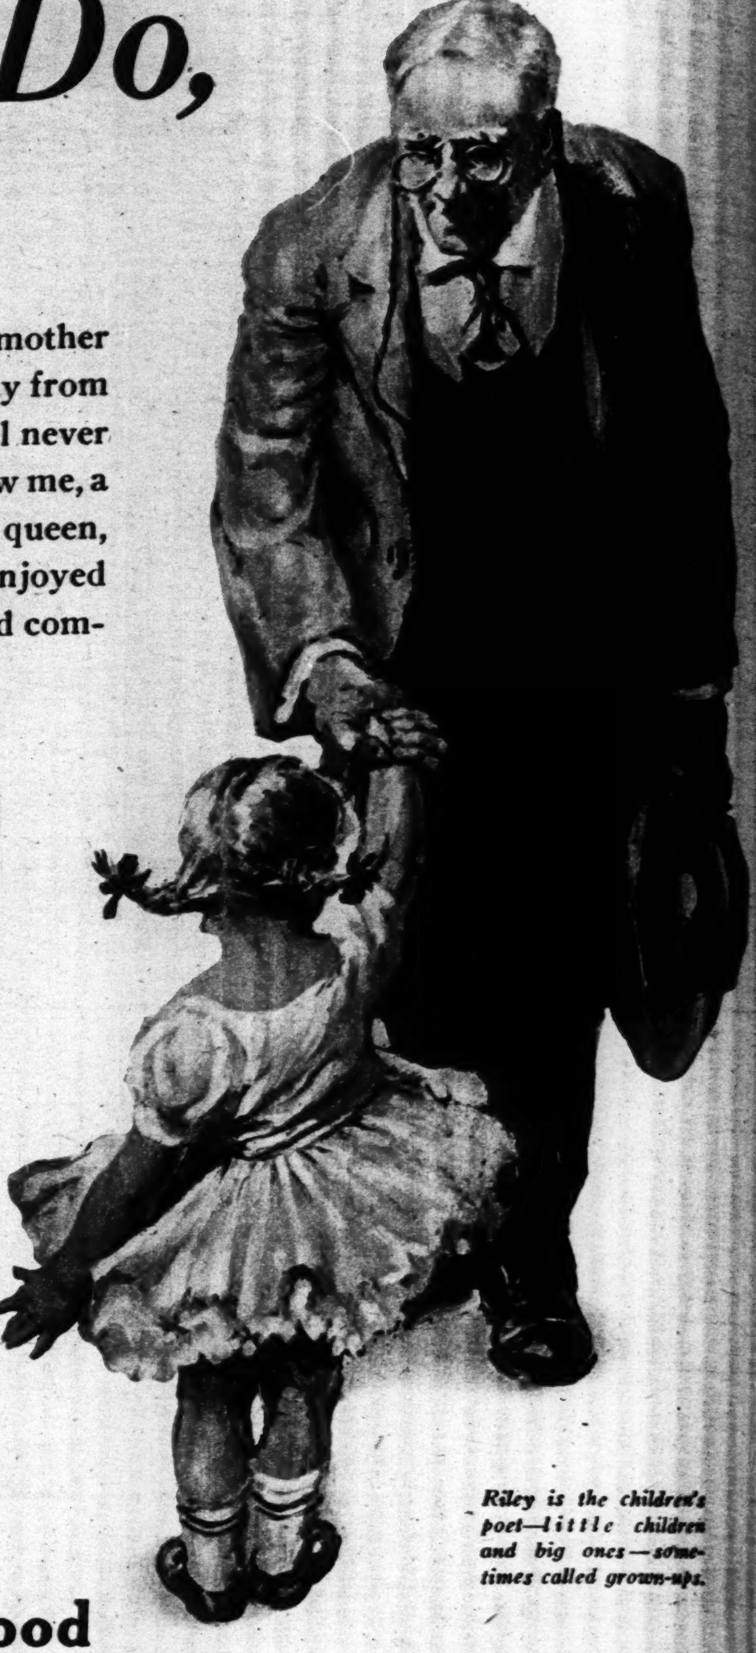
"How Do You Do, Mr. Riley?"



Riley is the children's poet—little children and big ones—sometimes called grown-ups.

"'Onct when I was ist a little girl'—only four years old—mother and I were down town and I saw you not far away. I broke away from mother, ran up to you and said, 'How do you do, Mr. Riley?' I shall never forget the wonderful smile on your face when you turned and saw me, a tiny little tot. You bowed and spoke to me as though I were a queen, and when I told you I knew 'most all of your child rhymes and enjoyed them very much you were as pleased as if some man of letters had complimented you. That, Mr. Riley, is one of my finest memories."

Are you giving your children the precious memories of those beautiful poems? Will your children be able to say, "My mother read me Riley when I was a child, and the 'Raggedy Man' and 'Little Orphant Annie' have rejoiced and comforted me all the days of my life."

James Whitcomb RILEY

has passed on—and the grown-up world mourns. In the hearts of the little children is a void that cannot be filled—but that can be forgotten by the reading and re-reading of those simple and childlike poems.

No more does Uncle Sam's postman stagger under the weight of 10,000 letters—the tribute of the children of the world to their Uncle Sidney (James Whitcomb Riley) on his birthday. Riley has passed on, but his work lives. You can read it to your children—and enrich their lives and yours for all times.

The Lost Opportunities of Childhood

Those of us who missed things in childhood—missed learning to ride or to swim—feel that there is a lack that can never be made up. Even more is this so with things of the spirit. The child whose imagination has been enriched by the beauty and charm of Riley carries a treasure to old age—a treasure hard to get later on.

As for you—the mother of children—are you ever weary or worried or overburdened? Riley will lift your burdens and your worries. He will bring you peace and understanding—just as he brings it to the little children. For to him we were all but children.

Your children will be joyful—you yourself will be happier—your home will be more serene with the poems and the prose of James Whitcomb Riley.

From the little girl who said she felt all alone without him, to the President of the United States, who pays him tribute, Riley is in all hearts—big and little.

His Heirs Desire Only a Small Royalty

The heirs of James Whitcomb Riley came to us, as the publishers of Mark Twain, and said that they would be glad to reduce their royalty so that we could place the works of James Whitcomb Riley in the homes of all those who love him. So we are able to make this complete set of all Riley's works at a very low price—for the present.

James Whitcomb Riley dealt with stories of every day—things in all our lives. There is in all his work no bitter word. He is sweetness and lightness—a drink of fresh water to the thirsty and weary.

And his prose alone would have made him famous. Mark Twain declared the "Old Soldier's Story" the best story ever told. This and all his other stories and essays are included in this edition.

If the books are not full of joy and inspiration for you and your children, send them back at our expense. If they are all you expected, you pay for them in little monthly payments that you will never notice. It costs you nothing—puts you under no obligation. Send the coupon only—no money.

The generosity of the Riley heirs and the resources of Harper & Brothers give you a rare opportunity. Don't miss it.

JULIA SANDERSON is a favorite with almost everybody who has seen her in musical comedy. Pretty safe to prophesy that her picture debut, "The Runaway," will be successful.

The right grind for Percolator Coffee

Percolator Coffee

Use a heaping dessertspoonful of Yuban clean-cut ground to each cup of cold water. Pour the water into the percolator, then place the coffee in the regular filter or basket. Let the water percolate over and through the coffee five or ten minutes, depending upon the temperature of stove or gas heat. With electric percolator take fifteen to eighteen minutes.

The new grind for Yuban was determined after careful test and experiment. It is exactly the right size for percolator coffee.

The coffee bean is made up of little cells like a honey comb. It is the breaking up of these cells that brings out the flavor and strength of the bean. It is most important, therefore, that coffee should be correctly ground.

No other coffee but Yuban ever goes into the large grinders in which Yuban is ground, so there is no chance for the flavor and aroma of Yuban to be impaired by other coffees.

Yuban is also packaged in pulverized form for those who prefer the French or drip method; and in the whole bean for those who prefer to grind the bean as they use it.

The minute you taste Yuban you realize why its success as a private coffee was duplicated the moment it was offered the public. Try percolating Yuban by the method recommended by Arbuckle Bros. You will be delighted with the full flavor and the bright, clear liquor.

You are invited to have a cup of Yuban at the Chicago Home Exposition, at the Exposition Building. Be sure to see the attractive Yuban booth, get a free copy of "Lessons in Coffee Making by the World's Greatest Coffee Merchants" and taste the flavor of Chicago's favorite coffee.

AMELITA GALLI-CURCI is the coloratura soprano who made a sensational emergence with the Chicago Opera on Nov. 18, 1916. Mr. Donaghey, "The Tribune's" music critic, in the issue of Nov. 19 described her as the world's greatest bravura singer in a generation.

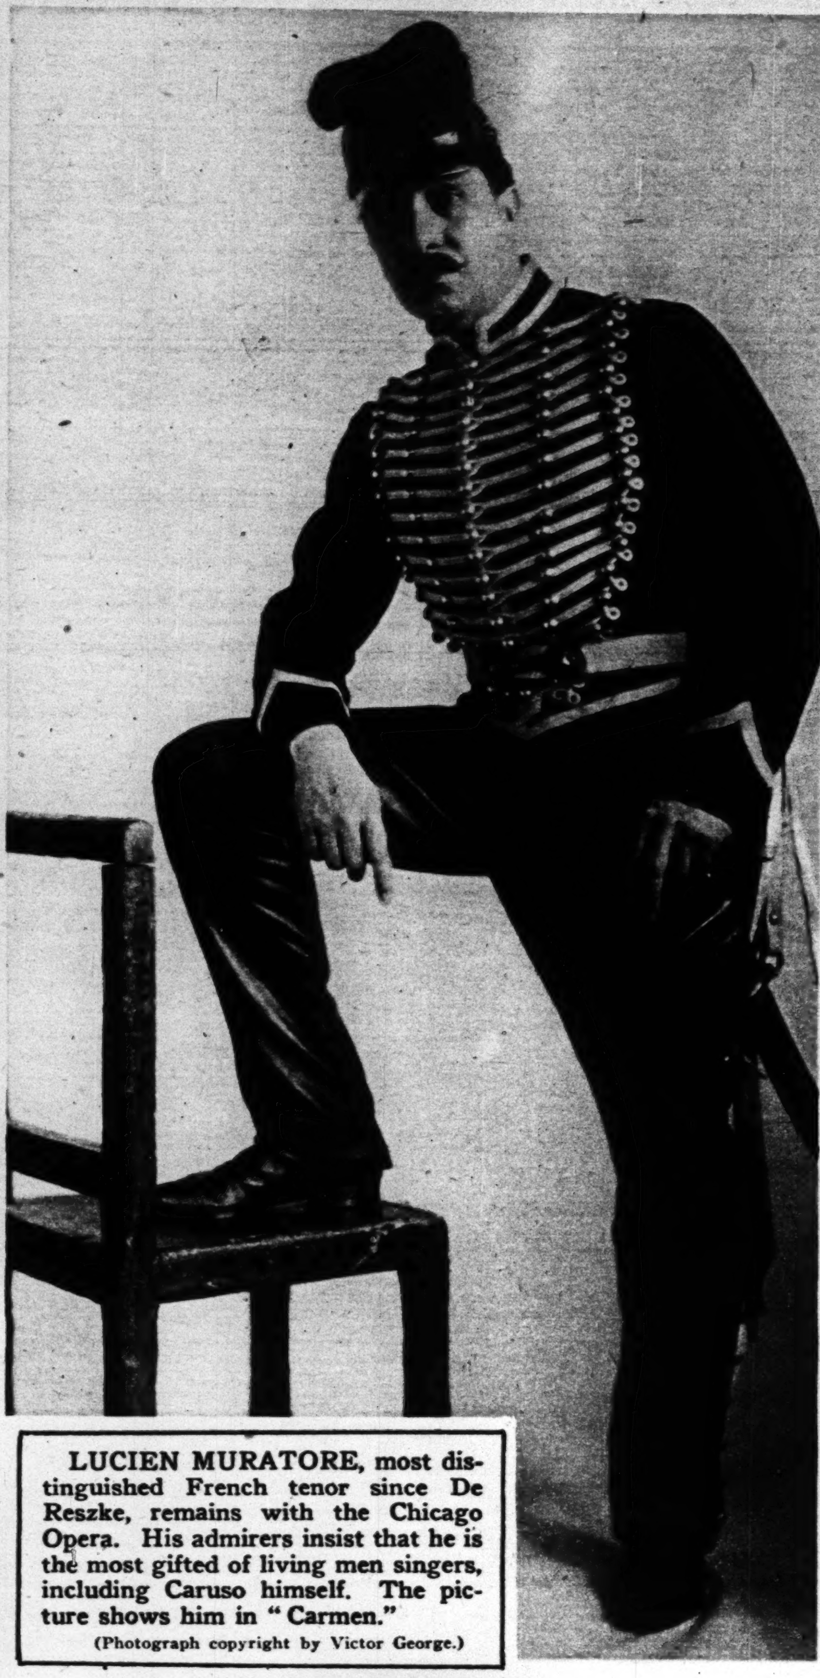
MARTHE CHENAL makes her American debut this season with the Chicago Opera in what are known as "Mary Garden parts." She is from Paris, where her renown as a beauty is high.



LUCIEN MURATORE, most distinguished French tenor since De Reszke, remains with the Chicago Opera. His admirers insist that he is the most gifted of living men singers, including Caruso himself. The picture shows him in "Carmen."

You can make your skin what you would love to have it

WHATEVER condition is keeping your skin from being attractive it can be changed. Every day, as old skin dies, new skin forms in its place. This is your opportunity. Your complexion depends on how you take care of the new skin.

Is your skin sallow—colorless?

Then try this treatment tonight. Dip a cloth in warm water and hold it to the face until the skin is softened and damp. Now take a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap and go over your face with the cake itself just as a man does with a shaving stick. Then dip your hands in warm water and with the tips of your fingers work up a lather from the soap left on your face. Rub this cleansing, antiseptic lather thoroughly but gently into the pores of your skin, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse thoroughly with warm water, then with cold. If possible, rub your face for a few minutes with a piece of ice.

The first time you use this treatment you will see the difference it is going to make in your skin. Use it regularly and your complexion cannot help taking on that permanent clearness, freshness and charm which the steady use of Woodbury's always brings. A 25c cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap is sufficient for a month or six weeks of this treatment.

Write today for a week's-size cake

Send 4c and we will send you a miniature edition of the large Woodbury Book, "A Skin You Love to Touch," giving all of the Woodbury treatments, and a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap large enough for a week of any Woodbury treatment. GERMAN SUBMARINE STRANDED ON THE FRENCH COAST—The two pictures shown herewith are of the same boat, taken at different times, the top one at the time the U-boat first was beached, and the other a few days after the waves had pounded the hulk in two. The submersible went ashore near Calais. Before abandoning it, the Germans set a fuse to blow it up, so that it would not be of use to the allies.

A Menace

City pavements blamed for many ailments

Within the experience of us all the sidewalk has changed from a soft to a hard one.

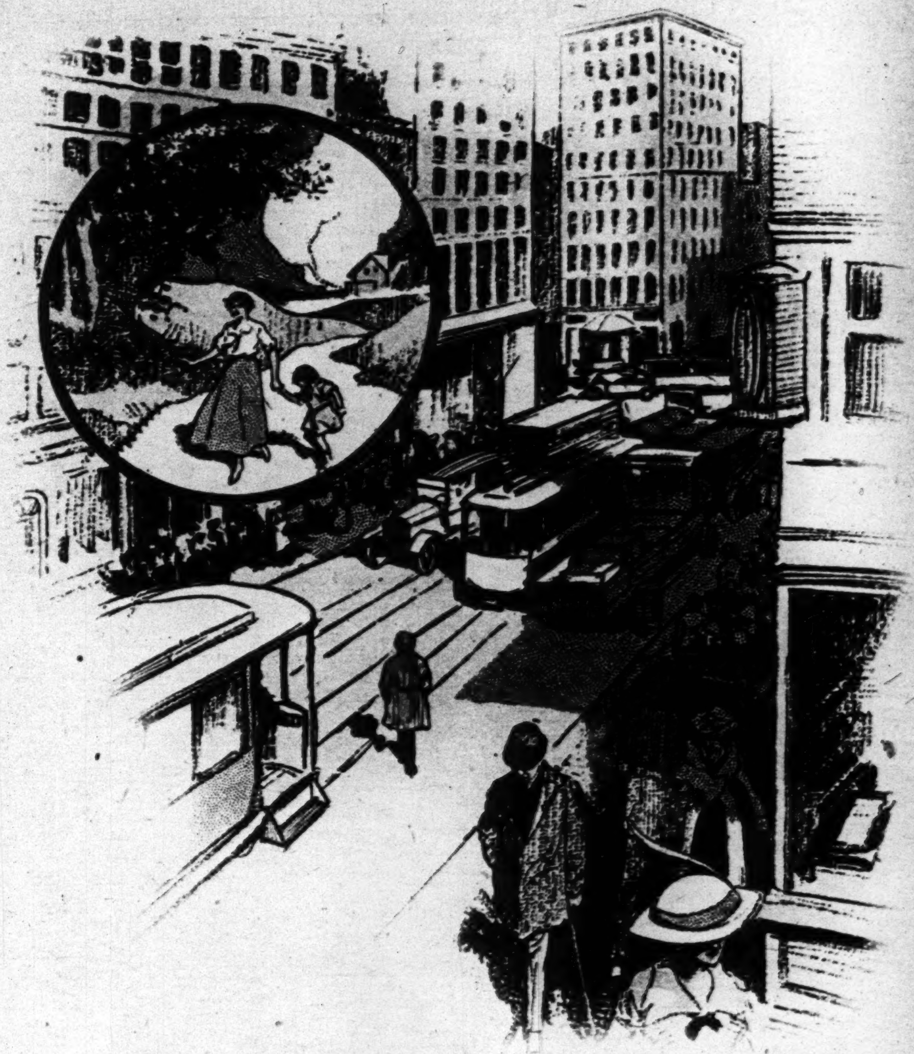
Hard pavements have greatly improved our traffic conditions, but they have proved a serious menace to health and efficiency.

The records of the Hospital for the Crippled in New York show that in the year 1890, just before the advent of stony streets, Arch Trouble claimed 2.6 per cent of the new patients treated. In 1906 the percentage had risen to 18.3, and in 1914 to over 30 per cent.

Save your health

You cannot have the streets unpaved, the sidewalks turned to turf—but you can protect yourself from the pounding jars that shatter nerves and break down health.

O'Sullivan's Heels act as easy, springy cushions between your heels and hardwood floors and pavements. O'Sullivanize your step. Put the spring of these little shock-absorbers under your feet, and walk with the vigorous stride that goes with real success.



When you buy your new shoes, buy them O'Sullivanized. Good shoe dealers now sell latest style shoes with O'Sullivan Heels already attached.

In black, white or tan; for men, women and children. Insist on O'Sullivan's—avoid the disappointment of substitutes.

SCENES OF THE RUSSIAN RETREAT—The idea of freedom after the revolution was too great for the Russian soldiers to comprehend. Abandoning their arms, they fled in wild and disordered retreat, creating some of the most shameful scenes in history. In the top picture a typical instance was snapped, showing soldiers scurrying to cover upon hearing that the German cavalry had broken through the lines. The center and lower pictures show respectively a retreat unconducted, and an orderly retreat under the protection of British artillery.

"More Corns Than Ever But They Do Not Stay"

The Story That Millions Tell

This is not a way to prevent corns.

That would mean no dainty slippers, no close-fitting shoes. And that would be worse than corns.

Our plea is to end corns as soon as they appear. Do it in a gentle, scientific way. Do it easily, quickly, completely, by applying a Blue-jay plaster.

Modern footwear creates more corns than ever. But have you noted how few people ever evidence a corn?

The chief reason lies in Blue-jay. It is ending millions of corns each month. Instantly, for every user it puts a quietus on corns.

The procedure is this: Attach a Blue-jay at the first sign of a corn. It will never pain again. Let it remain two days and the corn will disappear.

Occasionally, an old, tough corn needs a second application. But that's an easy matter, and the corn is sure to go.

This is the modern method. Old, harsh, mussy methods are long out-of-date. Paring, of course, is useless.

Here a gently-acting wax is centered on the corn alone. The corn is protected in the meantime, and the wrapping fits like a glove.

It's the expert way of dealing with a corn, and every one should employ it.

Try it tonight. Note the results on a single corn. In a few hours you will know that corns are needless. Never again will you pare or pad them, or treat them in old-time ways. And never again will you let a corn spoil an hour of joy.

B&B BLUE-JAY Corn Plasters

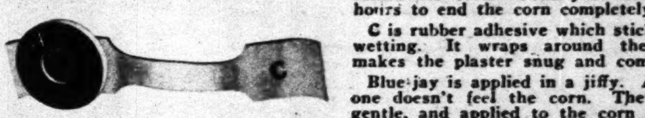
Stop Pain Instantly
End Corns Completely

25c Packages at Druggists

How Blue-Jay Acts



A is a thin, soft pad which stops the pain by relieving the pressure.

B is the B&B wax, which gently undermines the corn. Usually it takes only 48 hours to end the corn completely.

C is rubber adhesive which sticks without wetting. It wraps around the toe and makes the plaster snug and comfortable.

Blue-jay is applied in a jiffy. After that, one doesn't feel the corn. The action is gentle, and applied to the corn alone. So the corn disappears without soreness.

Our Fall Showing Is Now Ready

DURING the past year, the reception that Chicago motorists have accorded Franklin Cars has been unprecedented. Sales have more than doubled over last year. More than that, there has been an increase in demand right through the summer and in the face of war conditions.

Chicago people who are determined to apply Thrift to their motoring, the same as to their other daily activities, can now learn how the Franklin Car, through Franklin scientific light weight, direct-air cooling, flexible construction, efficient free-moving mechanism, has consistently held to a course that has brought it to its present unique position in motoring circles.

You have probably noticed: That whenever a man takes up the question of making his motoring less expensive and more productive, he is steering straight for Franklin Principles, and toward the car which makes gasoline go farthest, tires last longest, depreciation charges less, and usefulness the greatest.

This is as true of Franklin enclosed cars as of the open models, and to the average car owner this condition is entirely new. But it is the Franklin owner who has proved once and for all the adaptability of Franklin enclosed cars to these self-reliant times—because Franklin enclosed cars are practical producers.

What makes Franklin enclosed cars such all around cars, active on the road, stylish on the boulevard, easy to run and economical at all times—are other points brought out by an inspection of the cars themselves.

See the car that has been accepted as the Car of Thrift, the Car of Efficiency—the one car that incorporates fineness with the extravagance left out.

"Please, Dear"—Esther's Auntie Said— "Send Our Angel Child to Bed VURR' Early This Evening
"And for Pity's Sake Stop Shrieking!" Exclaimed Auntie. Crossly Speaking, It's a Pity If ONE Night We Cant Get You Out of Sight! You're SO Spoiled, Esther!"
"Ho!" Said Esther As She Lay, "I'll Make Auntie Rue This Day! P'raps She Thinks That I Dont Know She Expects Her Soldier Beau This Evening!"
Out of Bed Esther Crept While the Household Thought She Slept O So Softly Through the House She Crept Like a Wee, Wee Mouse!
Round the Parlor She Did Hover Listening While Her Auntie's Lover Plead—"O Please My Life Dont Mar Marry Me, Ere to the War I Go!"
"Well, I Will, O Roger Dear" Auntie Said—Then—"Hark, I Hear Something That Sounds Like a Giggle, And I Saw the Curtains Wiggle!!"
Angel Child Withdrew a Pace
And She Hid Behind a Vase 'Cause She Thought It Would Be Wise Not To Let Her Auntie's Eyes Rest on Her— Just Then!
TING A LING A LING LING A LING A LING TING A LING A LING
Then As She The Stairs Did Climb Going Softly All the Time Suddenly She Heard Something Ting-a-Ling-a-Ling-a-Ling Rang the Phone in Auntie's Room
Esther Answered— "Yes." She Said—
"I'm Miss Starring —And I'll Wed
Roger Dear Before He Goes To the War— Yes. I Suppose In a Day Or So!"
Next Day the Phone Rang All Day Auntie's Friends All Called to Say How Glad They Were to Hear She Would Marry Roger Dear!—(And Auntie Had Wanted To Keep It Secret)
Of Course Then the Tale Came Out Esther Had Told Folks About The Wedding!

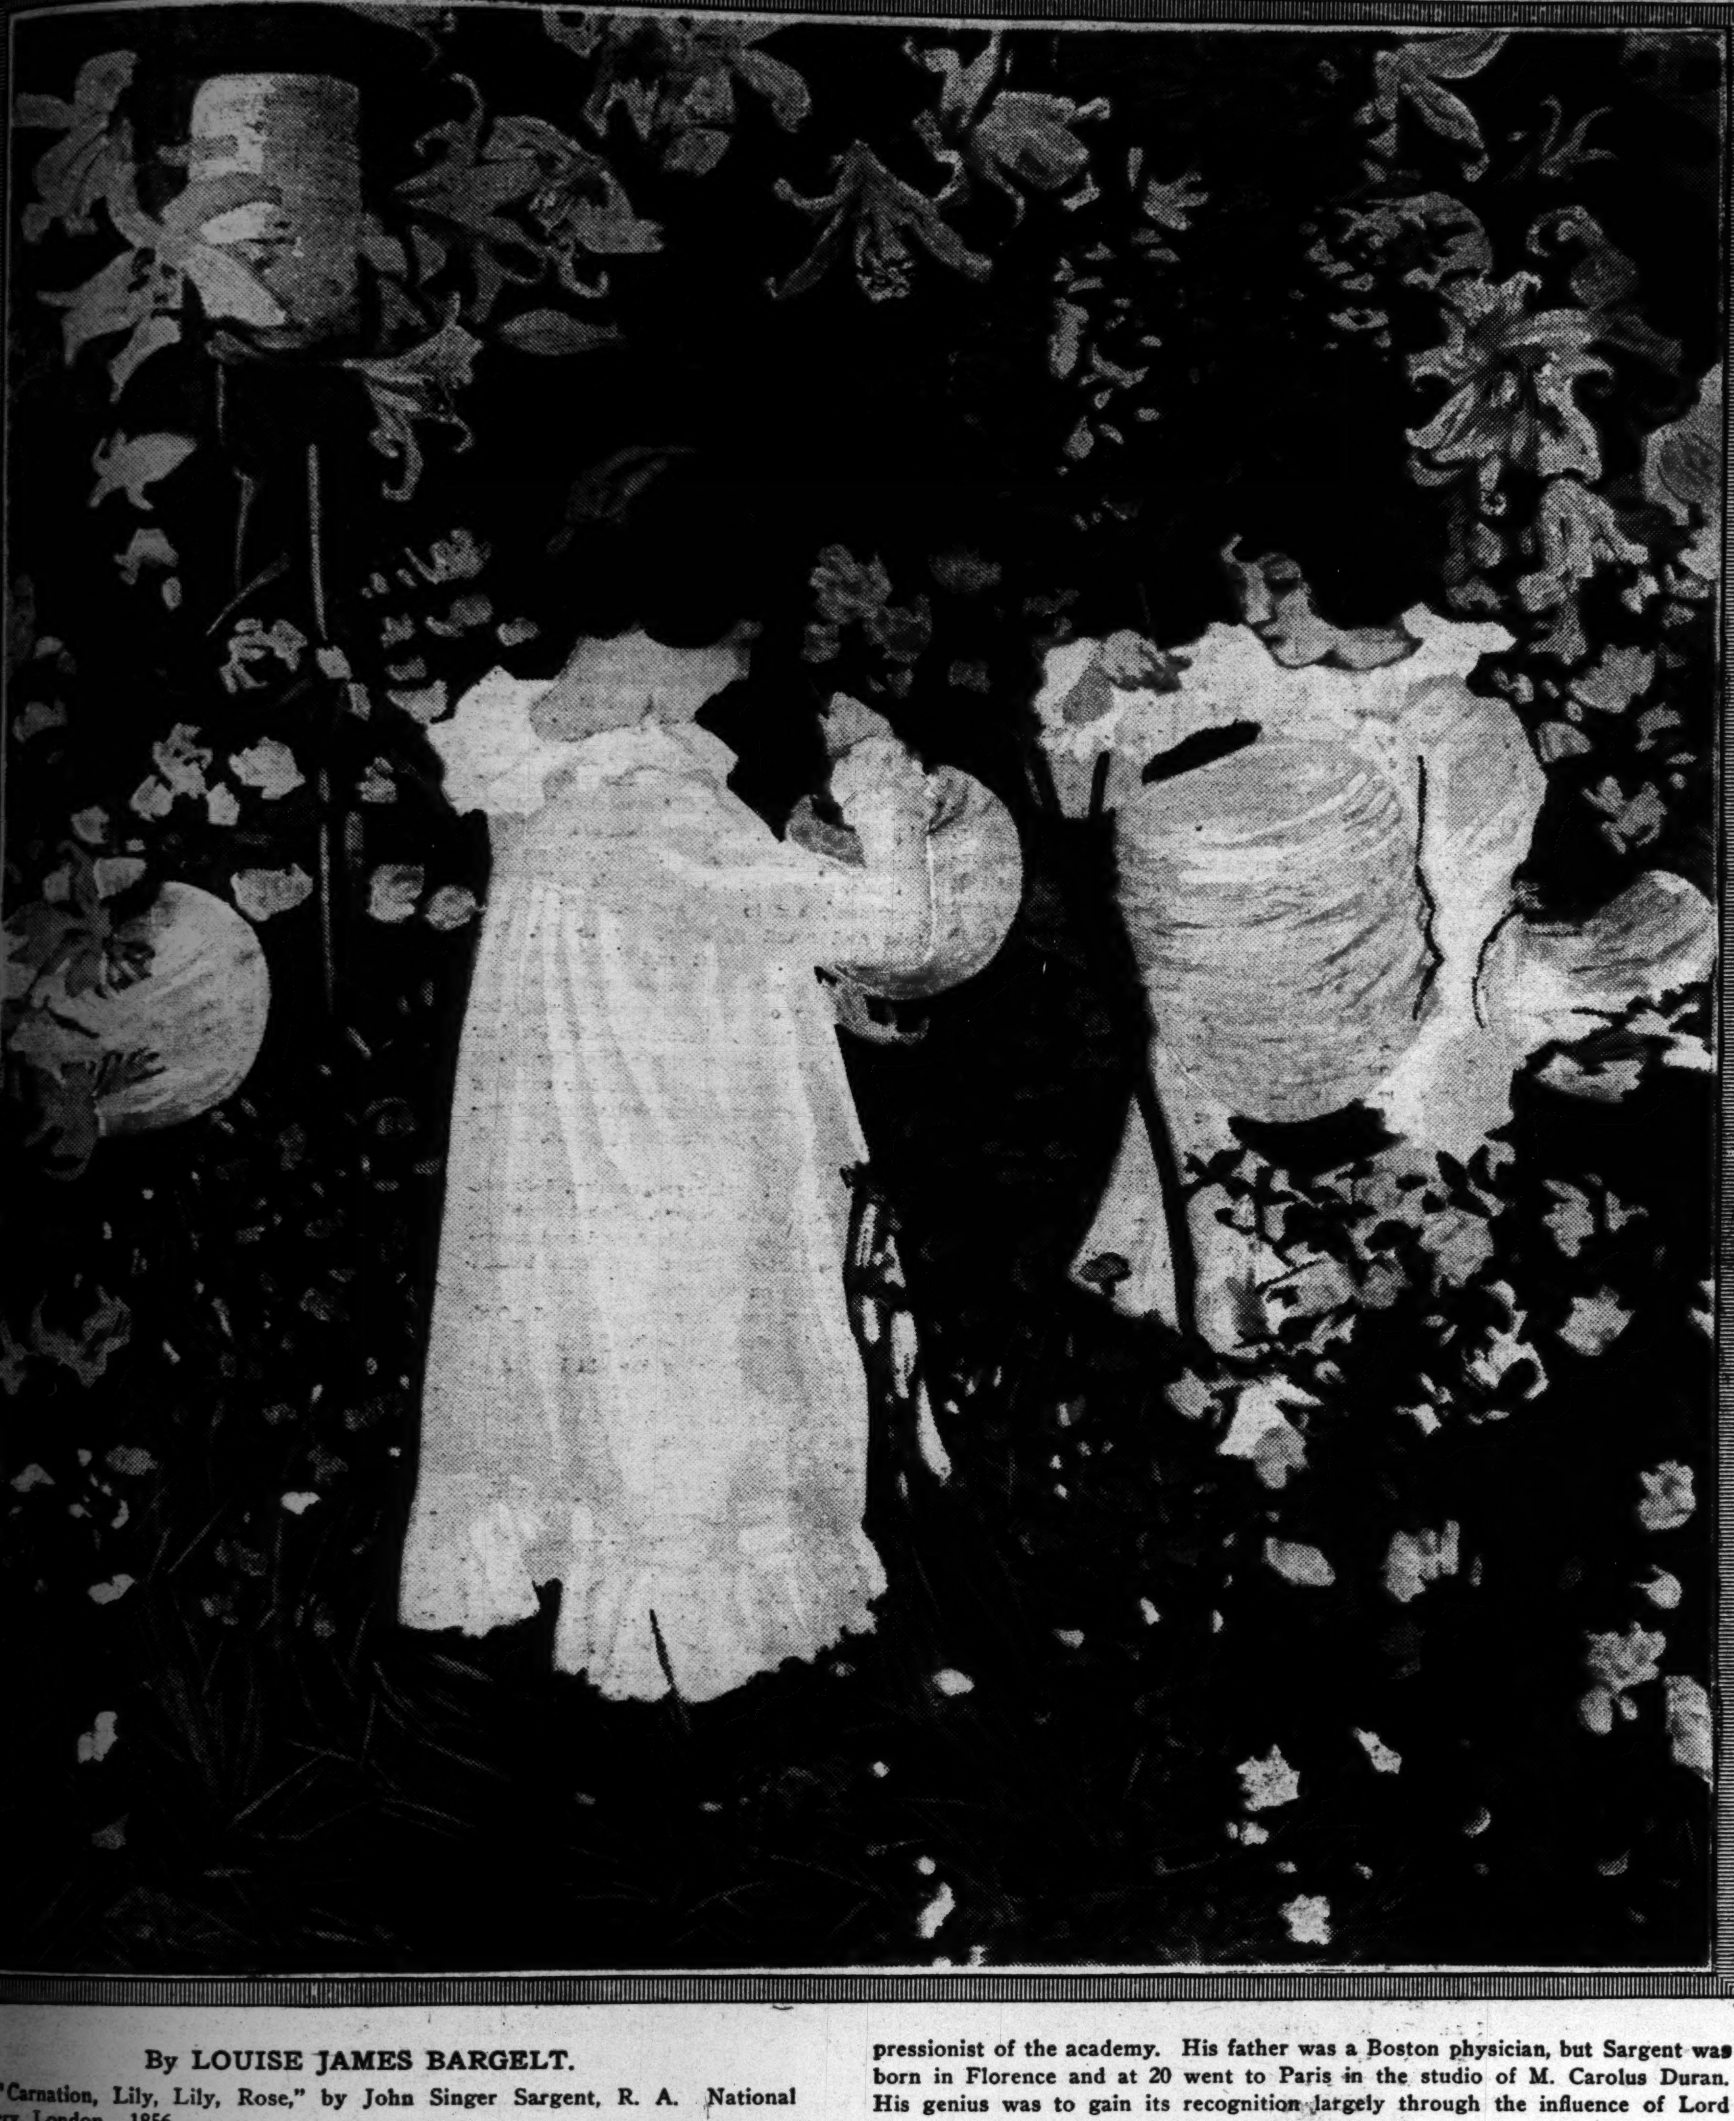
FICTION

Carnation Lily, Lily Rose by Sargent



By LOUISE JAMES BARGELT.

"Carnation, Lily, Lily, Rose," by John Singer Sargent, R. A. National Gallery, London. 1856.

HERE Mr. Sargent has delicately portrayed the conflict of lights between the dying day and the illuminated lanterns, and its effect on the differently colored flowers—carnation, lily, lily, rose. This effect alone, truthfully done, is a supremely difficult task. He achieved it, accomplishing a technical success, and then went further, painting a picture which, bizarre in subject and audaciously treated, is still beautiful as a picture.

The scene is laid in an English garden in the little midland village of Broadway. Two graceful maidens, standing among the flowers, have just lit up the Japanese lanterns, and over the picture is a subtle mingling of fact and fancy which renders the picture freshly charming.

Sargent's children always have been vastly successful. He understands their unspoiled naturalness and places them in delightful surroundings. He has been called the most brilliant of all the Franco-American artists and the leading impressionist of the academy. His father was a Boston physician, but Sargent was born in Florence and at 20 went to Paris in the studio of M. Carolus Duran. His genius was to gain its recognition largely through the influence of Lord Leighton and was finally confirmed by this picture, exhibited at the academy in 1887 and bought for the Chantrey collection.

Henry James is responsible for pigeon-holing Sargent under the head of impressionist. They may be those who protest against this classification, but approving or not, they must admit his impressions are always interesting, direct, and vivid.

For the most part he has exhibited portraits, many of them women. This picture is probably one of his works most pleasing to the general public, but his "Carmencita" and his "Gypsy Dance" rank as his masterpieces. Sargent's character renditions could never be said to be profound, though he is often shrewdly diagnostic. He does not care apparently to penetrate the inner soul nor does he borrow any sympathy. The temperaments he reveals are positive, dynamic, emphatic; pulsing with life and with vitality.

Another famous painting will be reproduced next Sunday.

Who Would Have Thought It?

Jact Lait, the American Balzac of the Big City, has joined the staff of The Chicago Tribune. His has been the most remarkable rise in the literary world in the last decade. Beginning with his play, "Help Wanted," which had long runs in all metropolises of the country and is still on the road, he next set the critical world of this country and England to talking over his collection of short stories, "Beef, Iron, and Wine." He has been called the one and only successor to O. Henry, the Human X-Ray, because of his deep insight into nooks and corners of our big cities, and they will be written in that fascinating, human style which characterizes all of the author's work. Look for Jack Lait's stories every week in The Chicago Sunday Tribune.

NOW and anon the eye stops roving over the accustomed faces and shapes and habiliments in the parade of the perennial mob, and halts, held by the barbed individualities of one different human unit—a "type." The hyperbole of acknowledgment for the distinctiveness of one who thus—like a white elephant in Bombay or a modest woman in a musical success—bites into the eye that feeds on the sight, is the thought: "Just like in a book—how strange!"

This asseverates two truths: first, there is none so weird that some fictioneer has not already anticipated, in writing, every unique detail; second, all the combined imaginations of all the egg-eyed, exotic, erratic, fanatical, hysterical, paranoic, periscopic or alcoholic romancers never created one "character" any per cent human that could not be found in fleshly fact. Of the innumerable freaks born of woman, or charged to her, therefore, fiction never made one and never missed one.

The foregoing findings may legitimatize the description hereinafter to be submitted of Miss Lucy Lee.

And we must withhold that description for a paragraph or two, not by command of the statute of dramatic suspense, but to account for the use of her name.

Lucy was a spinster. Therefore, by the bylaws of the Authors and Playwrights' union, she should have been named Deborah Higgins or Aramantha Scruggs or Sarah Simpkins. If a brother insist on making a spinster of Lucy, the rules prescribe he must at least claim the name to be a contraction of Lucinda. In this revolutionary instance, however, we record that it was a contraction of Lucille, which is even more euphonious than Lucy.

The cause of this secession is a passion for realism. Observation in metropolitan life has disclosed that the significant names so handily handed out by imaginative writers do not apply; aforesaid observation has revealed a pickpocket named Harold, a slugger named Milton, a chorus girl named Mary, six honest brats' mother named Trixie, a football captain named Jacob, and a taxi-driver named Waldo. If these be true, and they are only too true, a spinster may and shall be named Lucy Lee.

Lucy was 38, a Presbyterian, a prude, a trained nurse, probably female. She was no bachelor girl, no suffragette, no new woman—she was an old-fashioned old maid and an old woman.

She was so skinny that she clattered when she walked fast. She was tall and she was somewhat stooped. Her face seemed to have only two dimensions—length and thinness. Her lips were lines, her eyes were slits, her chin was an acute angle.

She was a whale of a nurse because she was methodical, efficient, technical, punctual, dependable, unemotional, noiseless (except for an occasional creaking of an oilless elbow or a rattle of dried ribs), pitifully neat, punctiliously pinless, patient as a jackass, and impersonal as appendicitis. Surgeons fought for her services. That lovable myth about the healing magic of the soft and womanly hand is not subscribed in the materia medica. Anyway, for unconscious patients she was a champion. And to the wives of convalescing husbands she was sureshot comfort.

She had learned her trade with ghastly accuracy. She knew the logarithmic formulae of first aid and last resort, and she could read a biography, a diagnosis, and a prophecy on the cylindrical cyclorama of a 90 cent thermometer. She pored over German works on therapeutics, Swedish theses on dietetics, British brochures on hygienics, technological dissertations on anaesthetics, and clinical round-robins on antiseptics. For frivolous diversion in her leisure hours she scanned statistical tables epitomizing the progress of science against hereditary disease in the far east, or knitted skimpy socks for the coast artillery.

It was said that Lucy had several thousand dollars saved and secreted in a disused cocoa-butter jar locked in a safety vault downtown. She never went to a theater, she had no known weaknesses. Candy she abjured, flowers gave her hay fever, clothes were comprehended in her uniform, and her only jewel was consistency.

Lucy was attached to a hospital. Hospital attachments are steady and regular. Lucy had been of this hospital for more years than any other nurse and she antedated all the internes and many of the physicians. She had seen hundreds of nurses come, flicker, and depart; and of these none other had so violently irritated her as did Susie Fuller, the latest arrival.

Susie was a newly graduated tyro who knew nothing and who never would know anything of the highly specialized and intensively trained, not to say semi-holy vocation of nursing.

She looked like the nurses in moving pictures—too pretty and all wrong technically. She had taken up nursing because her selection in novels had convinced her that it was so romantic. She had been engaged four times, had been suspended from class three times, and hadn't understood a lecture once.

She had pranced into the hospital out of a young millionaire's roadster and had made her first "case" memorable by giggling in the operating room, forgetting to chart temperatures during a crisis in the patient's condition, and applying a hot-water bag to the forehead of a fever sufferer.

She was a merry sort. The gray corridors of the institution echoed to her melodious laughter, and whenever a surgeon reproved her she flirted him out of countenance.

In the nurses' home she "carried on" and whispered peppery gossip and penciled her eyebrows and chewed chicle sticks. When she perceived that her misconduct scandalized and provoked Miss Lee she "put it on thick" and informed the other girls that she would "get the old girl's goat." After that she loudly hummed ragtime or burlesqued the hulahula or said "damn" or hilariously detailed how her fat patient had tried to kiss her while she was bandaging his knee, or in other manner comported herself with well aimed view toward giving Lucy the jumps, the shivers, or the creeps.

"I've got a rich old bird with the D. T.'s," she giddily announced to the nurses assembled in the parlor. "When his right hand isn't trying to strangle cerise hyenas he's got my little right hand clutched in it, swearing he'll marry me as soon as he jiffies his jimjams"—and she crossed the room and roundly whacked Lucy Lee on her spare back—"what do you think of that, old Groucho?"

Lucy was startled half a foot from the rocker in which she sat, reading a pamphlet. She collected herself, came to her feet, turned, looked severely into the frisky eyes of Susie, and said:

"I think—I think—I—I know. I know that you are an impudent young woman, utterly unfitted for the scientific and sacred work intrusted to you, entirely without manners, apparently without even morals. And I shall thank you henceforth to address your ungrammatical, ill-chosen, inconsequential, and irreverent insolence elsewhere."

She started for the door. It had been the big speech of her whole lifetime, for never before had she been wrought to so high a pitch of feeling. She was not surprised to hear Susie speed her with a sputter of laughter; but it cut her sharply to hear the simpering snickers of the other nurses.

Lucy went to her own room, bitter and biting her lips. So—her acid face and her ungainly form and her application to business and her exclusive attendance on her own business, all of which had robbed her of all the other things that all the other women had, had not even won for her a little respect, the security of her own personal dignity!

Thereafter Lucy Lee came seldom into the parlor of the nurses' home. She denied herself thenceforth the scant recreation of rocking in a chair and seeing the other nurses fussing over their private telephone calls, putting on their best company fronts as their suitors or sweethearts came to take them walking or elsewhere, listening to their exchanges of current small talk always on the one subject—the one subject which engages most women most of the time, most nurses most of all—men.

Susie took the result in no repentant spirit. To her it was a victory. Susie's kind is not given to deep thinking. She hadn't intended to hurt the poor old thing, but if Lucy wanted to be crabby over a little wholesome pleasantry, why that was her own lookout and her own fault. Goodness—nothing had been done or said that should have brought on any such explosion of Sunday-school language and dynamite. Gracious—a nurse was a nurse, not a baby or a winged angel. The idea. Where did that old vixen get that stuff?

Word of the encounter spread through the hospital, of course. Of all establishments, not excluding a penitentiary or a secret service bureau, where every trifling incident is gadded over and kidded over and told over and over, a hospital is two laps ahead of a girls' boarding school. And not only the women carry on the glad work; the internes, the surgeons, the pill-preparers, the elevator men, the stretcher-bearers, the bookkeepers, the ward-healers, and the superintendents all lend an ear and an oar.

Susie, as one of the principals in the engagement, had to tell and retell it, wholesale and retail it, especially to Dr. Syd Chester, the youngest and handsomest of the internes, with whom she conversed the most, and who was most conspicuously interested in her conversation—also in her eyes, her nose, her ears, her lips, her giddy little figure, her cute dimples, her cunning disregard for regulations and wretched patients, her every fascinating gesture, mood, whim, or what-not.

Dr. Syd in regular progression, between raves over Susie's charms, related the story to Dr. Walt Howard, his friend and roommate, the fattest, oldest, and least looked-up-to interne on the staff.

"Can you see her?" exclaimed Syd, whacking his shapely thigh. "Can you see the little peach slapping the old blister on her scapula and slanging her? Slanging old Lee—say, that's too good. I'd have given a dollar to see it. Too good. Slapping old——"

And he slapped old Howard just where Susie had slapped old Lucy.

"You just hate that Fuller woman, don't you?" snickered Howard.

"I hate her like Rockefeller hates a hundred million. And get this: On Thursday evening—mark the date, because it's a red-letter baby—Susie and me—the little Queen of Sheba and your uncle Dudley! Do I make myself clear?"

"What?" gasped Howard. "Not—not getting married?"

"O, behave. You're too fat, too fat-headed and too bald-headed to have human understanding. Married my eye. I've never kept her still long enough or standing still long enough to ask her anything like that. But on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock we're going out together—out somewhere, to theater or taxi-riding or something. Isn't that enough? Say, I'll have to drive away eighty Johns, forty lovesick ex-patients, and twenty smitten high school cavaliers to get her out of the building. Have you any idea how popular that girl is? She's swamped with bids. Every man in this hospital—except, maybe, you—has asked her out. There isn't a night she's off that she hasn't her pick of I don't know how many men on the waiting list. And I guess sometimes she doesn't wait for a night off, at that; little she cares; I've known her to leave a pneumonia case and slip out for a joy ride. She's a bear. I'm a pretty lucky gink, I am."

Howard didn't wait long, either. As fast as he could waddle he made the rounds with his tidbit—the good looking and dashing Chester was going larking and sparking with the ingenue-vampire-comedienne-star of the nurses' brigade, Susie Fuller. And that was promptly and properly tongue-rolled and dissected and shoulder-shrugged and sent on its circumferential tour.

Susie was mildly joshed about it in the nurses' home. Dr. Syd was the Romeo of the grounds and had tinkered with the hearts of other nurses, past and present. Some of the girls jested jocundly; others had no heart in their hazing, for Dr. Syd might have asked them to go out on Thursday—and hadn't.

Susie, in the confidence of the strong, merely showed her white teeth in a supercilious smile, twinkled her dimples, and, with malice aforethought, pleaded guilty to the high impeachment of having entered into a romantic conspiracy with Dr. Syd, the same to be carried out on the forthcoming Thursday—and what were they going to do about it?

O, nothing.

But they could throw bombs and let forth the poison gas; and they did. The moment Susie's petite person had cleared the threshold her good name wasn't worth a cent.

And the expanding ripples set a-going by the splash of Susie's character as it was kerplunked into the salt sea of feminine tattle and prattle, washed to the shores of the desert isle where Lucy Lee had Crusoed herself from the world in her social retirement.

She did not snap at the harbinger of the news. In truth, she bristled with interest—outraged interest. Did the shameless little hussy have the effrontery to admit that she was going gallivanting with that silly young interne? Was she as brazen about her affairs with the staff as she was over her unprofessional goings-on with her patients? The honored estate of nursing was indeed fallen far when such flippant minxes were suffered to drag their uniforms through flagrant violations of ethics and worse.

Lucy had never been known to entertain or to engage in gossip before. But the newest topic seemed to have driven from her mind all devotion to her pet researches. The castiron expression of preoccupied concentration fled and she eavesdropped with her bony hand shelled about her better ear behind the portieres in the parlor to catch each carbolic comment.

All day Wednesday she went about her tasks with a distant look in her eyes. For the first time known to man she made an error on a Fahrenheit reading and served iodine in place of iodoform. That night she hurried to her room and locked herself in, alone.

Thursday broke sunny and clear, auguring a pleasant evening for moonlight spooning outdoors. The prepossessing Chester and the impossible Howard were asleep in their room when a knock at the door brought Howard, grumpily growling over the disturbance, out of bed. He stuck a pudgy paw through a narrow opening and received a letter from a messenger. He punched up the lights, at which Chester threw a pillow at him and thickly howled at him for heaven's sake to let a fellow sleep. But Howard had seen his own name written on the envelope—and that in chirography suspiciously feminine. Notes from women were rare in Howard's life, no matter what the hour.

So he opened and began to read. He glanced at the first line or two, gulped huskily, shot his eye to the signature, gasped, let the envelope fall stiffly from his hand, began at the top again, and read all the way through, then pivoted slowly and spoke:

"Well, of all the—I—well, I'll be gosh-whanged if this doesn't beat the Dutch!"

"What's happened now?" demanded Chester, rising resignedly on one elbow.

"Why, it's—it's a love letter."

"O, I suppose some woman is crazy enough to want to love even you—there's no end to the insane ideas some women get."

"Crazy is right. Insane is correct," mumbled Howard. "This is the limit. Listen:

"'My dear Dr. Howard:

"'If not inconveniencing you, would you please call for me at the nurses' home tonight (Thursday) at one minute to eight? I will be waiting and ready, and we will go out I will be glad to pay any expenses that may be incurred. Please do not fail me. My most ardent desire prompts this request. Very sincerely yours——'

"Who do you think!"

Chester sat up stiffly. There was a conflict of fear and anger on his good-looking face.

By Jack Lait

"I—not Susie?" he barked.

"No, you blockhead—not Susie. Much worse. Get yourself for a sensation—Lucy Lee."

"No!"

"Absolutely. Here—look yourself. Can you beat that?"

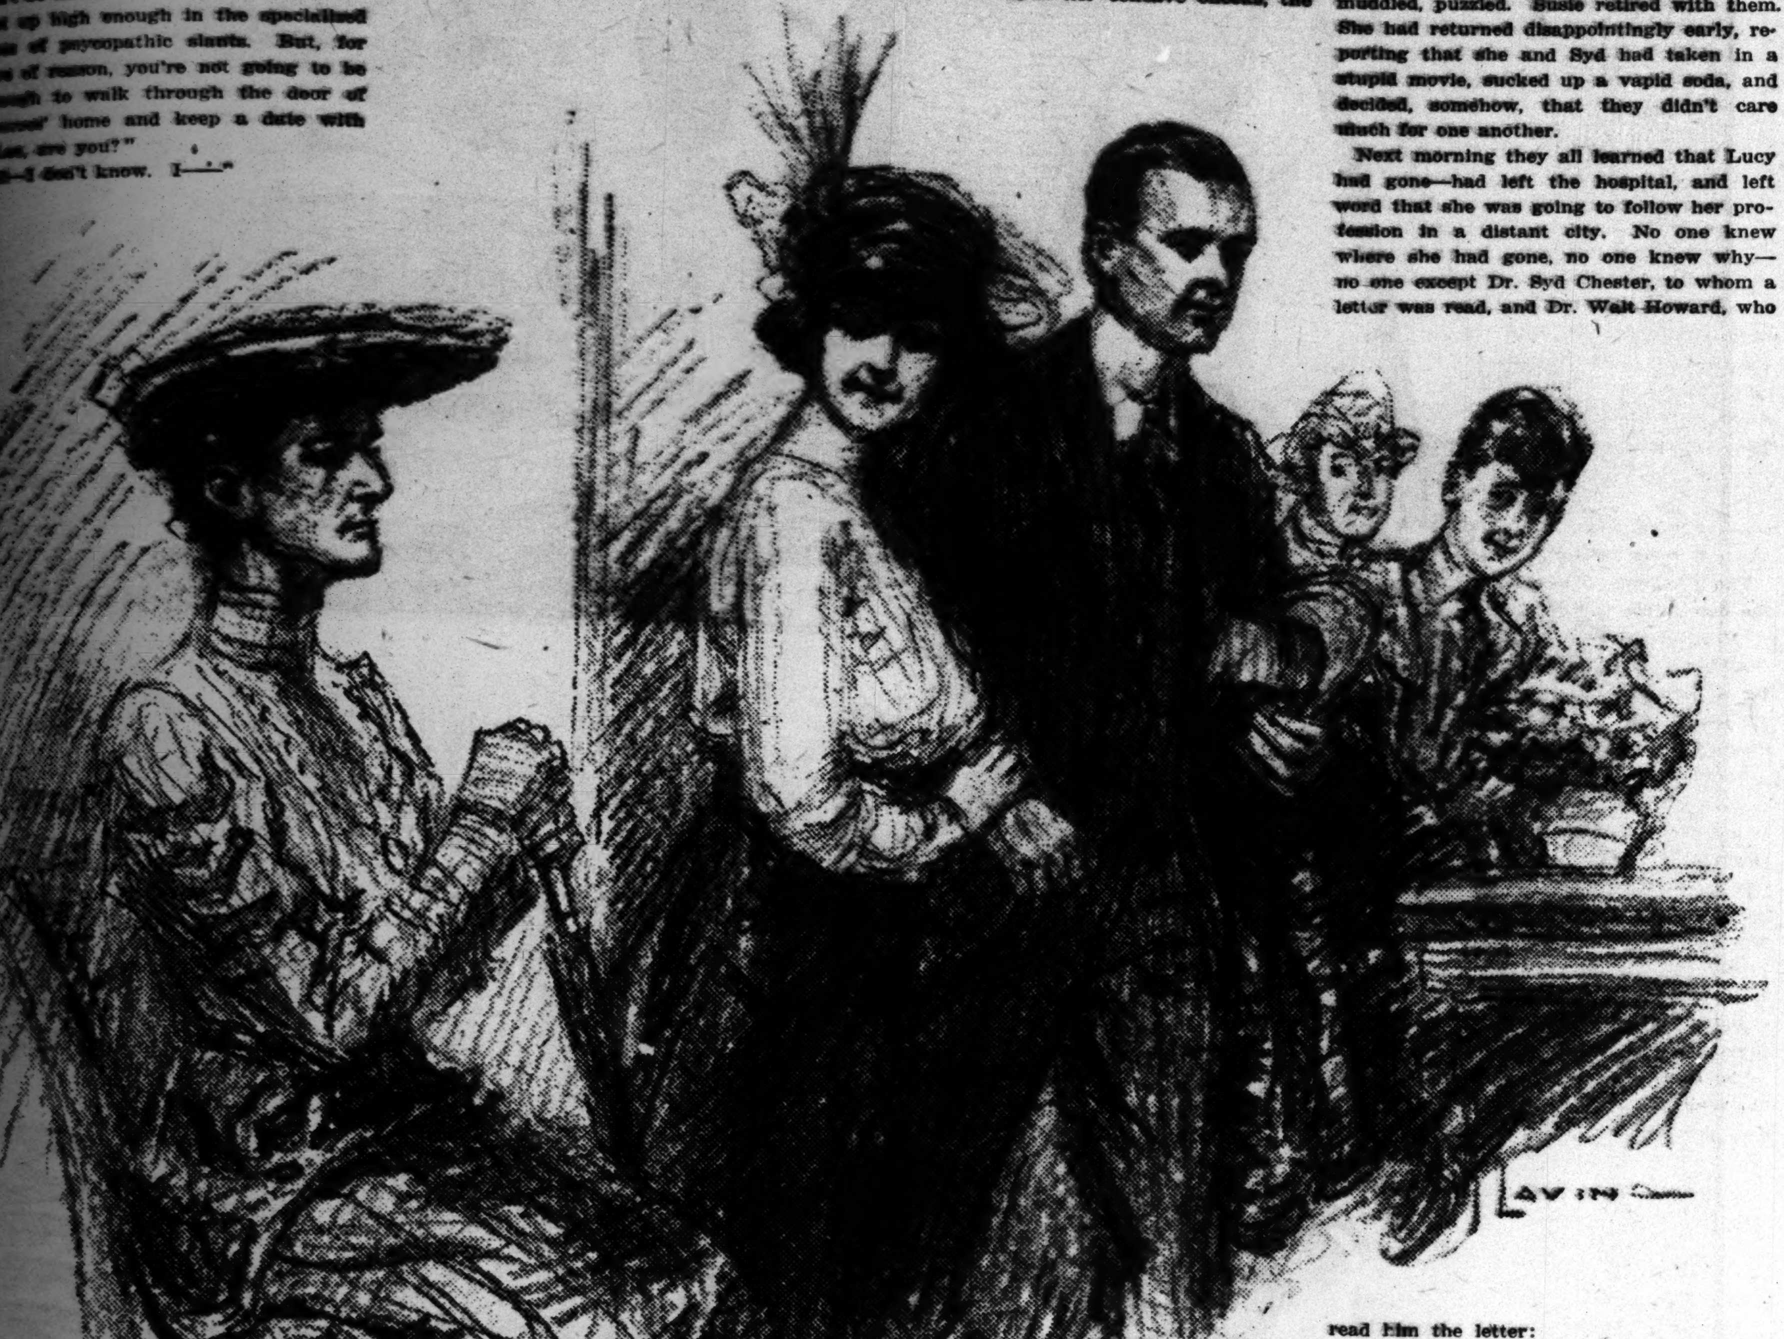
Syd took the letter, read it over twice, dropped it on the cover.

"Whew—the old girl's lost her mind: senile dementia."

"Well, I don't know. It's a peculiar way to go about it; but if she loves me, she loves me. There's nothing so outrageous about loving me, you know, even if I'm not as pretty as you are."

"Don't be an idiot. I can't explain this—I'm not up high enough in the specialized branches of psycopathic slants. But, for the love of reason, you're not going to be ass enough to walk through the door of that nurses' home and keep a date with Lucy Lee, are you?"

"Well—I don't know. I——"



Susie took Chester's arm, tossed a challenge of I-should-worry to the audience, and made her exit.

"Man! You'll be laughed out of this hospital. You know how they grab every mite of harmless and commonplace rot as it is and mull it over and discuss it as though it were an international historical episode. Can you hear 'em after Dr. Howard and Lucy Lee link arms and go forth for a promenade in the cool of the evening? O boy. Your name will ring from the dispensary to the garage. Generations of neurotic patients will be restored to longevity by the relation of that adventure. You don't stand so all-fired strong as it is with the whiskered inner circle of this healery; after that your name'll be Mud."

"What do you suppose prompted her to do it?" he ventured, wavering.

"Hanged if I know. But because she's gone dippy is no reason why you should humor her and clown yourself out of a job. Who would have thought the old hatchet-face had it in her? And of all people, to pick you—fat, bald, shy some incisors, and say—it isn't even constitutional: you're past 31; you can't be drafted."

"You don't have to smear it on so rough," protested Howard. "I know I'm no Francis X. Fairbanks, but under normal conditions it wouldn't be so, grotesque if some female took a fancy to me. She wouldn't be the first."

"It isn't so much you as it is her. And the both of you in one picture—it's too much." And he fell over and choked with laughter, and pounded the bedding with both fists.

Howard waited, pondered, scratched his skull.

"What had I better do?" he asked.

"Pass it up; scratch it; ignore it; forget it; live it down. I'll swear Masonic secrecy if you don't go any further with this slapstick farce. Take my advice, now, and don't answer it. Keep out of her way. Maybe the superannuated maiden will come out of her fit in the due course of nature. Meanwhile absent yourself; get a couple of days' leave. Whatever possessed her, the reaction will either kill her or cure her. And I'll keep your secret."

Howard agreed to take his friend's sane-sounding counsel, and he returned to bed. But there was no more sleep. They loafed about and chewed over every conceivable angle of the mystery. When time came to arise for the day's tasks there had been no change in the verdict, nor had there been any new theories accepted.

Lucy was assigned in a private room in the maternity wing that day. Howard's post was in a ward. So they did not meet.

At 7 o'clock the watches shifted. Howard changed quickly to his street clothes, slipped out of a side door, and hied him to a burlesque theater. Lucy went directly to her room. At a quarter before eight she came down the stairs. For the first time since the day she had entered the institution she was seen in lay attire. She wore a dress that had been in fashion decades ago, with leg o' mutton sleeves and a belled skirt that brushed the floor; a pancake hat that was becoming to the dress and to nothing else was on her head, pinned to a knot of her famine-crop hair; her fingers protruded through crocheted half-gloves, cotton. In one hand she carried an umbrella with a perpendicular pearl handle.

A hush fell on the groups of nurses, lolling at their ease near the door to be in on the star spectacle of the season, the overt act in the escapade of Susie and Syd. The extraordinary appearance of Lucy, the scarlet flush upon her concave cheeks, the angular grandeur of her entrance, the sudden metamorphosis of mien and pose and costume where for so long there had been unbroken uniformity—it was incredible.

Lucy looked to no one. She stalked, stiff as on stilts, to a chair near the door. No one said a word. The clock ticked on. The hands showed two minutes before eight; Lucy moved her upper body, as though on a hinge, forward; the nurses, automatically, leaned forward, too. One minute before eight—Lucy leaned on her grayed umbrella and held her keen nose extended toward the door, her every fiber rigid, like a pointer spotting a partridge. The minute hand moved slowly, twitched in the hour notch; the clock bell sounded like a fire gong in the tense silence—one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight! The door opened from without. Lucy, her head swimming, staggered to her feet. The door swung back and disclosed, standing there smiling, jaunty, and defiant, Dr. Syd Chester.

Susie Fuller, caparisoned like the spirit of spring, smirking and blushing in the proud consciousness that hers was the center of the stage now despite the weird counterplot, whatever that might all be about, flounced fetchingly forth, took Chester's arm, tossed a challenge of I-should-worry to the audience, and made exit with her cavalier into the night.

The door slammed behind them. The jar seemed to run a thrill through the tall, cadaverous frame of Lucy. She fumbled groggily to her feet, navigated unsteadily to the stairs, and disappeared over the upper landing.

The nurses gathered close together. The Fuller-Chester episode, that was racy but obvious; but what was the meaning of Lucy's inexplicable performance? Long into the night they vivisected its every manifestation, each collateral possibility, all contiguous circumstances. And they retired, muddled, puzzled. Susie retired with them. She had returned disappointingly early, reporting that she and Syd had taken in a stupid movie, sucked up a vapid soda, and decided, somehow, that they didn't care much for one another.

Next morning they all learned that Lucy had gone—had left the hospital, and left word that she was going to follow her profession in a distant city. No one knew where she had gone, no one knew why—no one except Dr. Syd Chester, to whom a letter was read, and Dr. Walt Howard, who read him the letter:

"Dr. Howard.

"Sir:

"Kindly forgive me for the unwomanly communication which I sent you yesterday. Since you did not deem it best to comply with the request stated therein you may dismiss it from your mind, as the purpose which prompted it no longer exists.

"I am 38 years old, Dr. Howard. Never in those years, years honorably and decently spent in my studies and duties, have I sought or accepted any personal attentions from any man. But recently an unpleasant situation arose in the parlor of tho nurses' home, with which I believe you are conversant. I grew intensely angry at a certain rude young person.

"I am not adept at those little tricks of back-biting and slander common to my sex. So I bore my vexation silently, though it hurt. Then I heard her bragging over an appointment with a certain young interne. The thought, an unworthy one, perhaps, came to me that here I could dull the edge of her brash triumph. The thought was that perhaps I, too, could have a man call for me, come into the room where all the nurses were present, give me his arm, lead me out. I had no thought of where he would or should lead me—it was of no consequence. I just wanted to show that snippy little cat that I was just as sought after as she was, that was all.

"This may all sound trifling—maybe even ludicrous—to you. But to me it was momentous and palpitating. It may never have occurred to you, doctor, but I am a woman.

The TEENIE WEENIES PREPARE TO STORM THE WILD MEN'S FORT.

BY WM. DONAHEY.

"GENTLEMEN," said the General to his officers who were gathered for a council of war, "we've got to move our lines forward."

"You see," continued the General, pointing to a tiny map which lay on the table before him, "we are about eight hundred and fifty feet from the wild men's fort and it is quite necessary that we should advance our lines so we'll not have so far to charge when we explode the mine under the enemy's fort." (Eight hundred and fifty feet is about eighteen feet in our measurement.)

"Where our trenches are now situated we could not use our artillery on account of the bend in the trail where the long grass grows, so you see that it is very necessary to build more trenches."

The officers all agreed with the General and that very night several men were sent out, when it was quite dark, to start the work.

The little soldiers had gone but a short distance when they were seen by the wild men, who sent a shower of arrows at them, and Gogo was slightly scratched on the arm, while one of the wild men's arrows splintered the Old Soldier's wooden leg, so the General ordered the work stopped until he had worked out some scheme for their protection.

The Dutchman, being the chief engineer of the Teenie Weenie army, was ordered to work out a plan by which the men could be protected while digging the new trench.

"I haf der scheme," announced the Dutchman after he had worked over the idea for some time. "It's dis vay. Ve can take der sphool of thread vot ve brought along mit us, un ve can use dot as der wheels un mit long poles un sthicks ve can make der moving schreen."

"Oh, I see," shouted the General. "A screen which the soldiers can hide behind as they push it along without being hit by the wild men's arrows."

"Dot's it, dot's der idea!" nodded the Dutchman.

The General ordered the work started at once, and under the watchful eye of the Dutchman the soldiers soon built a screen of strong sticks. Two long poles had been attached to each end of the screen so the men could push it along easily, and early the next morning the Dutchman with six chosen men started towards the wild men's fort. As soon as the wild men saw the screen they let fly a shower of arrows, but they either flew harmlessly over the soldiers' heads or stuck tight in the screen.

"Schimminie schristmas!" exclaimed the Dutchman when the little party had gone quite a ways down the trail, "ve forgot to bring der shovels un picks."

"I'll get 'em, Captain," said the Dunce saluting the Dutchman, and hardly waiting for the officer's command the Dunce ran for the trench, which they had just left, as fast as his legs would carry him.

The Dunce grabbed up three picks and with the help of the Chinaman, who volunteered to help, the two brave Teenie Weenies ran for the screen amid the flying arrows which whizzed all about them.

All day long the men worked hard, pulling the screen along as they dug back towards the Teenie Weenie trench, and at night six other soldiers took up the work where the rest left off. Several days of hard labor finished the work and not one Teenie Weenie had been shot, thanks to the Dutchman's screen.

The Fall Guy

By Courtney Ryley Cooper

The Bulgarian Bone-Breaker Goes Down in Sad, Sad Defeat.

BIRDLEGS COLLINS, owner, proprietor, and general manager of the World's Renowned Biggest Dog and Pony Show on Earth, was busily engaged in talking to himself. At the same time he was crossing the circus lot, to where the dun colored tents of his slatternly organization flapped in the wind and where the sideshow spielers squawked at intervals to the few scattered townspeople who had remained following the afternoon show. Business was not good.

In fact, it was exceedingly bad and had been in that state for two weeks. All of which formed the reason that Birdlegs jabbered to himself as he swung his heavy arms in unison with his scrawny legs and strode jerkily toward the marquee.

"Got t' have a feature, that's all there is to it," he mumbled. "Can't make money without a feature. Got t' stir up th' natives with somethin'. Got t'—hey, Waldo!"

The round, bulbous form of Waldo Wibbles, just returning from the marquee, stopped suddenly at the command. He waved a hand as he came forward, then pointed toward the wobbly sideshow.

"Better tear over and square yourself!" he announced hastily.

"Square where?"

"Over at th' kid show. Th' Mitt Marvel's sore'n a goat. Says you promised to show up and take her t' dinner and that you never done it!"

"Gosh!" said Birdlegs, "I forgot all about it. I've been worried, Waldie—tryin' t' think out somethin'. Th' ol' trick ain't bringin' home th' mazuma an' we got to get busy. If we had a feature, somethin' we could play up——."

"A feature?" Waldo Wibbles, main factotum of the World's Renowned Biggest Dog and Pony Show on Earth, slid forward until his round face was jammed almost against the thin one of his employer. "Well, for th' love of Mike, why don't you say so? I've got a feature right on th' job here that'll knock 'em cold! It'll throw 'em off the benches! It'll double 'em up in knots! You know me—and when you want a feature all you've got t' do is tell it t' me. I'm th' guy with th' red shirt!"

"But listen, Waldo!" Birdlegs Collins had seized the chubby shoulder of his comrade and was squeezing it excitedly, "I ain't got no million dollars t'——."

"Nobody said nothin' about a million dollars. Twenty-five bucks a week an' cakes an' he'll pack your tents. He'll hang 'em on the lacings. He'll—say," and he again swung an arm toward the kid show, "go over there and square yourself with the Mitt Marvel and I'll be back in ten minutes with the greatest feature that you ever stuck your lamps on. See y' later."

And with that, Birdlegs Collins stared wonderingly at the streaking form of a hurrying figure as Waldo Wibbles rushed off the circus lot and toward town.

"Wonder what he's got up his sleeve?" he murmured as he shoved his big hands into his pockets. "But I guess I'd better be wondering what the Marvel's goin' t' say."

Whereupon, with a great deal more of deliberation than had been present when he first crossed the circus lot, Birdlegs turned slowly and made his way to the sideshow. Past the banners he went, somewhat reluctantly. At the spieler's stand his manner grew even more timorous. Slowly he wavered through the entrance and toward the "stall" of Mystic Mazie, the Marvel of the Age. And there was little of the mysterious in what was about to happen to him.

A blonde head popped forth from the "palm joint," above which shone the flaring announcements of Mystic Mazie's wondrous capacity for telling the past, present, and future by the lines of one's hand. But evidently Birdlegs had his hands behind him, for Mystic Mazie, the Mitt Marvel, as she stared at him, was exceedingly undecided exactly what to do.

"I don't know whether t' knock your block off or kick you in the kisser," she said with dainty scorn. "Where you been at?"

"Where I been at?" gurgled Birdlegs, playing for time, "well, listen, kiddie, I——."

"Don't pull none o' that there kiddie stuff on me. I ain't goin' t' be bullied by no bum show manager. Yesterday y' tell me you're clean cuckoo over me an' today y' blow a date t' fill me up on eats. Does that there look like you're crazy over anybody? Where y' been, chasing around with some other jane?"

Birdlegs Collins, desperate, turned to sarcasm.

"You're a fortune teller, ain't you?"

"Yeh—" the blondined head came closer than ever—"and I'm readin' th' future right now. An' I can see a tall, slabsided boob sleepin' in some clothes he never bought. An' a lot o' roses an' a bunch o' guys with white gloves on. Listen, there ain't no bird that's goin' t' put this soft and gushy stuff over on me an' let me fall for him like a pan o' dough an' expect me t' wait around for th' rest o' my life t' have him take me out t' a bum feed. Pull th' rope, kid, you've ridden past. Be-e-e—lieve me—."

"But listen, Mazie, I've been all balled up. I——."

"Yeh, an' you're goin' t' get all bawled out afore I get through with you. There ain't no——."

"Will y' listen?" Birdlegs waved his arms for an inspiration—and it came. "I couldn't get here. Waldo an' I've been as busy as a couple o' one armed paperhangers. We got a line on a feature an' we've been trailin' him all over town. Just got him located an'——."

"But that don't buy me no ham an' eggs, does it?" Mazie the Mitt Marvel was persistent.

"It don't, but it does. If we don't get a feature for this here show we got t' close, that's all. An' then nobody gets nothin'. That's th' big excitement if y' got t' know it. Now what're y' goin' t' say about it?"

Just exactly what Mystic Mazie intended to say was not learned, for the very good reason that just then there blew through the front entrance a small cyclone in the shape of a heavy shouldered man towing behind him another human who looked like a cross between a steam locomotive and a side of beef. Hefty was the stranger, with tremendous shoulders and feet that were four sizes too large. His hands hung lumpily like a couple of sacks of meal. His beady eyes stared straight ahead from a bulbous, and at the same time receding, forehead. His mustache, black and long, was waxed to swordlike points at the end. Slowly he blinked his little eyes and smiled, in an elephantine fashion—if you've ever seen an elephant smile. A great something seemed to have seized his mind and began the tremendous problem of churning it into activity. His lips moved. The great result of his mental cataclysm had come.

"How do!" he said, and his companion waved an excited hand.

"Bozarro, the Bulgarian Bonebreaker!" announced Waldo Wibbles. "New feature of the World's Renowned Biggest Dog and Pony Show on Earth. Bulgie, meet Mr. Collins, our genial owner, and Mazie the Mitt Marvel. Mazie, meet Bulgie—Bozarro the Bulgarian Bonebreaker, y' know."

"Sure," said Mazie as she extended a hand toward one of the meal sacks, then changed her mind and pulled it back. "What's your graft, kid?"

"Nix—" it was Waldo cutting in. "He don't grab that stuff. Bulgie don't talk much. All he does is act. He's the new feature."

"Sure, but what does he feat?"

"Yeh, that's the idea," Birdlegs Collins joined in on the conversation, tilted himself on his toes, and fingered his watch chain in a managerial sort of way, "what's the big hunch? What's this guy do to bring the kale in the front door?"

"Wrestles the world!" Waldo Wibbles again waved an arm like an impresario. "He wrestles the world! The World's Renowned Biggest Dog and Pony Show on Earth forfeits $100 to anyone that Bozarro, the Bulgarian Bonebreaker, fails to throw in fifteen minutes. Anyone—anyone, no one barred."

"Huh?" Birdlegs Collins had a hand to his ear, "say that again. How much?"

"One hundred dollars. One hundred iron men! Leave it t' me t' grab th' features, kid!"

"How much? A hundred dollars?" The amount still was sticking in the mind of Birdlegs. "Us goin' t' give a hundred dollars away? Us?"

"But you don't get me, kid." Waldo grinned in a patronizing fashion. "There's where th' grand gyp comes in. We offer it, but we don't pay it, because he wrestles th' same guy every day and th' guy's with th' show."

"Huh?" Birdlegs leaned forward. Bozarro, the Bulgarian Bonebreaker, had turned his eyes toward Mazie and was stirring at her approvingly. "Pay another salary t' some other guy? Ain't twenty-five a week enough?"

"Sure it is. That's just what I was leadin' up to." Waldo Wibbles advanced a step and buttonholed his superior. "Just exactly what I'm leadin' up to. I see, th' idea is this: We introduce this here guy as willin' t' wrestle th' world, an' then our guy—th' one we've got planted—rises up out o' th' seats an' says he wants t' try for th' hundred dollars. See? An' then——"

"Yeh, I got all that. Birdlegs was wiggling one foot aimlessly. 'I grabbed all that before you sprung it. But we got t' pay that other guy, don't we?"

"Me?"

"Sure. You was kickin' th' other day because you didn't have enough t' do around th' trick an' this brings you in fine. All you got t' do is t' stall out o' th' seats twice a day an' challenge th' Bonebreaker. Then when th' match comes off all you've got t' do is jimmy around with him five or ten minutes and finally get thrown. Ain't that easy enough?"

"Who's goin' t' do all that?" Mazie the Mitt Marvel had come to life after having been under the steady gaze of the Bonebreaker since the beginning of the conversation. The Bonebreaker swung his mealsack hands nervously. There were evidences on his features of another mental disturbance. He looked almost ready to speak. Then he changed his mind and resumed staring at Mazie. As for Mazie, she came forward and repeated her question. Waldo pointed at Birdlegs and the lips of Mystic Mazie, the Mitt Marvel, went scornful. She had not forgotten the lost dinner.

"Him? What's he know about wrestlin'? Say, kid, he couldn't throw a fit."

"Couldn't I?" The matter was settled now for Birdlegs Collins. "That's all you know. Always tryin' t' highbrow somebody, ain't y'? I could throw this guy with my eyes shut."

"You don't throw a guy with your eyes." Mazie's tone became more sarcastic. "You couldn't throw a baseball. Where'd you get that stuff?"

Slowly Birdlegs, the downtrodden, drew himself to the utmost of his height. He perched his checkered cap at an angle. He swerved, first to one side, then to the other.

"Huh?" Birdlegs leaned forward.
"Ain't twenty-five a week enough?"

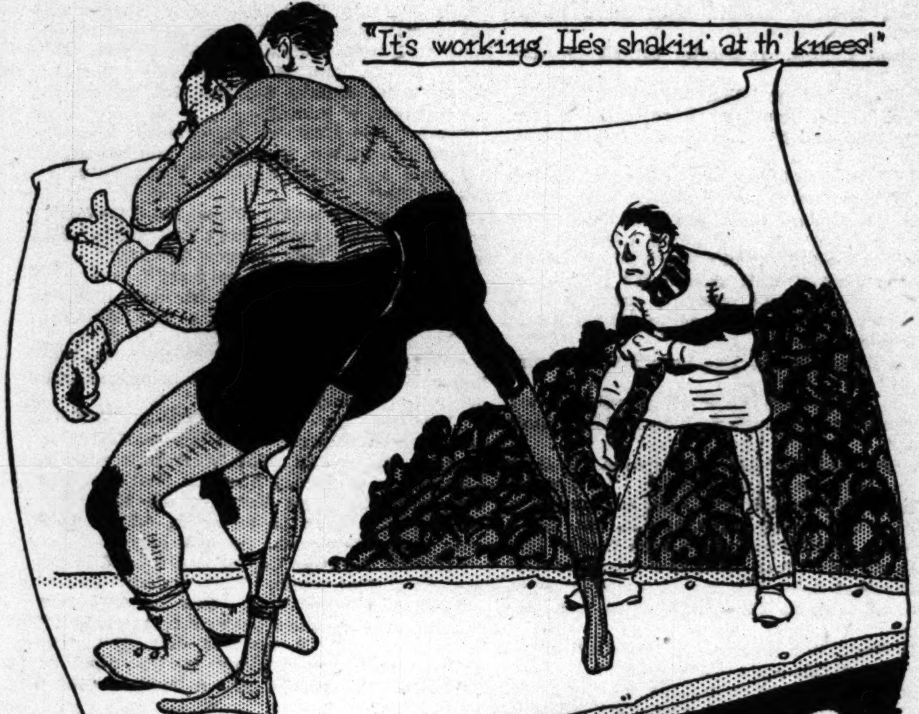
"Bozarro," he announced, "you're hired. Waldo, I command you to get junk in the papers about Bozarro, the Bulgarian Bonebreaker, and his offer to wrestle the world. I shall serve as the fall guy. Let us t' th' ticket wagon where we can arrange the details."

And sweeping past Mazie the Mitt Marvel, he started forth from the kid show, his general all around agent and his wrestler behind him. As for Mystic Mazie, she wagged her blonde head, grinned, and went back to her daily job of reading lifelines. She had seen Birdlegs fully as lofty before.

As for Birdlegs, there seethed within him strange fires as he went downtown that afternoon and bought himself a set of green wrestling tights for the performance of the next day. And when he returned to the circus lot he came in by a way that did not lead past the sideshow.



"It's working. He's shakin' at th' knees!"

Another day and another town. An announcement. A figure which rose gawkily from the seats and challenged the Bonebreaker. A trip to the dressing room and a change to the green tights. Then the match, in which the long extremities of Birdlegs Collins sprawled about the mat, in which the Bulgarian Bonebreaker dragged him here and dragged him there, finally to turn him (at the signal from the referee) upon his back. Up on the seats the crowd cheered and went home to tell of the excitement of the afternoon. The feature had been found. That night Birdlegs again came out of the seats and announced himself as the challenger, while the announcer told of the heroic attempt of the afternoon to stay fifteen minutes against the Bonebreaker and complimented him upon his bravery in seeking another trial. It went good. Also Birdlegs went once more to the mat.

But a little thing like a defeat did not weigh heavily upon the mind of the lengthy Mr. Collins. A feature had been found, something to draw the dollars in the front door, and that was enough.

Enough, at least, for a week. Then Birdlegs noticed that for the third consecutive afternoon Mystic Mazie, the Mitt Marvel, occupied a seat in the very center of the first row of the grand stand, and sat there, her eyes only shifting when Bozarro, the Bonebreaker, shifted, her hands only moving when they applauded his victory. And Mazie had been exceedingly cold for the last week. Birdlegs had blamed it on that broken luncheon engagement. But now——!

"Say, listen, kid!" he announced that afternoon following the matinée as he lanked himself into the sideshow and approached the "palm joint," "what's th' big idea?"

"What's th' idea o' what?" Mazie the Mitt Marvel looked up with exactly the same degree of frigidity she had assumed the whole week. Birdlegs waved a hand.

"Th' idea o' all this here enthusiasm about this Bulgarian Buttermilk, anyhow. You ain't fallin' for him?"

"Fallin?" Mazie looked up and laughed. "Say, when I fall for anybody I'll let everybody know. But——" and her eyes became wistful—"a girl can't be blamed for admirin' a man what is a man."

"Admirin' a man? You don't call that there hash hound no man? Listen, I could lick him with my eyes shut."

"Yes. I've heard you say somethin' like that before. But I ain't a-seein' y' do it."

"Course y' ain't. That there's th' game. I ain't goin' t' throw th' game over. Th' papers say he can throw th' world an' I'm playin' th' part o' th' world."

Mazie looked up in scrutinizing fashion.

"Some world!" she said shortly.

It irritated Birdlegs. It fretted him. He waved his hand again, then pulled his checkered cap low over his eyes. After which he slowly gritted his teeth and walked away.

There had come a determination into his mind—a determination to, some way, somehow, throw the Bulgarian Bonebreaker. Just how it was to be done was beyond his understanding. But one thing was certain. Admiration already had entered the heart of Mazie the Mitt Marvel. And it doesn't take much to turn admiration into something stronger. Birdlegs grunted.

"I'll throw him—" he muttered. "I'll throw him if I have t' hit him in th' head with a meat ax. But I'll throw him!"

And that night he tried—tried gloriously and hard. With the result that, just as usual, he rested upon his shoulders while the referee casually patted the Bonebreaker on the back and announced to the audience that the Bulgarian Wonder had succeeded in nailing his opponent to the mat in exactly 5 minutes and 32 seconds, concluding the wrestling match; thank you for your attention! He tried and he failed—but he did not give up. When the rickety train pulled out of town that night it was with a light burning in the window of Birdlegs' dingy little stateroom. For Birdlegs was figuring, figuring hard, and to no conclusion.

The next morning found him struggling with the same problem—the problem of downing a mountain of flesh that refused to be downed.

Gloomily, he strode about the circuit lot, into the big top, where the rattling lengths of seats were being put into place, then slowly out again, and at last toward the kid show. In spite of the things that he knew Mazie would say, he wanted to see her. In spite of the carbolic of her tongue, he wanted to hear her voice. For Birdlegs Collins, owner, proprietor, and general manager of the World's Renowned Biggest Dog and Pony Circus on Earth, was terribly in love—in love with a sideshow queen of the "palm joint" and the "mitt reading palace"—and, more than that, Birdlegs knew that he was working half way in vain.

"If I could just put this here bird on his back I'd show her somethin' worth while," he announced to himself. "An' if I hadn't made that there contract with him that he had th' right t' choose whether he should be th' thrower or th' throwee I'd frame it up. But it ain't no use framin' now. All I can do is t' try t' put somethin' over. I—hey, Buzz, where's Mazie?"

For Mazie's palace of palmistry was vacant. From the fire eater's platform Buzz Bottles, the Human Volcano, looked up from his alcohol torches in an absent minded way.

"Who?" he asked. "Mazie? She's went downtown with a towner."

"With a what?" Birdlegs was gasping. There could be only one reason for a circus performer to run around with a towner—that was love, pure love. "Sure he was a towner?"

"Yeh. Old guy, kinda handed Mazie an awful line o' gab about th' cash he was willin' t' spend on some good frail that'd make his home happy, an' th' last thing I heard Mazie sayin' was how she'd love t' be some old man's darlin'. Then I seen 'em beat it out t'gether."

A gasp from Birdlegs Collins. His heavy hands made circles in the air. A moment more and he was hurrying past the rickety formation of the parade and toward town.

"I got t' do somethin'," he announced jerkily as he set his watch to the booming of the town clock. "I got t' pull somethin'. She's liable t' go cuckoo over this here towner an' it can't happen, that's all, it can't——"

He had rounded a corner, and into the one street of the town, to stare and gasp. For on the other side of the street, looking into the window of a jewelry store, stood Mazie, the Mitt Marvel, her new found friend, by her side. Old he was and with whiskers—the typical "soft mark" that appeals to certain busy persons of the "grifting" circus game. Birdlegs whistled softly.

"I sure got t' do something! I sure got to!"

He walked a few steps farther, then hesitated. Something brilliant and dazzling flashed into his mind. He whirled, looked about him, whirled again, stared and then started toward where the gloriously colored bottles in the show window told of a drug store. Hurriedly he entered, put a quarter in the hand of a boy there, and whispered. The boy looked up with wide eyes.

"You'll have t' sign the poison book for that," came his announcement.

"Sure—a hundred books. Only hurry it up. I got a mad dog that I've got t' put away." The voice of Birdlegs was excited. "Better change that order. Better give me fifty cents worth, an' hurry!"

"Sure!"

And five minutes later Birdlegs Collins was hurrying toward the circus lot, to await the return of the parade, and particularly the tallyho which bore a Viking in armor—the Bulgarian Bonebreaker in disguise.

"Listen, kid," he announced, when that person had tumbled down the steps of the tallyho. "This here act of ours ain't goin' swift enough."

Another mental convulsion on the part of the Bonebraker. At last came the result:

"No?"

"No, it ain't—" Birdlegs was talking exceedingly fast. "There ain't enough pep to it. A guy can see from th' start that you're goin' t' put me on th' mat. We got t' fix up some way so they'll get a run for their money. Now, lookee here, we'll make this here act go swell. I got an idea. When we first start out, you sorta turn your back—see. Then I rush up and grab you around th' throat—get me? And I hang on that there way for three or four minutes—it looks like I got you by th' throat, but I'm stallin'—see? I just got my hands over your mouth an' it looks like I'm chokin' you. Then after we've stalled around this here way, an' everybody thinks I've got you, then you turn me around an' throw me. See?"

The Bulgarian Bonebreaker scratched his knotty head.

"No," he announced, and Birdlegs told it all over again, then demonstrated. At last the Bonebreaker nodded his head. The scheme had penetrated, and Birdlegs hurried away to further preparations—preparations that were entirely private.

A long wait—a wait in which the busy Mr. Collins searched the face of everyone who came on the circus lot. Noon—and Mazie had not entered her palace of palmistry. One o'clock. Two—while the band played inside the big top. Two fifteen—and Birdlegs sighed heavily. A taxi had stopped at the entrance to the lot, and from it had come Mazie and the towner, heading straight toward the circus tent. Hurriedly Birdlegs dived inside, to take his place on the seats and await for the announcement of the wrestling match.

A long wait it was, and a nervous one. At last the roaring tones of the announcer and the circus owner jumped to his feet.

"I'll wrestle him," he shouted. "I ain't afraid of him. I can lick anybody with legs on!" And as he said it, he glared across the hippodrome track to where an old man with whiskers sat blandly at the side of Mazie, the Mitt Marvel.

"The name, please?" It was the announcer, going through the usual formalities.

"Bad Bill from Bitter Gulch!" Birdlegs sneered a bit this time—across the hippodrome track.

"Very well. Ladies-s-s-s-s-s and gentlemen, a person calling himself Bad Bill from Bitter Gulch has challenged Bozarro, the Bulgarian Bonebreaker, to a wrestling match, in which the World's Renowned Biggest Dog and Pony Circus on Earth will forfeit one hundred dol—lars, should the Bonebreaker fail to throw his man in fif—teen minutes! The match will take place im-me-diate-ly following the grand, glorious an' magnificent mixed aer-i-al number, present-ing the most mar-vel-ous spectacle of its kind in th' worl-l-l-l-d! I thank you!"

A bow from the Bonebreaker. A more eloquent one from Birdlegs Collins. Then he turned to the announcer-referee.

"Say, Jim," he ordered softly, "got a clean handkerchief?"

"Sure, want it?"

"Not now. But have it for me when I come out t' wrestle. I got a cut on this here hand an' I kind o' want t' bind it up, so it won't break open."

And with another glare across the hippodrome track, a glare which Mazie met smilingly, he turned toward the dressing room. Fifteen minutes and he was out again, his gangling legs showing still more gangling in their green tights, his long arms sprawling as he reached for the announcer's handkerchief, then slipped something up the sleeve of his wrestling suit. Then he deliberately turned toward the Mitt Marvel and her new friend—and grinned.

A minute of announcements, and into the ring went the Bonebreaker, Birdlegs with him. Hurriedly the proprietor, owner and general manager of the World's Renowned Biggest Dog and Pony Show on Earth leaned toward his feature.

"Don't forget that stunt," he whispered. "Don't forget t' turn your back!"

The Bonebreaker blinked—then nodded his head. There came the usual fake conference with the referee and the word to go. The Bonebreaker grasped about him wildly, slopped about the mat—and turned his back. It was the time for action.

Hurriedly the corkless little bottle, which Birdlegs had so carefully held up his sleeve, slipped down into the handkerchief. A quick shake and the fluid had saturated. A quicker move and the long arms of Birdlegs had gone forward, the hand which held the handkerchief had slopped into place, and the other clapped on top of it. The Bonebreaker seemed to leap into the air.

"Glug!"

The word came faintly through the handkerchief. A sweetish, sickening odor made itself faintly apparent in the air. The Bonebreaker jumped wildly about the platform—but Birdlegs held on. Again there came a word, an inarticulate word. The arms of the wrestler moved like a busy windmill.

"One minute!" shouted the referee.

"One minute," gasped Birdlegs to himself as he clung on the back of the Bonebreaker. "This here chloroform better start workin' awful fast—or I ain't goin' t' hold on!"

"Bluggle!" came the answer of the Bonebreaker—and he staggered.

"It's workin.' He's shakin' at th' knees!" Birdlegs was almost talking aloud in his excitement.

"Spluff—ug—ug!" The voice grew fainter under the handkerchief. A few yells came from the seats. They grew louder. And louder still. For one long leg of Birdlegs Collins had twisted itself around those of the Bonebreaker and tripped him. They went to the mat together. Hurriedly Birdlegs removed the handkerchief—a too complete success would never do. Wildly he jerked the now sloppy Bonebreaker about the stage to keep up an appearance of conflict. And then as the stages of a return to full consciousness made themselves apparent, he leaped upon the Bonebreaker's chest and flattened him on his back. Over in the grandstand someone screamed shrilly, her voice sounding above all the rest. Birdlegs knew it was Mystic Mazie, the Mitt Marvel. From above him there came the surprised tones of the announcer as he told the result of the conflict. Birdlegs rose, kicking the Bulgarian Meatchopper heartily as he did so.

"Get up, you big bum!" he ordered in an undertone, "what're y' tryin' t' do—go t' sleep there? Hey you circus guys—" for he was keeping up the deception of an outsider still—"get some water an' throw on this guy. I've mauled him aroun' till he's sick or somethin'." Then the full realization of victory burst upon him. He turned and looked toward where the staring eyed Mitt Marvel sat, her lips open, her hands clenched. "Bring me on somebody that can put up an argument!" he shouted, "I can lick this here guy with my eyes shut. I—"

Then speech suddenly ceased, for Mazie had cast a glance at him that might mean everything. More, she had started to leave her seat. Hurriedly, Birdlegs jumped from the ring and to the cheers of the multitude, sought the dressing room. Ten minutes more, buttoning his collar as he went, he hurried forth to the kidshow.

"Well," he announced as he stood before the silent and staring eyed Mitt Marvel, "I went an' done it."

She looked up at him and flipped a hand lackadaisically.

"Yeh," came her answer, "you sure went an' done it five hundred dollars' worth!"

"Five what?"

"Beans, bucks, bones, dollars!" A snap had come into Mazie's voice. "Maybe y' didn't understand me th' first time. While you was pullin' that funny stuff out there, you just cost this show a half a thousand. Now, d' y' get me?"

"A half a thousand?" Birdlegs reeled "You're a cuckoo. I ain't"

"That's just it—" and there was a pained expression on Mazie's face, "you ain't—that explains th' whole thing. Y' just ain't. That's why you're five hundred short. Y' see," and her voice became faint and faraway, "I thought you were a guy that could be depended on. I didn't know you was just a plain, ordinary, cuckoo nut. An' thinkin' y' could be depended on, I tried t' make a little money for th' organization. So I gets five hundred o' your kale out o' th' ticket wagon an' bets this here hick bird at one t' five that even givin' y' that chokin' start, th' Bonebreaker could lay y' on your back. An' then y' spilled th' beans! What'd you think I was buttin' around with that guy for anyway—th' exercise?"

Somewhere a band was playing. Somewhere a crowded tent was laughing and enjoying life. Somewhere the sun was shining. But Birdlegs Collins of the World's Renowned Biggest Dog and Pony Circus on Earth neither heard nor saw, nor cared. Silently he stared. Then silently he turned and silently walked away.

His Second Self

Joan.

SYNOPSIS.

Joan Wentworth, a country girl, is employed as a nurse in the Southern hospital at Avonmouth, presided over by Dr. John Lancaster, a bully and a man of loose character. At times Lancaster appears altogether different; he is manifestly ill, and gentle with her. He says she needs a change and offers her a temporary post while her case is being considered, at the institute in the hill country, founded by his father with the Lancaster fund.

Joan goes to Lancaster (the name of the hill village) and finds a dilapidated old building, with a colored doctor, a matron, and a crazed woman, Mrs. Dana, who is locked in her room. There is a superintendent named Myers, whom Joan dislikes. Next day she is surprised to see Lancaster come down to the institute. She has a quarrel with Myers, who takes her into the doctor's room and shows her Lancaster insensible from an overdose of morphine. Joan discovers that he is addicted to the drug. Lancaster begs her to aid him fight the habit, and a grim battle ensues, first with the drug, then with Myers, whom Joan suspects of trying to induce Lancaster to continue the habit. Lancaster's will power is gone.

Joan wins Lancaster's fight against morphine. They learn to love each other. Lancaster hints at a deep mystery in his life which must be explained. As he is about to tell her he is called to Avonmouth to perform his celebrated operation. Next night Lancaster and Myers appear, hilarious. It is the old Lancaster, the hospital bully. He makes love to Joan, but is so vicious and altogether objectionable that the girl is terrified of him. In the midst of a scene between them the door opens and another Lancaster appears on the threshold. The two men are doubles. Lancaster denounces his double and Myers.

EIGHTH INSTALLMENT.

THE DENUNCIATION.

"It was he who told me that I could never break it off, who urged me to continue the use of it with sophistical arguments which I had not the energy to oppose. I had been five years away from Avonmouth. The people at the Southern hospital believed me dead, and I did not undeceive them. I never meant to return. When I came here it was always by night, to this man whom I believed to be my friend, to avoid shaming our name in the eyes of Millville. Thus none ever saw us together, and Lawson and I resembled each other as much as we do today."

"More, I hope, John," sneered the other. "The life one leads tells as the years go by."

"Nobody in these parts had seen me since I was a boy. I had left home young, and studied at Johns Hopkins and abroad. Lawson had taken my name. The old neighbors had gone away, and if any of the country folk have long memories they have close tongues, too. The matron and Jenkins are both newcomers. I had passed out of memory.

"This devil saw his chance and grasped at it," he went on with sudden vehemence. "Here was the famous Dr. Lancaster, a broken man, an outcast, and believed in Avonmouth to be long since dead. And here was the Lancaster known to Millville and Lancaster village, at the head of this institute. Why shouldn't he get me to take his place here while he went to Avonmouth and claimed to be I? Lawson was ambitious. He wanted to be something bigger than the superintendent of a little hill institute. And he wanted to get his fingers on the trust fund at Avonmouth. Do I wrong you?" he demanded, turning fiercely upon the other.

"Not in the least: you honor me," said Lawson, with a suave bow. "I wanted to take the fund out of your worthless supervision and devote it to proper uses."

"This must be stopped!" shouted Myers, with a sudden interposition. "Dr. Lancaster, you are saying things that you will regret tomorrow. You are turning to bite the hand that fed you. Where would you be today save for Dr. Lawson? A dead man in a pauper's grave!"

"He persuaded me, weakened as I was by the morphine with which he had been dosing me," Lancaster resumed, without paying the least attention to the secretary. "He was to take my place in Avonmouth, while I could assume charge here, pretend to have an illness, which would account for any change in my aspect and character. Nobody would know the difference—and nobody has known the difference. Here, he told me, I could be free to brood over my unhappy life, while he, the clever schemer, taking up my past, could adapt it to his own. He convinced me."

Joan gasped as she began to understand the enormity of the crime. And it was true: she could read that truth in Lawson's face, his pride in the exploit. Lawson was actually smirking, as he had smirked in the operating theater.

"I consented, and he went away," said Lancaster. "My recollection of the months that followed is necessarily a dim one. I know, however, that I was in no state to take care of the funds. They disappeared, and I was accused of having embezzled them. If I did that I did it in my dreams."

"That's just the trouble with you, John," said Lawson. "You dream too much. The question is, what did you do with them? Bury them? You can't have spent thirty thousand dollars upon morphine."

"I have accepted and borne the burden of the guilt," cried Lancaster. "This man Myers was placed in charge. Thereafter he was ever at my elbow, urging me upon the downward path. When I would make an effort to break off my habit he would whisper to me that my life was ruined, that the charge of embezzlement would be pressed if ever I returned to Avonmouth. He would advise me to take my drug and forget——"

"You are lying, you dreamer!" yelled the secretary. "You lie, and you know it!"

"When you came, John, I was all but hopeless. I had caught at your aid as my last hope, because that day you came to me your face looked good, and strong, too, and you spoke so sincerely, and it was years since I had known any one like you. And you seemed to have been sent to me."

"Religious hallucination," said Lawson, tapping his forehead significantly. Nevertheless, Joan could see that he was growing uneasy as the plot was unraveled.

"It was a miracle, that meeting, one of those chances that seem reserved to uncover such conspiracies. For, though this man had stolen my name"—and here a touch of pride was visible on Lancaster's face—"there was one thing he could not do. He could not perform the Lancaster operation, though he had picked my brains during the weeks in which he kept me here, a prisoner in one room.

"And so from time to time he compelled me to go to Avonmouth, under the charge of Myers, in order to operate. He laid down the regulations: I was to dress and mask alone, I was to speak as little as possible and to leave hastily after I had finished my work. And he always sent me there with a full injection of the drug in my body. I was too weak to resist, too much under the thumb of Myers here."

"Doctor, won't you stop this painful recitation of hallucinations?" pleaded the secretary to Lawson. "You know, tomorrow he will retract everything."

"The day came," continued Lancaster, "when a committee of visiting surgeons was to witness the operation. He thought that he had learned it. His vanity led him to go to the hospital in person, after he had brought me to Avonmouth. The patient died, but he alone was responsible for that. And that is where you come into the case, Joan. I managed to get word with you, and Myers followed you to this institute, in order to forestall me if possible."

"Dr. Lancaster, you did not steal the funds," said Joan calmly. "Do you not see the hold these two men have managed to obtain over you? They stole the funds and their object in drugging you was to get rid of you, the sole evidence of their crime, by your death. And so, not daring to murder you, they planned that you should commit suicide."

"You'll answer for that!" shouted the secretary, white with rage.

Lancaster shrugged his shoulders. "It doesn't matter now, my dear," be said.

But he had struck Lawson through his triple hide of vanity at last.

"But that isn't all," shouted the man. "Admit that there may be a substratum of truth in these morphine dreams of yours, John Lancaster. Admit that I was ambitious, and that I did take the place my half-brother had forfeited in order to be of use to the world, and in order to save you from a felon's cell or a maniac's grave. Acknowledge that I did impersonate you tonight, as before, that I came back with Myers in order to get rid of this girl who threatened to disrupt the institute and put a drug drunkard in the office I hold. Well, what then? That isn't all the story.

"You have played your miserable game craftily, John Lancaster, after having made a fair agreement with me. But I've done my duty toward you and your father's fund, and if he were alive he would thank me for it. And as for this girl, she can go and, if her ravings receive credence anywhere, I'll face a jury and tell the truth fearlessly.

"But you haven't explained everything to your poor dupe, John. You haven't told her where your sweetheart is. You haven't said that all the while you have been making love to her your fiancée is under this roof, hopelessly insane, that she came back in her madness, and that you took her into the institute and cared for her when her own people had discarded her, because you still loved her. And I'll tell you something, John. I brought her back, I was in touch with her from first to last, and I brought her here as an additional lure to keep you at the institute after I had gone to Avonmouth. Just tell Miss Wentworth who Mrs. Dana is."

Joan's eyes met Lancaster's and she saw in his the supreme moment of his anguish. She braced herself to meet the shock; she told herself that Lancaster no longer cared for his poor charge. She faced Lawson and Myers unflinchingly. But the spring of hope that had been bubbling in her heart seemed to have gone dry.

Lawson seemed to be animated by some infernal deviltry. He seemed to be throwing off the mask he had assumed; he leaned forward and shook his finger in Lancaster's face.

"And there's another thing, John," he said. "You remember that when we were boys together I resented the difference between your position and mine. Because of a few written words upon a legal document you, the younger, were the honored heir of John Lancaster, senior, living in the big house on the estate, while I was the unacknowledged child, the shame of my poor mother, ostracised even by the meaner whites of the district. Your friends pretended not to know who I was when they rode by."

Lancaster made a gesture of deprecation as Lawson's voice shook with passion. "That's true, Jim," he said, "but can you blame me? Did I not give you the position here?"

"I hated you because of that, John," resumed Lawson. "I wanted to be a surgeon. What a struggle I had, working my way through Johns Hopkins, while you were spending your father's money there! The struggle soured me, John. And once, do you remember, I was operating on a rabbit under curare, which had paralyzed the motor nerves and left the beast to suffer? It was an experiment such as I had often thought I should like to make on you, and you flung a vile word at me and killed the creature. I told you then that I would get even with you some day. The time arrived. I got my own back, and more, but there is one thing that I never told you. Your fiancée was the victim of a misunderstanding. There was no other man."

John Lancaster's deep breathing seemed the only sound in the room; as if galvanized into full strength, he stood now like a panther, poised for a leap, every muscle grown taut, and his eyes gleaming. Joan, paralyzed by the sudden unleashing of Lawson's venomous revenge, could not utter a word.

Lancaster spoke. "You said you were in touch with her and brought her here after she became insane," he said. "How did you do it?"

"You have had your full say, John Lancaster," replied Lawson, "and now I am going to have mine. Under the delusion that your intention was to elope with her, on the day before that fixed for the marriage in the parish church—a romantic plan to evade the family and curious neighbors—Miss Reid went to Savannah, to meet you there. I needn't go into the details of the trap that your unacknowledged enemy set for you, but when she learned that she had been tricked it was too late to return. Her life was ruined, John, and it was I, impersonating you, who sent her there."

Without a sound Lancaster leaped at him. Joan saw the secretary snatch up the lamp and hold it on high. She heard his screaming, terrified voice above the uproar. He stood like some squat statue illuminating the space above the dark in which Lancaster and Lawson sprawled, clutching at each other like two primeval cave men.

It was grotesque, for it was like a man fighting with himself; and, in fact, it might have been Lancaster fighting with his evil angel. He was no match for Lawson, but at first his pent up fury, at last unleashed, matched the two equally. Then Lawson flung his adversary from him and struggled to his knees. As Lancaster grasped him and tried to rise he flung him down again. Lancaster's head struck the corner of the iron bedstead. His hands unclosed; he sighed and lay perfectly still. Joan saw the look of malignant rage upon Lawson's face, saw him raise his heel above the face of the unconscious man. He would have ground out Lancaster's life but that Joan pulled the revolver from her pocket and thrust it into his face for the second time.

Lawson staggered backward, rage and terror depicted upon his features in the light of the swaying oil lamp. At that moment Myers was crouching near her. He set the lamp down. Joan felt a sharp pain in the upper part of her arm. She saw the secretary putting something into his pocket. He dodged the wavering revolver and backed toward the door, pulling Lawson with him.

"I'm going to finish this!" yelled Lawson.

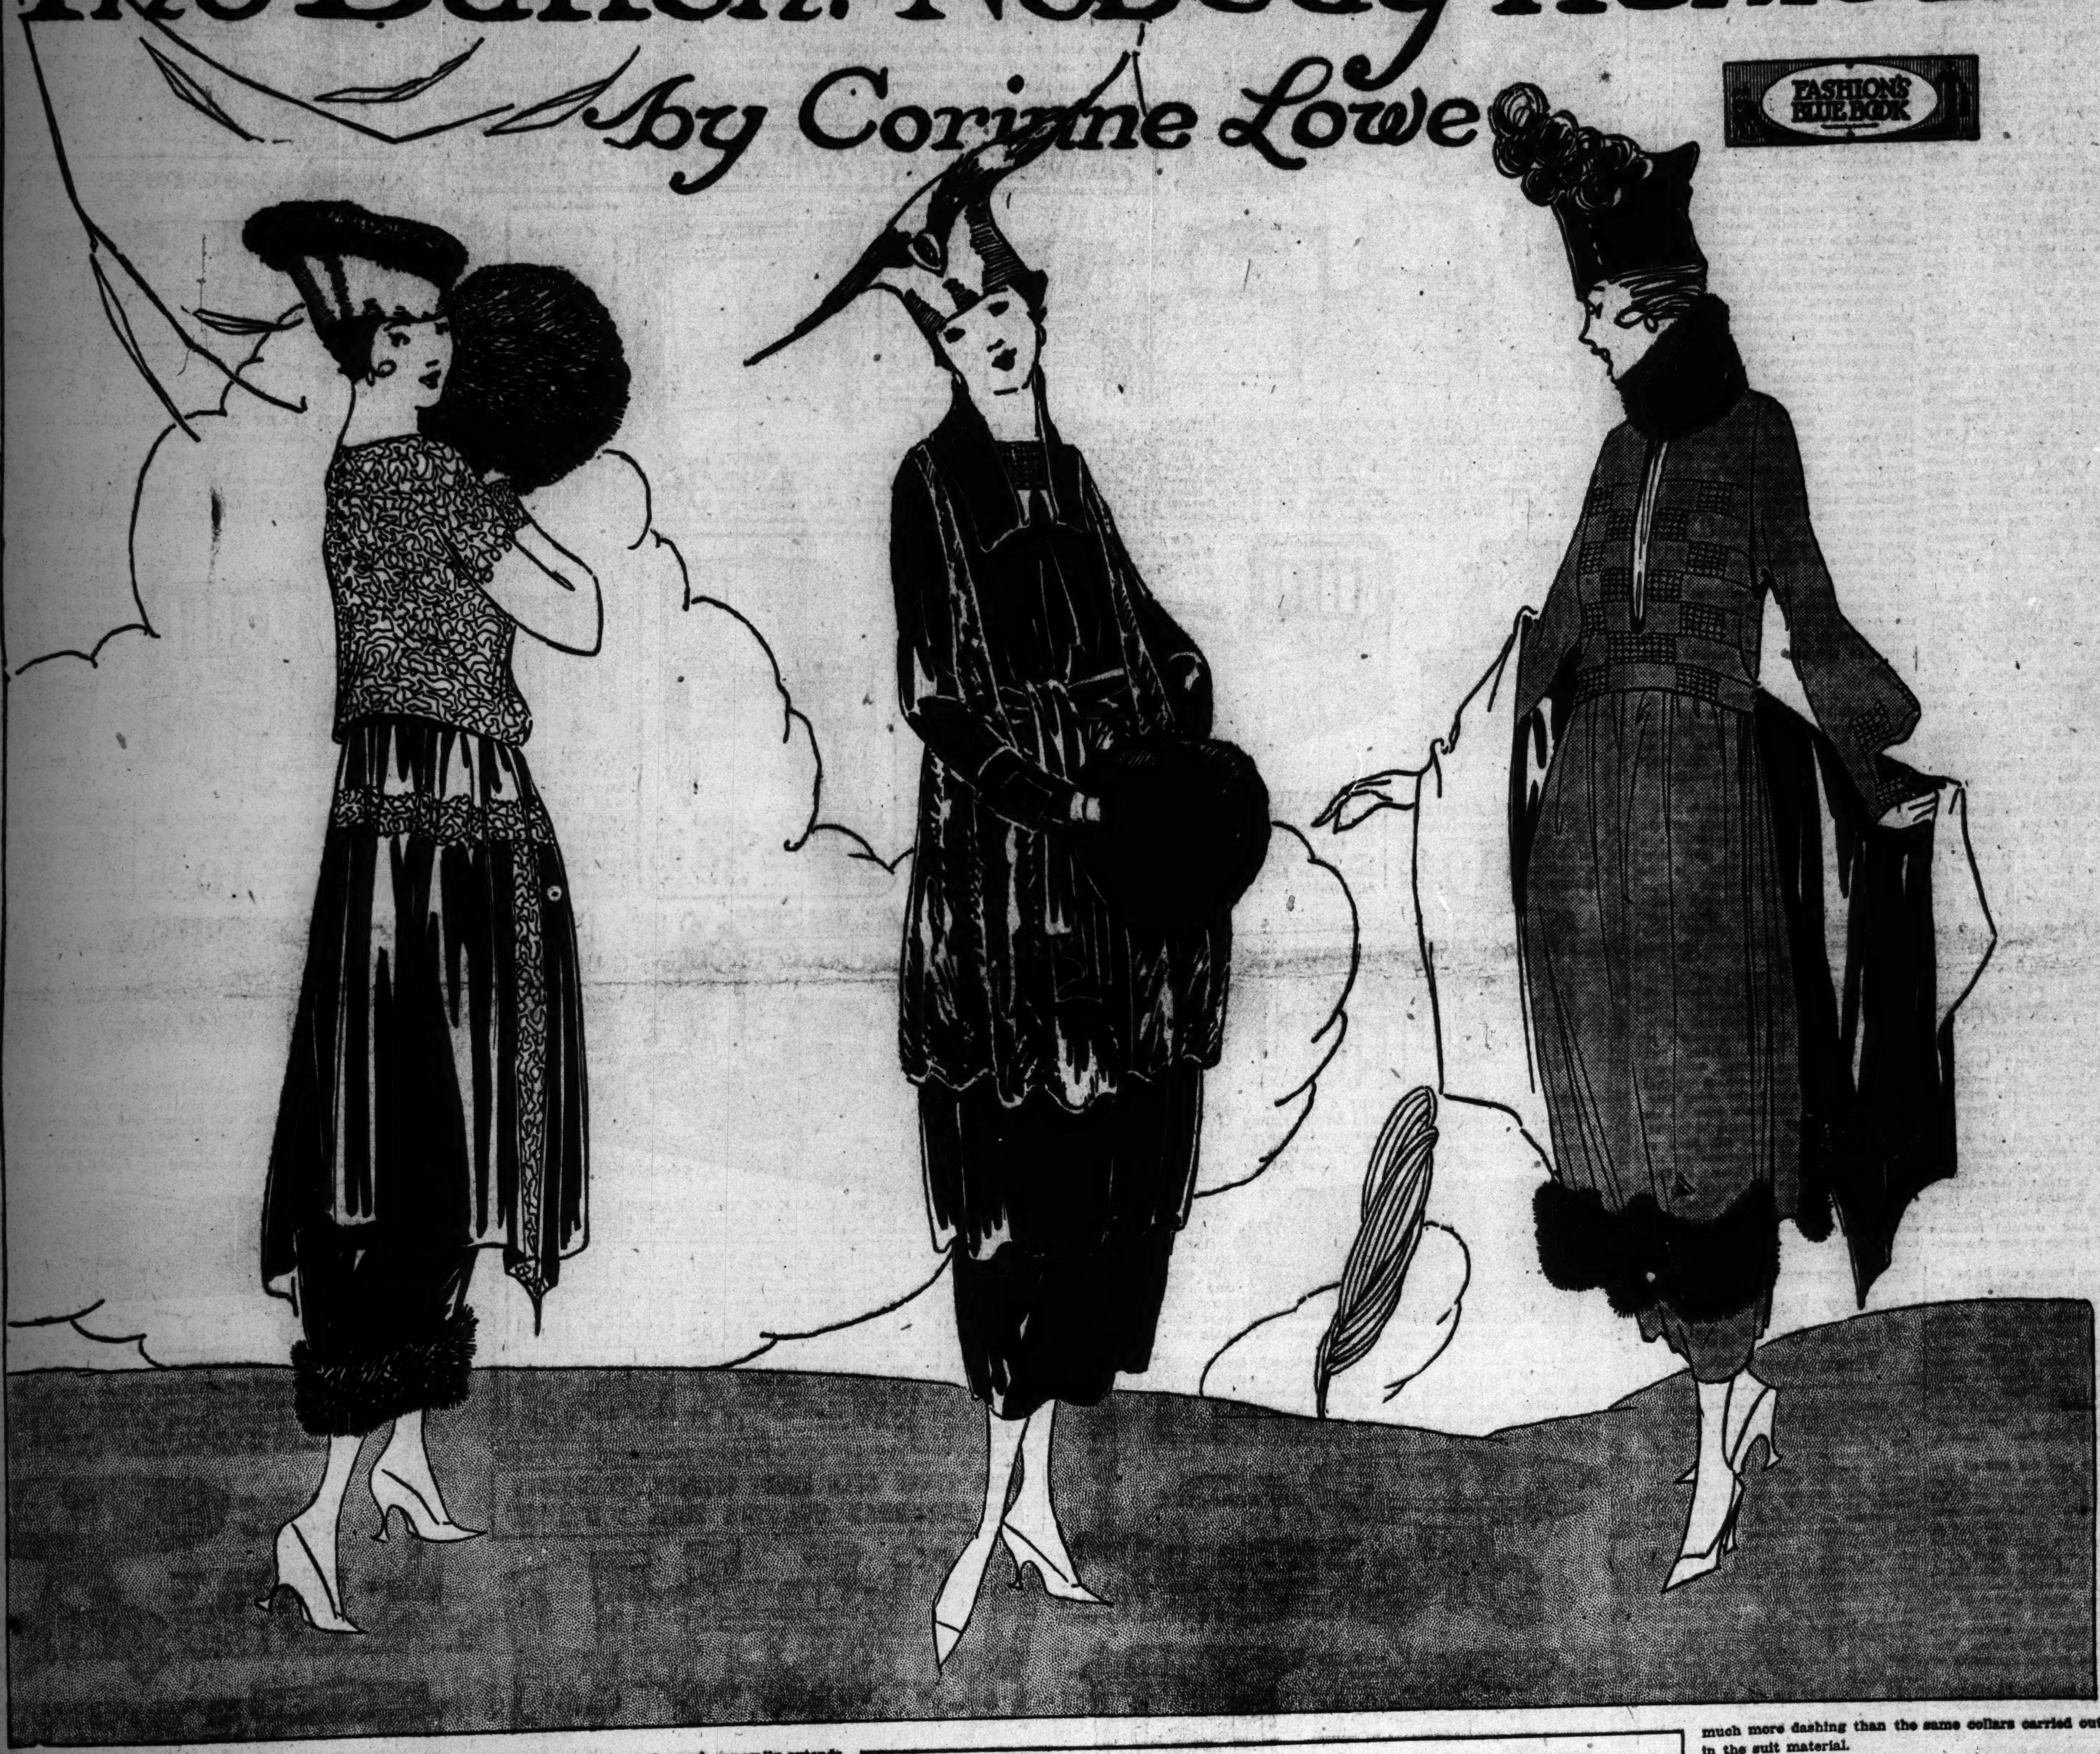
PART 6

The Button? Nobody Hunts It.

by Corinne Lowe

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK



IT'S a press the button and not fasten the button coat—this slip-over garment which contributes to the suit-dress from Bernard in the center of the page. This is carried out in black satin and black broadtail, reveals a glimpse of jet at the net, and, like the suitdress from Cheruit to the right, tells you that no free born suit of today needs the services of a blouse. This one from Cheruit is of gray silk crepe with gray wool embroidery and seal trimming, and the slip-over coat shows the loveliest little glimpse of pink chiffon at its opening. The frock from the left is "Kerensky," one of Callot's little thoughts, and is a combination of black and burgundy colored satin, cuffed at the ankles with mink and with scroll all-over pattern of black, gold, and silver thread.

Slip-Over Garments Are the Bright Shining Novelty of Fall Modes.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The little woman with the knitting was just turning the heel of the soldier's sock. She gave a little comprehensive look to the mannequin just then swaying under her velvet canopy.

"It's a great season for husbands, isn't it?" she remarked suddenly to her comrade at needles.

"How so?" asked the other.

"Why, just look at Geraldine up there. She's got into every one of her suits. There's not a local coat in the whole lot. Every single one is a fast express."

The express coat! It is an endearing young phrase and one that describes the only real sensation of the fall modes. The slip over coat, short or long, has whizzed its independent way through the fashion landscape. And friend husband need hardly know that his wife is going out. He can just sit there wrapped up in his newspapers, same as if he were a winter dress put away from the moths.

The button seems, in fact, to have lost the use of its limbs. It occurs—O, yes, it occurs. Never before did it swarm up and down frocks the way it does this year. Yet most of the time it is useless. It has been reduced to purposes of sheer ornamentation.

Speaking of these slip over coats, they are generally long, but sometimes, on the other hand, they are just cute little short hip length jackets. The slip over motif is also used on many of the separate coats. In the suit coats the opening at the neck generally extends to a depth of eight inches. The separate coats have, of course, a much more generous allowance.

Lanvin has created one of such slip over wraps in taupe colored satin, trimmed with mole skin where the opening dips almost to the knees. Others of this same faith are slashed at the sides so as to show the line of the skirt. And, by the way, there is no use for that time honored gesture of "throwing back" one's wrap. No, indeed! Madam who goes to the theater or opera must seek some shady nook for moulting her outside plumage. Two ways of getting out of the slip over wrap are open to its patroness. And when milady comes back from the shedding she may murmur confidentially, "I took it off over my head," or "It came off by the south straits," just as the case may be. At any rate, it provides a new "slip-over" in small talk.

Speaking of evening coats, the quilting trick is still played. Often this quilted wrap is treated to Egyptian or Chinese embroidery, and, of course, fur is a sine qua non. Often the collar is a cape effect and is carried out variously in lapin—polite for rabbit—mole skin, and dyed squirrel. Several beautiful afternoon coats shown by Lanvin achieve the quilted effect by cording, which, placed at intervals of every two inches, runs across and not up and down the garment.

A day time wrap by Poiret speaks finally of the charm of beige colored serge lined with black velveteen. This has a loose fitting waist to which is joined a skirt knife plaited all the way about. Plaits, you know, are rather deplaited this year. But Poiret shows you just how effective they may be when used in this way. The collar is of mole skin, in diamond effect, cut deep and square in the back and with wide fronts which cross over. The velveteen lining, of course, is confined to the waist.

And, while mentioning plaits, let us linger for a moment about a new skirt of Callot's. Plaited at the sides, it has these plaits confined by bands at the hem of the skirt in a way to recall the old superstition of the hobble. Smart it is, this skirt of the woolen suit, and the photographer in the Bois is given notice.

Every dressmaker knows that it is hard to use lace tactfully. You either put it on plain and severe—dowager fashion, as some one has called it—or you fall into the other pit, of extreme fussiness. Callot has done neither. These handsome laces which she uses—Chantilly, filet, hand made black and white laces, and metallic weave—are managed with infinite art. Lace flounces, double or single, fall rhythmically over the skirts. And often Callot veils the back of the corsage with wide, handsome lace, passes this over the shoulders, under again so that the web drapes the skirt, the ends sometimes falling clear to the hem.

In spite of all croakings of the raven which sits ever above the dressmaking door, jersey has more than held its own. Wide wale jersey has, indeed, become almost as much of a classic as serge or gabardine, and Poiret makes of this fabric, in brick red, one of the most charming suits of the season. This is trimmed with narrow bands of black velvet. These are not applied—no, no; that would be too obvious—but the material is slashed and the velvet placed underneath. This trimming appears on collars, cuffs, and the pockets of the knee length coat.

There are, too, many new little catchy tunes woven about jersey. Lanvin, for instance, alone among all the Paris dressmakers, uses for collars and cuffs a wide wale wool jersey in striped effect. Another new trimming consists of brocaded jersey, one of the new fabric novelties of the year. This is achieved by putting medium weight jersey through two heavy steam rollers, one of which embosses the design upon the face of the material.

But to go back to the real theme of our lay—the slip over jacket. One of the loveliest of such imported garments was hand knitted in a lovely shade of brown, and, slashed at the sides, was worn over a brown velvet skirt. The sleeves were finished by velvet, and the net result infinitely charming.

This hand knitting inspiration is breathed upon many of the late fashions. Worth, for instance, specializes upon hand knitted scarves attached to his woolen suit by way of a collar. These are wrapped tightly about the throat and fall into long ends. It is really ever so much more dashing than the same collars carried out in the suit material.

The slip over jacket is often a part of the suit, and may be worn with the old time blouse. The real novelty of the year, however, is the costume accompanied by no blouse. This is the suit-dress—a different thing, let me tell you, from the coat-dress of last season. It was launched first of all by Jenny, and nearly all of the dressmakers followed. In the center of the page we give, in this handsome costume from Bernard, a demonstration of what the suit-dress is.

This dress is of black satin, trimmed with black broadtail reaching up over the shoulders in suspender effect. Under these pieces of fur goes a girdle of the velvet, and at the neck is a touch of black jet. The coat, of course, goes over the head—and stays there. There is no blouse underneath, only a lining of muslin. Here is illustrated the difference between the coat-dress of last year and the suit-dress of this. The one was a frock that looked like a coat, the other is a two piece dress that looks like a suit. Logical enough, isn't it?

The frock at the right of the page is from Cheruit, and is made of gray silk crêpe, embroidered effectively in gray wool and trimmed with bands of seal. The tunic which you see is the skirt of the slip over coat, slashed at the sides, as so many of them are. The sleeves are in one with the lining, which shows a vestee of pink chiffon. And, of course, this coat, too, goes on over the head in the same carefree, unbuttoned way.

From Callot came the extremely charming gown at the left. This is called "Kerensky," and is a colorful combination of black and burgundy colored satin. The underskirt, extremely tight and short, is cuffed with mink, and the bodice, as well as the bands on the tunic, shows a scroll pattern of black and gold and silver thread.

WINTER FLOWERING BULBS.

THE cheer of the home circle is largely influenced by the presence or absence of plants and flowers. The more common winter house plants were treated last Sunday. There remain only some easily grown bulbous plants suitable for living room conditions. By starting them at intervals of two to three weeks, until about Nov. 20, it is possible to have a variety of flowers blooming from Christmas till spring. It is not advisable to start them later as the bulbs gradually lose vitality and results will be less and less satisfactory.

PAPER WHITE NARCISSUS [Narcissus Tazetta, var. papyraceous]. White, sweet scented, and an excellent cut flower. By starting now it will be in bloom at Christmas and last through January. Of the various methods the most favored is with a shallow bowl, jar, or saucer, filled with pebbles or clean gravel. Place several bulbs close together, the crown down and point upward, the bulbs sunken half way into the pebbles. The side bulbs are not separated from the parent bulb. Sufficient water [preferably rainwater] is added barely to touch the lower base of the bulbs. The bowl or container is then placed in a cool, frost-free portion of the basement to start the root growth. When the top growth is two to three inches high, the bowl is placed at a light window in the living room. If a cool, dark place is not available, even the light window will start the plants, though more slowly. In that case, the containers should be covered to exclude the light till root growth is established. The water must be maintained at the level of the lower surface of the bulbs.

If moss is used instead of pebbles, it is kept merely well moistened in a container of any kind. Sandy loam may also be used in pots or well drained window boxes. In fact, for an abundance of bloom, it is the best method. The bulbs in any event are covered only half way, spaced an inch apart each way, to the capacity of the receptacle. The soil is kept moist. If continuous blooming is desired, additional boxes or other containers may be started every fifteen to twenty days.

After blooming, narcissi are kept in subdued light in the basement, water gradually withheld till the end of April, whereupon they are kept dry till the end of October in cool, dry storage. They cannot be satisfactorily used for storage again, but should then be planted between shrubbery in the garden, six inches below the surface.

CHINESE SACRED LILY. [Narcissus Tazetta, var. orientalis]. Yellow, musk odor. Similar in habit and cultural methods to the paper-white narcissus. It is the earliest of the species.

TRUMPET DAFFODIL (Pseudonarcissus, both Var. Golden Spur and Var. Van Sion)—May be started after Oct. 22 till the end of November, in sandy soil, using pots or boxes after the manner described for paper white narcissus. It, too, must be kept cool and dark till rooted.

HYACINTH can be obtained in shades of red, pink, blue, and white. Ordinary hyacinths can be forced in the home to bloom about February. Under the new "French-Dutch" method of treatment bulbs are produced to bloom from Christmas on. The earliest of the latter is Hyacinth L'Innocence (white). It is advisable to start with that now and use other "French-Dutch" varieties at twenty day intervals the remainder of this month; then start the ordinary Dutch varieties throughout November at intervals of two weeks.

Hyacinths may be started and grown precisely like paper white narcissi or in specially designed bulb vases or window boxes. If grown in glasses, the addition of pebbles is not necessary. They may also be dried off in the same manner after blooming and planted between shrubbery, four inches below the surface.

TULIPS for home forcing can be had in shades of red, pink, yellow, white, and mauve. Mauve are the indistinct gradations of tone between pink and violet, including lilac. Darwin and double tulips are too late for successful house culture. Desirable varieties of suitable single tulips are: La Reine, an early white; Mme. Frylinck, bright rose; M. Trésor, yellow; Vermillion Brilliant, scarlet; Rose Luisante, deep rose pink (somewhate late); President Lincoln, magenta violet.

Between Oct. 22 and the end of November, at intervals of two weeks, tulips should be started, beginning with La Reine. Plant in well drained tulip pans or boxes, using sandy loam, the tips of the bulbs covered even with the surface and spaced an inch apart each way. Water well and place in a dark place, preferably a cool basement,, maintaining an even moisture. They sprout in six weeks. When an inch to one and one-half inches high, remove the container to a light window in the living rooms. The earliest will bloom at the beginning of February.

By drying off the spent bulbs after the manner indicated for paper white narcissus, they may be planted between shrubbery about the end of October, three to four inches below the surface.

FREESIA [F. refracta alba]—White, ten to twelve inches high, fragrant, the odor resembling that of the primrose with a trace of added musk. The flowering stem divides into two or three branches, with six to eight tubular funnel shaped flowers on each. It is an excellent cut flower, easy to force, requiring a minimum of care, and deserves a place in every household. Though it thrives best at 55 to 65 degrees F., a far greater range of temperature will not be disastrous.

For Christmas blooming they must be started in August, but the bulbs may be started now to bloom in February to April.

Plant in sandy loam or potting soil obtained from any florist, one-half to three-quarters inch below the surface, the soil moderately firm in shallow bulb pans or boxes. Water well at the start and place at a sunny window. Keep the soil moist and the surface loose. After blooming they may be restarted after the manner described under paper white narcissus and a few of the strongest selected in autumn to be planted again. For surer results, however, it is better to buy anew.

AMARYLLIS HYBRIDS—The mediocre Johnsonii is more commonly met in the market, but the hybrids should be selected as far superior in size and color. Now is the time to buy bulbs, pot them in good potting soil, and keep them dry, in a frost free, dry basement or other storage, till the beginning of January. They may be started now, but for vigorous growth it is advisable to retard them as for grown plants in the following paragraph.

In the case of existing plants, withhold all water from now on and place them in a dry, frost free basement or other storage. At the beginning of January shake off all earth, leave the roots intact, and in well drained five to six inch pots, using good potting soil moderately firmed about the roots. The bulbs are covered only to the widest part, the upper portion protruding. Water well and place at a sunny window in the living rooms. Then maintain barely moist till the leaves are strong, about March. They may flower before foliage appears, but the watering must be governed by the strength of the foliage. About May 15 place on the porch or plunge the pots into the garden soil, water frequently, and apply liquid manure every two weeks till August. Then reduce the watering gradually till the end of September, when the pots are taken up and dried off as before.

At all times be careful not to let water get into the heart of the foliage; it would cause rotting.

OXALIS—Though grown but little except by florists, it is a desirable, old fashioned plant entirely suitable for home culture. The foliage is used as a substitute for shamrock, which it resembles closely.

Plants that are still green should have all watering withheld now and be stored in a dry, cool place. As soon as sufficiently dry to shake off all soil, pick out the best and strongest of the bulbs and pot up at once in good potting soil obtained at a florist's. Insert the bulbs a half inch below the surface, spacing them an inch apart each way. Water thoroughly and place at a sunny window. Keep moderately moist till the foliage becomes strong, when more water is required. They will bloom in February, when one or two applications of liquid manure should be given.

If desired for spring blooming, do not pot them till January. About the middle of May, weather permitting, they are placed in semi-shade on a veranda or in the garden. Begin gradually to withhold water in August, that they may be dry in September, when the cycle is started again for mid-winter blooming. If desired for blooming at Christmas, withhold water a month earlier and plant the bulbs the second half of August, place outside in semi-shade, keeping them well watered, and move them indoors before the temperature reaches 40 degrees F.

To start now, we recommend Oxalis Bowell [red], the slower Bermuda Buttercup [yellow], and the still slower Grand Duchess [lavender]. The second of these resembles the trifoil of shamrock the most.

A CORRECTION.

In last Sunday's issue, one of the headings was erroneously given as "Hibiscus [Garden Rose Mallow]." This should have been simply "Chinese Hibiscus." The treatment was that of the latter.

Questions and Answers.

Q.—[1] I was told to break off the small bulbs on the Chinese lilies and plant them separately, as they take strength from the main bulb. Is this true? [2] I was told to lay the Chinese lily bulbs and paper narcissus bulbs away after blooming this winter, and to plant them again next year—that they would bloom year after year. Is this true? C. P.

Ans.—[1] No; they would not flower. Plant the entire cluster for better effect. Each little bulb produces an independent growth. [2] It is not advisable; they have not the strength to produce again as house plants, and would prove disappointing, blooming poorly if at all. They are so cheap that it is best to buy new bulbs every year. The paper white narcissus may be set aside when through blooming in winter, the moisture maintained till April or May, then dried off and stored till the beginning of November. They may then be planted between shrubbery, six to eight inches deep, with a handful of sand under each bulb. They may produce small flowers the following spring and gain strength for more flowers the second year.

La-May Face Powder Stays On Better Than Any Other

A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that really stays on; that stays on until you wash it off. It does not contain white lead or starchy rice powder to make it sticky. This improved formula contains a medicinal powder doctors use to heal the skin. White lead poisons the skin and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that encourages enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder pimples. In fact, this new powder helps to prevent and reduce enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples It is also astringent, discouraging flabbiness, crow's feet and wrinkles. To get this unusual powder, learn to pronounce the name correctly. It is called La-may [French Poudre L'Amé]. Because it is pure and because it stays on better than any other, it is already sold by thousands of dealers everywhere. There are two sizes. The large size is only fifty cents and the half size is twenty-five cents. When you use this delightful La-may and you see how wonderfully it beautifies your complexion, you will understand why it so quickly became the most popular complexion powder sold in New York. One thousand dollars is offered to anybody who can buy a better face powder anywhere at any price. Remember, La-may is guaranteed absolutely pure, and it stays on better than any other face powder. When you use La-may and, if it is possible you are not delighted, your dealer is authorized to return your money without question. If you live out of town and your best dealer does not yet sell La-may, he can easily get it for you, or you can order by mail from the American Agent, Herbert Roystone, 106 E. 19th St., New York.—Advertisement.

The Art of Walking is Revived says Antoinette Donnelly

If you missed the Antoinette Donnelly articles telling how she reduced Mrs. Eva Lane thirty-six pounds in six weeks, or how she added twenty pounds in five weeks to Miss Helen Barnett's weight, or how she corrected a head of dry, thin, falling hair and an oily scalp with dandruff, or the article on treating Miss Hill's complexion for pimples and blackheads, send a stamped, addressed envelope and the information will be mailed to you. Any other questions pertaining to beauty and hygiene will be gladly answered.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

THE mother of a 10 year old boy told me the other day that the army man had done wonders in the way of improving her boy's carriage. "He stands erect and walks like a regular soldier," she said. "And he used to slump along."

The army man is to be thanked for much in the way of physical improvement. His shining example of what physical training may accomplish in a month or two is familiar to us all. Added to our overwhelming list of reasons for being grateful to Sammy is his revival of the art of walking.

Not since before the days of motors have there been seen so many "smart folk" afoot. "It is more fashionable to walk nowadays than to ride," we hear from Newport, and Washington, and other smart centers. Maybe the walking stick which is allowable in the hands of the fair feminine who is really a walker has its bit of appeal, for it has, you know, even though a lot of us haven't the courage to appear with it as yet.

And then [just between us girls] there is that fond hope of eternal slimness that nestles closest to our hearts, and we know how hard it is for adipose to rest comfortably or for long on the habitual walker.

The dress you wear when you go walking should be sensible. Never was there a better chance either for a combination of sensible and good looking walking clothes. There is the comfortable hat, the trench coat, if you will, the sensible shoes. Or, what many women find preferable to the long coat, there is the smart Norfolk jacket and skirt wide enough for comfort and yet narrow enough for style.

On my way down to the office I meet an athletic looking girl with roses in her cheeks that give the lie to certain ads of rouge that claim to rival nature's coloring. There's no such rival. This girl wears a smart blue Norfolk suit; tan boots with broad toes and heels an inch high, a wide felt hat, and a swagger stick. She walks briskly, and there is about her such an air of general satisfaction with life that I count that morning lost when the picture of her is not in it.

Now, after you have decided you are going to walk and you have your walking dress planned, the next thing is to know how to walk. And since we are to thank the army man for the inspiration, why not walk as he does?

From an officer in the U. S. army I pass on this information that you must fix in your mind in order to walk like your brother soldier:

Feet are not turned in [or walked pigeon toed]. They are turned out at no more than 5 degrees, which to the ordinary observer would appear to be almost a straight foot position. It is correct for the heel to touch the ground first, but if the weight be poised well forward it will be transferred quickly to the ball of the foot, so that the placing of the foot seems almost flatfooted. If the weight is not poised well forward the heel comes down with such force that the elasticity of the step is largely lost, being replaced by a harmful jar that is transmitted throughout the body. Such a backward carriage of the weight means invariably that pelvis and spine are not in right relation to each other.

The idea that in walking the toes should touch the ground first is one of the fallacies that has grown from the wearing of high heeled shoes. With these there is no alternative to such an artificial use of the foot.

A perfect erect carriage of the trunk of the body is one of the essentials of graceful and healthy walking. There must always be some mechanical reaction to the movement of the foot and leg, as in the slight swing of the arms at the sides [never across the front of the body]. This reaction is greater the longer the step as may be seen in the swing of body or arms in certain forms of skating. If this movement of the arms be restrained the reaction will show in some twist of shoulders or hips.

These matters will take care of themselves if the poise and dress be correct, and with those two elements right practice in the mere act of walking in long, interesting walks, in which there is no thought of detailed movements, is the best teacher of grace.

The clothing of the feet for walking is more important than the clothing of the body. Stockings should be large enough to allow of full, free movements of the toes. Shoes should be straight along their inner border, so that there will be no tendency to push the great toe over toward the other toe. They should be long enough when the foot is at its greatest length—that is, when the foot is bearing the fully weight of the body with the heel on the ground. They should fit snugly about the heel and instep.

Of great importance is the toe of the shoe. It should give ample room for the forefoot to spread to its greatest width when weight bearing. Look at the army man's shoes. The government, knowing how useless a man on a march is if be be ill shod, made a prolonged study of this subject of shoemaking, and the result has not only made walking a joy, but it has been known to cure foot ailments of all kinds.

If you have trouble with your feet after you walk a while you can be sure there's something wrong with the feet or the shoes. You might be flatfooted. Many women are and are unconscious of the fact and blame their pains on everything from rheumatism to gout. If you suspect anything of the sort I can tell you how to test your feet for flatfoot and give you exercises for the correction of the trouble.

You want to get your feet fixed up or else you will not qualify as an up to date girl with the walking fad.

Answers to Inquiries.

KITTY: A SPLENDID EXERCISE to straighten round shoulders is to stand erect, weight on the ball of the foot, with hands on chest and fingers pointing horizontally toward each other, elbows on a level with the shoulders. With your eyes raised toward the ceiling slowly bend your body forward at the hips, keeping the eyes fixed on the point that you have chosen. Do not let your elbows sag. If you practice this faithfully every day for five or ten minutes you will learn to stand erect without effort. Would you like to have me send you the directions for deep breathing? If so, a stamped, addressed envelope will bring them to you.

K. B. C.: Bunions are both painful and unsightly. They are the result of great pressure and friction on the joint, most frequently the large one of the great toe. The joint should be relieved of all pressure. Whenever possible a loose slipper should be worn to allow the toes to spread, then take a piece of adhesive plaster and bandage the great toe, bringing it into its normal position. This will relieve the inflammation and in many cases the bunion itself will disappear. You may also paint the joint with a lotion composed of two drams each of carbolic acid, tincture of iodine, and glycerin. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall mail you the formula for excessive perspiration.

IRENE: SINCE YOU ARE FORTUNATE enough to have plenty of milk and buttermilk always on hand, why not use a portion of it as a means of making the complexion white and soft? This may be done by bathing the face in the milk before retiring. A stamped, addressed envelope, please, and I shall mail you the formula for a skin food.

MRS. BOB: THERE ARE FEW things that are so eloquent of breeding and training as our voices, and not one who wishes to appear refined or well bred will use her voice so that it passes beyond her intended hearer in ordinary conversation. Moreover, if the average woman wishes to retain an attractive face until old age she must use the muscles of the throat the way that nature intended them, for nothing so disfigures the muscles of the throat and face as continued abuse of the voice. A well modulated voice, low but distinct, is a beauty asset as much to be cultivated and prized as a pretty face.

READER: PYORRHEA, OR "RIGG'S disease," is an ailment of the teeth that results in a formation of pus in the sockets and the loss of the bone about them, when the teeth gradually loosen and fall out. A weak solution of fluid extra of ipecac, two drops in a half glass of water, used as a mouth wash before retiring, will act as a preventive and perhaps as a cure, in the earliest stages of the trouble. Great care must be taken to keep the mouth in a sanitary condition. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall be glad to mail instructions on the care of the teeth and mouth hygiene.

M. L. H.: AFTER MIDDLE LIFE faulty living habits are, as a rule, the cause of excessive overweight. If there is in your family a tendency toward superfluous flesh you should begin now to form habits that will check this tendency. By allowing yourself plenty of exercise each day and limiting yourself to a diet containing few fat producing foods, you do not need to fear the oncoming years, for they will not bring with them their bugbear of weight. Alcohol, sugar, fats, milk [as a beverage], potatoes, salmon, mackerel, pork, goose, fat meats, nuts, butter, cream, olive oil, and water at your meals are all tabooed for any one wishing to reduce, or, better still, to keep at bay a tendency toward overweight. Send a stamped, addressed envelope and I shall mail you the complete diet list and exercises used in reducing.

VANITY: NOW THAT WINTER IS almost upon us, the remnant of our summer coat of tan does not seem so attractive as it did with the accompaniment of sports clothes, so it behooves you to begin your bleaching now. There is, however, a good deal of indiscretion among women in the use of bleaches. Never use on your face or neck a bleach that contains lead or mercury. Both of these ingredients are dangerously injurious. The following formula has in it no harmful ingredients and at the same time does effective work: Lactic acid, one fluid ounce; glycerin, two fluid ounces; tincture of benzoin, two fluid drams, and water enough to make sixteen fluid ounces. If the skin shows slight irritation, discontinue for a day or two and use cold cream. A stamped, addressed envelope, please, and I shall mail you the directions for facial massage as well as a formula for skin food.

GENEVIEVE: I AM SORRY, BUT I cannot recommend the use of a prepared dye to you. There are few preparations that dye the hair that do not leave an aftermath of hair troubles. Once dyed, as a rule the hair requires constant attention to keep it the same shade and treatment to offset the effects of the dye. Then, too, unless it is applied by an expert, dye is almost sure to be apparent.

Real Love Stories

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

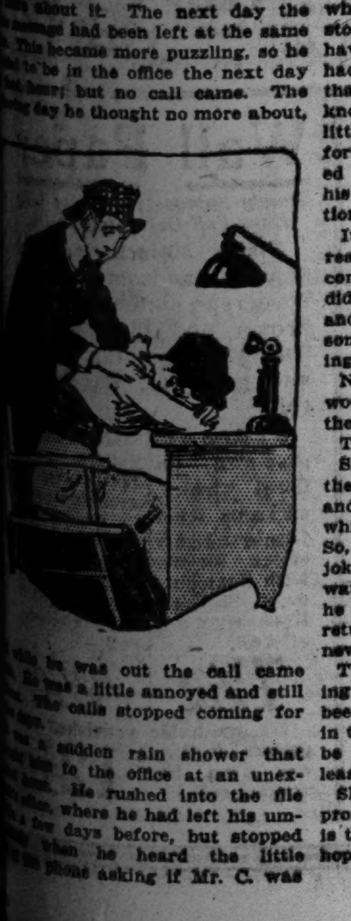
Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. "The Tribune" will pay $5 for every story published. Manuscripts will not be returned. Address Doris Blake, "The Tribune," Chicago.

PLAYING THE PART.

HE was a confirmed bachelor, not interested in the fair sex in the least. He lived at his club, had all the comforts and conveniences he could wish for. His business and traveling were all that interested him. All who knew him knew his indifference to women.

One afternoon when he came to his office his secretary said a young woman had called, leaving the name Ruth, and when asking her number had replied, "Just tell him Ruth called; he will know."

Mr. C. was surprised, but after being in the office a few minutes he thought no more about it. The next day the same message had been left at the same hour. This became more puzzling, so he arranged to be in the office the next day at that hour; but no call came. The following day he thought no more about it.



[illegible] while he was out the call came again. He was a little annoyed and still puzzled. The calls stopped coming for a few days.

Then a sudden rain shower that drove him to the office at an unexpected hour. He rushed into the file [illegible] office, where he had left his umbrella a few days before, but stopped short when he heard the little [illegible] phone asking if Mr. C. was in. He was just about to interrupt her and ask what she wanted when she said, "Tell him his wife called," and as she hung up the receiver she turned and saw him standing there.

"O, you heard," she cried, and flung herself on her desk and cried as if her heart would break.

Acting on a sudden impulse, he walked over and put his arms around her shoulder and patted her, assuring her the while that it was all right and please stop crying. He found it pleasant to have his arm around this little girl; he had never taken any notice of her other than usual office courtesies. He didn't know she had such pretty hair or such little hands, and she looked so tiny and forlorn that he had never seen or wanted anything so much as to take her in his arms and let her forget her humiliation.

It was a few months later when he realized that the club wasn't such a comfortable place after all and his meals didn't taste as good as they used to, and his books and smoking were a lonesome way to spend an evening after having spent a few with pleasing company.

Now he eats at a table of three and wonders how he lived so long without them.

This is her story:

She had watched and admired Mr. C. the year that she had been at his office and had dreamed and dreamed things which she was sure were improbable. So, feeling much like having a little joke on this serious young man, she watched him as usual and knew when he went out and about when he would return, this being the secret of his never receiving the calls personally.

The day of her fate she had been feeling blue all morning, and he had not been in and was not expected until late in the afternoon. She felt if she couldn't be the part she wished she could at least play it.

She now wonders what ridiculous imp prompted her, but all she can say now is that it was the silliest thing she ever hoped to do, but she was glad she did it.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards's determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists. —Adv.

DORIS BLAKE SAYS

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

If you were born this week you are

Just.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

FROM Libra, whose protégé you are, you have inherited a wonderful perception of justice, if your birthday falls during the week beginning today. This is typified by the balance of the scales of your sign. Vision, perception, and foresight all are yours, and they enable you to fill worthily the high places of the earth and hold the whip hand over your fellow men by force of unassailable right.

You are inclined to take a calm, well balanced view of life unless you are placed among people or conditions that prey upon your sympathies. In that event you become actually ill, both mentally and physically.

You are [illegible] of a stubborn setness of purpose that will not yield to an outside force and that the opinions of others have no power to move. This quality, if put to the right purpose, may prove to be a tower of strength to weaker natures around you. You do not work well under others because your originality makes it difficult for you to bend to authority and you create far better than you carry out the plans of others.

The old saying that "October's child is full of woe" stands disproved, for this is one of the luckiest weeks in the entire year. You seem to have reached that perfect balance of the mental zodiac. Your powers of endurance are far greater than those of preceding Libra people, and though you often go to extremes you are not so likely to break under the strain. Defeat for a time depresses you, as it does most of us, but you regain your buoyancy of spirit and start again with renewed energy.

All Libra people seem to possess unusual psychic power together with a remarkable sense of intuition. This intuitive power enables you to read accurately the minds and hearts of your associates. You feel or sense things and the unexpressed thought will influence you more than the spoken one.

You are a lover of all things beautiful and luxurious, though you have a streak of the penurious running through your nature. You are also a lover of home and family and are capable of your best effort only when you have others dependent on you.

You will best succeed as a lawyer, jurist, military commander, commercial organizer, lecturer, or musician.

When you marry be careful to choose some one who will help you on to greater things. So it is that fearless Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) might prove a helpful companion. But perhaps the happiest union would be with Aries (March 20-April 19), provided you can both learn to control your tempers.

Your two most fortunate weeks are those beginning April 13 and Dec. 8. Your colors are crimson, black, and light blue. Your birthstone is the sapphire.

Telling Character.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have recently been introduced to a young man. He has told some of my friends he would like to take me to dances. I long for him every time I see him, but sometimes I think he has a bad name and then again I hear a great deal of good about him. I would like to know if you have a booklet or something of the sort to give a good broad definition of love, or how to go about telling character.

"FRANCES."

You never get a good broad definition of love out of a book, neither will you be able to tell men's character from books. The thing to do is to develop common sense enough to know the good from the bad in men. Women have an intuitive sense on this particular subject which usually serves them in fine stead. Then a man's action toward you and toward others is a cue by which you may judge. His standing in the community and his reputation are other things to judge by.

Bad Table Manners.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 27 years old and am engaged to a man of 30. We think a great deal of each other, but there is a little thing that bothers me. His mother died when he was a mere child and he has always had to make his own way and take care of himself. He has made good and is a highly respected man of good habits and good morals, but not having had a mother's training, his table manners are not what they should be. He is constantly associated with men and he doesn't seem to know it, or think that they are not right. Am I foolish to let little things like that bother me when he is a good man otherwise, or is there some way I could make him see things without hurting his feelings, as he is very sensitive?

"EMMA."

Bad table manners certainly have a way of getting on the nerves of the one who sits across the way. To a woman of any refinement, the situation of trying to blind one's self to this particular fault is difficult even though the offender may have every other virtue in the world. Reproving a grown man is a ticklish job at best. Men don't like to be criticised, but with tact and kindly handling a man can be gradually won away from some of these table vices. Don't try to reform all at once. With an occasional reference to the bad manners and their effect on other men, or to perfect table manners and their effect on still other men, some good work can be accomplished.

He Isn't Jealous.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 20 years of age. Two years ago I met and fell in love with a young man two years my senior. He seemed to care for me a great deal, but about a month ago he met my cousin, whom I never liked. He has been treating me rather coldly since, and has been going with her. I love this young man and hate to see him going with a flirt. I have read your answers and have followed some of your advice. I have been going with another man since he has been going with my cousin. As this does not make him jealous, I do not know what to do. Do you think he loves my cousin or me? If you will kindly tell me how to get his love back I will be thankful.

If your going with another arouses no spark of jealousy in the man's soul, my advice, F. S., is to try to become resigned to the fact that your cousin is the more favored one in his eyes and heart. You'll spare yourself much unhappiness if you school yourself to this at once.

Quite Right, Lucile.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 17 and met a young man in a store on Sunday. Last night I met him on the street. My sister was with me and as I did not know his last name and wanted to introduce him I asked him his name. Please give me some advice on this subject, as I will not look at him again if I did not do right.

LUCILE."

Of course, you did right, Lucile. Why worry? There was not anything else you could do under the circumstances but ask him his name. No one takes exception to that.

Precocious Young 'Uns.

"Dear Miss Blake: We are two friends and are very curious about some of our boy friends. How old should a girl be before she goes out with a boy? We are 12 and 13. What does it mean when a boy winks at a girl?

"BEATRICE AND MILDRED."

Sixteen at least, Beatrice and Mildred. I suppose that seems to you a thousand years away. It isn't, though, and it won't be long until you have arrived at it. In the meantime don't let yourself get sentimental about these boys. When a boy winks at a girl it means he is either fresh or full of mischief. In either case don't respond to the wink.

Patriotism First.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a boy of 19 and am in love with a girl of 17. When I am at a dance or on the street she does not act as though she cares for me. But when I am home she acts as though she does, because if I tell her I want to join the army she begs me not to. What can I do to make her love me more?

OSCAR."

Join the army, Oscar, in spite of her protests. She'll think a great deal more of you for being patriotic. If she doesn't appreciate you there'll be lots others who will.

Not Right.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young woman of 23 and have been married twice. My first husband is dead. My second husband only lived with me a month and I just heard that he went away to war. Is it all right if another fellow who is in love with me calls on me? Please advise me.

No, it isn't right for you to accept the attentions of a man while you are still the legal wife of another, and you are the man's legal wife until legal separation has been established.

With Mother's Approval.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 15 and like a boy one year my senior. He wants to take me to a picture show next week, and do you think it will be all right if he brings two other boys for two of my friends, so that we can all go together? Mother approves, but I am worried about father.

GLADYS."

If mother approves, Gladys, it's all right. I don't think you need to worry about father, as he undoubtedly has faith in her good judgment.

Reason Sufficient.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 16 years old and I have been going with a young man for some time. Recently I felt a growing hatred toward him for which I cannot account. Can you tell me the cause of my dislike and advise me what to do?

"RUTH."

My dear girl, I couldn't give you a reason for your dislike when I have never seen the young man in question. But why stop to analyze the reason if you do dislike him? That is sufficient cause to discontinue his acquaintance right away. There must be some reason for it.

Forward Suggestion.

"Dear Miss Blake: Do you think it is proper to ask a fellow to send me his picture? I have never seen him yet, but received a letter from him once.

"MORRY."

I wouldn't ask him for it, Morry. He would think you either forward or awfully interested in him, either of which thought is not good to put into a would-be suitor's head. Wait until you have known him longer and until after he has asked for your photograph or suggests an exchange.

Her Privilege.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been reading this section of the paper every day and I will be very thankful if you will please settle our argument. Should a girl speak first to a boy when she meets him or should she wait until he speaks?

The girl speaks first.

Resuming Maiden Name.

"Dear Miss Blake: If, after divorce, a woman resumes her maiden name, should she use the prefix 'Miss' or 'Mrs.'? I thank you.

RUTH."

The prefix "Miss" is right.

Motor Etiquette.

"Dear Miss Blake: When a crowd comes home from a party in a machine, and there isn't room for everybody in the machine, is it perfectly proper under the circumstances, for a girl to sit on a fellow's lap, and to have his arm around her, to keep her from falling out?

H. P."

Yes, that is all right providing everything is done in a spirit of good, clean, wholesome fun.

Birthday Gifts.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 18 and have been keeping company with a boy of 17. I would like to know if it is proper to give him a birthday present.

"J. W."

It would depend on what you gave him and how long you have known him. If the gift was not an expensive one and you have both been in the habit of remembering each other's birthdays, there was nothing wrong about it.

Chance to Show Spirit.

"Dear Miss Blake: If a man tries to spoon with you is that a sign he has respect for you?

ETHEL."

The fact that a man tries to spoon with a girl is a sign that the man is giving the girl a chance to make him respect her by her refusal to be the party of the second part.

Jealousy to Be Expected.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been corresponding with a widower for nearly a year, and as he was a former friend of the family he knew me well, and we were always very good friends. I naturally sympathized when he had his loss. While on my vacation I accepted the attention of a gentleman I met, and when I wrote him of my good times he objected, saying he didn't see why I did so, and he surely was downhearted, claiming my letters had grown into his life.

"Is it customary for a man to make such a request without having asked a girl to marry him? Kindly advise me how to answer his letter. I am really very fond of him because he is a man of fine qualities.

A. D."

It is customary for a man to show jealousy when he is very fond of a girl, even though he has not proposed. However, that does not signify that a girl has to accede to his wishes and give him entire monopoly until he has asked her to marry him.

Roxanna Inquires.

"Dear Miss Blake: Could you please suggest a name for a club? At present the members take part of the time for fancy work and the other for amusement.

ROXANNA."

Why not call your club "The Sunshine club" or "The Happy Workers"? If you would like a French name for it, why not call it "Entre Nous" (pronounced ontra noo) which means "Between Ourselves."

CONSTIPATION IS A PENALTY OF AGE

Nothing is so essential to health in advancing age as freedom and normal activity of the bowels. It makes one feel younger and fresher, and forestalls colds, piles, fevers, and other dependent ills.

Cathartics and purgatives are violent and drastic in action and should be avoided. A mild, effective laxative, recommended by physicians and thousands who have used it, is far preferable. This is the combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin sold by druggists under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It costs only fifty cents a bottle; a trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 456 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., for whom this advertisement is published.

Model 263

that offers you that comfort, style and wearing service that has made leading physicians endorse Gossards—famous couturieres and society leaders of the world's fashion centers accept them as the standard of corset style—and millions of women the world over acknowledge them as the answer to true corset economy.

This real Gossard will outwear three ordinary corsets, and every time you put it on you will delight in its ease of adjustment, revel in its constant comfort, and be conscious of the fact that it accents the style of your simplest suit or most elaborate frock.

In the plain, soft, pink or white Sterling cloth of which it is fashioned all the money has been invested in actual quality, which will be seen at a glance in its intrinsic fineness of weave, and will be later realized in its gratifying wearing service.

You will find this model 263 at your favorite store—never before has even Gossard offered such a remarkable corset value.

Other models at $3.50, $5.00 and more.

Acknowledging the radical advance in price of all merchandise, the discriminating buyer cannot but be impressed with the remarkable values offered in these unusual corsets.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16, or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt, or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

Clotilde's patterns are made in New York exclusively for "The Chicago Sunday Tribune" and may be obtained through no other service. A Chicago distribution office has been opened, and following this announcement orders will be filled on the day of receipt. An extra 2 cent stamp will allow for letter postage and will thereby hasten delivery. Patrons are requested to send stamps instead of dimes, as money is frequently lost in the mails.

Suitors' Mistakes Contest.

Did you make a mistake that cost you the one you wanted to win more than any other? Was it an unkind remark, a selfish deed, a mean or careless one, an error or tendency of your past come to light? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Mistake That Cost Me the One I Wanted Most to Win." Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Tribune."

No Place for Baldy.

My erstwhile suitor had hair that was rather scanty on top and he was extremely sensitive on the subject. My pet parrot, who rejoices in the name of Baldy, has an unfortunate habit of escaping at inconvenient times. The other evening I was so engrossed in the search for my bird that I did not immediately notice my sensitive young man coming up the walk. Suddenly I spied the truant parrot on the branch of a tree nearby. "Baldy! O Baldy!" I yelled in no gentle tones. "Will you come here?" When I turned to view my friend, he was rapidly going the other way, and for all I know he may be going yet.

Uncle John's Hard Cider.

I lead a pious life and rather pride myself on my temperate, almost abstemious habits. My sweetheart and I took a ride into the country and stopped at my Uncle John's. They passed the cider. I had never tasted it. I drank half a glass and began to talk and laugh and chatter like a magpie. Still I thought nothing of it, but I thought I recognized a queer expression on the faces of various members of the group. I only knew later when Sunday after Sunday Tom failed to come to see me. He thought my pious, church going ways were all so many decoy ducks intended to catch him and that I was not what I seemed. This experience lost me the only real sweetheart I have ever known and cost Uncle John my best respect for him.

Not a Cave Man.

I loved Fred with all my heart, but I did not want him to know just yet. Therefore, when he "popped the question," I said: "But I do not love you." I expected him to say, "I'll make you love me, then," and I could picture the many thoughtful ways in which he would fulfill that promise. I was mistaken. He merely said, "I'm sorry; I always thought you did," and has never returned

ETIQUETTE

by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the paper only.

CONSERVE HOSPITALITY.

IN these days when conservation is almost a national password it seems desirable to relate it to personal matters as well as to universal ones. Perhaps, chief among those to be checked and changed is that all too prevalent one of overcordiality and superhospitality. Favors are well enough in their way and most desirable in their proper place, but when overdone they become—as so many other things do under similar conditions—oppressive.

Take, for example, the woman who urges second and third helpings of food on her already surfeited guest at dinner or luncheon. A polite refusal but produces further supplications to have "just a little bit more," and the poor visitor experiences a feeling akin to indigestion, ennui, and nausea. Needless to say, further opportunities for the arising of such situations are carefully avoided by the guest.

Then there is the man with the too ready motor, who insists on giving his friends rides when perhaps they desire nothing less. Simply because we ourselves may always be glad of a "lift" is no indication that others feel as we do, and after a person has politely declined it is best to let the matter drop.

Insistence has its value and politeness is indispensable, but the two cannot always be coexistent and the well bred man or woman learns and puts to good use the fact that "enough is enough and a little more is too much."

MRS. M. W.: Upon receipt of a stamped addressed envelope [the one inclosed with your letter was addressed, but unstamped] I shall be happy to mail you the names of some books on etiquette.

Before and After Marriage.

"The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on marriage disillusions. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." Write on only one side of the paper.

Wait All Day, but Not All Night.

Before marriage, whenever I was late for an engagement with my husband to be, he would always greet me with a smile. If I apologized he would say: "Why, I'd wait all day for you, dear." But now! The other evening I was dressing to go to the park with him. He happened to be ready a couple of minutes before me and growled up the stairs: "Say, I can't wait all night for you." I had to hustle and almost run to catch up with him when I got outside, for he was half way down the block.

It's a Long Day Now.

Before our marriage Frank would come and spend Sunday with me at my parents' home. When it came time for him to leave in the evening he would say: "Dear, but doesn't Sunday fly by! It seems I just arrived and here it is time to leave you." But now it sounds like this: "These Sundays get my goat. I never saw such a long, dreary day in all my life."

Like the Babbling Brook.

Before marriage he used to call me pet names, such as Birdie, Lily, etc., Now, after being married a year, I reminded him of this, and this is what he replied, "Birds and lilies shut up at night, but you never do."

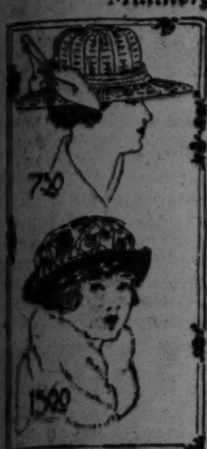
"Such Charming Hats"

We hear this every day in our popular Millinery Section on Third Floor.



Their exquisite charm is but half their attractiveness. When such beauty is combined with The Fair prices—then the charm is complete.

The Assortment of Styles Is Truly Amazing. Come and See

YOU'LL be surprised to see how many different hats are so perfectly becoming. You will probably be instantly interested in hats of gold and silver lace, as well as hats with fur trimming, for these express the new note in mid-autumn millinery. You will see a delightful array of hats for evening wear—hats of every imaginable shape—hats trimmed with small metal flowers, with small wreaths, with velvet, with lace and with the popular fur. The showing is now complete—and the moderate prices are

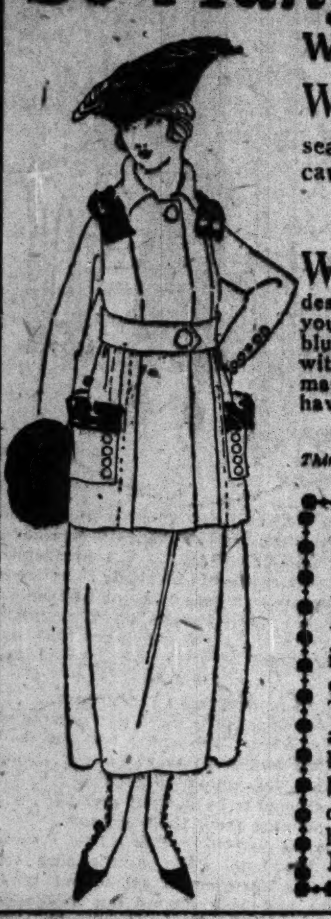
So Many New Fall Suits to Admire!!!



We've Never Shown So Many Stunningly Attractive Models

WE are really sorry that this isn't our Fall opening time. We're positively better prepared for a showing of the new Fall suits than at any time this season. A collection that deserves our strongest praise—a collection that will cause you to stand and admire—such are the suits that we now have to offer.

These Suits Are Fur Trimmed and Plainly Tailored

WE could easily fill this page with pictures of the various models, but that isn't practicable—so we must content ourselves with reproductions of two of them. Even a description of the various styles is quite beyond our pen. You must come and see them—you really must. You'll find stunning tailored models in gray mannish materials, in navy blue and black broadcloth, in burellas and serges. You'll find impressive models trimmed with kid coney collars and cuffs. You'll find every garment an example of perfect workmanship, lined with peau de cygne—and interlined. And you will find how modest we have been when we have such suits as these.

"CASTING on" is the first thing to learn in knitting. It is the foundation for the article that you wish to knit. Do not cast on tightly. First unroll at least a yard and a half of yarn, keeping the ball to your right and the thread to your left.

No. 1—Hold the needle with the thumb and first two fingers of the right hand and the thread between the third and little fingers of the right hand. Bring the thread around under and over the top of the first finger of the left hand, holding the end of it with the thumb and fingers and slip the point of the needle under the thread as illustrated.

No. 2—Slip the finger from under the thread and needle, which leaves a loop of the thread on the needle as illustrated.

No. 3—Now, holding the loop of thread on the needle with the right hand, place the thread over the first finger of the left hand, with the point of the needle in place ready to to take the first stitch.

No. 4—Slip the point of the needle under the thread on the first finger of the left hand and bring the needle to the top of the finger as illustrated.

No. 5—Holding the thread and needle in position of No. 4, with the first finger of the right hand bring the thread under and over the point of the needle as illustrated in No. 5. We are now ready to draw the thread through the loop.

No. 6—Now, holding the thread in place with the first two fingers of the right hand, draw the thread just placed over the point of the needle through the loop as illustrated.

No. 7—After the thread has been pulled through the loop, take the finger away.

No. 8—Now pull the thread with the left hand and we have finished the stitch. Care must be taken not to pull the thread too tight after the stitch is complete. Repeat from instruction No. 3 until enough stitches are cast on your needle to make the foundation for your article.

Next Sunday further instructions in knitting will appear.

PERUSING PRIVATE PAPERS.

WOMEN, and especially working women, are, I believe, more honorable about little matters than they are generally given credit for; but a few who have no sense of honor in regard to the affairs of other people are responsible for having women as a class dubbed unprincipled. In business it is the duty of every employé to guard the information which comes to her, advertently or inadvertently, about the operation of the firm, its financial condition, and the standing of the employés with their employers.

Stenographers, cashiers, and bookkeepers are usually intrusted with the confidential matters of the firm by reason of their work, and it is as much a part of their duty to guard this confidence as the accomplishment of the tasks incumbent on their positions.

I had a letter last week from a girl employed in an office with a number of people. She took care of the correspondence of the secretary of the firm. She had not been employed in this position long, and, as her last job had been with a small concern, where she was the only person in the office besides the proprietor, she had not felt the necessity of guarding carefully the letters and papers intrusted to her. In her former position she did not have to worry about leaving letters addressed to her employer open on her desk, or hesitate at leaving a letter of confidential nature exposed in her typewriter, as there was no one around to hide them from.

In the office where she is employed at present, however, she finds that nothing is safe from other hands and other eyes. According to her statement, there are at least four people in the office who invariably pick up and read, in passing, the letters and notes that lie on her desk. A great deal of the dictation she transcribes is in the form of notes to the president, manager, and other officials of the firm, and generally of a confidential nature. She naturally feels a responsibility in seeing that their contents are not made the subject of common gossip in the office. Of course, it is convenient for her to keep her papers and letters on top of her desk, but she has had to resort, greatly to her annoyance, to keeping all papers locked in her desk and leaving nothing exposed in her typewriter when she is away from the machine.

This is an intolerable condition in an office. The employés who satisfy their curiosity in this way have no more excuse for their bad manners than if they picked up a letter in the home of a friend and read it without permission.

A man or woman who would read the letters or documents which are intrusted temporarily to the care of another employé is not only dishonorable to his employers but does an injustice to his fellow worker by placing her in the light of an irresponsible employé.

If the girl guilty of securing information of her employer's affairs in so dishonorable a manner as the surreptitious reading of his correspondence is not amenable to hints and intimations, she ought to be told straight from the shoulder to keep her hands off and refrain from reading all papers, letters, and other documents not intended for her perusal.

How I Overcame Insomnia

Have you discovered relief from the agony of sleepless nights? Have you found some remedy for broken sleep? If so, won't you please pass your secret on to some poor sufferer from insomnia? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published on "How I Overcame Insomnia." Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Address Antoinette Donnelly, Chicago Tribune.

Riding a Bike.

Once I was restless and could not sleep at night and was consequently fagged out during the day. I cured myself in this way: There was a paved drive six miles long looping the south side of the city, and I made it a practice to ride around this drive every evening on my son's bicycle. I could easily make this trip in an hour and would sleep like a log for the rest of the night. This exercise not only cured my insomnia but cleared my brain for the next day's work and also enabled me to win the cup in the old men's endurance race on bicycle day. J. C. A.

A Salt Water Plunge.

Every night before retiring take a cold plunge in salt water. This will not only make one sleep but also feel refreshed. N. O.

Great Thought Regulator.

Each night before retiring I read a few verses of my favorite poems. After retiring I try to memorize them, but before I am through many verses I usually am asleep. This appears to be a great regulator for the thoughts. H. G."

A Pinch of Salt.

When I go to bed I take as much table salt as I can hold between two fingers and hold it in my mouth as long as I can so it melts slowly, and I go to sleep and sleep all night long. F. V. H.

Just Before Retiring.

Bathe the feet in hot water and take a cup of hot milk, then go to bed right away, and count to 100, but you will not reach that high point, as you will be sound asleep. J.

Childhood Ambition Contest.

Did you ever have a childhood ambition—a humorous one? Of course you did. And what you did wasn't anything like what you dreamed. Tell us what your great ambition was—and then tell us how far short you fell. Do it in 250 words, on one side of the paper, and address manuscripts to Childhood Ambition Editor, Chicago Sunday Tribune. For each story printed $1 will be paid. No manuscripts returned.

No Chance to Fly.

As a child I read Jules Verne's "Three Weeks in a Balloon," and ever since it has been my highest wish and ambition to go out flying. I was born and reared in a small village in northern Norway, so, of course, had no chance to realize that ambition. I am now sitting in a cage, handling other people's money all day long; it is as near as I came to getting my wish. I love speed, but the street car ride to and from work is my limit. E. K.

Styles of Yesteryear.

It was my greatest ambition in childhood to wear a Prince Albert coat, an Ascot tie, and a high silk hat. At times I hoped that there might be a dark green cockade in the hat, or some other trimming to give it distinction. Often I grew jealous of the men who drove the carriages at funerals, for how dignified they looked with their glossy tiles. Now, instead of wearing Prince Albert coats and a shiny topper, I am grateful to have a shiny coat and a last year's straw. G. P.

Too Much Latin.

When I was a child my highest ambition was to become a physician, the greatest woman physician in the world, whose name should be known to every one in the scientific world. At school Latin, an essential thing for a clear understanding of medical terms, was my Waterloo. Slowly my intense hatred for Latin grew and gradually my dreams faded away. Now I am an unknown personage stationed behind the ice cream counter at my father's drug store." "F. H."

With the Rest of the Chickens.

My son when 3 years old was continually playing with the chickens. One evening sonny could not be found. When just about to give up hopes we glanced into the chicken house and there with the rest of the chickens he had gone to roost. L. P. C.

To Have and to Hold.

Terrorizing the Citizens.

When I was a boy I used to long to be a bold bandit and hold up trains and stage coaches, and gallop through towns shooting out the lights and terrorizing the citizens. But I developed into a justice of the peace, a terror to automobile speeders and other malefactors, which is far from my early ambition. C. K.

An Expert Swimmer.

We lived near a river in my childhood and my chief ambition was to be an expert swimmer. I was getting along exceedingly well and tiptoeing up to success when one day, while in swimming, I felt something cold wrap about my ankle, and I found it to be a monstrous water snake. I got out of the water as soon as possible and that event discouraged me in my ambition to be an expert swimmer. M. C.

Amid a Rain of Mirth.

As I was leaving the office one rainy day I borrowed an umbrella from one of the other girls to protect the hat I was wearing. As I stepped out of the elevator I opened the umbrella and carried it above my head through the corridor of the building, much to the amazement and amusement of everybody thereabouts and to my own consternation and embarrassment when I woke up in trying to negotiate the revolving doors that lead to the street. The Wrong Bridegroom.

There apparently were two newlyweds at our hotel. Bob and I had just been married and were there on our honeymoon. The couple directly across the hall seemed to be on their first joint trip, too, judging from their actions.

One afternoon, rather late, I came into the hotel after a shopping trip and was hurrying to get to our room, as we had been invited out to dinner. Just as I got in front of our door I saw a man bent over tying a shoestring, and, thinking it was Bob, I pushed off the man's hat, kissed him on the back of the neck, and said, "Home ahead of me, dear?"

With that our door opened and there stood Bob. The man in the hall stood up and I found that I had kissed the man across the hall. G. H.

Hiding the Coattail.

Mine happened at the wedding of one of my relatives. The ceremony took place in the afternoon and was a church affair. I was detained at the office, and when I got home I did not have much time to dress. I wore a frock coat and after I put on my overcoat I saw that it was too short for the dress coat. But I pinned up the tail of the frock coat with two safety pins.

I arrived at the church just in time, but all of the seats were filled except a few down at the front. The usher took me down to the front row. As I walked down the aisle I noticed a titter behind me, but did not think much about it.

When I sat down I heard a sharp click and I knew then that in my hurry I had forgotten to remove the safety pins. M. D. McD.

Lift Corns Off With Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Corns and calluses loosen and fall off! Magic!

Few drops of Freezone take all pain and soreness from corns instantly

No humbug! Any corn, whether hard, soft or between the toes, will loosen right up and lift out, without a particle of pain or soreness.

Wonderful discovery by Cincinnati man

This remarkable drug is called freezone and is a compound of ether discovered by a Cincinnati man.

Ask at any drug store for a small bottle of freezone, which will cost but a trifle, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every corn or callus.

Put a few drops directly upon any tender, aching corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears and shortly the corn or callus will loosen and can be lifted right off with the fingers.

Freezone doesn't eat out the corns or calluses but shrivels or rather loosens them without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Just think! No pain at all; no soreness or smarting when applying it or afterwards. Try a little and see for yourself. It is surprising.

Few drops stop corn-pain

Take soreness from any corn or callus instantly

Women should keep freezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice. If a corn starts hurting just apply a drop. The pain stops instantly, corn goes!

Tiny bottles of Freezone cost but a few cents at any drug store.

My neighbor's small son was fond of the good things of life, so when his mother decided on food conservation he proved an unwilling victim. At the first "Hooverized" meal, served after a hearty Sunday dinner, he frowned his disapproval. Looking disdainfully at the bread, butter, cake, sauce, and tea, and noting the absence of cold meat, salads, etc., he asked: "Don't we have anything on plates?"

Mary and her little brother, Billie, were standing in the parlor of a big hotel. Much awed at their luxurious surroundings, they were gazing about, when Billie's glance fell on a picture of Marie Antoinette. Edging up to Mary, he whispered, "Who's that lady?" To which Mary replied in a confidential tone, "Why, she's the one that owns the furniture."

BEANS, SOY SPECIAL.

THERE may be as much difference between one kind of beans and another as between the finest porter house steak and a steak from the poorest quality of round. We do not know enough about that most charming family of plants which furnish us the meat stuff of the vegetable kingdom, or vegetable protein.

When I write about them I hate to pin myself down to the practical facts about beans because there are so many gay and entertaining facts, and some of the French writers on foods have written charmingly quotable things about them, which writings, however, I was not acquainted with when my enthusiasm for this food once reached its height, after a study of the bean varieties and eccentricities in a commercial museum. It is a good place to learn "to know beans."

It seems to me that I must be mistaken, but yet I feel sure that it was a "marrowfat bean" that I brought home, among other things and other beans, from the war gardens of some 10 year old boys the other day. At any rate they were a larger white bean than I have seen anywhere, and as near as possible like the best dry white bean I have ever had anywhere, the Soissons. In Paris the Soissons is cooked exquisitely, and served with a morning glory of butter in the center of a serving, or the thinnest slice of butter imaginable rolled up into some flower shape. Perhaps the white kidney, a much narrower bean, shaped like what is called in our markets the French lima, is as good, as melting, as easy to cook, as this marrowfat, but I have that yet to prove.

"Don't forget the soy bean," was one of the commands urged on growers this year, "for there is sure to be a larger demand for the beans for human food." Last year these beans sometimes cost no more than a third as much as navy beans and only a fourth as much as limas, and more people were trying them and failing in their cooking than ever before. They really ought never to be subjected to a boiling temperature. Protein of any sort is easily hardened by much heat, and these beans have a high per cent of this food principle. With this in mind they may be baked, etc., like navy beans.

The soy bean, though so long used in China and Japan, whence we have such products as soy sauce, was introduced many years ago into the United States as a soil renewer and fodder crop. It is an astonishing thing that so many of the most substantial foods we have today have come to us by the forage route. Besides this, the most influential scientific idea of today about a man's diet has been worked out by ten years of constant laboratory experimentation in the feeding of animals.

Years ago there were farmers' bulletins, or parts of experiment station bulletins, devoted to soy bean growing, and its use as a fodder or "legume hay." It is interesting that so far back as that "the total digestible nutrients" of fodder crops were discussed, though there was to follow at least twenty-five years before more than a few people would even listen to the word "nutrient" in reference to their own diet. "Roughage" was a term much used that far back, as contrasted with such condensed foods as grains, while now we use the term in talking about human diets.

A bean is a rather highly balanced food, therefore in cooking it the only thing necessary is to add flavoring. Its skin is roughage, but of a sort which cannot be borne by everybody. Most beans contain both carbohydrate and protein in large quantities, and the soy bean is rich in fat.

To my mind, it is like carrying coals to Newcastle to add either egg or cheese to beans. Vegetable flavors like onion and carrots, a little sweetening, possibly, to bring out a latent sweetness in them all, a little salt to emphasize delicate qualities, etc. When salt pork is used for flavor and to add that fat which always makes them seem richer, salt should be added with great caution. Bean loaves, croquettes, etc., dry up the bean a little too much, in my mind, in most cases, and in making these unnecessary proteins are added.

Perhaps we shall some time learn to make the bean curd of soy beans which the Chinese use so much. I am hoping to get a precise recipe. The soy bean flour came into use some time ago, and four years ago when I first wrote of this bean—also called soja, togo, etc.—a correspondent wrote for information and last year wrote about his own experiment, which is mentioned below.

The medical writers, who for a considerable number of years have used this bean extensively, and written much about it with recipes, say that the percentage of protein in soy bean flour is almost a third greater than the percentage of protein in the whole bean because the coarse, fibrous hulls contain little protein. The yellow soy bean that we know contains nearly 35 per cent protein, according to these writers.

In Farmers' Bulletin 824, one of the series on "How to Select Foods," with the subtitle, "Foods Rich in Protein," there is a recipe for baked soy beans and an estimate of the available protein, but it seems to me this recipe begins in the wrong way. I have tried it along with a method in which the beans were merely soaked, treating both in the same way after that process, and found that the beans which were not boiled ten minutes before soaking, as this recipe suggests, were much the softer when cooked. The beans, though finally baked for four or five hours, are first simmered till tender.

And here is a confession derogatory to what I have many times recommended. Most beans undoubtedly need soaking overnight. There are a good many pros and cons and exceptions, and we have some things yet to learn about different treatments for beans mainly starch and those more largely protein.

Steerage passengers, men in working camps, as well as soldiers and sailors, and the peasants of the world, have had a one dish bean meal, or what is sometimes called a ration, though this word is also used in another sense. One of these rations that I have seen, and at the captain's request tasted, in a large ocean steamer was a bean soup which had almost as many conserved green beans [commonly dried and soaked up, but sometimes canned] as of the dried seed beans. I have seen this in several parts of Europe. With some black bread it makes a satisfactory meal. Other vegetables of various parts improve the flavor.

Marrowfat Bean Stew.

Wash and soak beans overnight with water to cover. Measure the water around beans in the morning and add an equal quantity of fresh water to it. This quantity of water will be sufficient to cook them in if the work is carefully done. The cooking must be of the gentlest, since the pulp of the bean will become soft and mealy in an hour. Longer cooking is necessary only when the skins are to be eaten.

Bean skins are laxative, like all roughage, and also seem to contain a ferment which makes them more so. A small onion and a carrot added to these beans will give them so satisfactory a flavor, with salt, that after they are put through a strainer or sieve the purée can be eaten as a soup, and no one will miss a fat addition, although the whole will be more deliciously savory if a little butter is used. A good bean soup and bread and butter or crackers with some fruit for dessert make a good meal.

Soy Bean Cheeses.

Perhaps some of the most valuable experiments we might make with soy beans are suggested by Friedenwald and Ruhrah, who say: "The oriental races most frequently eat the bean in more or less cheesylike foods, which are prepared from it. The most common of these are natto, tofu, miso, juba, and shoyu. Natto is a sort of bean cheese, made by boiling the beans until they become soft and then placing the resulting mass in a warm cellar, where it ferments. Tofu is made by soaking the beans in water, crushing between millstones, and boiling in about three times their bulk of water. The protein is precipitated and the resulting cheese eaten. The white milky fluid of the above has nearly the composition of cow's milk and tastes something like malt. It may be used in infant feeding to advantage."

I think it is this tofu which the Chinese fry in deep fat.

Home Made Soy Bean Flour.

There are patent soy bean flours, mostly known to the doctors only, but which may become better known to the professional this year, and become lower in price than they have been when put up for medicinal preparations. F. and R. give recipes for gruels, broths, muffins, nut cakes, pancakes, and breakfast foods. They also quote from a French writer recipes for grilled soy beans—grilled like chestnuts, old ones first soaked in warm water—bread or cakes, etc. One of these recipes suggests that the strained beans should be served hot on lettuce or romaine, a combination that has every promise of excellence and is agreeable.

That it is possible to make soy bean flour at home the following letter, printed when received but worthy of repetition, shows. It reads: "I wrote you several years ago to find out where I could buy soy bean flour and you gave me the directions, etc. I thought it over and went to a seed store and bought the beans and ground them in a common coffee mill. . . . A cup of soy bean flour, two cups of whole wheat flour, and one cup of good raisins with butter about the size of an egg, salt to suit, I cook in a double boiler and serve with milk and cream. This is for breakfast, and what I do not eat I put in the oven and bake for dinner; it makes a meal good enough for any one."

The writer wrote this letter to aid those who wanted to live economically. He sought soy bean products because they have been so highly recommended for those wretchedly prescribed to persons called diabetics. It is possible to find at least a hundred different diabetic diets, all half way good, it seems to me, and all containing some bad things.

Varied Activities of Women.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president, is at the head of a movement for conservation in dress.

The sanitary policewomen in Cleveland are being encouraged to wear trousers instead of skirts.

A free aviation school for women desiring to help Uncle Sam win the war has been opened in St. Louis by Capt. John Perry, the balloonist. Already over 500 women have been enrolled.

For the sixteenth successive year Mrs. Ella Walker has again been elected president of the Berwick, Pa., Widows' association, the only organization of its kind in the country.

Mrs. Robert Lansing, wife of the secretary of state, has accepted the secretaryship of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

The former Dowager Empress Marie, mother of the deposed czar of Russia, is now engaged in tilling the soil on her farm near Yalta.

Women doing men's work are now admitted to full membership in the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen.

Mrs. George Q. Horwitz, mayor of Moore Haven, Fla., is not a suffragist.

Girls! Juice of Lemons Clears and Whitens Skin

Prepare a quarter pint of lemon beauty lotion at the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness, and tan and is the ideal skin softener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of Orchard White at any pharmacy or toilet counter and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms, and hands. It naturally should help to soften, freshen, bleach, and bring out the roses and beauty of any skin. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

Genuine Orchard White bears the name, Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Sunday School Needs Organ.

"I AM writing to ask if you will allow me the privilege of becoming a member of the Corner and of begging a few things. We have recently organized a Sunday school in the factory district and have no music. We are eager to have some one give us an organ. If it is not in perfect condition even we would be thankful to receive it. Now, for myself, I have a class there and I would much like a few pictures to go in our room and for my personal self I would like to have some books to read. I would be most thankful to get these and would gladly pay the postage or express charges upon them. J. S."

Always there are those among our readers to whom the opportunity to aid a Sunday school appeals with peculiar force. I hope this letter will come to the attention of some of these and that I may receive an early request for the address of this correspondent. She is likely to get an offer of pictures for her room and I trust the books for her own reading may also be given. It is a pity that she did not give us some notion of what kind of reading she wishes, for to ask for books only is rather vague. Perhaps those who write to her may learn from her if she wishes fiction, or history, or poetry, or what other line of literature. In writing for this address please do not omit to send stamped, addressed envelope.

Letters for Shut-ins.

"Please send me a number of addresses of shut-ins and lonely people who would like to receive letters from lively Christian Endeavorers. I wish to introduce the idea into our society. I should like as much information as possible concerning sex, age, etc. I think we would be able to use a good many such addresses. Our topic at the meeting where the subject is to be expounded is, "Brighten the Corner Where You Are." I am going to suggest brightening some corner where we are not! G. C. S."

An excellent idea! I only wish the letter had come in season to get it answered in time for the meeting of which the writer speaks, but I hope the addresses that will be sent to her as a result of this letter will bring many lonely shut-ins within the radius of the cheer offered by the "lively Christian Endeavorers."

Anything for Fancy Work.

"Will some of the kind Corner women send me a few silk or velvet pieces or odds and ends of lace and ribbon, and any left over remnants of crochet thread? I am a widow of limited means and am not able to buy the things that I ask for. Anything that could be used in fancy work of any kind would be greatly appreciated. Mrs. M. E. S."

We get this kind of application constantly, but there always seems to be some friendly Cornerite who can grant the request. I trust that may be the case in this instance and that I may receive an appeal for the name and address of the writer accompanied by the clipping and a stamped, addressed envelope.

Baby's Crib Wanted.

"Can there be any reader of the Corner who has an old bed for a baby? My year old baby rolls about so at night that she falls out of bed. I have had much sickness lately and have a big doctor's bill to pay, so I have little money, and I cannot go to work to earn more while my baby is so small. I will gladly pay charges upon sending it, if necessary, and will call to see about it if possible. Mrs. H. E."

There must surely be a crib somewhere for this small child. The youngsters outgrow their beds quickly, and unless there is a constant succession of younger children the bed is of no use. Will not some one who has such a bed to give away write to me for the address of this mother, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope?

Doll Cart or Buggy.

"If there is any little girl who has a doll cart or buggy for which she has no more use I know of a friend with three little girls who would like much to have it. Their mother can't afford to buy one, as their father went away and left them some years ago and has never been heard from since. The mother has to work to pay the rent and take care of the children. If any one in the city can give such an article I shall be glad to call for it or to pay expressage upon it. The mother's initials are Mrs. M. S., and you can write directly to her or to me. "Mrs. B. T. T."

I hope this toy will be found for the children. It seems of less importance than a crib for the baby and yet we who love children are hurt to think of their natural longings that must so often go ungratified. I shall be happy to send the address of either the mother or of the friend who writes in her behalf on receipt of the request accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope.

Books on Fancy Work.

"I am a middle aged woman and try hard to make a little extra money on needlework. This is a great help to me when through with other hard daily work. I should be thankful for any kind of magazines or books on fancy work. I should like to hear from any one who would care to send me something in that line. My pocketbook is not very fat, so I must depend for such instructions on some of the good, kind sisters. "Mrs. G. C."

As has been said before in another connection, we have enough women among us who are interested in fancy work to make it pretty sure that such directions for work of this kind will be forthcoming. I shall hope to receive applications for this address [accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope] from those who have such magazines to give away.

Hard to Get Clothes.

"I know of so many who are assisted by the Helping Hand that I am writing to ask if you cannot aid me, too. We are poor country people and have four children. Two girls are 6½ and 5 years old; one boy is 3½, and there is a baby girl a year old. It is so hard to keep them in clothes! I wonder if there is any other mother who has some things her children have outgrown and which she would like to give away to some one who could use and appreciate them. I am handy with my needle and I would heartily appreciate anything that is worth making over. I also need house shoes badly and would be glad to get shoes that some one does not care to wear any longer. I wear a No. 6, double E last. I can take my needle and make almost anything presentable to wear. I do love to keep myself and my children looking clean and neat, but it is hard to do so when one has few clothes. "Mrs. Z. W."

Most mothers of children do not think it an easy matter to keep the little ones clean and neat even when clothes and help are plentiful, and naturally it is much more difficult in a case like the above. Are there not some outgrown garments that could be sent to this mother? As has been said often before, we object strenuously to asking for clothing through the Corner, but now and then a case presents itself which makes such a pull upon the sympathies that we cannot refrain from pressing the needs of the writer. This case is one of the kind. When writing for the address be sure to send a stamped, addressed envelope with the request.

Needs Boy Scout Suit.

"I saw a notice in the Corner the other day about a scout growing up and finding his suit too small for him, and I wonder if it would be possible for me to get an outgrown Scout suit. I was 12 years old last February, and I so much wanted to join the Scouts, and now I have just had a chance to join, and they said it didn't make such a difference if I didn't have a suit right away. But I am afraid to risk getting one, as my parents are not able to buy me one, and I can't go to work until I am 14 years old, as I am small for my age. I save every cent I get, but it takes a long time to get enough together to pay for a suit. I would greatly appreciate getting such a suit and would pay all charges on it. P. G."

Where is there some liberal soul who wishes to encourage patriotism in our boys? Will not such a one write to me and get this lad's address and put him in the way of getting the suit he wants? We feel the pathos of the statement he makes that "it takes a long time to get enough together to pay for a suit." Older persons than he are forced to recognize this condition frequently. I shall hope to receive an early application for this boy's name in order that he may get the suit and enter the Scouts while he has the chance.

Sickness Takes All.

"I want to thank the Corner for the helps I have received from it and also for the little things that were sent to my little invalid daughter. I was sorry not to be able to write personally to all these kind friends, but I lost their addresses and must take this method of sending them my words of thanks.

"I wonder if you could put me in touch with some one who has some carpets or furniture that are no longer needed and that could be sent to me. For fourteen years I have been trying to get furniture and carpets and every time I have earned and saved enough to get them somebody has been taken sick and the money went for that. Then this last spring the floods came and the water took most of what I had.

"I have five children—three girls, aged 12, 10, and 6, and two boys, aged 9 and 3. I want to educate my children and sew and do everything I can for them. Everything is so high now and it seems as though my husband could never make a living. He works, but I have to go ahead with everything and if ever the children are educated I will have to do it myself.

"I want to make a little money by taking roomers, but I can't seem to get started. I expect to go into the school-room as soon as my baby is old enough to take with me.

"I have a white bearskin coat for a 2 year old that I am willing to pass on to any one that needs it and I have been wondering if any of the Cornerites have some sweaters that have been outgrown. Mother."

A letter of this kind impresses me with the round of toilsome duties that must fill the lives of some of our constituency. No woman worth the name is likely to complain of the legitimate work of rearing and caring for a family that comes upon her, even if this must be done in circumstances of pretty strict economy. But when misfortunes come upon her that swallow up the small savings she has painfully accumulated for some specific object it is not always easy to be cheerful and philosophical. All of us have enough hard times and disappointments to fit us to sympathize intelligently with the writer of the letter just given. I hope that among us may be some who have the ability to give their sympathy practical form and perhaps from their surplus to aid this mother to get part of the articles for which she longs. I shall be happy to send her address to any applicant who will ask for it. Even if the furniture and carpets cannot be sent to her I am sure she will be glad to get a few friendly letters.

Not a Word of Thanks.

"I have tried to do several kindnesses through the Corner. I have copied poems and songs and sent quilt pieces and reading matter, and in all four cases I have endeavored to assist I have never heard a response. Not a word has come to me of thanks or appreciation, although I wrote to each one, inclosing a stamp and asking if the articles were received. However, I will try again, as I have all kinds of fancy work materials and will be glad to share them with an old lady of 74, M. T. H., whose appeal appears in the Corner, if you will be so good as to send me her address. Mrs. E. Y."

Once in a while such a complaint comes to me and I always regret the cause most deeply. When I recall the numberless letters of thanks and acknowledgment that pass through my hands, of the fervent gratitude displayed by many of our correspondents who have been helped by the Corner, I am at a loss to account for the ungraciousness of the few. As a matter of course there are sometimes circumstances, as in the case of the mother of Dorothy, which prevents prompt replies to letters—but it is unfortunate that several of these should come by the way of one correspondent. I am glad and grateful that she is not discouraged and I shall hope to hear that she has had later and happier experiences. The address she sought has gone to her.

A Place for the Old Man.

"The possible undercurrents in the life of the 'young old man,' who is not wanted as a boarder by his son-in-law, appeal to my sympathy inexpressibly. True, he may be one of the many old people who are so irritable and cranky that no one would want to give them board or to put up with their unpleasantness for the sake of anything they could do. Yet there is a place of contentment in this world for every creature that God put into it if they could only find the groove that He shaped them to fit. Therefore I am going to try to join you in trying to guide this unwanted boarder to where by his own efforts he may feel himself independent and know the peace and quiet that every human being yearns for in the twilight of his life. If he can give me proof [statements from responsible people] that he is honest, sober, clean in his person, agreeable in disposition, and free from lung trouble or other contagious disease, I think that I can get him in with a refined Christian family where he would be treated as one of the household and have a chance to make himself of service. Mrs. T. B."

I have sent the address of the "young old man" to this correspondent and I trust she may be able to do something by means of which she can put him in touch with those to whom his services would be of value. She lays her finger upon one difficulty in connection with many old people when she refers to those whom she describes as "so irritable and cranky that no one would want to give them board or put up with their unpleasantness for the sake of anything they could do." Unfortunately there are a good proportion of those who are getting on in years who are not pleasant to live with. This may not free us from the obligation of caring for them, in a way, but unless they are bound to us by the ties of blood and of remembered devotion we do not choose to have them as inmates of our homes. I trust the "young old man" does not belong in this category, and that he may find somewhere the "groove" for which he was intended. If any one else wishes to write to him I shall be glad to send his name on receipt of a request for it accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope.

Another letter has been called forth by the same subject:

"May I say something suggested by the letter signed 'Mrs. M.' on the topic of an old man's want of work? I wish we could all stop and think what it is to a man who is along in years and who wants work. I should like to tell of a case much like this man. The subject is 61 years old, with a family of five children. Three of these children are married, have homes of their own, and possess automobiles. The man of whom I speak and his wife still have two children to raise and send to school. The family always have had plenty to do with, a good home, and every comfort. Eighteen months ago they lost everything and were out of a home. They had to have work to live, but there were months and months when this man could get nothing to do. He had been in the grocery business in earlier days, but now there was no place for him, although he does not look over 50 and is able to do almost any ordinary work. The man and his wife are now working, but are separated from their children. One daughter has been working since the close of school. What the parents want now is some honest work which will allow them to be at home in the evening with their children, but although both the man and his wife have been in business and are capable they have found nothing such as they wish. Does it not seem to you as though there should be a place for an old man, where he can earn an honorable living and keep his self-respect and still make good, even if his children who are married do not want him? Mrs. M. L."

Indeed I do think there ought to be such a place for the elderly man. We have had only these two cases brought to our attention, but there is not one of us who could not tell similar tales gathered from observation or from the experience of others. I know of one man only a little over 50 who has been vainly seeking a fair chance to earn his living for the last five years. He is a competent business man who lost his former position through no fault of his—the business shut down and he was thrown out with many others. He has been unable to get anything which would pay more than a starvation wage and his wife and children have been forced to go to work. What are we going to do about it? Has anyone a solution to propose of this painful problem?

Plea for Helpless Boy.

"I have a feeble minded boy who does not walk or talk, and is entirely helpless. He is 10 years old. I am writing to ask if any one has a large go-cart for which there is no further use in that household. If it could be given to me I would gladly pay express charges upon it. "Mrs. M."

Such a sorrow as this mother bears is one that no solicitude can really lift. But we all know that the mother love goes out most tenderly to the child who is most sorely afflicted, and, bearing this in mind, we can gain some faint idea of the gratitude that would fill the writer's heart at the means by which she could be assisted to take her charge into the fresh air. Is there not some of the constituency who can either bestow the go-cart asked for or give information as to where one may be procured? The mothers of healthy, normal children must feel that they greet with joy the chance to make a thank offering for their blessings, of something that will help this sorely tried parent. The address of Mrs. M. will be sent on receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope accompanied by the clipping.

Any Kind of Curio.

"I am a crippled man and have been shut in for years. You probably recollect that I asked you to give my name to any Cornerite who has canceled stamps to give away. Any kind of a curio would be appreciated by one who has little to do but be interested in the little things that other men don't bother with or consider of little value. John T. T."

Collectors have longings and delights never dreamed of by men who "despise the day of small things." The joy that is bound up in a curio is known only to the informal mighty guild. Our cripple seeks and finds solace in trifles which have value in his sight and in that of the brother "gatherer of simples" in a sense he comprehends. "Any kind of a curio," leaves a wide margin to those who are moved by the picture of the maimed shut-in, forced to find "sermons in stones," food for thought and entertainment in "little things other men do not bother with or consider of little or no value." Canceled stamps, post cards, pictures, old coins, oddly shaped pebbles will have a place in his cabinet of treasures.

Some Infants' Clothes.

"Please, I am going to ask you a dear request. Could you get me some infant's clothes? I am greatly in need of them. My health has been poor for some time. Try to help me out and God will bless you for it. I am handy at repair work and please don't forget me as an expectant mother. Mrs. Grace T."

It should not be necessary to press home upon the hearts and consciences of women readers the weight of this modest request. We ought not to ask for baby clothes twice in the same week, but after reading the few lines penned by the expectant mother we succumb to the temptation to lay them before women who have passed through the same ordeal of pain and suspenseful expectancy and learned from it sympathy with sister sufferers for love's sake.

Chili Sauce.

"Will you kindly print a recipe how to make chili sauce. Antoine K."

Peel and cut up together three dozen large tomatoes and dozen onions. Chop into bits half a dozen green peppers and mix with the tomatoes and onions. Stir together a teacup of brown sugar, five tablespoons of salt, half a dozen teaspoons each of powdered allspice, cloves and cinnamon; two teaspoons of ground ginger, and a saltspoon of paprika. Put these spices into three quarts of vinegar, add the vegetables, mix thoroughly, and cook steadily for two hours. When cold bottle and seal. Another way: Peel and chop two dozen ripe tomatoes and six onions, remove the seeds from two red peppers and chop the peppers fine; then stir them into the tomatoes and onions. Season all with a teacup of granulated sugar, four tablespoons of salt, three teaspoons each of powdered allspice, cloves and cinnamon, and a teaspoon of ground ginger. Pour over all two quarts of vinegar and boil in a porcelain lined kettle for two and a half hours. When cold bottle and seal.

Loan of a Typewriter.

"I am making one letter cover two, and also returning 3 cents postage, for which I am in your debt. I should like to know if there is any chance of your securing for me the loan of a typewriter? There must be some one in this big city who will be generous enough to comply with my request. I will gladly pay express charges. It is needless to say I will take good care of the machine. I can furnish all the references any one may desire. J. N."

Can somebody effect the coveted loan of a typewriter for our correspondent? She is a working woman and independent to the extent of shirking from the suspicion of mendicancy. She would borrow a machine by the help of which she may perfect herself in her profession. A straightforward business woman looks to us for the helping hand we are pledged never to withhold when we can lend it to an honest man or woman who needs us. By that need he becomes the neighbor whom we are enjoined to love as ourselves. Name and want are hopefully registered.

YOUR SICK CHILD IS CONSTIPATED LOOK AT TONGUE

Give "California Syrup of Figs" if cross, bilious or feverish.

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative should always be the first treatment given.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that the little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs;" then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

THE HOME HARMONIOUS.

By Anita de Campi.

Artificial lighting is of Paramount Importance

A STEP is taken in the right direction toward harmonious furnishing in considering the importance not merely of light but of light in its relation to shadow.

Formerly the decorator, professional or amateur, did not concern himself or herself about the artificial lighting of a room. The furniture, rugs, side walls, draperies were considered apart instead of in conjunction with lighting effects as they are today. The room was planned and carried out by day. Samples were "taken to the light" to be matched, the light invariably meaning daylight.

The fact is now recognized that the importance of home functions performed at night equals—indeed, in the majority of cases even exceeds—the importance of daytime affairs. Artificial lighting then is of paramount importance. It is, therefore, not left to any haphazard arrangement but is deliberately planned along certain practical lines.

A lesson that is well learned is that of preserving the shadows. It is this that emphasizes the beauty in the light and that completes the interest of each furniture grouping.

The rule no longer holds that a room to be well illumined must be flooded with light. Good taste on the contrary demands a most interesting modification. Direct light, with its mercilessly exposing glare, has quite gone out of fashion, and instead of the whole area of the room being subject to one lighting unit, the scheme includes a number of lighting units that are delightfully balanced. Logical points of interest are accentuated, uninteresting portions veiled in half tones, and deep shadows are artfully employed to sharply accentuate, or as a means of effacement. In a word, we begin to appreciate values, and to realize that modulation is as important to sight as it is to sound—that dim and glare are equally obnoxious.

Lighting fixtures have undergone the most radical change. Center lights are no longer in favor unless it is in the carrying out of some period scheme. They are still used to a certain extent in dining rooms, but seldom in living rooms or bedrooms.

The light is supposed to be placed where it is needed only, either aesthetically or practically. It may illumine a fine painting or a bit of tapestry, or it may serve to read or write by, but in any event the electric blub, the actual source, must never be seen. The glow must be shaded from the eyes.

For general lighting side brackets are used, and these are arranged toward the windows so that the carefully thought out light and shade of the room may remain virtually the same by day and by night.

Two attractive new shades are shown in the accompanying illustration. The one on the table is a Charles II. lamp that shows a decided Italian interest. The spiral column is distinctly Venetian. The flat base is octagonal in shape. The standard is finished in dark brown, with gray-green ornaments. The frame of the shade matches the standard. The insert panels are of white glass covered with light brown figured silk. The shade on the floor lamp near the window also is octagonal in shape.

The individual panels are deep and covered with Japanese silk in brilliant colors on a white ground. The long Japanese tassels used for lighting pulls are of peacock blue and yellow silk. Matching the shade in gayety is a brilliant floral painting above the mantel. The furniture is upholstered in Italian velvet brocade in taupe, with a single silk cushion of deeper dull brown embroidered in gold thread.

When old drop chandeliers are removed from the ceiling centers, the expedient is often resorted to of replacing the chandelier by a single strong light veiled with an inverted lamp shade. This may be made of silk, or cretonne, or of alabaster, and it is placed quite close to the ceiling. It is purely ornamental.

In a new model bedroom the furniture is a novel set of maple combined with ivory. The floor is carpeted throughout with elephant gray cehnille marked off in large squares by lines of pale violet, touched with light green at the angles. The side walls are pearl colored and the ceiling a lighter, creamier gray. The upper light is covered close up to the ceiling with a shade made of blue grass linen. This is gathered loosely at the bottom and finished with a great violet tassel. Three black velvet bows with long streamers seem to hold the shade to the ceiling.

The glass curtains are of white Swiss, dotted with large white dots, and the outside draperies are of blocked linen with a black ground showing old blue and violet figures. The draperies are rather eccentric. They consist of lambrequins which are placed clear up at the ceiling line above the windows. They are scalloped and trimmed with a black fringed velvet ruffle. From a rod inside of the lambrequins come the extremely long side curtains which are wide enough to draw together. These are made of blocked linen, and are trimmed at the bottom with two black velvet ruffles set one well above the other.

Instead of having a side bracket on the wall at either side of the mantel it is now the fad to have a pair of single or branch candlesticks on the mantel shelf. These are electric wired and offer good decorative possibilities.

Peculiar in its color scheming is a room furnished in walnut, with upholstery in malachite green and side walls in mist gray and white. The lamps, and there are many of them, in parasol shape, but different sizes, are all covered with close fitting silk covers of deeper orchid purple. The woodwork, the picture frames, and the floor lamp standards are of light toned Italian walnut. The draperies are of lilac and green in foliage pattern. A single bowl of brilliant orange glazed pottery lends a pleasant note to the room.

Answers to Inquiries.

[illegible] R.: I cannot answer your letter in the column. If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall give you a personal reply.

[illegible] M.: Yes, you would be right in using the same paper in your hall as you have in your living room. If you wish to use an upper third in your dining room, do it by means of a simple molding rather than a plate rail. Yes, stencil designs are still used. Have side lights throughout. Side wall lights are used in all rooms excepting the dining room. Here either a five branch fixture with candles or drop light with a silk shade is used. Brocaded [illegible] is the most popular upholstery fabric this season. Our best decorators are placing the picture molding six inches down from the ceiling and tinting the ceiling and the space above the molding light.

MRS. J. N. C.: Could you not do away with the plate rail in your dining room and use a simple model in its place? Or if you are going to repaper the dining room, dispense even with the molding. Let your tea cart be of oak. Bronze taupe would be a good color for your bedroom rug. Don't have roses in the border of your rug, but let it be a simple border. A Martha Washington table would be nice with your bedroom set. Your library table should be of brown mahogany. Satin brocade is exquisite for your draperies if you wish to go to some expense. Sunfast is an excellent substitute in less costly material.

MRS. M.: I have seen an upright piano arranged as you wish yours to be [with the back out], having a shallow bookcase built to measure across the piano back. If this does not appeal to you use a piece of tapestry or other good upholstered fabric at the back of your piano, allowing it to extend up over the top. Use cretonne for your draperies and let the pattern repeat the other colors used in the room. You are fortunate in not having much bric-a-brac. Curtains which are to be drawn back and forth must, of course, all be hung on separate rods. The glass curtains are hung on a rod close to the glass and the other two pair described are on double rods.

MRS. H. W. E.: I am returning your inclosed samples and believe that you will find those I have clipped together the best for your purpose.

* *

MRS. F. J.: It is difficult to formulate set rules in regard to bric a brac. It is very hard to advise without knowing anything about the interior in which the bric a brac is to go. When you think of it, you will realize that your question is indefinite, much as though you had written to a dressmaker to ask "what sort of trimming shall I have on a dress?" She could not tell without knowing what kind of a dress.

* *

MRS. A. L. D.: The safest color to combine with the uncertain ones you describe would be a bronze taupe with a delicate tint of the same color for your side walls. Let your sofa cushions be bolster shaped. Instead of attempting to paint or calcimine the objectionable tiles in your mantel, could you not cover them with a fitted piece of wall board, edged with a tiny wood molding and tinted the color of your side walls?

MISS IRENE O.: In your living room extend the bookcase across the lower part of the mirror that lies between them, making one continuous bookcase with a shallow mirror above it in place of a pair of bookcases with a big mirror between them. Repeat this treatment in the dining room, extending the set of drawers part way up the mirror. Substitute an hour glass chair in place of the rocker. I, too, have a preference for walnut, but it is, of course, more expensive. You mentioned the sketch, but you evidently forgot to inclose it. Altogether your scheme is very attractive.

MRS. J. N. W.: A delicate faun color would go well with your oak woodwork. It would harmonize well also with your yellow hall paper and the tapestry papered music room. You will get your "stunning" effects by the use of beautiful linen printed draperies. These are now being used even for portieres by being lined and heavily interlined, also with weighting at the lower edges.

MISS ALICE R.: Use gold color silk gauze for your curtains throughout. Yes, wicker is big and roomy and comfortable for your sun room. Have the cushions upholstered in printed linen. A large braided rug would be appropriate with the style of furniture that you affect for your dining room. Old blue is a pretty color with antique mahogany. The slender legged Adam or Sheraton type of furniture is highly approved for formal dining rooms having center tables with square tops.

* *

E. G.: Your idea for the bedroom is good. Alternate arm chairs and armless chairs make a pleasing variation from formal dining room sets. I like upholstered dining room chairs with spring seats. Have your cretonne cover neatly boxed, scalloped at the edge, and trimmed with inch wide fringe. Italian tables are good looking and practical for the library. Have a floor lamp with an amber silk shade.

* *

MRS. W. D.: Buff is the color that reflects most light. Light boige would be a modified buff. With this for the wall, have draperies of beige and leghorn yellow. This will change the whole aspect of your brown and blue room, which I am sure must be depressing.

* *

E. F.: Use either dull blue and white in your kitchen or pale taupe and brown. I like the latter with some copper utensils showing, ecru sash curtains, and pots of geraniums in the window. Light taupe is a good color for the porch, too, with trimming of white.

MRS. ROBERT H.: In your dining room with the brown furniture use a light tan self-colored figured side wall. Let the figures be small. You might use a tan and gray paper for your living room. Into this introduce splashes of emerald green and use a good deal of green and blue in the adjoining room with the black furniture. Some of the new lamp shades are made boat shaped. I believe frames for these can be had at any of the department stores.

MRS. J. J. R.: The samples that you inclosed are attractive. With these a blue side wall would be a good selection.

MRS. J. C. K.: The plan that you have outlined in your letter seems to be excellent. Will you please let me know just what information you wish. I cannot understand just what it is you want to know.

ELLA R. B.: Use an olive colored carpet and taupe and mahogany two toned material for your upholstered draperies. The inside curtains could be of satin striped rep in pale taupe and olive.

* *

MRS. B. R. H.: Banisters are left in the natural wood, as are the stairtreads, while the uprights of the stairs and the spindles of the banister are painted white old ivory. The simplest device of altering the detested center chandelier is to take out the chandelier and leave the electric light plugs close up to the ceiling and cover the whole thing with a large inverted silk lamp shade, set with the open rim straight to the ceiling. Let the lighting cord and bulb run through center of shade. You will, of course, have to use varnish remover to get off the ugly graining that has been painted over your oak furniture. Then you may enamel it some light neutral color. If you intend to keep the massive old furniture, the most amusing thing to do in the room in which you place it will be to paper the room with paper that was used at the time such furniture was manufactured, a white ground perhaps with a large floral design. I think it would be rather fun to keep to the period in which the furniture was manufactured in all of the details of the finishing. You could do this by referring to pictures in some of the bound volumes of Godey's magazine, probably those of 1860 or 1870. These can be found in most public libraries. Carpet the grained floors. Brown wicker furniture is comfortable and good, especially for occasional chairs, but you will want in your living room several overstuffed pieces and have your tables of wood, not of wicker. Go in for an effect of quaintness, since so many of the things that you have had wished on you are old fasihoned. You can help yourself out splendidly by the use of old fashioned flowered chintz and bits of cross stitch embroidery. Have some braided and crochet rag rugs. This will, I am sure, when finished, be so charming that you will not regret the new bungalow which you have been obliged to give up.

MRS. E. G. H.: Unless the portieres are necessary for privacy sake, do not use them at all, especially during the summer. If you decide to have them, select plain double faced velours, since your rugs and wall border are figured. Light brown and light olive would be the best colors. I am glad you are covering the cushions over in linen.

* *

MRS. W. G. C.: Chinese silk printed in figures of blue and black, with touches of old rose and dull green, all on an amber ground, would make the best cover for your table lamp.

MISS S.: At the small "art glass" window you describe, instead of a roller shade, place a small draw curtain of silk. Keep it pulled back in the daytime, and draw it over the window at night, as these windows are particularly ugly when the light is not shining through them. Casement curtains are often made of colored drapery material. They may be used with or without other curtains.

* *

MRS. C. H. G.: Use brocade for your cover. Make it oblong, line it flatly, and leave it untrimmed, excepting for long tassels at the corners. Let it hang a little over the front or the ends, but not both. Yes, it would be in good taste to use a gateleg table. Lambrequins and valances are equally favored.

* *

D. M.: Have the two rooms paneled and painted in a delicate tint of gray. Or, if you are to use wall paper, flock paper in a pale bronze taupe would be exquisite. Printed linen would go well with the paint, or raw silk with the flock.

* *

R. E. L.: Choose French gray or old ivory for the wall spaces and introduce less neutral colors in draperies, etc. Use willow chairs, but wooden tables. Have a wicker lounge, too, with plenty of loose cushions, simply covered in domestic fabrics.

MRS. F. C. P.: Rag rugs accord well with the furnishings you describe. They would be as good as, if not better than, the velvet ones.

* *

A. M.: While leather wears well I consider it too harsh to be pleasing, this to be modified with such exceptions as old Spanish leather. It is suitable only for certain types of furniture. For general wear mixed pieces of tapestry and velours are serviceable. Corduroy also wears well. Heavy linen chintz wears astonishingly well upholstered directly to the frames. Use casement curtains. Cover the tops with a shallow valance on a separate rod. Measure the cloth to the table. Day covers are most popular.

W. L.: Cheap varnish has evidently been employed. The best thing for you to do would be to remove it entirely with varnish remover. Varnish with a lu is no longer used. Either paint, enamel, or refinish in flat finish.

* *

A. B. G.: Why do you want to put anything in the panels? Are they not decorative enough in themselves? Use casement curtains of printed linen. Let the colors in the pattern repeat all of the other colors in the room. Curtain both rooms alike.

* *

Mrs. P. J. A.: Rose and taupe striped brocade would be an appropriate material for your furniture. Yes, use the brown mahogany table. Decorators nowadays endeavor to make furnishings harmonize without necessarily matching. Silk gauze would be a good material for your draperies. Would be well to employ this material in dull gold color throughout. It would be particularly fine in your dining room.

* *

MRS. A. G.: Open shelves are popular and they are easily made. Curtain your windows alike throughout with casement curtaining, falling just to the sill.

MRS. F. E. H.: Either blocked linen or a good quality of cretonne, lined with a pale tint of mulberry silk, would be more pleasing in the room you describe than solid mulberry colored silk.

MRS. E. E. R.: Why not buy your wall paper paste already prepared? There are concerns in all large cities that manufacture paste for this purpose.

* *

C. L. K.: It is hard for me to advise what style of furntiure to have in your sitting room without some idea of the price you intend to pay and the sort of room you will occupy. I shall be glad to assist you further if you will write your wants more specifically.

* *

MRS. C. N. M.: Use flowered cretonne printed on a tan ground for your lambrequins, and use cream voile curtains. Use the same cretonne for neatly boxed window cushions. Make casement curtains for the small fireside windows. Velveteen matching your side wall would be admirable for your portieres.

MRS. W. C. Q.: My best advice to you would be to find a position with some good interior decorator and in this way you will learn the trade from its practical as well as from its artistic side.

* *

F. E. B.: Will you please specify just what it is you wish to know? What amount do you consider spending on this refurnishing and just what things have you?

* *

MRS. J. W. N.: I regret that my work precludes the possibility of my granting your request. I am sorry to have missed your visit. Just what is the publication you refer to? I do not quite understand.

GIRLS! BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR WITH 'DANDERINE'

Get a 25 Cent Bottle! Freshen Your Scalp! Stop Falling Hair! Remove Dandruff! Grow Lots of Wavy, Glossy, Beautiful Hair—You Can!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you can not have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter; apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?—Advertisement.

"In midwinter hats, fur will dominate"

—says Fashion. And the midwinter styles are here—hats entirely of mole, seal or nutria—or of these furs combined with velvet or hatters' plush, or with gold or silver brocaded satin.

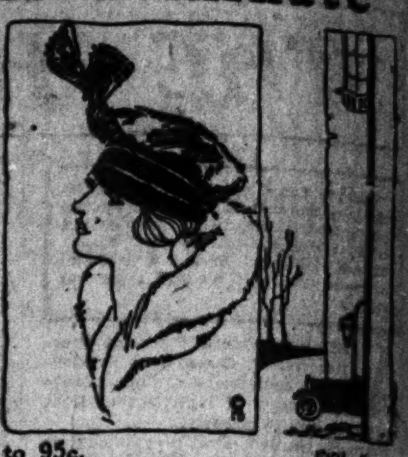
Ostrich is the preferred trimming

—many hats are completely covered with soft fluffy ostrich fibers: others adorned with ostrich fancies, or outlined with ostrich edgings.

Hundred new, effective hats at $15

Introducing fur trimmed and flower trimmed hats—and hats with novelty veils: also, chin chin hats, medium and small—the most becoming hat worn.

Imported French flowers—Tiny gardenias in white or pink at 25c to 95c: stunning gold and silver roses at 2.95: and flowers at many prices between. Odd corsages—single and mixed flowers, metallic and silk boutonnieres: 50c to 95c.



Fifth floor.

AMONG US MORTALS
THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

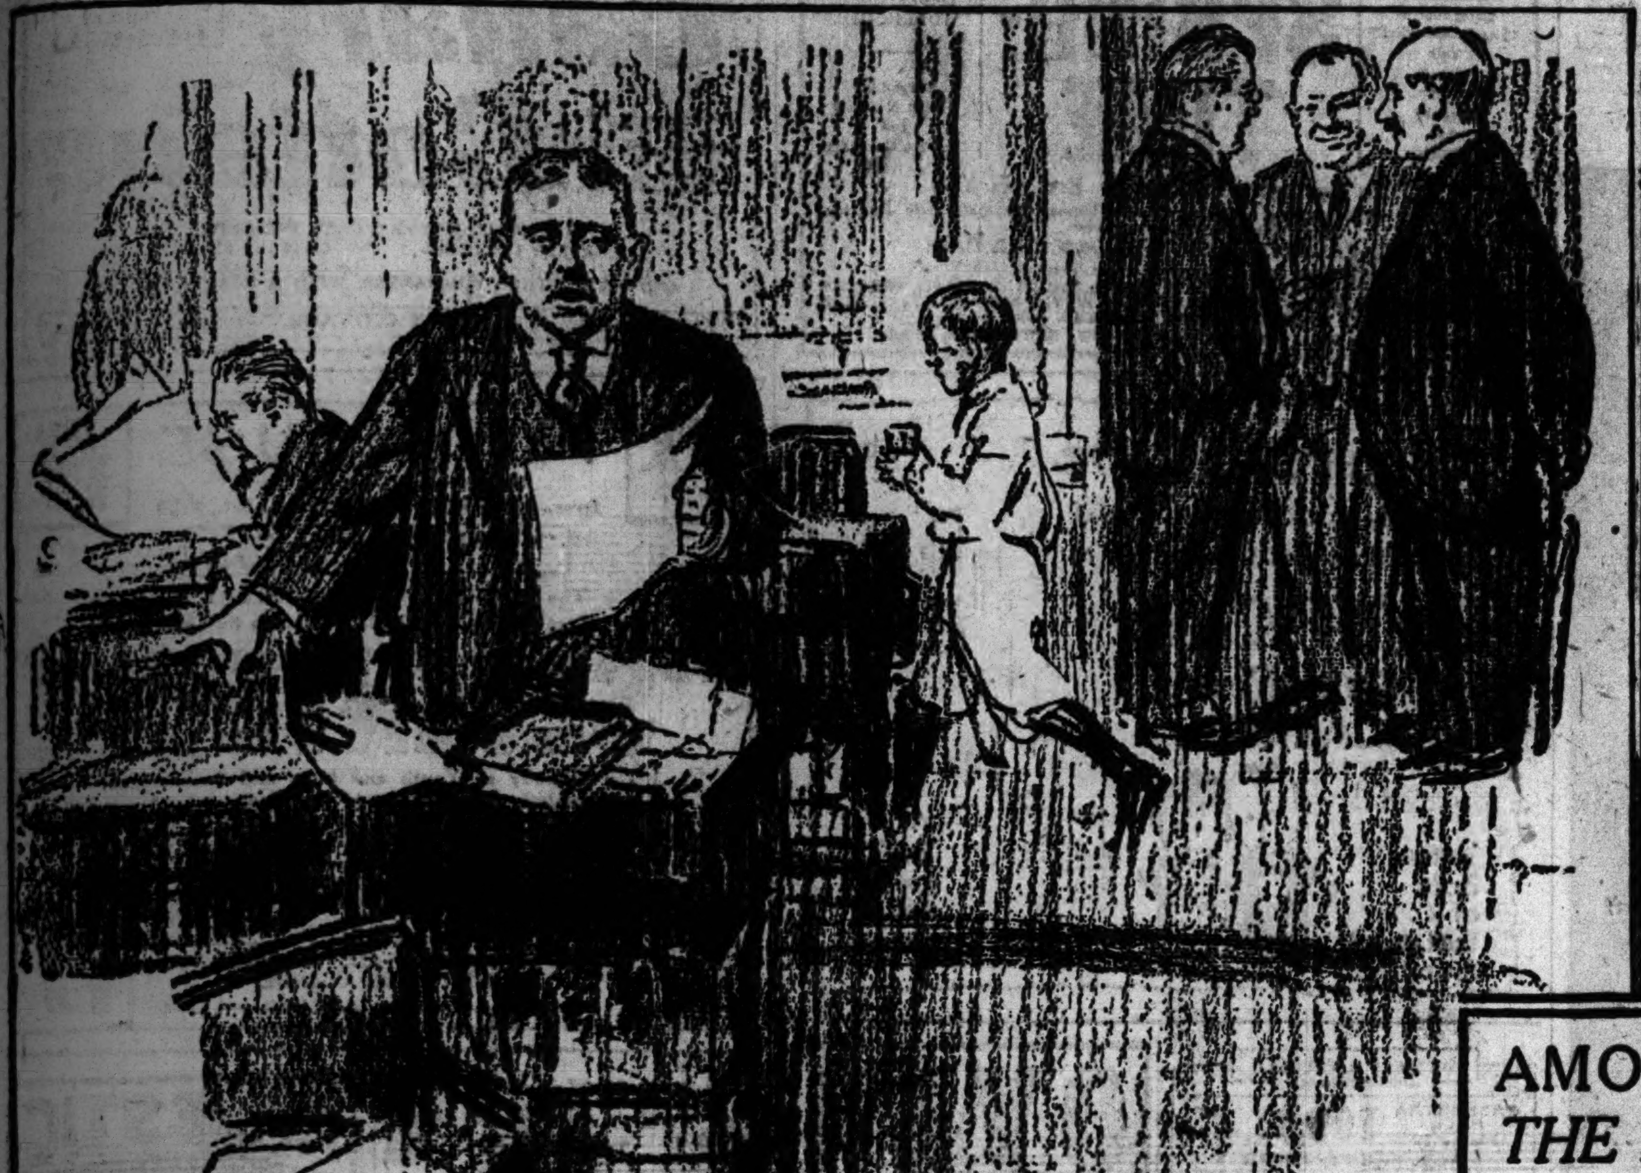
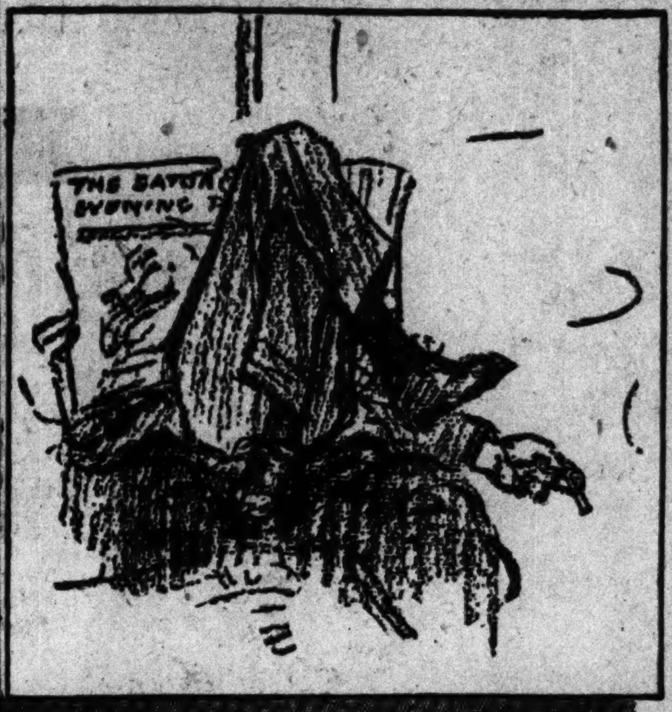
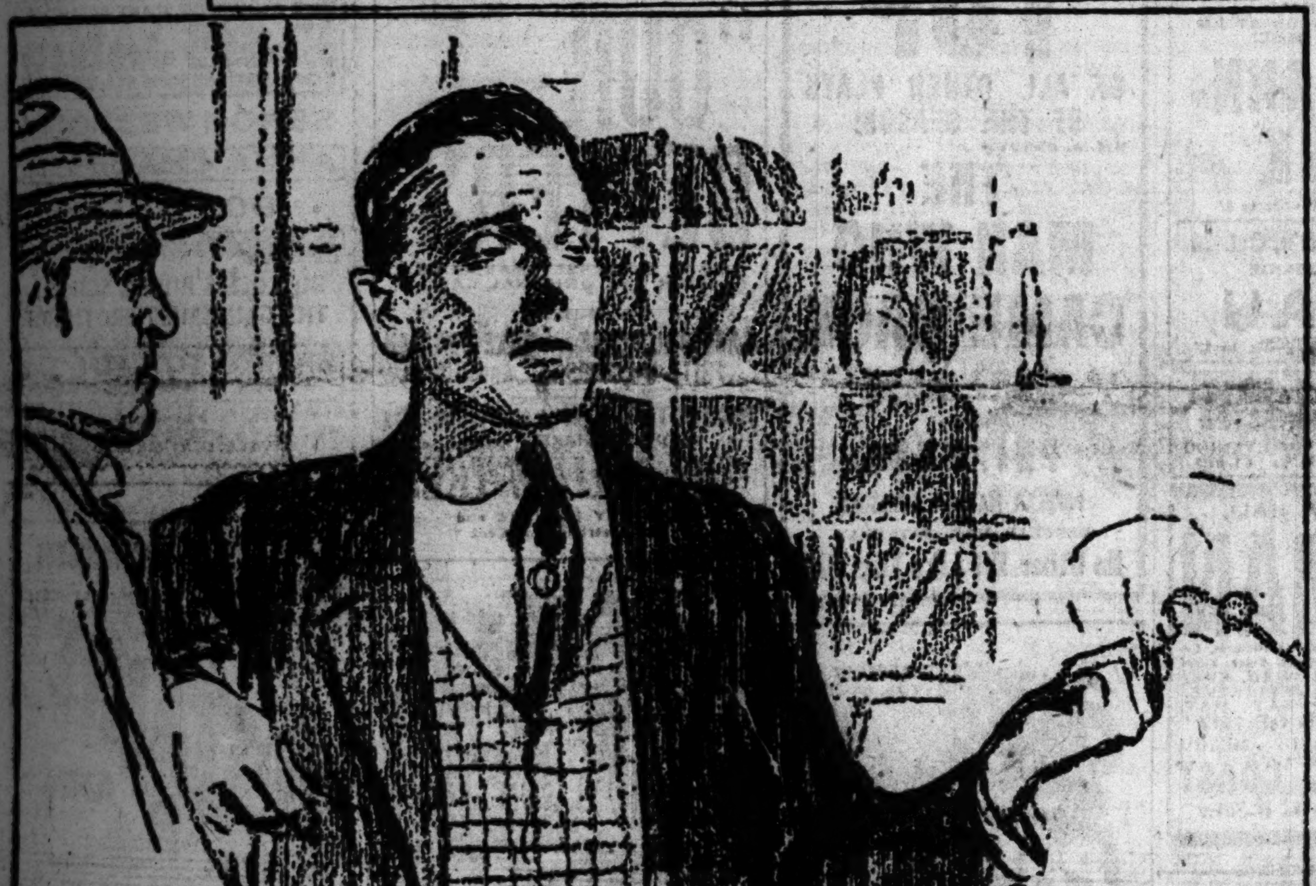
Washington, D. C.



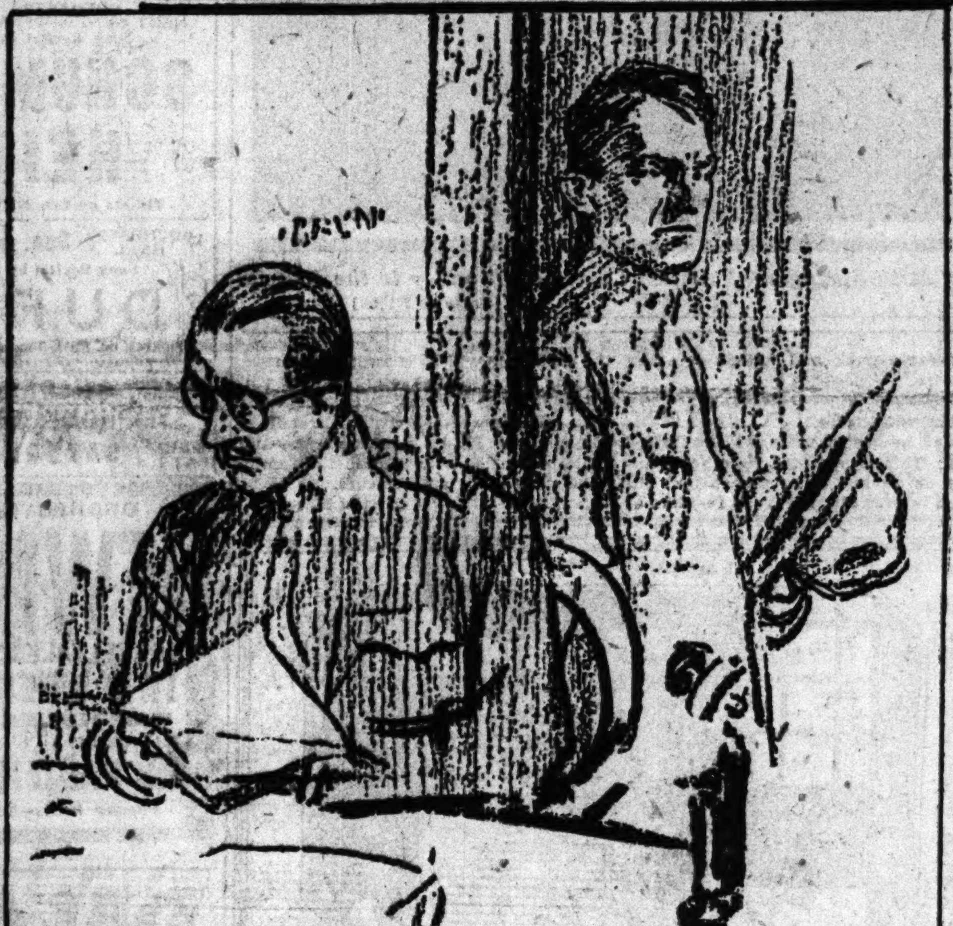
Wild enthusiasm when Senator Blurb in the course of his speech says that he has fully decided (gesture) that he will be of more use to his country right here in the Senate than in the trenches.



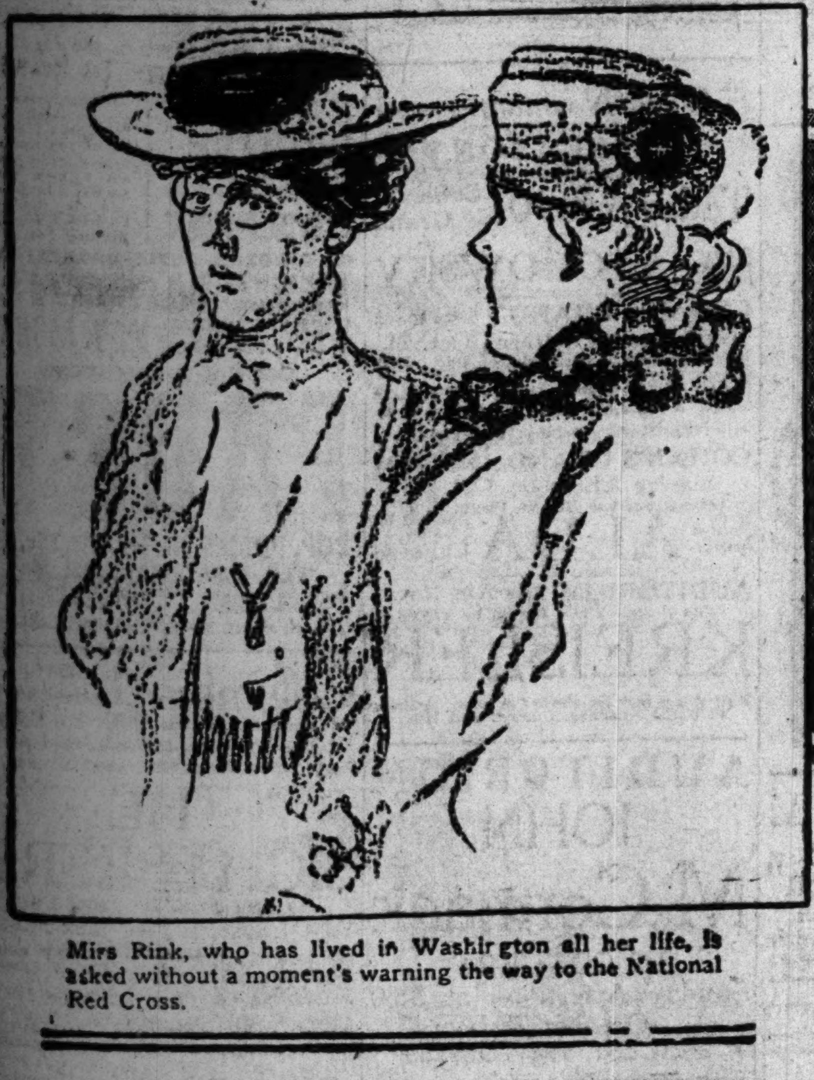
Reporter in anteroom of the press gallery, waiting for something to happen.



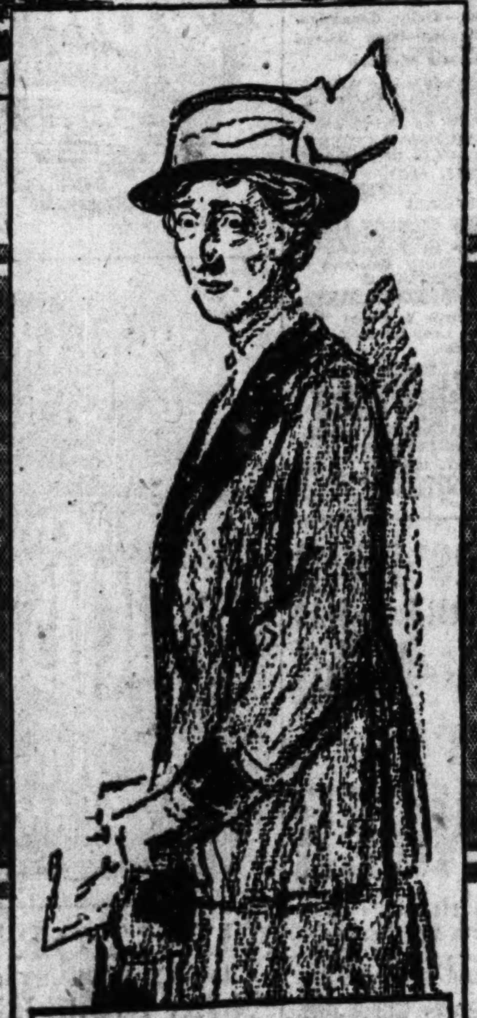
"No singles—nothing at all; if you want to wait around for four or five hours I may be able to give you a big double room with two baths, but I doubt it."



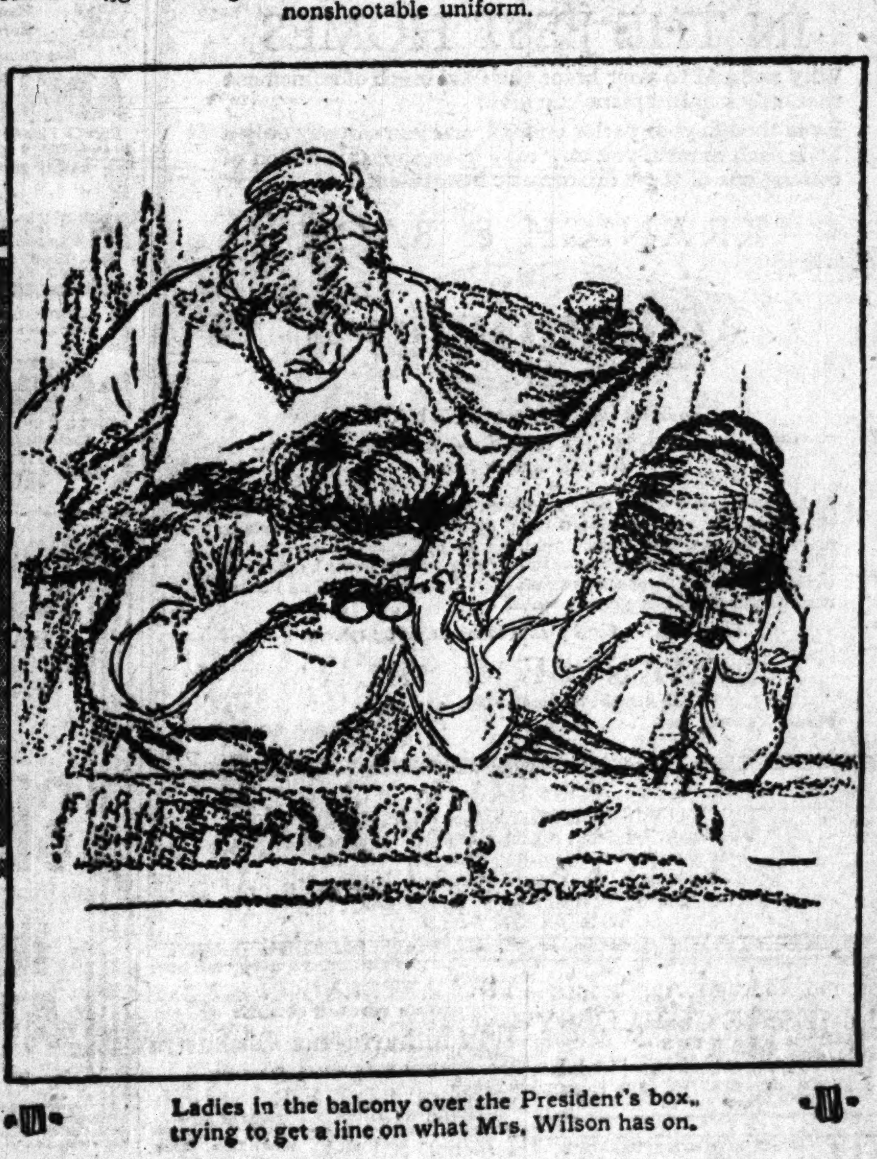
Hank Goggin of Regular Army has his own opinion about saluting the nonshootable uniform.



Mirs Rink, who has lived in Washington all her life, is asked without a moment's warning the way to the National Red Cross.



The lady delegate from somewhere waiting to see Miss Rankin and perfectly sure that just five minutes' talk will convince her that the war must be stopped right away.



Ladies in the balcony over the President's box, trying to get a line on what Mrs. Wilson has on.

Babble of the Boards.

By Percy Hammond.

THE faculty of hiring the right actor for the right part is owned by A. H. Woods in greater degree than by any of his brothers of the theater. Salary is a standard which he disregards. He engages no players because their wage is high and none because their wage is low. Fame is similarly a matter of little concern to Mr. Woods. He reads a play, decides what actors can best enact the rôles, and employs them if they are to be employed. His associates say that every case of miscasting in a Woods production is due to his inability to get the actor of his selection. His intuition was never more cunning than when he cast the two leading rôles in the play at the Colonial.

Odd, isn't it, how popular "Parlor, Bedroom, and Bath" is with the otherwise prim? Frowned upon by those of liberal attitude toward impropriety in general, it is regarded by the decorous as merely impudent or venturesome. The hardened man about town is grieved by its boldness; the wholesome matron, with daughters, finds much amusement in its fleet rascalities. An amateur psychologist who is responsible for the above meditations explains the phenomenon. "Transgression, like love," says he, "will find a way, and the chaste persons who enjoy 'Parlor, Bedroom, and Bath' are misbehaving vicariously." Others prefer to think that Miss Florence Moore's capers have as much to do with it as the criminal processes of the human mind. That lady's gift of brash burlesque, long hampered by environment, is well set in the airy insolences of Mr. Woods' sporty farce, and she is laughter for the pure in heart with a sense of humor. What you pay in blushes at "Parlor, Bedroom, and Bath" will be returned to you in fun by the not too obvious satire of her acting in at least two scenes—her rehearsal with the counterfeit libertine, and her mock emotionalisms as she turns him over to his wife in the final act.

The recent retreat of the movies from large theaters in the center of town is not to be taken as a sign of a waning passion for them, they say. Although their seductive silences no longer echo in the Strand, the La Salle, the Colonial, the Studebaker, and the Playhouse, film theaters are becoming more numerous in the outskirts than the dye shop or the delicatessen. Chicago transportation is said to be the obstacle hindering downtown attendance; and also the lack of important productions.

One of the war tax blessings coming from the North Carolina or moron school of economics is the exemption from duty of theater ticket brokerage. For a time there was provision in the bill for a heavy tariff on the industry, but after profound rumination the statesmen decided not to discourage so legitimate a traffic. Ticket scalpers, 5 cent movies, and legislators are perhaps the only things that will not share the expense of the war.

The caustic contempt of Jack Lait, the new Hi Henry, for New York and New Yorkers, found another outlet last Thursday night, according to a dispatch to the dramatic editor from Jay Barnes, the general director of Oliver Morosco's enterprises:

Five minutes ago in my presence Jack Lait accepted 5 cents from Oliver Morosco as advance royalty on his new play "One of Us."

Mr. Morosco was the producer of Mr. Lait's sturdy and assertive little drama, "Help Wanted," whose performances were gainful here, but not on Broadway. Mr. Lardner also is in the throes of dramatic accouchement. He has been assigned by Messrs. Cohan and Harris to write a play about baseball. Bert Williams is desired for the rôle of a trainer, but Mr. Ziegfeld declines to release him from the Follies' silken chains.

New York, Oct. 10.—Dear Editor: Occasionally we hear a squawk from you Chicago dramatic critics because we playwrights insist on writing about New York life exclusively. The enclosed paragraph in THE TRIBUNE by "Cinderella," the Mae Tinée of Society, may help you to understand the 'time - the - present, and place - New-York' rule of dramaturgy:

"'As to clothes, New York for the moment is the camping ground of many Chicagoans, scanning the evening gowns, wondering at the hats, amazed at the brilliant colors of fabrics. Mrs. Watson Blair, Miss Frances Keep, her sister; Mrs. Pullman, Mrs. Harold Howard, Mrs. W. J. Chalmers, Mrs. Marshall Field, and many more are giving their winter orders.'

Is it true that Mr. Armour buys his ham here? G. McD.

Miss Nora Bayes, having agreed to do her hair in the hue most popular with New York vaudeville audiences last week, found brown and gray tied in the balloting. So she wore it brown one-half the week and gray the other, a compromise which, it is said, satisfied neither side and caused great indignation.

Jesse Lynch Williams, whose "Why Marry?" will have its first performance at Cohan's Opera house Nov. 4, used to be one of the best of the story writers. He is the author of "Stories of a Freshman," "The Story of the Married Life of the Carrolls," and "The Stolen Story," in which he reproduced, more than any other author, the feverish, glamorous, picturesque, and agitating atmosphere of a daily newspaper plant.

The new New York Winter Garden affair is called "Doing Our Bit," and is meant to express, in the mood of extravaganza, the Winter Garden's patriotic emotions. The Star-Spangled Banner appears in one of the numbers, a bulky blonde carrying it and the band playing it.

Frank Craven's recent sortie into drama of his own composition was gratifying neither to his pride nor to his pocketbook and he has quit it. He now has employment as the principal actor in "Going Up," a musical comedy written by Otto Hauerbach and Louis Hirsch and managed by Messrs. Cohan and Harris.

"Common Clay," the most successful of the Al Woods-Harvard school of the drama, has been revived, with Thomas E. Shea leading the cast. Mr. Shea once appeared here in "The Bells" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," and if he did not play them well he fixed them (in Frank Tinney's phrase) so that no one else could play them well.

Bayard Veiller's promised letter to THE TRIBUNE clarifying the drama critic's dubieties concerning "The Thirteenth Chair" is not yet here. It will be printed next Sunday, in case Mr. Veiller writes it.

"What's Your Husband Doing?" a farce by George V. Hobart, which ran with great brevity at the Blackstone last year, has been dug up. Hale Hamilton and Miss Virginia Hammond are engaged for it.

At the behest of Miss Geraldine Farrar, Julian Eltinge, he says, will soon abandon the frills and fripperies of a female impersonator for the conventional black Prince Albert of a concert singer. Miss Farrar discovered his voice in the movies, 'tis said, and urged him to train it.

Mr. Ditrichstein is preparing for eventualities by rehearsing "Le Roi," a French comedy by De Caillavet-de Flers. It will be played by Fritz Williams of "Our Betters"; Miss Dorothy Mortimer, now the flighty wife in "Parlor, Bedroom, and Bath," and A. G. Andrews and W. H. Powell of "The Judge of Zalamea." There will be, however, no change in the bill at the Grand during Mr. Ditrichstein's engagement.

The pangs of dissolution seize "Our Betters" at the Blackstone, and it will be sepulchered after this week's performances. As Brother Borowski is advertised as saying, "There can be no doubt that 'Our Betters' is a success!"

Miss Sophie Tucker has issued a public announcement to Oliver Morosco, graciously declining his proffer of a part in "Canary-Cottage" and reiterating her fidelity to vaudeville and the First Jazz Band.

Miss Mary Nash of "The Man Who Came Back" says that there will be a new vogue for French drama after the war. "I do not mean that Americans will go to plays just because they are from France," she explains. "Americans never analyze their preferences in the drama. But I think that the emotional reaction toward France, which has been a result of the war, will unconsciously find expression in attendance on French plays of social and domestic affairs. Not much from France has been successful in my day in the theater, but I am told that, until a few years ago, not only the American but also the English stage existed on a basis of drama made in Paris."

Burns Mantle's New York Letter

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—David Belasco, who in the theater is not unlike Shakespeare in that he is a good borrower and seldom fails to improve upon what he takes, has given the other producers a lesson in melodrama with his production of "Tiger Rose."

Here is a play, written by "Kick In" Willard Mack, which is very much of the great outdoors. The locale is the northern Canadian woods, the heroine a French Canadian waif reared among rough men, the hero a young civil engineer being hunted for having killed the man who had wronged his sister back in Boston, the sub-hero one of those red-coated crime hounds, the royal mounted in chase of the murderer, and the scenery Belascoan and grand.

The stage is set, therefore, for a rip-roaring adventure among the pines. But Sir David, realizing this, has elected to fool the prophets by playing the drama as quietly as though it were a society crook play winding through the drawing rooms of London.

The result is a promised success where failure threatened. By playing the scenes quietly they take on an interest that the noise and bluster of ordinary melodrama would have made ridiculous. Each of the personages becomes a recognizable human being and all the stage tricks of Mr. Mack sink nicely into the background. "Tiger Rose" becomes a sort of spoken movie, with the broad effects of the cinema reduced to the limitations of the stage, and the scenic possibilities of the stage expanded to meet as closely as possible the limitless possibilities of the camera and screen.

Lenore Ulrich plays the name part. Her name is Rose, and it is Devlin, of the mounted, who adds the "Tiger" when she spurs his proffered love and threatens to claw him for having suggested it. She is a wild thing, the daughter of an infidel father and a dance hall mother, brought up by the factor of the Hudson Bay company, a likable Scot with a big heart and a high regard for the teachings of the kirk.

"Tiger Rose" will have nothing to do with the men she knows in the camp, but when she meets the young engineer from the states she accepts him at once as "her man," because he is different and she loves him on sight. When she hears that he has shot a man without provocation she refuses to let that lessen her affection for him and sets all her wits to work to outwit Devlin and help her lover to escape.

They track the boy to her guardian's cabin and she hides him in the cellar. When they press her too closely she transfers him to a grandfather's clock. And then, in the middle of the night, and during the best storm Mr. Belasco has staged since the days of "The Girl of the Golden West," she gets him away to a deserted cabin in the woods.

Here she follows him and just as they have planned to go away together Devlin, the divvyl, sits up in the bunk in the corner and covers them with his automatic. Rather bold, not to say conventionally wild and woolly, this particular section of the play, though it, too, is quietly played. Before Devlin can take his prisoner Rose shoots his revolver out of his hand, bids the boy begone, and calmly sits down to guard the officer through the night.

When the Belasco dawn filters through the trees the tables are again turned on the young people and the author and director have had the good sense to play the story out logically. The boy is brought back and arrested, nor can all the cajoling of the Irish officer induce him to forget his duty to the crown. The play ends with the promise of the priest to marry the young people and do what he can to gain the leniency of the court at the trial.

The whole play is splendidly acted by a carefully selected cast. Mack himself plays Devlin, Calvin Thomas is the escaping youth, Thomas Findlay the good Scot, Pedro de Cordoba a sentimental Canuck, and Fuller Mellish the priest.

It was George Tyler who suggested the play that Fannie Hurst, the short story writer, and Harriet Ford, the frequent collaborator, have pieced together from several of Miss Hurst's plots and called "The Land of the Free." But it is William A. Brady who produces it, Mr. Tyler having assigned most of his rights to that manager.

Florence Nash, the unforgettable Aggie Lynch of "Within the Law," is the featured player, and the story is an adaptation of the "Peg-o'-My Heart" theme to the experience of a Jewish emigrant girl from the Odessa sector.

After learning to speak a fractured English this heroine comes to New York to meet her sister. She is an aggressive little foreigner who fights her way past the Ellis Island officials and gets her first real shock when she learns that her sister is living with, but is not married to, the Italian proprietor of the shirtwaist factory where both girls are to be employed.

She manages this problem as competently as she does her own affairs, however, and when the evil influences of the play threaten to have her deported, she calmly announces her engagement to a young American settlement worker with whom she has fallen in love, and thus becomes a real American citizen.

Her troubles have another act to run, however. Her husband's family is high-toned and exclusive, and refuses to accept her. She is about to give him his freedom rather than force a break with his aristocratic mother when the situation is cleared by one of those happy finales in which all is forgiven and the Yiddisher Peg is accepted.

Miss Nash, being Irish, is pugnacious rather than wistful as the Jewish girl, but she plays the part with great enthusiasm, scores with such comedy lines as she has been given and has been taken directly to the hearts of her following. Mr. Brady has given her a competent supporting cast.

It seems rather a pity that Winthrop Ames should devote his exceptional gifts as a producer to as trivial a comedy farce as "From Saturday to Monday," with which he began his season last week. But the novel idea of the play rather than its content evidently caught his fancy, and he has done his best to make it worth while.

Here is a shallow little suffragist who, having been once married, is twice shy when again she falls in love. She is eager to continue living her own life, and yet she is unwilling to give up the man. As a compromise, she proposes that they be duly married, but that they also sign an agreement by which they are to live as man and wife only from Saturday till Monday each week. The rest of the time they are to continue as free as they were before the ceremony was pronounced.

They spend their first week-end honeymoon in the bachelor apartments of the husband, a building from which females have theretofore been rigidly excluded. And they are very happy until a second lady is discovered in the apartment above. This intruder is only there on a dare, but the Saturday-to-Monday bride is convinced that she is an intimate friend of her new husband and her jealousy is promptly aroused.

Still she cannot break her contract. And in an effort to force her husband to do so, she plans to make him jealous in turn. She promptly goes to the rooms of a mutual acquaintance, sends her mate an anonymous telegram warning him she is there and then hides in the other chap's bedroom. Husband, however, refuses to be tricked. And finally the would-be independent is forced to beg that she be accepted as a regular seven-day-a-week and not as a week-end wife.

When Fred Stone comes to the Globe theater with "Jack o' Lantern," the price of orchestra seats will be raised to $3. This is accepted by other managers as an indication that before the season is over all New York theaters of the first class will be charging that rate. Adding the 50 cents the speculators will get and the 10 per cent government tax this will increase the cost of Broadway playgoing to $7.60 a pair for seats—and make a considerable dent in the family fund devoted to amusements.

Views and News About Music

TWO musicians to whom the abused descriptive of "great" can properly be applied will give recitals in Chicago today—Godowsky and Zimbalist. The former's primacy as a pianist is no longer, perhaps, a matter for discussion. He is something more than the pianists' pianist. That locution is not the most complimentary, although it is, with regard for him, my own. That neither he nor Zimbalist is, as yet, a turn-'em-away recitalist in Chicago is of the phenomena of the game. The readiest explanation is that Godowsky, in performance, does not appear to know that anybody is in front, and that Zimbalist's knowledge of an audience freezes him. Another violinist, pondering the explement between Zimbalist and the prosperous Kreisler, described the latter's demerit as "always playing with his coat buttoned tight about him." It is, in the sense, meant. The other extreme is Elman's exuberant self-sufficiency. Only in the recital he gave with Alma Gluck, last season, did Zimbalist's painful diffidence give way; but even in her most engaging moments with him he seemed miles from his audience. His is a prodigious talent—not so much as Godowsky's, but notable even in the contemporary competition, the like of which never was till now.

Henry Hadley's opera, "Azora," is not to be mounted till December, in the present plans of Campanini. Anna Fitziu, who is to have the principal part, will not be back from Mexico, the composer says, in time to make an earlier production practicable. Mr. Stock will endeavor to fit his program making into the Campanini scheme so that Mr. Hadley, while in Chicago to conduct the opera, will be able to conduct the orchestra in his tone poem, "Salomé," also. This was composed and performed in Berlin about the time of Strauss' opera, and, like the opera, had Wilde's short play as its suggestion. It has been played in this country by the Boston Symphony.

Mr. Hadley, at Friday's concert by the orchestra, was enthusing over Chadwick's "Tam o' Shanter." "It is, I think," he said, "the best of Chadwick's music." A friend replied that it was the best, at least, since Chadwick's light opera, "Tabasco," produced a generation ago, adding an expression of doubt that Mr. Hadley knew that opus. "Yes—I remember it," said the composer; "for I played a violin in the orchestra when it was produced."

"Not long ago," writes in a lady, "I read in a New York newspaper—I've forgotten which—a suggestion that 'Dixie' would be a better national air if the rebel curse were taken from it by giving it new words. The suggestion was in the Letters to the Editor, and included some pretty good verses as an idea of the kind of words to be substituted for those of the original version. The editor of the paper sneered at the idea; but I think it good enough for further consideration and discussion than he gave to it."

The paper was the New York Evening Post. The editor's comment on the letter in question was that there was nothing of Confederacy suggestion in the words of "Dixie," which originated, according to most of the traditions about it, with Dan Emmett, the blackface performer. He is said to have written the words and music in an hour or so to supply the need of his company for a "walk-round" tune to finish the first part of the entertainment. The vitality of the tune, itself, was the reason it was taken up by the soldiers of the Confederacy; and it remains the reason for the song's survival and popularity. It is doubtful if one man in a thousand of all who applaud or cheer it when it is played know the text of even the refrain. The words of "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," which was the marching song of the Americans in the war with Spain, are not more familiar today, although the tune survives, and is, when played, greeted with nearly the cordiality which welcomes the strains of "Dixie."

Another reader complains of inability to find a composer capable of setting some patriotic verses about Sammy to music. He has tried all who are in the market, he says, and has found no enthusiasm. "Yet," he argues, "at a time like this we are in sore need of a song meaning to us what 'Tommy Atkins' and 'Soldiers of the Queen' mean to the British troops." Neither song had origin in the urgency of war time or the expression of patriotic emotion. Both were first sung in musical plays in the London theaters. "Tommy Atkins" was in a piece of the early nineties, "A Gaiety Girl," and was imported with it.

A second songman, who does both words and tunes, is certain that the music publishers of the United States are enemy aliens at heart. "One after another," he writes, "they have refused to take songs of mine because of the anti-German text. Most of them said they would gladly publish the songs, because of the good music, if I would revise the words. Naturally, I refused." And, naturally, the publishers, too, refused. It is, with them, a mercantile matter. Most of them have found out that there is no money in songs that make their appeal through calling the kaiser names. Of all that have been printed since April, not more than three have paid out.

For one of the three, "Blue Ridge," the composer, Sousa, said the other night that he would not take ten thousand dollars down. The song was composed through a misunderstanding. When the publisher of Wilbur Nesbit's verses called "Your Flag and My Flag" was, earlier in the year, seeking a tune by competition, he sent a letter to Sousa asking him to try. The latter put music to the verses and mailed the manuscript, with a letter giving his usual terms, including a large sum in advance of publication. The publisher wrote back to say that he had asked for the tune in a competition for $100 and half the royalty on sales. The manuscript was returned to Sousa, who lifted out Mr. Nesbit's text and substituted that of "Blue Ridge."

"Spurios Versenkt!" is the heading on this list of operas, in the estimation of Leonard Liebling, writing in the Musical Courier:

"Le Donna Curiose,"
"La Wally,"
"Le Villi,"
"Versiegelt,"
"Germania,"
"Julien,"
"Lobetanz,"
"Cyrano de Bergerac,"
"Mona."

Felix Borowski's Elégie-Symphonique, dedicated to his wife and made public last season by Mr. Stock in one of the regular programs of the Orchestra, is to be included in this season's répertoire of the Minneapolis Symphony. F. D.

To Booth Tarkington's play at the Playhouse Miss Lowry contributes a sympathetic impersonation of Billie Baxter's understanding mother.

The Week's Bills

AN item of fresh interest, John Alden Carpenter's first symphony [it is still in manuscript, although it was played in the Norfolk festival last spring under Mr. Stock's direction], is in the schedule for the second program of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Friday afternoon and Saturday night. The overture to Berlioz's "Benvenuto Cellini" and Brahm's second symphony—the one in D major—also will be played.

The orchestra will on Tuesday afternoon at 4:15 give the first concert of a series in Mandel hall, University of Chicago. The program for this consists of Massenet's "Phèdre" overture, Beethoven's sixth symphony, Chadwick's "Tam o' Shanter," Debussy's "'The Afternoon of a Faun," and Sibelius' "Finlandia."

The Boston English Opera company will tomorrow night revive "Faust" in the Strand theater. Mr. Wegener and Miss Longan will be the lovers for the first performance; Mr. Sheehan and Miss Eden for the second. Lester Luther will be Mephistopheles in all performances, which will be continued to next Sunday night. "Martha" will be sung tonight for the final time.

Concerts, Recitals, Etc.

TODAY:

3 and 4:15—Chicago Concert Ensemble in program for small orchestra. Fullerton hall, Art institute.

3:30—The Philharmonic orchestra, under Arthur Dunham, in its second concert. Maximilian Pilzer, violinist, will be the soloist, playing Beethoven's concerto. Blackstone theater.

3:30—Leopold Godowsky in recital. Opening of Mr. Neumann's season. Grand opera house.

3:30—Efrem Zimbalist in recital. Opening of the Messrs. Wessels and Voegeli's season. Orchestra hall.

3:30—Lillian Wright, mezzo-soprano, in recital. First time in Chicago. The Playhouse.

TUESDAY:

8:15—Jessie Comlossy, pianist, in recital. Central music hall.

WEDNESDAY:

11—Marian Veryl, soprano, in recital. First time in Chicago. Ziegfeld theater.

THURSDAY:

4:30—Organ recital by Eric DeLamarter. A feature will be made of Karg-Elert's fugue, canzona, and epilogue, to be played by Palmer Christian, with Cora Libberton, Rubee DeLamarter, Anna Jones Borroff, Mina Hager, and Harold Ayers taking part. No admission charged. Fourth Presbyterian church.

QUITS VAMPIRE ROLE.

By Mae Tinée.

"I'M NOT going to play vampire parts any more." Thus speaks Dorothy Dalton. I imagine her sad experience in "Ten of Diamonds" has had something to do with her decision. However that may be, Miss Dalton declares there are too many nice women and girls in the world to impersonate to spend her time getting "folks down on me" doing something that is entirely "foreign to me."

Says Virginia Pearson: "A smart, becoming hat and attractive gloves make up for the most inexpensive frock in the world. Good grooming and the faculty of wearing clothes properly are the essential qualities for attractiveness in a woman's appearance." She speaks truly.

Miriam Cooper has an old fashioned garden in which bloom sweetly bridal wreath, thyme, rosemary, mignonette, verbenas, hollyhocks, castor plants, Sweet William, and lilacs.

H. M. Horkheimer of Balboa will soon present a well known star in a new play that will have the novel distinction of being offered in New York simultaneously both as a spoken and silent drama. It is called "The Right to Live."

It is acclaimed by the Mutual p. a. that Edna Goodrich's last bill for gowns was $40,000. If we had that we'd all buy Liberty bonds, wouldn't we?

The Italian battle front pictures will soon be seen at the Orpheum, Aaron Jones having acquired the rights to them.

Masanao Hanihara, consul general of Japan at San Francisco, paid his respects to Marguerite Clark while she was in the midst of a scene for the third "Bab" picture, at the studio, during the recent visit of the Japanese commission to New York. Mr. Hanihara found time to renew an acquaintance with Miss Clark which began in Washington, D. C., several years ago, when she was on the legitimate stage and the Nipponese statesman was attached to the Japanese legation. "You have changed very little," declared Mr. Hanihara, as Miss Clark, in the role of the irrepressible Bab, looking about 16, came smiling up to him. "I think you are even younger!"

One of the largest photographic "shots" ever made in motion pictures will be the one made this week at the Arena, Chicago's ice skating palace in the Commonwealth Pictures corporation's film in which Charlotte, the ice skater, is the star. The scene represents a big Red Cross benefit, an ice skating carnival in which 1,000 people take part.

Failing to make satisfactory arrangements for neighborhood showings of "I Believe," George Loane Tucker's film story of the fight between materialism and faith, for invited audiences of clergymen, President Frank Zambreno of the Unity Photoplays company has sent every clergyman in the city an invitation to attend a special performance of the picture to be held at the Zeigfeld theater tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

"O, won't some people be glad to see Mabel Normand again? She's busily working now at the Goldwyn studios on "Joan of Flatbush."

Two hundred of Ruth St. Denis' dancers will appear in Mary Pickford's forthcoming Artcraft picture, "The Little Princess." Speaking of Mary Pickford, she, some time ago, received a letter from a little girl in Alabama saying that the little girl's particular hen had hatched a brood of chickens, one of which was pure white. The white one, she said, she named Mary Pickford. Later Miss Pickford received a letter saying the name had been changed to Douglas Fairbanks, as it was that kind of a chicken.

Clara Kimball Young is using the Thanhouser studio at New Rochelle, N. Y., for the filming of "Shirley Kaye." Joseph Kaufman, husband of Ethel Clayton, is her director. After the holidays Miss Young contemplates taking her entire company to Porto Rico to take scenes for "The Savage Woman," which she intends to be a pictorial piece de resistance.

Because of the decree issued by Tod Browning, Metro director, that all Virginia mountaineers in the coming Edith Storey production, "The House in the Mist," actually grow beards, it is estimated that the loss to New York barbers is as follows: The average daily amount spent by each man for a shave is about 20 cents, and this item for the twenty-five men who kept unshaven would be $5 a day. As the men wore their "grizzlies" for six weeks, a month and a half, or about forty-five days, the total sum of $225 [$5 times 45] was lured from the great tonsorial treasury.

Miss Ellsworth's back is one of the features of "Canary Cottage" mentioned with approval by the critics of the drama. The above is a fairly comprehensive map of it.

ASK ME! ASK ME!

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

LEONA: Carol Halloway is with the Vitagraph company, East Fifteenth street and Locust avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. She will soon be seen in a new serial, "The Fighting Trail."

DAN G.: Welcome home. I am glad that nobody "vamped" you. Not Saturday, Dan. S'muther day. I like your stationery.

B. L.: "Barriers Burned Away."

KATHERINE M: O, what can this something be that you want to tell Harold Lockwood "that is more than important"? Better confess, Katherine, and let me give you advice. Yes, if I ever hear of them wanting a funny looking girl I'll remember you. Tweet, tweet?

JAMES C.: I will not!

ELAIN: No, Alice Joyce and Tom Moore are not separated so far as I know. Mr. Moore is merely doing some work for Selig. You're a thousand times welcome.

MAYREE: I adore receiving adoring letters. No, Annette Kellermann is not dead yet. Oh, surely, you can show pictures of a person who has gone on before. Didn't you ever see a John Bunny release or one featuring Arthur Hoops? Mabel Taliaferro played in "Polly of the Circus" on the "legitimate" stage. Thank you, Mayree, and the same to you.

MILWAUKEE: Yes, whatever you do, for goodness sake, don't let me get out of practice. D. W. Griffith has been in Europe. He is on his way back now. Henry Walthall is heading his own company. Edna Mayo is not playing at the present time. No, you don't bore me. Keep right on. Dorothy Gish has been in Europe with her sister and Robert Harron taking scenes for Griffith's picture. Search me!

M. K. P.: A stamped, addressed envelope, please.

DOROTHY B.: Your letter for Mae Murray was received and forwarded. No trouble at all. Glad to do it.

W. W.: Yes, this is a weary world!

NATALIE: If you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope I shall take great pleasure in mailing you the printed material I have on scenario writing and a list of firms that accept scenarios. I think this will be helpful to you.

M. E. K.: S'nuff.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR?
Remove It the Easiest Way
DISSOLVE IT

There's only one simple, sure, quick and thorough way to get rid of superfluous hairs, and that is to DISSOLVE them away. If you have never tried this way before, you will be surprised at the ease with which it is done. Just moisten the hairs with wonderful

Sulfo Solution

Every hair will at once begin to shrivel—dissolve away. In a few moments, no matter how light or heavy the hair-growth, it will be absolutely and thoroughly removed, and the skin will be as soft, white and smooth as though you never had superfluous hairs.

With the low-cut, transparent and sheer gowns now all the fashion, it is absolutely necessary to have the skin free from all superfluous hairs. Why use powders and liquids that irritate and spot the skin when Sulfo Solution will remove every hair quickly and thoroughly without leaving a mark? Use it on arms, shoulders, face, ankles, and arm-pits.

Sold at drug and department stores, $1.00 a bottle, or sent direct by the makers, Cooper Pharmacal Co., Thompson Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Getting Out to the Baseball Grounds the Most Exciting Part—to a Woman

By Mme. X.

IT was partly the war—which has certainly, for the time being, diverted into other channels the current of our sympathies and enthusiasms—but it was largely the fact that it had taken $100 to wrest from a speculator the price of our two balcony seats at Comiskey park for the first of the world's series of games a week ago yesterday that contributed to a sense of disappointment at the writer's introduction to the great American game. This is an awful confession to make in the face of an absorbing national obsession. It would be almost easier to say that one were pro-German.

The most exciting part of the whole affair was the getting to the park—the being part of a swelling flood of humanity pouring in from all quarters of the city and converging towards one point. The predominating element in the crowds were men in stiff derby hats and woolly looking overcoats, men rather fat, pasty faced, smooth shaven, and most of them chewing unlit cigars; hordes of them driving, tightly packed, five or six to each automobile, at swift speed in the dense throng of Michigan avenue.

From the street the towering ramparts of the ball park in Thirty-fifth street suggested the Coliseum at Rome in its palmy days. A vast roar—unlike any other sound in nature—rhythmic, hoarse, and distinctly thrilling, rose from behind the walls and quickened your steps. On every hand you heard people saying: "A hundred thousand people have been waiting to get in." Yet when you came to the gate where red tickets were accepted there seemed no dense crowd. With hundreds of others you hastened up the steep, stepless incline that led to the balconies, the roars now beating like waves on a rocky shore, as the crowd in the amphitheater welcomed the favorites. It really was a worth while spectacle to see those thirty-two thousand Americans—for baseball is the country's most efficient melting pot—in that utterly democratic fraternization known only to sports.

The game was played with such skill that it seemed, to the tyro, too simple to be interesting or exciting. The crowd, the fringe of humanity on every roof in sight, the distant ingenious black and winking score board, the sunshine, and the fluttering Stars and Stripes were all more diverting than the White Sox or the gray Giants. Then suddenly came the realization that it was, after all, vitally important. The morale of a nation is developed by its sports. It was their football and cricket that stood behind the Canadians at Ypres, the British at Vimy ridge. It is our baseball which will—give us time—make our American soldiers the best hand grenade throwers on the western battle line. It is their saber duels (their only national sport) which make the Germans so incredibly cruel both on the field of battle and to their luckless prisoners after the battle and to the natives in the territory they conquer.

So it was with a new sense of meaning that one spectator watched Happy Felsch make his home run and somebody Jackson roll over with his historic outfield catch. Had they been brought up on baseball the Germans would never have used gas waves or liquid fire, dropped bombs on undefended towns, sunk passenger ships, shot Edith Cavell and Capt. Fryatt, or kicked and spat on war prisoners. Perhaps it was worth a hundred dollars to arrive at this conclusion. What do you think?

Easterners Predict Peace in January.

People coming back from the east bring word that our countrymen of the Atlantic seaboard think the war will be over by January. Among these recently returned ones bearing messages of hope are the Watson Blairs, who will be much relieved if their two handsome sons, both in the navy, don't have to do more than get their sea legs on. Wolcott Blair is still studying for sea service at Newport, R. I., but Watson Jr. is a full fledged ensign on a U. S. destroyer.

The James B. Wallers' son, James Breckenridge Waller Jr. (better known as "Mannie" Waller), made a fine record. In a class of 300 he graduated eighth in the list of thirty who got commissions. He also is on a big gray battleship somewhere on the Atlantic convoying America's war quota to Europe. His brother-in-law, John Borden, who on his own yacht, the Kanawha, converted into a U-boat chaser, has been hunting German submarines for five months, writes home in deep, disgusted dejection because, so far, he's never seen so much as a Teuton periscope. Even a few days' outing recently in Paris with his sister, the far famed Mrs. Mary Borden-Turner, failed to restore his equanimity. If he could have matched her accounts of work in her wonderful field hospital under fire with descriptions of battles with U-boats, life would have some savor for our adventurous young fellow citizen.

More fortunate was another Chicagoan, Mrs. Harry Selfridge, who writes of seeing in one afternoon from the windows of the Selfridges' country house, Highcliffe, on the English channel, just opposite the Isle of Wight, the periscopes of three German submarines. All three were caught, she continues, in nets within the next twenty-four hours, two surrendering and the third preferring to be sunk with all on board.

She also writes of the amazing calm with which London now accepts bombing air raids. "We take them as we would thunderstorms," she says. "You don't necessarily go to the window to watch a thunderstorm. You go on with whatever you are doing. So do we."

The Selfridges are now living in Portman square, their lease of the famous house of the Earl of Yarmouth having expired last year. Weekends they go down to Highcliffe, an ancient and picturesque house perched high on cliffs overhanging the English channel and looking across its sparkling waters to the lovely Isle of Wight. They have gardens, woods, and a golf course on their grounds.

Looking After Soldiers' Welfare.

One of the most successful by-products of the war is the Navy club at Waukegan, founded by the Chicago Woman's club and run by committees of women of nine north shore towns. The women of each community take weekly turns as hostesses to provide refreshments for the three or four hundred boys who go to the club, mainly Saturdays and Sundays. Mrs. Benjamin E. Page of Glencoe is chairman of this committee. Mrs. Mary L. Hutchins represents Waukegan, Mrs. Levi B. Doud Lake Forest, Mrs. Edward Brown Lake Bluff, Mrs. Frederic Silber Highland Park, Mrs. Noble Crandall Ravinia, Mrs. Harold L. Ickes Hubbard Woods, Mrs. John R. Dickinson Winnetka, Mrs. Victor C. Sanborn Kenilworth, Mrs. B. Frank Brown Wilmette, and Mrs. Wirt Humphrey Evanston.

Mrs. E. L. Glaser of Glencoe, who has one of the prettiest places there, guaranteed the rent of the clubhouse. Besides ice cream, cake, and coffee, books, music, and other entertainment are provided for the men. Z. T. Egartner is in charge of the entertainment and gives them on Saturdays moving pictures, stereopticon views, concerts, and recitations. Phonograph records, books, recent magazines, and piano music are all solicited by those in charge of the club, which is an institution that finds increasing favor among the naval apprentices at the nearby naval training station. Many of them are men of education who have left responsible positions at home at the call of their country. The problem of Saturdays and Sundays is not to be solved for them by a trip to town with its cheap movies and cheaper restaurants. Congenial companionship and nice surroundings lift the whole enterprise for these men to a higher level.

While on this topic, this column would like to suggest a want that might be easily filled by some of the surplus energy and patriotism of the community, and that is the establishment of a canteen between the Northwestern and Union stations for the navy boys of the training station and the army men at Fort Sheridan and Camp Grant. They all come to town in shoals Saturdays and Sundays. They land there, many of them with not much money in their pockets. A place where they could get good and cheap food would be a godsend to them. If to this could be added a decent lodging house a big problem of our military preparations would be solved. Go over to those stations on a Sunday afternoon and see the khaki and navy blue swarming about those none too savory streets and you'll see that there's room for action there.

A military wedding of more than usual interest to society will be that of Capt. Leander McCormick, son of the Hamilton McCormicks, and Miss Alice Cudahy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cudahy, which is set for Nov. 4. There will be no wedding journey for the young bridal pair, no customary honeymoon. It is possible that Capt. McCormick will only have time enough to come up for an evening wedding and take his bride directly back to the colony of newly weds at Rockford. They'll make an unusually good looking couple, she with her Titian red hair and he with his dark coloring, good figure, and air of distinction.

"War Clothes" at Bandbox.

The Bandbox, that chic little enterprise founded by Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Arthur Orr, Mrs. Halstead Freeman, Miss Katherine Linn, and others to provide funds to help support that tragically forlorn group, the children of the frontier, is becoming a real institution here. When the war is over it will have to go on with its work until those frontier boys and girls are once more in security and then it will have to adopt some other charity, because it is too valuable an enterprise to pass out of existence. Its hats and frocks and cloaks and negligees are all selected with such sure taste, such unerring judgment that many people have come to rely on the Bandbox for their best effects.

Miss Isabelle Robbins, Miss Alice Cudahy

Two of the interesting young girls in Chicago society are Miss Alice Cudahy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy of 22 Banks street, and Miss Isabelle Robbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Robbins of 1100 Lake Shore drive. Miss Cudahy furnished her friends with no end of chatter last week by announcing her engagement to Capt. Leander J. McCormick, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick. It seems quite a marvel of a match. Miss Cudahy has exquisitely vivid auburn hair, brown eyes, and delicate coloring, and her fiance is a stunning person who makes a splendid figure in his uniform. They are both clever at amateur entertainment and good dancers, Miss Cudahy having taken part many times in the benefit performances of the Junior league. The picture of Miss Cudahy and Miss Robbins was taken recently at an outdoor event on the north shore.

This year, while our downtown shops and our uptown dressmakers are all showing clothes as sumptuous as any the queen of Sheba sported for King Solomon, the Bandbox calls its wares "war clothes," and tomorrow at its opening will offer its customers rather simple, neutral tinted, severe, demure but really enchanting gowns and hats. A new wrinkle of theirs is hats and knitting bags to match. Everything is loose, hanging from the shoulders, with an indescribable ease and grace that only the Gallic touch can impart. Their quaint and charming showrooms have been redecorated, and the prettiest girls and young matrons in town will walk about as models at their fashion show tomorrow.

Last year the Bandbox supported seventy children of the frontier, waifs whom the war has deprived of parents, families, homes. This seventy, with others, are domiciled on the seashore in Brittany in a group called the Chicago colony. The Bandbox contributed $10,000 to this enterprise—a pretty goodly sum for a group of young, fashionable society women to raise from a business they established, isn't it?

New House Like Old.

A tribute to his architect, Arthur Heun, and evidence of his entire satisfaction with the house in which he had lived for twenty years is the fact that John V. Farwell is planning to rebuild his house in Lake Forest (which was recently nearly destroyed by fire) exactly as it was. Owing to the activities of his neighbors and other Lake Forest friends, most of his downstairs furniture and much of that upstairs was saved. He and his daughter, Miss Katherine Farwell, are now staying with the Francis Farwells, who live next door to the burned house. The Francis Farwells will spend the winter in town, leaving their country house to John V. Farwell until his own is once more ready for occupancy.

The Bertram Winstons have for so long been associated with that district on Lincoln parkway just south of the waterworks that to have them move up to North State street, as they are now doing, is going to change the landscape for those who have known that neighborhood for, lo! these many years. The Winstons have taken the house of Mrs. F. S. Winston, their sister-in-law, 1508 North State, for three years. Within that time they expect to build their own house next to the Casino club in East Delaware place, for which they have had plans for some time.

News of Chicago Society

The winter's social program has a decidedly sober cast to it. There is no gay bouquet of debutantes waiting admission at society's portals. The only one on the carpet at the moment is Miss Emily Crane Russell, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund A. Russell, formally introduced to a beau-less world yesterday afternoon at a reception given at their Lake Forest residence. (We can't call it a "beaux monde," when there's hardly a beau left in it, can we?)

The governors of the assemblies are making up their minds as to whether or not to have their two balls this winter. They've given them up in Boston, Philadelphia, and New York. Unless the horizon lightens there'll be no Bachelors and Benedicts', either.

Mrs. C. M. Ely is getting up for Lake Forest's favorite lecturer, Prof. John J. Halsey, a course of lectures which he will deliver at her residence, 936 Lake Shore drive, on Tuesday evenings on current events. The evening part of it makes it possible for men to go as well as women. There'll be eight lectures, beginning with Tuesday, Nov. 13. There'll probably be some lively discussions at the close of the addresses, as Prof. Halsey is a good debater and the men in the audience will, perhaps, challenge some of his extremely definite and clear-cut opinions.

Italy Needs Ambulances.

Has that exclusive and smart little society, the Lovers of Italy, vanished into thin air? Where is all that affection protested so heartily when Mrs. Harold McCormick fed the Lovers of Italy with sumptuous afternoon teas and delicious suppers? Was it a love bought with food and nourished on tea and coffee? It would seem so, as there is little or no response from its members to the appeal sent out by those trying to collect money for two ambulances to be sent to Italy.

France is surfeited with ambulances. The streets of Paris and her cafés are filled with young American ambulance drivers out of a job who ought to come home and enlist, instead of hanging about over there doing nothing. Italy, on the other hand, needs ambulances and drivers—needs them badly right now—and in the east they're answering the appeal quickly. They've got already thirty-five ambulances in New York and Boston. They've named them for some of our poets, Francis Scott Key and Robinson. And here we are balking at subscribing for two to be named for two well beloved Chicago poets, Eugene Field and William Vaughan Moody, and to be sent to the land that has inspired more poetry than any other on the face of the earth.

The three largest contributions so far have come from Miss Joanna Fortune of 43 East Burton place, who gave $200; Mrs. Frank G. Logan, who gave $250, and Hobart C. Chatfield-Taylor of Lake Forest, who gave $100. Come, Lovers of Italy—officially and unofficially so—and help make it possible to ship those ambulances to carry the Italian wounded! The Italians are fighting what, from a military point of view, is undoubtedly the most brilliant campaign of the war. Perhaps Caesar and his Roman legions are looking on—who knows? Anyway, their wounded need our help.

NEWS OF THE CHICAGO WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Taggers to Help Forty Children's Charities Monday

TOMORROW the annual tag day of the Chicago Children's Benefit league will throng the streets with taggers. The league is especially worthy of patronage this year, for the funds of peace time charity have been greatly diverted to immediate war relief.

This year forty children's charities will benefit by tag day. Last year there were thirty-six beneficiaries and the sum collected was $44,263.22. Nearly every reputable charity for children in the city will have a share in the receipts of the day.

The Children's Benefit league, which was organized in 1910, was the first organization to "tag." Last year adult tag day was inaugurated to take care of all the adult charities.

The board of directors of the Chicago Children's Benefit league consists of Mrs. Charles Frankenthal, president; Mrs. H. Victor Keane, first vice president; Mrs. Edward Tilden, second vice president; Mrs. David W. Graham, third vice president; Mrs. Henry B. Colby, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles Salmon, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Frederick Lathrop, treasurer; Mrs. Thomas Reidy, chairman of the membership committee; Mrs. Thomas J. Webb, chairman of the room and finance committee; Miss Ann Alice Fudge, chairman of the location committee; Miss Margaret Hornby, chairman of the supplies committee; Mrs. W. C. Gielow, chairman of the press and publicity committee, and Mrs. William R. Tucker, chairman of the revision committee.

The forty charities which will be aided by tag day tomorrow are:

Bethesda Day nursery.
Bethlehem creche.
Bohemian Orphans' home.
Central Baptist orphanage.
Charity alliance.
Catholic Social Center nursery.
Danish orphanage.
Ephpheta School for Deaf.
Erie Chapel institute.
Emerson House kindergarten and day nursery.

War Opens New Fields of Work for Young Women

By Mary E. McDowell.

DURING the period of the war women may be called to do work never before dreamed of, work that has to be done as a war measure and dropped after peace is declared. New fields of labor for women, some temporary, we trust, are opening in the industrial world.

There are millions of women who have no free leisure to do the patriotic work so popular today. Yet these women are the vital part of the line of defense that may help to win this war. They are making the uniforms, weaving the blankets, manufacturing the shoes, and preparing the food that is sent to the armies of the world. There are approximately two and a half million women of foreign birth in this army of wage earners, who are doing the vital things that have to be done at this critical moment, if our soldiers and sailors are to be fed and clothed.

We are not sentimental concerning women's work. We want women to do anything they are able to do that will not injure them physically or morally or unfit them for motherhood. Over eight million women have been working in gainful occupations. Yet because women are of the mother sex, they must have some protections not necessary for men, and we must make it the basis of our consideration when we study replacing of men by women in industry—in occupations they have not filled before.

A growing number of the foreign born workers are married women with young children. One group I know are filling the labor gap in canning food for the armies of the world, working all night while their children sleep by the side of the father who worked all day. They work ten hours at a stretch, stuffing cans with meat or painting cans for the armies. At 4:30 they go home, where breakfast must be prepared before the man leaves for his day's work. The children must be made ready for school. There is no rest in a noisy tenement house. The younger children under school age are in and out, wanting attention. We asked some of these night workers how much sleep they got in the daytime, and they answered, "Just what we can—sometimes one hour, two hours, sometimes none at all."

This patriotic service of preparing necessities for the army is all unconsciously done. These women are narrow in their interests. They want money to buy food and clothes.

Most of them are helping the husband to meet the expenses of a family with growing wants and needs.

These women do not dream that they are necessary to the winning of the war. Yet let them and the millions of their non-English speaking sister women—the Polish, Lithuanian, Ruthenian, Bohemian, Slovak, Italian, and Roumanian—drop out of industry at this time, and industry would be paralyzed. Food, clothes, and even ammunition would be held up, for men are at a premium.

Some women are working in car works, picking up pieces of metal and lumber and loading them onto trucks, working

COCOA—
In Cups of Beaten Gold

More than four hundred years ago Cocoa was the favorite beverage of the ancient Aztecs. Montezuma, ruler of Mexico, and first great figure in the history of the American Continent, drank cocoa from cups of beaten gold and from curious seashells, which were then thrown into a deep lake. At that time Cocoa was a royal drink. Today it is the beverage of rich and poor alike—the beverage of health, happiness and economy.

Bunte CHICAGO COCOA

is the cocoa of absolute purity. It has behind it the forty year reputation for "The Best in Everything" of the House of Bunte. White House Cocoa is manufactured by the special Bunte formula from the very choicest selected cocoa beans. When you drink Bunte Cocoa you take out health insurance. Bunte Cocoa is refreshing and of high food value. Drink it today—drink it tomorrow—drink it always.

The Full Chain To Be Rapidly Completed

Great Fruitvalers' Society Plan Going Ahead By Leap and Bounds—the People, Themselves, Join Together to Own Their Own Chain of Grocery Stores—20,000 Acres—Canneries—Chickens, Eggs, Meats, Vegetables and Foods of All Kinds—Warehouses, Transportation—Members' Insurance Fund—Remarkable Profits!

SEE FRUITVALE CUT PRICES AT ALL FRUITVALE STORES

You, Too, Are Now Invited To Join This Wonderful Co-operative Society Formed By the People To Control Grocery Stores and Markets of Their Own—Only $2.00 Now To Join

The National Society of Fruitvalers is composed of people just like yourself—people who have been able to make enough to get along fairly well but whose earnings have not been large enough to lay aside much for the future.

Our incomes have not kept pace with the steadily advancing cost of life's necessities. From month to month the margin between what it cost actually to exist and what we were able to save became smaller and smaller. We grew really alarmed at the prospects ahead for ourselves and families.

We are getting sick and tired of this thing of paying out our good money for the outlandishly high prices the retail dealers are forced to charge for food—and having nothing left.

We are sick and tired of contributing to the fat profits of manufacturers, commission men, wholesalers, jobbers and all the "in-betweeners"—profits that made them richer and richer and the paying out of which was a constant drain on our own pocket books, making us poorer and poorer.

Have you any idea of what those profits amount to? Well, for example, suppose we follow the course of a can of tomatoes from the time the tomatoes are picked from the vine until they reach your table. The owner of the cannery pays as little for the tomatoes as he can induce the grower to accept. In disposing of his canned product he considers 15% a fair profit. So he gets in touch with a commission man who agrees to buy them. The commission man disposes of the tomatoes to a jobber on a basis of a 5% commission. There's 20% already added to the first cost of those tomatoes. The jobber must also have his profit and he figures that 20% is not too much and sells them to the retail grocer on that basis. Any retail grocer, if he is perfectly honest, will tell you that he cannot do business on less than a 20% margin. Therefore, by the time we consumers get hold of that can of tomatoes we have paid approximately 50% more than we should. Just think of it—50% paid out in profits that have not added one iota to the flavor, wholesomeness or food value of those tomatoes!

That's just one example. The same thing is true of practically everything we consumers buy. We pay, pay, pay—pay out our money in useless profits—profits that make others rich—while we get less and less for our money right along!

Now where do those profits rightfully belong? Why in our own pockets, of course! And that is exactly where we, the members of the National Society of Fruitvalers, propose to put them.

We propose not only to buy from the producers at the very lowest, bed rock prices but in many instances to be the producers ourselves! And, furthermore, we propose to keep the profits, that heretofore have gone into the pockets of others who did not earn them, in our own pockets—we who are earning them.

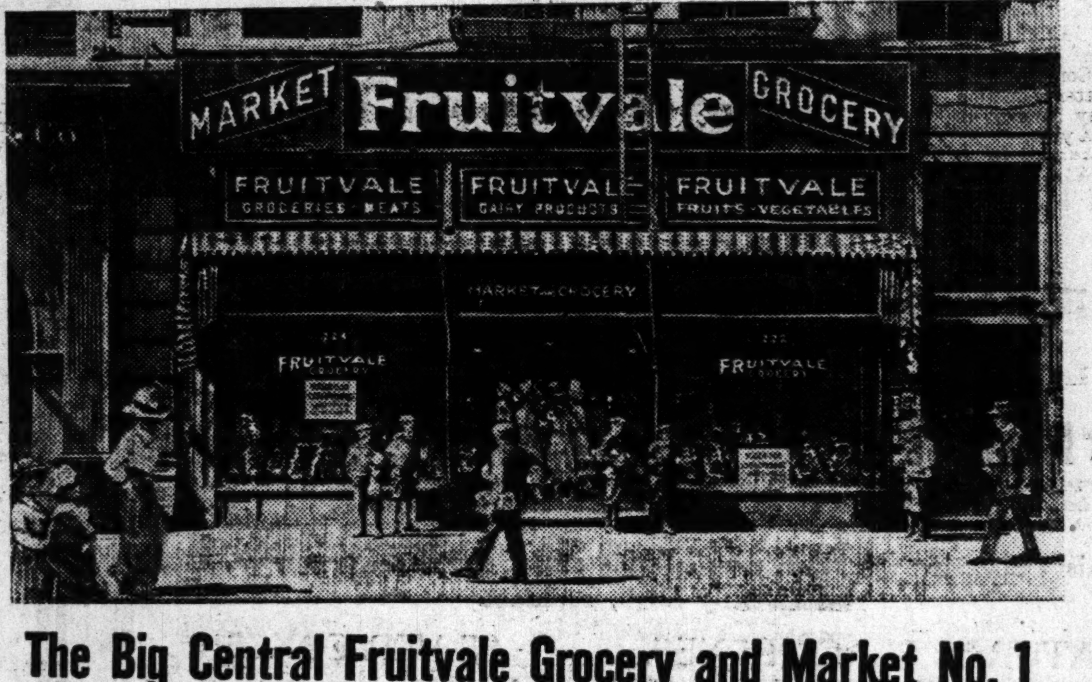
Now of course no one man, could, single handed, break down the time honored, well entrenched, from grower-to-manufacturer-to-commission man-to-jobber-to-retailer-to-consumer system upon which all of those "in-betweeners" have fattened themselves for years.

But in union there is strength and what one man alone could not accomplish thousands united for a common purpose can easily accomplish. This we are absolutely proving every day. The machinery is now in motion.

You see we propose taking this entire matter of food production, control and distribution into our own hands in order that we may: 1st, own our food cheaper by cutting out middlemen's profits; 2nd, make a legitimate profit from fruits, vegetables, poultry, eggs, etc., etc. produced on our own land, and 3rd, insure ourselves and our children against want in old age. And, as you will see when you read of what we have done, are now doing and propose to do, we are making a wonderful success of the enterprise.

And now you are invited to come in with us. Up to a certain point we want new members in our Society. But the membership is limited. When the quota for each district to be established is filled up, no additional memberships will be issued.

Now please remember that the pioneer work of this great movement has already been done, the policy laid out and on its way to completion. You can easily see this by the fact that we have already established our one main center store and next Monday five more stores begin business, the Monday after five more stores and so on until the name Fruitvale on Groceries and Markets will be known and seen throughout the entire city of Chicago and within a radius of 40 miles. We Fruitvalers feel justified in making the statement that this great movement is practically past the experimental stage, and is just bound to be the greatest co-operative movement of the age by the people and for the people.



The Big Central Fruitvale Grocery and Market No. 1

Here you see a picture of one of the largest and greatest groceries and markets in the city of Chicago. It is the National Society of Fruitvalers' central store No. 1, located at 222-224 West Madison Street.

The Fruitvalers' Society bought this store, formerly the Randolph Markets, but none of its stocks of merchandise. The store is now owned and managed by us and carries a full, complete and brand new stock of groceries, vegetables, canned goods, fruits, meats and poultry of all kinds. Everything of best value—dependable goods at the lowest prices.

This is the largest grocery store in the city of Chicago and is the first of a chain of groceries and markets to be established throughout the city of Chicago and vicinity, owned and controlled by the members of the National Society of Fruitvalers, in which will be marketed the products grown by the society, the products put up in cans by the society, poultry, eggs, meats, etc., as produced by the Fruitvale Society.

Membership in the National Society of Fruitvalers will be accepted at this store by the Fruitvale manager.

You Immediately Get 4% On Ever Dollar You Invest In a Membersh

Fruitvale, as thousands upon thousands of you well know, was found [illegible] years ago. It has been a wonderful success and the Fruitvale Company [illegible] profits from its transportation company, feed warehouses, nurseries, con[illegible] work, hotel and land upwards of $200,000 and profits should increase [illegible] with expansion of the business. For one month alone this year the profits [illegible] over $50,000.

This is another big feature of the National Society of Fruitvalers. [illegible] out of these present profits that the Fruitvalers Society has decided to pay [illegible] mediately to all members, new and old, 4% per year. But this is only the beginning [illegible] because please bear this important point in mind that this 4% interest on your [illegible] is paid out of surplus profits already earned. With our tremendously [illegible] operation, with the new members we are now inviting to join us, it is hard to [illegible] just what your additional dividends will be which are paid semi-annually, June [illegible] December of each year.

You can readily see by far the biggest profits of the Fruitvale Society w[illegible] from the additional 20,000 acres of land, the wonderful chain of Fruitvale Gr[illegible] Stores, the transportation facilities, canneries, etc. For from these will come [illegible] tional enormous profits. Besides this, all members can now have a great sav[illegible] their food supplies from the Fruitvale groceries and markets.

Remarkable Proved Succes of the Co-operative Movemen

The co-operative idea is not a new one at all. It has been tried and tested in England, N[illegible] Sweden and other countries of Northern Europe for years. The Co-Operative Wholesale Society [illegible] Glasgow for instance, has paid since it was formed 60 years ago, more than one billion, four h[illegible] million dollars in profits to its members, and when this Society was formed the price of each membership was only $25. The memberships are now [illegible] their value can hardly be estimated. Membership in the Army and Navy Stores of England originally issued for a Pound or $5 are now worth 100 Pounds or [illegible]

The American Stores Company, an organization, sells its products to the consumer at a saving of 15 to 40 per cent. It does an annual [illegible] more than $46,000,000. Taking only 20 per cent as the average saving, this one company alone saves its customers over $9,000,000 annually. [illegible] saving all this company does. It returns to its stockholders millions of dollars in profits. The Acme Stores in Philadelphia, 438 in number, actually [illegible] net profits last year of $646,526.00. Four other chain store organizations in Philadelphia with 790 stores produced actual net profits of [illegible] these profits are made without a co-operative society or without their own farm production, without their own canneries, etc. They are obliged [illegible] jobbers, commission men, growers, and manipulation profits. See for yourself what increased profits we members will make where we [illegible] useless expenses. Other chain stores are producing results just as remarkable, and yet they for the most part buy the products they sell. They [illegible] the producer, they must pay profits to the manufacturer, to the wholesaler and to the growers.

Now just contrast all this with the Fruitvale Society's membership—all these in-between profits go directly to the Fruitvale Society members [illegible] at the same time, a great saving is made to all the customers of the Fruitvale Stores and Markets.

With these astounding facts before you, you can form your own idea of what a membership in the Fruitvalers Society would be worth to [illegible] your family.

20,000 Acres Purchased by the Fruitvalers

View of Wonderful Poultry Farm at Fruitvale

It goes without saying that this great movement could not be the wonderful success it is without a sufficient amount of land whereon to raise produce for our stores.

Therefore, we, the present members of the Fruitvale Society have purchased an additional 20,000 acres of fertile and productive land for fruits and vegetables in the state of Michigan—land, too, that is ideally adapted for poultry raising.

Now the average person can hardly realize the extent of a 20,000 acre tract. Imagine a strip of land ten miles long by a little more than three miles wide and you can gain some idea of its size—for a 20,000 acre tract means more than 31 square miles.

And have you any idea of the amount of produce that can be raised by intensive cultivation on a tract of land of that size? Perhaps not. But here are some official figures: According to the Agricultural Department of the State of Michigan the country where our land is situated yields an average of 69 bushels of potatoes to the acre. If we were to plant the entire 20,000 acres in potatoes we would have the enormous yield of 1,380,000 bushels, worth at present prices, approximately $2,070,000.00.

Of course, we have no intention of planting this 20,000 acres of tract wholly in potatoes. Our plan is to cultivate it intensively in diversified crops—to lay the tract out on the unit system and, in addition to potatoes, grow onions, beets, carrots, radishes, lettuce, asparagus, celery, cabbage, cauliflower, spinach, cucumbers, sweet corn, tomatoes, cherries, strawberries, apples, peaches, etc., etc. On each unit will be grown the crop that is best adapted for that particular unit. In this way we will get all that the land is capable of producing.

There will be absolutely no wastage. For instance, on land laid out for orchards, the space between the rows of trees will be utilized for small vegetables—onions, carrots, beans, etc. There will be more than an abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables for our stores and all surplus will be canned at our cannery and put out under our own brands.

Anyone who is at all familiar with the wonderful fertility of Michigan soil, knows that there is not the slightest exaggeration in the statement that, at the most conservative estimate, $50 an acre can easily be realized off this land. That means an annual net income for members of $1,000,000. And, in addition to the vast quantities of fruits and vegetables there will be cows to produce milk, cream, butter and cheese; chickens and eggs; hogs for ham, bacon and lard—the profits from the sale of which will go to our members.

Please bear in mind that WE PRESENT FRUITVALERS HAVE ACCOMPLISHED WONDERFUL RESULTS and have made great headway. We bought the land. Already the first one of our mammoth chain of grocery stores and markets is in operation—the Great Fruitvale Down Town Grocery and Market—formerly the well known Randolph Market—222-224 West Madison Street.

Five more Fruitvale Stores will be open for business tomorrow—Monday, October 15th. Two are on the West Side—2948 West Madison Street and 2417 West Madison Street; two are on the Northwest Side—1301 Devon Ave. and 2501 North Ave.; and one on the North Side at 4715 Broadway. Five more Fruitvale Stores will open for business Monday, October the 22nd, more the following week.

916 Chicago Fruitvale Grocery Stores and Markets

These will be the grocery stores around which live the members and those who we now are inviting to join the Society. No more than the number of members indicated surrounding each of these stores in each section of Chicago and vicinity will be accepted. We now invite you to become one of these members.

Everything has been figured out, all drawn down to a definite, logical basis. We know just exactly how many members are necessary in each section of Chicago and within a 40 mile radius to make up the full quota for the economical growing, consuming and transportation of all the foods produced by the Fruitvale Society, and the membership fees necessary to accomplish everything desired by the Fruitvale Society.

Anyone can easily see that these complete Fruitvale Groceries and Markets will attract the majority of the people living in each of these districts for the reason that they will at all times carry the freshest stocks and the best values ever given in their particular locations. This is made possible because the Fruitvale Society on its land proposes to grow its own vegetables and fruits at the lowest possible cost, without any profits being made by "in-between merchants," thereby going direct to the consumer at a considerable saving and at the same time making us Society members big profits. See the already greatly reduced food prices at Fruitvale Stores. Compare with them the low prices prevailing at the Fruitvale Stores now in operation. Then consider the still greater reduction in prices when we grow and put up our own groceries, etc. The saving in prices alone will soon pay back to us Fruitvale members all we paid in and we still get the tremendous profits in cash dividends paid twice a year.

All Fruitvale Grocery Stores will be painted in the same attractive and distinctive manner with the wording above them, "Fruitvale Grocery" so that they will immediately attract attention. At a very conservative estimate, each of these stores should earn more than $1,500.00 per year, (which is not quite $5 per day per store) which in itself would be an income of more than one million, three hundred and seventy thousand dollars a year from these stores alone to us members. This is aside from our present land business and aside from the great saving in reduced prices to members and aside from the big cash profits to be made from the big producing farm, canneries, etc.

You can easily see what wonderful stores these are to be—what wonderful profits will come in semi-annual dividends to all us Fruitvale members from these stores alone, and it is not the intention of the present Fruitvale members to stop with Fruitvale stores merely in Chicago. Our intention is to have the biggest chain of grocery stores throughout the United States ever before brought together under any one organization. By this you can readily see what it means to join this organization now while the opportunity is still open.

Join with us. Put the profits that these middlemen are now making off you in your own pockets. Why should you or we pay the jobber, the manufacturer, the grower, and the retailer our money so that they can become rich? Join the Fruitvale Co-operative Society and keep the profits in your own pocket—and make yourself rich instead. That's the reason for the Fruitvale Co-operative Society, and that's the reason why we now ask you to join in with us.

We have districted the city of Chicago and vicinity and divided it into 916 commercial districts, and inviting enough more members for each district to fill a membership unit. As soon as the quota prescribed is filled, it will be closed and no further members accepted. But as this Society is a going, profitable enterprise, there is no waiting for profits or benefits. You immediate participate in profits already made and being made each day.

ore Big Profits from e Fruitvale Cannery

As we have said, we do not propose that any of the fruits and vegetables raised on our vast acreage shall spoil or go to waste. The surplus over what cannot be sold at our stores will be canned. A cannery for this purpose, right on our Michigan land, is now in contemplation. These canned goods of all kinds are bound to be the favorites with housewives everywhere, because put up under the superior direction of the Fruitvale Society, they are to be the finest on the market, they are to be pure, clean and wholesome and once used, these canned goods are sure to give such satisfaction as to cause their regular demand. You can readily see that with the Fruitvale Society's plan of growing and canning and marketing direct, cutting out all in-between profits, the last word has been said for economy.

The canning business is a tremendous industry. Fabulous incomes are now being made every year by those who you are now patronizing. Join with us and put these profits in your own pocket. It is the intention of this Society to have Fruitvale Society Canned Fruits and Vegetables known and used throughout the United States. The canning business alone should give the Fruitvale Society members large cash dividends besides the best there is in such products.

Insurance Fund for Members

You have read this announcement to no purpose if you have not already clearly discerned that the ultimate object of the National Society of Fruitvalers, organized by the people, for the people, is to make its members independent — to insure them against want in later years. We have shown you how we propose to do this—by the elimination of in-between profits that are mercilessly exacted all along the line on all food prices, and by directing that steady stream of profits into our own pockets.

But to make assurance doubly sure we have created an insurance fund and pension account as a protection to the Society's members. When old age or unfortunate circumstances creep into our lives, making the battle for life's necessities a stern and bitter one, this fund will be a God-send. One percent of the net profits of our Society is set aside as an insurance and pension fund for the benefit of its members in need.

Fruitvale Stores Cut Prices

Do your marketing at Fruitvale Stores and save money. Each store carries a full stock of strictly dependable Groceries. All stocks brand new and fresh.

Just to show you the difference between the Fruitvale system and the old way, at all Fruitvale Stores, we will introduce

66 Bar Box Kirk's Flake Soap	$2.65

Only Society Members Employed

An enterprise so vast as the Fruitvale Co-operative Society must be handled in the most efficient way by experts and those whose past performance have proven their efficiency. All supplies for all grocery stores are to be purchased and grown in the largest quantities by this society. The latest, most approved, money-saving machinery, such as tractors, planters, etc., etc., will be used. Seeds, plants, bulbs for the 20,000 acres, of the highest and most productive character come from our green houses and nurseries. Everything is done in the maximum quantities under the most efficient management.

The men in charge of every department of this Society from the agricultural expert in Michigan, poultry expert to those in charge of the marketing department in the city of Chicago, are tried and trusted members, capable with the additional advantages which the new members will give the organization not only of maintaining their present rate of profits, but making them grow by leaps and bounds. Some of the men have been with the organization since the Fruitvale plan was first conceived and their capacity has grown with the Society, until today they are capable of sustaining any expansion that the Society may decide upon.

You can easily imagine what this means in the nature of securing everything at the lowest, rock-bottom cost for the Fruitvale Society. You can easily see why the Fruitvale stores will be able to undersell their competitors. It is not possible for any one or several grocery stores to purchase their supplies on so economical a basis even though these individual grocers did grow their own fruits and vegetables, which they do not. The Fruitvale Society Organization will at all times be of the highest character for the purchase of all supplies at the very minimum cost.

Join Now While There Is Still a Chance!

You'll have to hurry if you wish to take advantage of this wonderful opportunity and become a member of the National Society of Fruitvalers. For again we say—and we wish to emphasize it—that the number of memberships in each locality is strictly limited. This means that there are to be only 100 membership certificates issued for each district. Just as soon as the quota for each district is filled no other memberships will be accepted for that district. So either mail the coupon together with $2; call at the Society's offices in the Hearst Building or apply for your membership at the Central Fruitvale Grocery and Market, 222-224 West Madison Street or any of the Fruitvale Groceries mentioned in this announcement.

The 20,000 acres of land, section after section to be cultivated as explained, warehouses established, canneries where fruits and vegetables will be put up and marketed with the Fruitvale Society labels, will be taken over. More land for fruits and vegetables, California and Florida lands for year 'round fruits and vegetables, Fruitvale stores everywhere. Think what this means to Fruitvale members who start now.

We ask you to join us with the full knowledge that you will cherish your membership all your life as the greatest and biggest money-making possession. Remember, the Society is now earning sufficient and will pay to start with four per cent interest on your membership money, and also, that as a member you participate—all of us the same—in semi-annual cash dividends. Also in great reduction to members on foods—in all additional profits and all the crops equally. Remember, you pay only $2 now which makes you a member and then $1 per week for 48 weeks, until you have paid all told just $50. No dues, no extras, no assessments of any sort now or later. Also remember that you have all of 30 days to get your money back. Should you wish the return of your money paid into the Society for any reason or for no reason, you may have every dollar you have paid in and you will receive four per cent interest on the amount for the time the Society has had the money.

Will you be one of us? Will you be a member of the National Society of Fruitvalers? If you wish to join you must act quickly. These memberships are being quickly taken. So send for yours without delay. You have ample time to investigate. You have 30 days to get your money back if by that time you are not satisfied in every way. We want you with us. You know this movement is bound to work wonders, so join now while you have the opportunity. Mail this coupon with $2. You absolutely run no risk because you may have your money back, with interest, at any time within 30 days if you wish it.

Just think—your name on the coupon sending in only $2 starts you a full and equal membership in all the vast benefits in this great co-operative movement, such as big saving on your food and the profits in the farms, food, groceries, transportation, canneries, etc., etc. Come—be one of us.

THE NATIONAL SOCIETY OF FRUITVALERS, Hearst Building Chicago, Illinois

Your Money Back If You Want It

Please remember that the National Society of Fruitvalers is a mutual, co-operative organization. We are in this great movement earnestly, whole-heartedly, enthusiastically. We are determined to make it the biggest, most successful and most profitable enterprise of the kind ever undertaken. And so we don't want joined with us a single dissatisfied member. Therefore, we say to you that we will allow you 30 days in which to make the closest investigation and if at the end of that time you are not thoroughly satisfied, or if for any reason at all you do not wish to continue as a member of our Society, we will not only return to you every dollar you have paid in, but we will pay you interest at the rate of 4% a year for the time your money has been in our hands.

So fill out the coupon below and mail it to us at once with $2.00. This will make you a member and you will at once be entitled to full membership privileges.

Membership Everlasting and Transferable

All Fruitvale memberships are everlasting and transferable. Each membership is fully paid and non-assessable after $2 has been paid down and $1 additional payment has been made for 48 weeks, making $50 in all. No assessments, no further dues, no payments of any sort whatever are to be made. Members may move to any section of Chicago, or anywhere and their membership carries with it all the same benefits from all sources.

In other words, the membership becomes the sole, personal property of the member to do with it whatever he or she desires, and if members wish to sell their memberships at any price, they can do so and with the sale is transferred all the benefits that go with the membership.

Some Present Members

We Fruitvalers come from every walk in life. Some of us are clerks, others teachers, lawyers, doctors, insurance men, department managers, executives, laborers, salesmen, traveling men, etc., etc.—all linked together for the protection and improvement of conditions of ourselves and families. Read the names of a few of the thousands who are now members and you'll see that when you join us you will be in good company.

FREE MOVING Picture Shows

HARRISON M. PARKER
Founder & Pres. of National Society of Fruitvalers

Many Fruitvale Clubs have already been organized throughout the city and others are being organized so that before long each district will have its own club. Our district managers have arranged for a series of public meetings at each of which free moving pictures will be shown.

At these meetings you will come face to face with Mr. Harrison Parker, president and founder of the National Society of Fruitvalers. At each meeting Mr. Parker will deliver an address—a vivid recital of how he came to found the National Society of Fruitvalers. He will tell you how the idea spread and grew in popularity—how the people flocked to his standard and ranged themselves on his side in the fight for food freedom. He will give you an actual, realistic demonstration of the wonderful things that have already been accomplished by the Society, and show you the amazingly bright prospects of the Society's immediate future.

From this personal meeting with Mr. Parker you will gain a clear idea of the character and lofty ideals of the man who stands at the head of this great movement. You will feel—yes, you will know—that if you join us you will be in the company of earnest men and women who have as their leader a man who has your best interests at heart. So don't fail to attend one of these meetings, see the free picture show and hear what Mr. Parker has to tell you. Remember, there is absolutely no charge for admission and no obligation.

Any of the following District managers will tell you where and when these Moving Picture Shows and meetings will be held. They also accept memberships.

Treasurer, NATIONAL SOCIETY OF FRUITVALERS
Hearst Building, Madison and Market Sts., Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen:—Enclosed please find $2.00 for which send me perpetual participating membership certificate, fully paid and non-assessable, in the National Society of Fruitvalers. I agree to send to the Society headquarters in Chicago, $1.00 per week for 48 weeks until I have paid the Society a sum total of $50.00.

It is understood that I become a full member, participating in all the profits, properties and all the benefits from any source whatever of the Fruitvalers Society, exactly the same as every other member.

It is understood that I am to receive a minimum of four per cent interest per year, payable out of profits already earned, payable December 1st and June 1st and in addition to this interest I am to receive my dividends out of the profits the same as all other members.

It is further understood that the Society agrees to refund any money and cancel my membership for any or no reason, should I request it, within 30 days, and I am to receive four per cent interest for the time my money has remained with the Society.

out of doors and getting good wages. What the effect upon them physically and what social results especially in reference to their family life there will be, time only can tell.

Before society permits mothers with children to enter into such work as freight handling, it must be proven that there cannot be found anywhere others who can do this necessary work without serious injury to themselves. Are all the men at work? Are there no men between 35 and 50 who could lift freight without harm to themselves? Every thoughtful man and woman will agree that married women should not be called to this service that specialists tell us is too great a risk to run. If men cannot be found, where shall we look in this emergency? Freight must be handled expeditiously if railroads are to be free for carrying war stuff.

Is it too daring to venture to suggest a plan for using the patriotic impulse of the splendid young college women who can walk and lift, who play tennis and golf, run their own motors, and who have trained minds and healthy bodies? Are they ready to lift freight in an emergency, at their country's call?

The young women of a college in New York were organized into agricultural units to meet the emergency on the farms near the city. It is reported they handled the work so intelligently that the farmers said they had never had so much work done in so short a time. These college women standardized farm labor before they left the farms.

It is too great a stretch of the creative imagination to foresee our healthy young Chicago women organized into units for five hour shifts, lifting freight for the defense of their country, and the protection of the mothers of young children who cannot make demands equal to their needs? Is it not possible that freight handling might be standardized by this type of intelligent worker who goes in for this emergency period?

By standardizing this work under wise supervision, this service for the nation's good can be accomplished without injury to any one. Emotion turned into deeds, we are told by the great psychologist, is wholesome for men, women, and nations, and if freight handling is considered safe for women, then why not give this emergency work over to young unmarried women with health, intelligence, and free leisure.

WOMEN IN WAR WORK.

The Chicago Society of Ohio women's emergency committee of war work will meet in its workshop, 607 Marquette building, on Tuesday and Thursday at 10 a. m. Any Ohio women who wishes to work for the Red Cross is welcome.

Miss Justine R. Cook, director of the Chicago Junior Red Cross, is sending out a request for colored yarn, to be used by school children in the making of garments for refugee children in France and Belgium. Donations will be received at room 15, 511 Garland building.

An appropriation of $589,930 for the relief of Belgians not under the rule of Germany has just been announced by the war council of the Red Cross.

Dr. Alice Barlow Brown of Winnetka has arrived at Toul, France, to establish a free dispensary for women and children. This is supported by Winnetka women and the American Fund for French Wounded.

There is to be no lonely or hungry Sunday for any man in uniform in Chicago. Mrs. George McKinlock and her corps of canteen workers are going to station their field kitchen somewhere near the Congress hotel on the Grant park side of Michigan avenue Sunday and hand out coffee and sandwiches free of charge to any man in uniform who may apply.

At the South Shore Country club the Red Cross auxiliary is busy every day from 10 until 4 o'clock except Saturdays and Sundays. Any one who wishes to work for the Red Cross is welcome. Mrs. Augustus D. Curtis is in charge of the work and she is assisted by a committee of sixty-four women, which includes twenty graduate supervisors. Mrs. William F. Bode is chairman of the garments and has secured electric sewing machines to work with. Mrs. Robert Peacock has donated a knitting machine to the auxiliary. Mrs. Clarence Norwood is chairman of the knitting.

LADIES!

Do not fail to read this, for you may need Stopsit. Stopsit is a Hair Tonic prepared from a new formula and does to Hair all that the name implies—It stops Hair falling, itching, removes dandruff and scalp eruptions.

Removes superfluous oil, yet does not dry the Hair; also removes the odious necessity of applying every morning or evening and thus minimizes the danger of acquiring colds in head, with subsequent diseases, for it is applied once a week.

Stopsit does away with extra washing and shampooing.

It assists the growth of Hair. Makes Hair soft and fluffy. Will not discolor but bring out natural color and luster.

Stopsit has undergone severe tests and always redeemed itself. Try Stopsit and be convinced. One application produces visible results.

Ask your druggist for Stopsit and if he does not have it, let him order it for you or write,

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Illinois Baptists in Moline for State Convention

By the Rev. W. B. Norton.

BAPTISTS will meet in state convention in Moline, Ill., beginning tomorrow evening and continuing until Thursday evening.

The Rev. Charles W. Gilkey of Hyde Park Baptist church, Chicago, will preach the opening sermon of the pastors' conference tomorrow evening and will lead the devotions on Tuesday morning. The Rev. Judson B. Thomas, pastor of the First Baptist church, Austin, will be one of the speakers on Tuesday morning. The pastors' conference concludes on Tuesday noon and the convention proper begins on Tuesday afternoon. Judge L. Chapin of Springfield is president of the convention. The annual convention sermon will be preached by the Rev. J. T. Hazen of Peoria and the state convention address will be by the Rev. C. O. Hopkins of Champaign.

A separate meeting will be held by the women in the First Methodist Episcopal church all day Tuesday. Mrs. W. B. Topping of Elgin is president. The young women will have a program in charge of Miss Alice Brimson of Chicago and Miss Gladys Topping of Elgin.

Thursday evening a banquet will be held at which President Potter of Shurtleff college will preside. The closing address of the convention will be given by the Rev. William Holloway Main, pastor of the First Baptist church, Chicago.

Other convention speakers will be the Rev. S. J. Skevington, pastor of the Belden Avenue Baptist church, Chicago, first vice president of the convention and chairman of the committee on missions; Mrs. Andrew McLeish; Miss Clara E. Pinkham, Baptist Training school, Chicago; the Rev. J. Y. Aitchison, home secretary of the Foreign Missionary society, formerly of Chicago; Howard H. Russell, Westerville, O., founder of the Anti-Saloon league; the Rev. F. E. R. Miller, Elgin, "Church Efficiency"; the Rev. J. M. Stifler, Evanston, "Education"; and the Rev. Samuel Z. Batten, Washington, D. C., "Social Service."

The sixty-seventh annual convention of the synod of northern Illinois of the general synod of the English Evangelical Lutheran church will be held in the First English Evangelical Lutheran church, Freeport, beginning next Tuesday. The Rev. W. F. Rex is pastor of the entertaining church. Action concerning the union of the three English Lutheran bodies and a reformation celebration will be matters of chief importance.

The annual convention of the synodical federation of Lutheran brotherhoods will precede the meeting of the synod beginning at 2 p. m. tomorrow. The Rev. H. M. Bannen of Rockford will speak on "The Brotherhood and Army Corps." A. L. Liljestrom of Chicago is secretary of the federation.

The Rev. Frank E. Wilson, rector of St. Augustine's Protestant Episcopal church, Wilmette, has been granted a leave of absence by his vestry at the request of Bishop C. P. Anderson for the purpose of serving the soldiers at Camp Grant.

A workers' conference for young people will be held next Tuesday at the Montrose United Presbyterian church, Montrose and Whipple avenues. E. P. Gates, field secretary of the Illinois Christian Endeavor union, will lead the conference.

The Rev. H. O. Rowlands has become the permanent supply of the Second Baptist church, Lincoln street and Jackson boulevard, until a successor can be found for the Rev. J. M. Dean, who resigned as pastor to enter into evangelistic work.

Herbert S. Bigelow of Cincinnati will speak this evening at the Sunday Evening club in the Englewood Presbyterian church, Yale avenue and Sixty-fourth street. The club is sustained by the Pilgrim Congregational and the Englewood Presbyterian churches. It is managed by a board of directors, five from each of the two churches, five from the community, and the two pastors.

Bishop Thomas F. Gailor

The Rt. Rev. Thomas F. Gailor, bishop of Tennessee of the Protestant Episcopal church, will be one of the speakers at a banquet given next Wednesday evening at the Auditorium hotel by the Church club of Chicago in honor of the house of bishops, which will meet at St. James' church, Rush and East Huron streets, beginning Wednesday. Bishop Gailor is chancellor of the University of the South and was elected chairman of the house of bishops at the last general convention of the church held in St. Louis last fall.

The house of bishops numbers sixty-six bishops and the entire number, with possible exceptions because of illness or unforeseen hindrances, is expected to be present.

Other speakers at the banquet will be the Rt. Rev. Daniel S. Tuttle, bishop of Missouri and presiding bishop of the church, who was 80 years of age last January, and the Rt. Rev. Edwin S. Lines, bishop of Newark.

The sessions of the house of bishops will be behind closed doors. It is understood from the call sent out and printed in the church papers that the election of missionary bishops and consideration of questions growing out of the war will be taken up. The banquet on Wednesday night is expected to bring together an unusual number of churchmen, clerical and lay.

The Illinois synod of the Presbyterian church will meet in Peoria from Tuesday to Thursday. The moderator, the Rev. R. E. Anderson of Onarga, will preach the opening sermon Tuesday evening. On Wednesday evening a popular meeting in the interest of the four hundredth anniversary of the reformation under Luther, Calvin, and other leaders will be held, at which the speakers will be the Rev. Charles F. Wishart, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Chicago, and Prof. Andrew C. Zenos of McCormick Theological seminary. It is considered certain that the Rev. J. Harmon Johnson of Clinton, formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian church of River Forest, will be reelected stated clerk, but there is considerable interest in the election of the permanent clerk, as the present incumbent has moved out of the state and a new official must be elected.

The thirty-seventh annual council of the synod of the Reformed Episcopal church will be held in the Church of the Epiphany, Cleveland, O., beginning next Wednesday morning. The chief business will be the election of a bishop as successor to the late Bishop Charles Edward Cheney, who was at the time of his death rector of Christ church, Chicago, having the record of being the oldest living pastor of any Protestant church in Chicago. A bishop coadjutor may also be elected at the meeting of the synod.

The Rev. F. A. Agar of New York will speak today at 10:30 a. m. in the Ravenswood Baptist church, Sunnyside and North Seeley avenues, of which the Rev. F. B. Neel is pastor. In the afternoon a conference of church workers will be held, Dr. Agar being the speaker. Dr. Agar's official title is "methods secretary of the five year program." He is an expert in church efficiency. The Ravenswood church is preparing to celebrate the fourth anniversary of the pastorate of Mr. Neel on Nov. 4. The church will hold a fellowship luncheon the evening of Oct. 19.

The first meeting of the men's club of the St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church, Belmont avenue near Broadway, will be held tomorrow evennig. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago will speak on the subject, "The War Situation" illustrated by lantern slides.

St. Edmund's parochial school, Oak Park, will be dedicated today at 10:30 by Archbishop G. W. Mundelein. The school is patterned after the Hall of Justice, Rouen, France, famous as one of the most beautiful examples of French Gothic architecture in existence. The biulding is faced with blue Bedford stone and is highly ornamented with foliage decorations and lace work in stone. Grotesque gargoyles form a border just at the base of the slate roof, which has a steep elevation. The dimensions are 135x45 feet, crossed by a wing in front eighty feet wide. The auditorium on the second floor seats 600. Archbishop Mundelein will be met at West Washington boulevard and Oak Park avenue by a delegation of the Holy Name society and the Knights of Columbus headed by the pastor of St. Edmund's, the Rev. John J. Code. Pontifical high mass will be celebrated in the church after the ceremony of dedication. The Rev. Edward Dankowski will be celebrant of the mass, assisted by the Rev. George C. Code and the Rev. Edward J. Fox as deacon and subdeacon. Following the mass a class of eighty will be confirmed. A banquet will follow at he rectory.

Captains, lieutenants, sergeants, and corporals have been scouting this last week in the region of Division and North La Salle streets, trying to round up 1,000 recruits. These officers are not in the regular army, nor among the drafted men, but are boys of the street, enlisted under C. O. Frisbie, a downtown business man, who has accepted the position of superintendent of the La Salle Avenue Baptist church Sunday school, in order to get the children of the north side busy doing good. Mr. Frisbie has put into the church a moving picture outfit at his own expense and will give a free entertainment this morning at 10 o'clock. For next Sunday he has secured the promise of one of the officers of Camp Grant to speak to the boys. He is after 1,000 boys and girls. "I am pitting myself against the downtown church problem," he said, "and I hope to win."

The First United Presbyterian church, South Central Park avenue and West Congress street, will entertain today a number of jackies from the Great Lakes Naval station. A committee has been appointed to secure homes where the sailor boys may be invited for dinner and supper. The Rev. Frank Ray Elder is pastor of the church and Mrs. Warner, 3236 Polk street, is chairman of the committee securing places of entertainment.

The Ingleside Methodist Episcopal church, Seventy-sixth street and Ingleside avenue, after having spent $2,000 in improvements and redecoration, will be reopened today at 10:30 with a sermon by the Rev. Joseph L. Walker, district superintendent. Among the improvements has been the installation of an electric motor in the pipe organ. The pastor is the Rev. E. G. Cattermole, who will be in charge of the special service.

The Cost of Your Corset

Third Floor—Center

Does not mean that it is the corset you should wear unless the corset was selected for and fitted to your particular figure. If you realized the economy of wearing a correctly selected and fitted Nemo corset you, too, would wear a pair, not alone economy, though, urges you to wear Nemo corsets, for thousands of women have found that their comfort and helpfulness are even more to be considered, for the vast variety of models and the many unique and exclusive health and comfort features shown in Nemo corsets make it possible for our corsetieres to fit every figure correctly and to help it, if needed, attain a better shape; for this unexcelled fitting service no extra charge is ever made.

Nemo self-reducing corset, style No. 355, for women who like a very low bust, but who need abdominal reduction and support. The elastic band just under the abdomen lifts up the abdominal wall and supports it, keeping all the organs in their respective places. Sizes 21 to 36, at 3.50

See the New Nemo Self-Reducing Corset

No. 312, for the tall, stout figure, and No. 311, for the short, stout figure; sizes to 36, at 3.00

Nemo corset No. 512, as illustrated, is a very popular model for women who require little abdominal reduction but who are too large otherwise below the waist line. Note the elastic bands across the thighs and back. They mean flesh well held in and reduced gradually but positively. Sizes 21 to 36, at 5.00

Nemo self-reducing corset, style 403—for the figure of medium height, with full bust, large hips and abdomen. The improved relief bands on this model will simply gather up a large, "spreading" abdomen, support, reshape, and reduce it, with greater comfort to the wearer than ever before, and bring wonderful figure improvement; sizes to 36, at 4.50

The Main Floor Grand Opera Season Tickets Go on Sale Tomorrow

This will be the last offering of the Season Ticket privilege this year. The block of seats devoted to the Season Ticket privilege in the $2.00 and $2.50 Section was entirely sold far in advance of the closing date announced. Following this, the sale of $3.00 Season Ticket Seats was equally successful. The galleries have taken care of themselves. Therefore, the Main Floor Season Tickets are all that remain.

A Discount of 10% on The Main Floor

The Main Floor Season Tickets will be $45 instead of $50 (for 10 performances) thus offering a discount of 10 per cent. The sale will begin at 9 o'clock sharp at the Auditorium, 58 East Congress Street. (Please go first to the charts in the foyer and choose your seats from them.) The number of Season Ticket subscriptions from regular patrons is far in excess of last year. Consequently, the number remaining to be sold is more limited than usual.

What Is The Deeper Meaning of Grand Opera And Who Are Its Followers?

Grand Opera represents the highest expression yet attained in the emotional life and the highest distinction yet made in the social life. It is the most brilliant environment society has yet found in which to present itself at its best.

Throughout the great Auditorium on an Opera Night, there is the democracy of the music emotion from main floor to gallery. (For music is the most democratic of all the arts.) While on the Main Floor of the Auditorium on an Opera Night, there is the added appeal to the senses of a brilliant social environment, unsurpassed in any other gatherings of the world. They who are capable of these intenser emotions and who can afford the luxury of environment in which to surround them are the patrons of this great Main Floor. And of course, the season ticket holders are the real inner circle of this group.

Grand Opera is Really Cheap

It is cheap because it affords three entertainments in one. First, it gives to its patrons the highest form of classic drama for which in theatres you pay the highest price. Second, it gives to its patrons the most marvelous voices of the generation, voices world famed, for whose very records you pay a handsome price and for whose appearance in concert you pay practically the same price as you pay for the whole of Grand Opera. And with all this, it gives to its patrons a great orchestra under great conductors for which in symphony orchestras you also pay a good price.

A Remarkable Season Assured

This year, as you probably already know, Chicago will have the most brilliant Opera Season in its history. Nearly every music center in the world is sending its stars to participate. The French Government in granting a furlough to many of our favorites who have been in the war for three years is also assisting magnanimously and most materially. The reception to these artists, both old and new, who have been playing more tragic roles will produce high peaks of emotion seldom attained.

Every Night Will Be a Gala Night This Year

Regular subscribers more than ever are dividing their nights in the boxes and on the Main Floor, one group choosing one night; another, another. In this way, visiting and interchanging of seats and boxes on different nights is becoming even more general, and with well balanced casts for all operas, every night will be a gala night.

Sale of Boxes

The Season Tickets for the remaining Boxes will also be on sale tomorrow at $60 per performance (six seats.) For your selection of Main Floor Seats, please remember to go first to the charts in the foyer where attendants will show you the seats that are open and assist you in your selection. Those who desire to make reservation prior to their personal selection may telephone, Harrison 1243, Subscription Department.

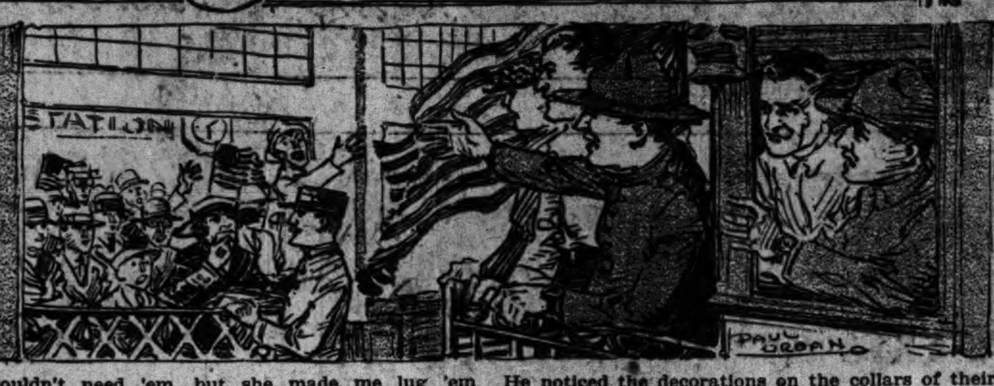
SELECTED By ONEY FRED SWEET



SHE had done her best to crowd close against the iron gates, Jimmy's mother had. But there were so many other mothers crowding there for a last glimpse of their boys out in the darkened train shed. The man who had carried the big silk flag had begun to fold it up. Out in the street the shimmering red, white, and blue had flashed in the sparkling sun of the September morning—flashed somehow as never before. Now the parade through the streets was over.

Jimmy's mother wasn't crying. She was simply holding her handkerchief to her lips to hide their tremble. She did want to see Jimmy just once more before he got on the train—to make sure he had the sandwiches she had made the night before, to urge him again to be sure and write home everything. Division 68 was made up of such husky men. It seemed strange the board had picked Jimmy for a man among them. They didn't seem to understand that Jimmy was still just a boy that needed her. She had taken care of Jimmy for twenty-three years; if only they would let her go along!

The band struck up. The cornets and the big bass blended in a stirring piece that had accompanied the departure of troops to the south in the '60's. The selection would have made a civil war veteran reminiscent, but Jimmy, standing on the car steps, waited patiently until it was finished.

"Say," he called to the leader, "play some of them national songs and we'll sing wid ya. I want to make some guy take off his hat that don't know enough."

The train started to move. Slowly it started, and then faster, faster, faster.

They were gone!

It was the end and the beginning. The drawing of numbers, the physical examinations, the exemption claims—all that was bygone now.

Here was the bunch!

Some one with some sort of authority was coming through the car tying on tags. A dark skinned lad, wearing a purple shirt with green checks in it, seemed puzzled when the man with the tags asked him a question, and he answered by clutching hard at the tiny American flag he held.

THE suburbs were being passed. Nobody had said much. A heavy set, round faced man with a southern Europe accent opened up the comfort kit that the business men's club of his neighborhood had presented and attempted to comb the hair of the fellow next to him, hitherto an absolute stranger. Immediately he became the car comedian, with an appreciative audience. The car lurched; everybody laughed. Then Jimmy, his white felt hat on the back of his head and his face twisted with mischief, schemed up a bit of original slapstick.

The open fields were reached—stretches of yellowed corn and golden stubble and resting cattle under apple trees—a country church with services going on, for it was Sunday morning.

A farmer and his wife and daughter waved from a white painted porch. Well might the farmer and his wife wave their enthusiasm if they prized their fields of peace and loved their daughter. Well might they wave at the sight of selected manhood on the way to be armed.

The car comedian had sunk into slumber. Some of his recent audience slept; others assumed the attitude of the average traveler. There was a turning to newspapers, a tendency simply to look out the windows at the fields and little towns. Conversation lagged.

Jimmy picked up his newspaper and glanced at the black line across the top of the front page, "Von Tirpitz Planned to Make U. S. Pay for war." Then he turned over to devour the latest dope about the White Sox.

AFTER a time Jimmy unwrapped one of his sandwiches. The tissue paper wrapping struck the window ledge and the breeze bore it away—bore away a mother's final home touch.

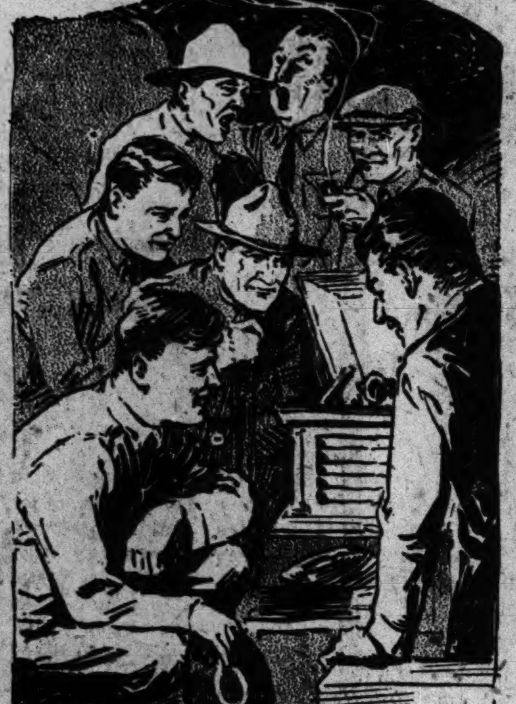
"Wanta sandwich?" Jimmy asked the youth in front of him—a tall, slim youth whose tie was painstakingly arranged against an up to the minute soft cloth collar. "I told the old lady I wouldn't need 'em, but she made me lug 'em along."

"No, but thanks just the same."

"I ain't hungry. I was out to a farewell party pretty near all night. I left quick this morning. I didn't want to see the old lady cry. I guess the army's all right if a fellow behaves himself. She made me promise one thing—that I'd write everything about the trip down and how it is after I get there."

There were stops for water, during which could be heard the chorus of the insects in the dusty, faded green along the railroad right of way. How still the country was on a Sunday noon! The train continued its monotonous click-click.

Jimmy glanced out of the window. Then he leaned over to look out. The train was slowing down as upon one side of the track there suddenly appeared row upon row of unpainted buildings. An officer was riding down the road, and the horse's heels were kicking up the dust of what but a few months before had been a great cornfield. They had arrived! You could tell that the place had sprung up as if by magic, like a circus or a mining camp.



The train came to a stop. Two newly made officers came aboard the car. They didn't seem like new officers. Their months at Fort Sheridan had given them a veteran bearing and snap.

"Yep," Jimmy answered.

IT was by no means a military organization that got off the train. They wore hard hats and long peaked caps, hot black coats, trousers with cuffs that were tight fitting and trousers that were baggy. They clutched bundles of every description. Their expressions were questioning, uncertain.

While they were being rushed into a long column of fours Jimmy sized up the officers who had met the train and were busy with the formation. He noticed the easy manner with which they carried themselves—the sure, easy manner. He noticed the decorations on the collars of their shirts, the cords on their hats—trifles, but enough to give distinction. It had all been a mystery up until now. Now things were starting.

Over on top of a flatcar a national guardsman with a gun yelled "Attaboy!" Jimmy wished he knew as much about the game as the old timer of a national guardsman seemed to know.

All along the length of the train the men were alighting and being formed in columns of fours. An officer who seemed to be more of an officer than the rest came along. The bunch saw him being saluted. The Sixty-eighth division wasn't saying anything, neither was it missing anything. The order came to march. The column responded as best it knew, Jimmy taking his step forward. And with that step Jimmy—Jimmy wasn't a bricklayer any more—had been swept into the new national army.

There were acres and acres of barracks—ten million dollars' worth of barracks—at the camp. The building to which the Sixty-eighth division was marched was like the others. It had two stories. The upstairs was a long bedroom and downstairs was half dining room and half parlor. There was a wide hallway and stairs in the center.

A sergeant who had seen a lot of service in the regular army told Jimmy and his comrades where to get their ticks and where to fill them with hay. Jimmy wanted to do everything just right.

"How full do I fill it?" he asked.

"That's up to you," laughed the sergeant. "You're the one that's got to sleep on it."

It was all bewildering, all new, but Jimmy made up his mind he'd get onto everything. Hammers were still pounding, ditches were still being dug, army trucks were honking about with equipment. Across the way even a new band was practicing. It had only gotten as far as "O, say, can you see——"

THE members of the Sixty-eighth division were beginning to get acquainted with each other. The race line and the religion line and the class line were beginning to fade. They were to eat together, sleep together, fight together. A new race was being born!

Youths who had arrived in camp with the first quota and who had a start of several weeks were eagerly questiond. How long before the guns would be given out? What was the chance of getting to be a corporal? How did you work the handle on the mess kit's tin cup? Everybody was joking and laughing. Jimmy wondered what the fellow in his neighborhood who had had his front teeth pulled to get exempted had been so afraid about.

There wasn't any linen in the dining hall; there wasn't any upholstery in the parlor. But there was a phonograph in the parlor, and one of the boys was putting on records. First he played "Good-by Broadway, Hello France." Then he put on "Cohen on the Telephone." It was funny, that dialect stuff. There was immediately a request for the same record again. Heads leaned over to catch every word while eyes twinkled.

Then after a time Jimmy went over to one of the writing tables. He had promised his mother he would write everything about the trip—all the details about getting to Rockford and just how he felt about everything. Jimmy's brow wrinkled. He had the best mother in the world, and well he knew it.

He pulled over the pen and ink and paper, his brow still furrowed. Finally he wrote, folded the paper in the envelope, and sealed it:

"Dear Ma: Arrived here O. K. Jimmy."

ART By Louise James Bargelt

New and Varied Exhibits Interest Institute Visitors

THE arrival at the Art institute of three new exhibits last week has added to the numbers of interested visitors therein. They have filled the galleries of the Gunsaulus Hall of Applied Arts, lingering in absorbed interest before the exquisite pieces of Wedgwood, acquired from Arthur Sanderson and assembled by Frederick Rathbone. They have loitered in genuine interest before the many varied objects in the exhibit of applied arts, now admiring, now marveling at the real revelation this sixteenth annual exhibition is proving itself to be, in showing just what the artistic handicrafts of the United States are doing.

Gone now is the time when the stamp of the foreign manufacturer was on all of our most expensive tapestries, our fabrics, our laces, and our embroideries, and when so much of our glass and our porcelain was imported, not because we could not furnish the raw materials necessary for their making, but because we had not the craftsmen skilled to obtain the glazes and finished surfaces.

For twenty years the arts and crafts movement has been under way. For as long a time strenuous attempts have been made to secure the best examples of what Americans were doing in this line. And each year, supplanting the one that went before in the number of pieces, and the excellence of the work, showed that the efforts of these arts and crafts folk were slowly but surely being repaid.

After passing through the galleries of the arts which are essentially practical even though they aim to be ornamental, you will come to the galleries filled with the paintings of those artists whose predilections take them west and whose eyes rest with greatest devotion on the vividly hued skies and gorgeous scenery of the western coast.

Elliott Daingerfield is here with his feeling for color and air, his dramatic rendering of landscape, and infusing into his pictures the motion of the wind among the trees and the beating of the waves on the shore. Powerfully done is his "Infinities," with its vast suggestiveness, and impressive in every line and stroke of the brush is his "Stormy Sunset."

In Ben Foster's "Island on the Pacific" you feel the rush of the waters as if you stood by their side, while his "Saddle Back" is possessed of a deep and quiet charm; calmly flows the stream up to the edge of the purple peak which backs itself against a blue green sky.

Among the Taos Indian pictures is "Red War Bonnet" by Blumenschein, a mighty old warrior with an elaborately executed headdress and an expression of keen inscrutability in his eyes.

Ballard Williams has a painting which he calls "Prospects, Grand Canyon." It is an excellent piece of nature work and the light which falls from above adds to the strength of the canvas. "Rising Mists," by Potthast, is the visualizing with paint of a single instant when the mist, rising between deep cañons, seems actually caught and imprisoned on the canvas.

Another misty effect is by Thomas Moran, which he names "Mist in the Cañon." It is an unusual piece of work, where the red rocks of the cañon are suffused under their burden of blue and white mists.

Albert Groll's "Sunset on the Arizona Desert" shows a wide stretch of Arizona prairie with a red tinted sky, and Wendt's "Mountain and Meadow" is a large canvas conveying a portion of cloud flecked sky into which a dark peak rears itself suddenly. Carl Rungius' "Yukon Waters" shows the length of blue, blue hills and sky for its background and a limpid, clear pool of water in the front. De Witt Parshall's "No Man's Land" is a strong portrayal of a darkly tragic landscape, and in the handling of the shadows aslant the rocks the atmospheric effect of dramatic desolation is heightened.

Another Indian canvas is by Irving E. Couse, "The Source." With a picturesque landscape for a background, two Indians are crouched on a log, their red skinned bodies, tough of texture, bending over the tiny river below them, the thick foliage playing about their figures.

There is jewelry of unique and effective designs by James H. Winn, Marion R. Wells, Margaret Rogers, Adolph Lesovsky, Mabel Willcox Luther, Robert Dulk, and Wenonah Brennan. Handsome, too, are the examples of weavings from the different cottage industries, including the Allanstand cottage industries from Ashland, N. C. Gertrude Ashley exhibits raffia baskets of conventional and unconventional design and Arthur Baggs' pottery consists of a charming assortment of vases, bowls, and jars.

Katherine Cherry of St. Louis has some overglaze decoration which is excellently done, and from the Cowan Pottery works comes a delightful assortment of vases of various luster. If you are interested in Batiks you must not miss those of Martha Ryther of New York nor those of M. A. Tannahill and John McLaren Strong.

The art of book binding is delightfully touched upon in the work of E. I. Sweringen of Baltimore and Rachel A. Hunt of Pittsburgh.

Other contributors whose work adds to the general excellence of the exhibit are Robert Claxton and his basket work, Elizabeth Chesbrough and her book plates, Robert Jarvis and his rugs, Leonide Lavaron and his jewelry, and Hanley Henoch and his decorative panels. The entire list is far too long to admit of mention in its entirety. The public can only go and view and enjoy.

The regular weekly classes of museum instruction are now in full sway. The former Egyptian room, now a classroom and office, holds the class in oriental art for new students on Friday afternoon at 2:30 and a fortnightly class for beginners on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The exhibition of the Pictorial Photographers of America, which is to be a national feature of great interest this winter, will be shown at the Art institute some time in the course of its travels. The print from the camera has a real place now in the halls of the Fine Arts and photographers the country over have been inspired to produce their best work for this coming exhibition.

Exhibitions at the galleries:

Art institute—Applied arts. Ceramic association. Raemaekers' cartoons, R. Hall McCormick, English paintings, Wedgewoods, etc., Gunsaulus hall. Print room etchings and engravings.

Ackermann's—Old English coaching and sporting prints.

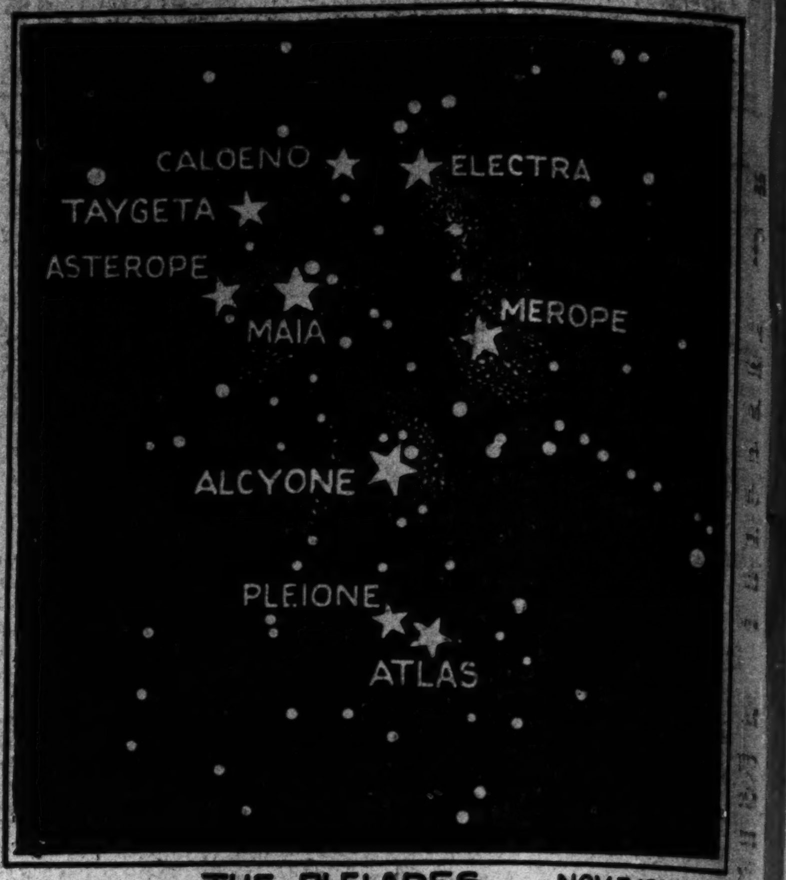
Young's—Landscapes by Potthast.

ASTRONOMY



THE PLEIADES NOV.7,1914.
DRAWN BY S.F. MAXWELL

THE PLEIADES.

THE misty swarm of the Pleiades is up in the evening sky by 7 o'clock these evenings, a familiar object, with its hazy luminosity, to many casual observers of the heavens. The gossamer appearance of the Pleiades gives them distinction and their appearance as a seemingly closely related family of suns, each greater than our own sun, interests the imagination, presenting a group which comes to the vision as a defined system.

The Pleiades have the seeming of a bit of celestial architecture. Good eyes can see eleven of the suns on clear nights and an opera glass will largely increase the number which can be observed. It will require good eyes to distinguish eleven stars unaided. Good eyes may have to be content with ten.

Galileo saw more than forty with his first telescope. A small instrument now will enable the observer to see a hundred. Seven of the suns come within the ordinary vision. The Greeks knew the Pleiades as the Seven Sisters.

The brightest star in the group is Alcyone, which was supposed to be the center or near the center of the universe. The distance of the Pleiades from the earth is not known, but it is estimated to be not less than 10,000,000 times that of the sun.

The Pleiades are surrounded by immense clouds of nebula and star dust, which, as photographs show, wrap each star in a shimmering veil. A photograph of a celestial object, however, can hardly be called a picture of it as our eyes see it. The sensitive plate, recording the feeble rays hour after hour, for astronomical exposures frequently last all night, brings out details which the nerves of the eyes cannot and never will be able to reveal, but at the same time it grossly exaggerates the relative brightness of individual parts. The brighter parts of the nebula about the Pleiades, however, can be seen in a large telescope.

A nebula alone in a starless sky is often the merest something, it is so faint, but the nebulae about the Pleiades are, if anything, even fainter, and are almost blotted out by the sparkling brilliancy of the group.

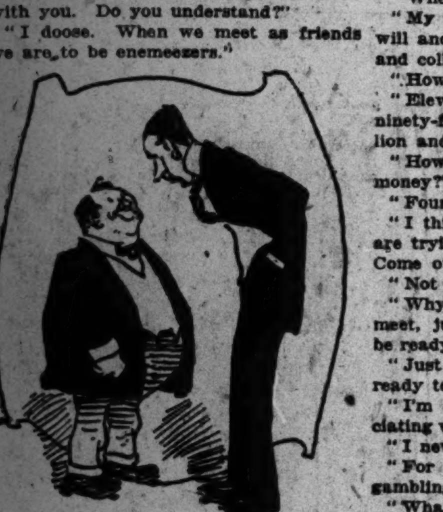
Why They Laugh in Vaudeville.

RIALTO.

Santucci and Parise:

"Hereafter I want nothing more to do with you. Do you understand?"

"I doose. When we meet as friends we are to be enemeezers."



"That's the idea. If you ever dare to address me on the street I'll kick you so high that you'll never come down again. Do you get me?"

"It's so plain that I can almost feel myself going upstairs already."

"Where are you going?"

"My uncle left me some money in his will and I'm going down to my lawyers and collect it."

"How much money did he leave you?"

"Eleven hundred thousand roubles, ninety-four thousand gilden, and a million and a half piasters."

"How much is that in United States money?"

"Four dollars and thirty-five cents."

"I think that you're a rich man and are trying to conceal the fact from me. Come over here a minute."

"Not much; you want to kick me."

"Why, what an idea! Whenever we meet, just say 'hello' and I'll alwaks be ready to extend my hand."

"Just now you said you'd always be ready to extend your feet."

"I'm afraid the people you are associating with are corrupting your morals."

"I never met the lady."

"For instance, I saw you go into a gambling house today."

"What of it?"

"What of it? My boy, you shouldn't visit any place to which you would not feel justified in taking your own sister."

"How about a barber shop?"

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

OCTOBER

BOLD JOCUNDITY.

THE air has turned to wine and the hours are purple lipped from cups beaded at the rim; jocund hours that dance on the fallen leaves and, wearing chaplets of brown and scarlet, drop their garlands through the thinning woods and over the yellowed fields.

Purple lipped, smiling hours, holding out the beaded cup and dancing through the October sunlight into the mists of early night with Venus above dark clouds as the red fades out of the west.

Jocundity feels the tingle of the white frost at the break of day, drinks the wine of the October air, tosses scarlet sumac and maple, bronzed and red oak leaves to the wind, flames with joyous color by day and laughs with the north wind at night.

The earth is alive and bold at the threshhold of decay, approaching its brown cerements as if they were the festival robes and as if the tingling hand of frost which reaches out with its cold white mantle to drape the celebrant were opening the door upon revelry and not ready to close it upon the dead.

Brave jocundity with its purple rimmed and beaded cup, intoxicating the senses although through the stripped woods the narrow white way opens for remembrance to walk alone into the future, with the echo of a song and the perfume of a vanished flower.

THE SORCERESS AND THE ROSES.

"Pale are the upturned faces of the roses,
The dew-drenched roses, when the mystic moon
(Bending above them in her highest noon)
Searches with phantom hands the laurel closes.
At her hypnotic touch the garden dozes;
The brook says "hush" and in a pallid swoon
Under that lunar spell the flowers commune
With death and no good angel interposes."
All silently the petals part and fall
In ghostly spirals to the sodden ground
Like butterflies uncertain where to rest.
Within that tranced garden not a sound
Shivers the crystal silence, but a pall
Is woven round the moon, deep in the west."

A Still Better Value

Before the many increases in the prices of motor cars, the Allen was a big value at $895.

Since other cars have been raised, it is a still greater value at this price.

But the Allen will have to increase its price.

Just when, we don't know but it will be soon.

Buying now means a real saving.

And you get a car that has proven its worth for the past six years.

"Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

DISUNION IN GERMANY.

When the president makes a clean cut distinction between the German government and the German people official Germany replies, "All Germans support the German government in this war," and there are Americans who ask, "Aside from a few sputterings by Herr Maximilian Harden and a few hot speeches howled down in the reichstag have there been any protests worth mentioning since the war began?"

All told, the protests would fill a very considerable volume. The written or publicly spoken protests, we mean. When one recalls that protest in Germany is dangerous and may land a remonstrant in jail or the army, we may assume that much more disgruntlement lies beneath the surface than ever comes out in print. Hence what seems to us the fairly notable importance of such as does. For example:

In December, 1914, Liebknecht wrote, "This war, which none of the people affected wanted, was not declared in the interests of the Germans or of any other people. It is an imperialistic war, a war for the political domination of important territories in which industrial and banking capital may be placed and made productive. Protesting against the war, against those who are responsible for and those who promoted it, against the capitalistic policy that conjured it up and the capitalistic ends which it is pursuing, against the plans of annexation, against the violation of the neutrality of Belgium and of Luxemburg, against military dictatorship, against the complete forgetfulness of social and political duties of which the government and the ruling classes are still guilty—I oppose the grant of the credits asked for."

This, to be sure, was one man's protest. He was not permitted to deliver it in the reichstag, and even Vorwaerts printed it in an abbreviated form, other newspapers suppressing it entirely. But Klara Zetkin had protested in Die Gleichheit a month before, declaring, "The longer the war lasts the more completely its aims are unmasked. It appears naked, in all its ugliness, as a war for capitalistic conquest and world dominion," and in June, 1915, several hundred Socialists signed an open letter to the president of the Social Democratic party and to the president of the Social Democratic faction in the reichstag, saying, "It has become increasingly clear that the war is not one for our national integrity. More and more distinctly is revealed its character as an imperialist war of conquest."

At about the same time the Bund Neues Vaterland, founded by Baron von Tepper-Laski, turned in a petition to the imperial chancellor and sent copies to all members of the reichstag. Says the document, in discussing Belgium, "It has been particularly difficult to make our appeal to a 'state of necessity' intelligible to Americans. The annexation of Belgium would be viewed as the forcible subjugation of a maltreated free nation, completely free from responsibility for her sad fate." Six months later the German Peace society memorialized the reichstag in behalf of "general principles of respect for the freedom and independence of all nations because these principles are entitled to respect on their own account and their disregard would necessarily bring vengeance upon us."

Two years ago Ernst Muller-Holm published a book in which he said, "When this war broke out we were prepared for dreadful things—unprecedented squandering of human lives, fearful misery, famine, disease. What we were not prepared for is this shocking reversion toward moral savagery. . . . I am not sufficiently optimistic to believe that this war will be followed by a long peace. The hatred engendered by this war and by the still hardly conceivable way in which it is being waged—this hatred alone promises a series of wars. . . . A culture that deserves the name does not consist in clever technical inventions nor even in flourishing arts and sciences, but in the fostering of justice."

We pass over that extraordinary volume, "J'Accuse." It bears no signature. When its author sums up his charges by declaring, "Germany is guilty, along with Austria, of having brought about the European war," the suspicion remains that he is perhaps not a German. We have the same vague suspicion when he says, "The German nation has been corrupted and blinded, that it might be driven into a war which it had never foreseen, never intended, and never desired. In order that it might be 'liberated' it has been put in chains." But no one doubts the Germanic origin of former Colonial Secretary Dernberg, who addressed the German Economic Union for South and Central America in September, 1915, and said, "Germany has few friends in the world. We have not understood the psychology of the South Americans—and not of the South Americans alone. It is a mistake to say that merely envy and ill will are to blame, for we ourselves have frequently insulted this psychology by our methods."

Dr. Dernberg was evidently of that opinion as late as last April, when he said at Breslau, "We have with particular self-contentment troubled ourselves little as to what foreign countries thought of us. We have delighted ourselves in standing on guard in shining armor, and we have in a fateful hour set ourselves against the general tendencies of a world that desired peace."

What a confession—a former colonial secretary thus composedly riddling the official humbug of a war forced upon innocent Germany by wicked and voracious enemies! Curiously enough, Dernberg is still at large, whereas Harden was called to military service for writing, "The triumph of freedom in the world is impossible as long as Germany remains what she is," and the authorities made short shrift of Liebknecht.

Broadly speaking, the president is right. Although the German imperial government has attempted to fool all the German people all the time it is having somewhat the experience Lincoln would have predicted, and although many Germans swallow their government's fiction entire there is enough protest to warrant the distinction between Germany and its masters. No wonder the German people begin to agree with Harden that "democracy is the word of the hour."

FOOD ECONOMY.

This is our war as much as it is that of our allies. It would be unconscionable for us to continue to live in ease and plenty while they suffer all the hardships. If we make no sacrifices we have no moral right to enjoy the fruits of victory.

We have done no small thing in giving our men and giving our treasure. But we have hardly made a start in food conservation. In spite of constantly rising prices, the nation, as a whole, has not devoted much serious attention to the subject. We have been less tender with our dollars than our dinners. The observance of a wheatless or meatless day in the household is, of course, not a very dramatic or spectacular thing, but in point of patriotic service it ranks high.

One thing that has been lacking is organized, systematic direction. The food administration, however, is laying comprehensive plans to enlist every household in a program of conservation. During the week beginning Oct. 21 a campaign will be made to get the women of the country to sign the Hoover pledge card, which constitutes a promise to follow the advice and instructions of the food administration. The signers of these cards will be supplied from time to time with recipes designed to conserve our food supply.

It is not a starvation program that is proposed. It is not the intention to deprive any one of an adequate supply of food. But it is the intention to eliminate waste and utilize our food materials to the best advantage. That can be accomplished if the people of the country, and especially the women, give the full measure of coöperation.

We may be thankful that we do not have to submit to bread cards and meat cards. Wasteful food consumption, however, will tend to raise prices still further and ultimately force the government to adopt the food card system. We need price regulation to equalize abnormal conditions, but no system of price regulation could convert a shortage into an adequate supply. Our primary duty, therefore, is to practice food economy, adopting as far as possible the recommendations of the government experts. To follow an opposite course is to deplete our resources, weaken our allies, and lengthen the war.

THE NATIONAL WOMAN'S PARTY.

It is clear that the National Woman's party should begin studying "the psychology of their enemies." Opponents of suffrage are not won over by insults to the president. They are not convinced by needless rumpuses.

Nothing could be less complicated than the psychology of their enemies. It perceives that there is a large war raging. All its ideas focus there. It cannot tolerate insults to the president in war time or needless disturbance in war time. It thinks agitation by the National Woman's party at this juncture a nuisance and a nuisance not only uncalled for, but sure to defeat its purpose.

Until the Woman's National party took to raising hob, the suffrage movement in America had a bright outlook. English women had got their way by knocking off agitating and devoting themselves to war work. American women had the same opportunity. It was even suggested here and there in America that it might pay to give women the vote as a war measure in order to end the controversy and release energies that might be profitably employed in war work. Now, with the N. W. P. raising hob when hob is least wanted, the originators of that suggestion may be sorry they spoke. They do not see that war work would gain anything by releasing the energies of the N. W. P. They are determined that these "mad sisters of La Follette" shall not win, and if defeating them involves defeating respectable suffragists as well, then respectable suffragists must put up with it or call off the N. W. P.

OUR I. W. W. IN RUSSIA.

Mr. Root's was not the only American mission to Russia. The I. W. W. followed and are still there. Gregory Mason has seen them in Petrograd, where they consort with Russian anarchists and are measurably responsible for the régime of idiocy and chaos.

It is a long, long way from somewhere in America to anywhere in Russia. To transport this precious aggregation by land and sea has cost a fairly impressive little sum. Who paid? Not the curmudgeons of the I. W. W., we guess. In all likelihood the German imperial government.

For the immediate purposes of this war the I. W. W. are no doubt useful to Germany in Russia, just as are the innumerable German spies with their blandishments and slush funds. Yet it strikes us that the German government has anything but a keen eye to the future. We do not imagine that a great people, inhabitating a solid territory, with one religion, one language, and in the main but a single racial type, will remain disunited, even if what was once the Russian empire breaks up into several Russias each independent of the rest, for in that case interest and fear as well as instinct will probably lead them to combine. How will the United States of Russia feel toward Germany?

German diplomacy (if you can call it that) is already scheming for an eventual alliance with Russia. We may live to see the thing accomplished. We predict, however, that it will involve some mighty hard sledding for German statesmen. A new Russia, civilized, enlightened, free, may be counted upon to forgive blows squarely dealt, but not to forgive the underhanded machinations that are filling Russia with spies and slush funds, importing mischief makers from America, and prolonging the régime of idiocy and chaos.

Editorial of the Day

ARE YOU AS LOYAL AS A GERMAN?

[From the Detroit Free Press.]

Mr. American, how loyal are you? Are you ready to do as much for your country as the people of the country with which you are at war did for theirs?

The government is asking the nation to lend it $3,000,000,000, which will make a total loan of $5,000,000,000 in the first year of the war with the preceding issue of Liberty bonds for $2,000,000,000. We have 101,577,000 people in the United States, it is estimated, so that the proportion asked from each one of us for the first year is to be about $49.

Do you know, Mr. American, that in Germany's first year of war its total borrowings were $3,236,000,000, and that this was about $48 for every one of its 67,616,000 people? Do you realize that your government is asking you for only $1 more than the German government asked from each of its people and got from each of them under corresponding conditions?

The average American is immensely better off than the average German. He can infinitely better afford to lend than can his German fellowman. Will you, Mr. American, do only as much as the German did? If every one of us will do as much as every one of the Germans did in the first year of their war, this Liberty loan will be a success.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

[Copyright: 1917: By the Brentwood company.]

ALTHOUGH King George, the supreme head of the Church of England, has a large staff of chaplains, some forty in number, also a lord high almoner, a dean of the Chapels Royal (who is the Bishop of London), and a clerk of the closet (namely, Bishop Boyd Carpenter—the duty of whose predecessors in that office it was during the reign of William III., of George I., and of George II., whose knowledge of English was infinitesimal, to attend upon these monarchs in the royal pew or so-called closet—it was a separate gallery—in order to interpret portions of the sermon to his majesty and to gently awaken him on its termination), yet it is the Dean of Windsor who is in reality the principal spiritual adviser of the British sovereign.

The deanery of Windsor is considered one of the blue ribbons of the Church of England. The sacred edifice over which he presides is the stately and magnificent St. George's chapel, within the precincts of Windsor castle, above the open stalls of which hang the banners of the living knights of the historic Order of the Garter, while beneath its floor repose many of the kings of England, from the ill-fated Charles I. to Edward VII.

The Dean of Windsor receives a salary which, together with other allowances, comes up to $15,000 a year, has a beautiful and picturesque residence within the castle precincts, also a private garden, and receives all sorts of favors and perquisites. He is in constant ecclesiastical attendance upon the king and queen when they are in residence at Windsor, which is their principal home. He celebrates the matins and evening services in the private chapel of the castle, and on Sundays and saints' days officiates in their presence in St. George's chapel, where the music and singing are unrivaled.

The influence which he is thus called upon to exercise upon the entire royal family is very great and, carefully selected, he usually ends by rendering himself so respected and beloved that in a number of cases the Dean of Windsor has ended his life as Archbishop of Canterbury and as primate of all England with historic Lambeth palace as his metropolitan residence and a salary of $75,000 a year. The present Archbishop of Canterbury spent a number of years at Windsor castle as Dean of Windsor during the reign of Queen Victoria, who was very difficult to manage in religious matters and quick to take offense at anything that did not please her in the sermons preached before her, but never at her. That is a thing she would not for one moment permit.

The Dean of Windsor has, moreover, the advantage of being what is known as a "royal peculiar," that is to say, he is entirely independent of the episcopal jurisdiction of the bishop in whose diocese his charge and benefices are located, holding his authority direct from the sovereign in the latter's capacity as supreme head of the Church of England. The royal peculiars are appointed by letters patent and do not require any institution or induction. The royal peculiars include, in addition to the Dean of Windsor, the Dean of Westminster abbey, the chaplains of the Chapels Royal of St. James' palace and of Savoy, and of the Master of the Temple.

This deanery of Windsor, having become vacant through the retirement on account of infirmity of Dean Eliot, has now been bestowed by King George, through letters patent, upon the Rev. Albert Baillie, a Scotchman, brother of James Baillie of Dochfour, one of the great territorial magnates of Scotland, where he owns over 100,000 acres, being moreover married to Nellie, Lady Burton, a peeress in her own right, and only daughter and heiress of the late Lord Burton of Bass brewing fame.

Through his mother, the late Lady Frances Bruce, daughter of the seventh Earl of Elgin, and a one-time maid of honor to Queen Victoria, as well as bridesmaid to Queen Alexandra, the new Dean of Windsor is descended from King Robert the Bruce of Scotland, and is married to the Hon. Constance Hamilton Russell, daughter of the eighth Viscount Boyne. He was educated at Marlborough and at Trinity college, Cambridge, was rector at Rugby, a canon of Worcester cathedral, and rector of St. Michael's famous collegiate church at Coventry.

Several letters have been addressed to me by readers inquiring just what sort of a place a dean occupies in ecclesiastical hierarchy. The general impression seems to be, largely derived from memoirs and novels, that a dean has a good income, a good house, all sorts of perquisites, and nothing particular to do, thanks to which some deans of the Church of England, such as Dean George Waddington of Durham, are celebrated as gastronomists; others, such as Dean Buckland of Westminster abbey, for zoology. Nor must we forget Dean Swift, who devoted himself to satirical literature, steeping his pen in a mixture of genius, vitriol, and filth. It is only fair to add that the deans, probably because they have the leisure, have contributed more to ecclesiastical learning than any of the bishops or archbishops who are burdened with the cares of their archiepiscopal and episcopal jurisdiction.

Dean Buckland of Westminster will always remain celebrated as having become the living tomb of the heart of the French King Louis XIV. At the time of the great French revolution the heart was robbed from the silver urn in which it had been preserved along with the similarly preserved hearts of other kings of France, in the Parisian Abbey of St. Denis. It was purchased in Paris as a curiosity by a member of the English house of Harcourt, who brought it to London, used to carry it about in his waistcoat pocket, and on one occasion, when dining at the deanery of Westminster with Dean Buckland and a large party of men, passed it around among his fellow guests for inspection. Dean Buckland, a very absent-minded man, who was engaged in conversation with his neighbor at table about some zoölogical problem, without paying any attention to the little shriveled up heart, put it into his mouth, probably in the belief that it was a dried fig or something of the kind, and, to the horror of everybody present, swallowed it before anybody had time to interfere or to prevent the disappearance of this grewsome memento of the grand monarque.

The dean is the presiding officer and senior of the members of the chapter or faculty of divines in whose hands the care of a cathedral church and of its revenues and property is vested. From time immemorial there has always been a jealousy between the deans of cathedrals and the bishops or archbishops, whose church the cathedral is supposed to be. Thus, the real head of St. Paul's cathedral, which is the cathedral church of the bishop of London, is not that prelate, but the Dean of St. Paul's.

How to Keep Well.
By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Questions pertinent to hygiene, sanitation, and prevention of disease, if matters of general interest, will be answered in this column. Where space will not permit or the subject is not suitable, letters will be personally answered, subject to proper limitations and where a stamped, addressed envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases. Requests for such service cannot be answered.

Dr. Evans' advice on "How to Keep Well" appears daily on the editorial page of "The Daily Tribune."

HEALTH IN TIMES OF WAR.

THE American Public Health association is to devote its next annual meeting, to be held in Washington, Oct. 17-21, inclusive, to a study of the promotion of health in times of war. A considerable part of the papers are to be read by men connected with the army and navy. Some are by men connected with the British, French, and Canadian armies and some are by public health men who have served on health commissions that have been sent to various European countries since the beginning of the war.

It is probable that the government sanitary officers will learn something of value from the convention. It is more likely that the service rendered them will be more indirect. To do all the work of the army and navy there are not many more than a thousand regular surgeons. Of these far fewer than a thousand have had practical training in the prevention of disease.

When it comes to preventive disease in 3,000,000 military men the government must press into service about 20,000 physicians, at least half of whom will work almost together in the prevention of disease, and of these less than 3,000 will have had training in the work of practical disease prevention. Whatever the American Public Health association can do to educate medical officers through this meeting and through their journal in sanitation and hygiene—public and personal—will be of real service to the army and navy.

And then there is another way of looking at it. At a recent meeting at Washington Assistant Surgeon General Rucker said: "I think when all is said and done we can admit it as a basic fact that the cornerstone upon which the winning of the war depends is health. I think that to us is committed the one absolutely vital and essential thing in the winning of this war. If we can maintain the health of the people in this country in a high degree of efficiency, we can produce the foods, the munitions, the arms, the shelter which our troops need.

"If we cannot maintain the civil population in a healthy condition, we cannot give to the military forces of the government competent forces of strong healthy men. We must realize that in this war there is bound to be an interchange and cross interchange of infection between the civil and the military bodies and between the military and civil bodies.

"Therefore, it behooves us who are in charge of the health agencies in this country to see to it that our work is done with an unusual degree of care and thoroughness." Dr. Rucker was addressing a conference of state boards of health.

The better the civilian health boards do their work the easier will be the task of the military authorities. In some wars the deaths from sickness have been twelve times as numerous as the deaths from bullets. However, the usual proportion is about three to one. To the rule that the deaths from sickness is greater than the deaths from wounds, there are but three exceptions in history.

The Franco-Prussian war, the Russo-Japanese war, and the present world war conflict. While the data is too insufficient for a final statement, it seems fairly certain that the relation of deaths from sickness-to-death-from-wounds is much lower than in any other war in history, and that not all of this change is due to the power of cannons and rifles, perhaps not the greater part of it.

How the English, French, and Canadians have succeeded in keeping their sickness rates so phenomenally low will be told by Drs. Goodwin, Rist, McCollough, and Nasmith. Dr. Goodwin will describe the way the front trenches are made, not sanitary, but as near sanitary as is possible. So sanitary, in fact, that men live in them day and night for weeks at times and keep healthy, strong, and free from disease.

Dr. Rist will tell of methods employed by the French. No troops anywhere in any army have made any better record than the Canadians. Few have done so well. Drs. McCollough and Nasmith of Toronto, both of them, will tell of the methods employed by the Canadians. Surgeon General Gorgas of the army and Surgeon General Braisted of the navy will tell so much of their plans as those present need to know just now.

Dr. Franklin H. Martin, who has had charge of the medical division of the advisory council of national defense, will relate how it is that enough medical men have volunteered to care for an army twice the size of that immediately in contemplation. What will be more interesting to those in attendance he will tell what call will be made upon sanitarians for service with armies in the field, in caring for camps of troops in training, and for assisting in the work of hygiene and sanitation in Europe and Asia.

When the war broke out it was necessary for France to rush into the trenches every man available regardless of his physical condition. Until after the battle of the Marne France could not afford to consider any policy except the immediate emergency. The enemy must be kept out of Paris. Nothing else counted. In consequence, the ranks were filled with consumptives. In some the disease was active at the time of enlistment. In others it was inactive, but it soon became active under the hardships of war.

France has always neglected its consumption problem. It had left the care of its consumptives to the family and the family physician. I have heard that there were but three consumption hospitals in all France. Certainly, there was not the provision for the care of consumption that we have or that the English or Germans have. The French had never run any fresh air campaigns. They have never been called fresh air fiends or fresh air cranks. And now they are paying the penalty. They are suffering from consumption to a far greater degree than either the British or the Germans.

When this fact first began to become obvious Dr. Herman Biggs of New York state was sent over to investigate. His report was responsible for the organization of a relief expedition which is now in France. The command of the forces for the relief of consumption has been turned over by the French authorities to this commission.

The war will greatly increase the gravity of our consumption problem. Dr. Biggs is to discuss what can be done about consumption in wartime. The Atlantic states conference on tuberculosis has been set for Oct. 16-17. It is to be held at Baltimore. Some of those in attendance on that meeting will go to the American Public Health association in time to hear and to discuss Dr. Biggs' paper.

When one studies the causes for admission to military hospital it is always noted that venereal disease leads all other disorders. More soldiers and sailors are excused from duty on account of venereal disease than from any other three diseases combined. So bad is venereal disease in the armies of the central powers that Dr. Hecht advises that men with these diseases be put in special commands and that they be kept in the trenches constantly. He would have provision made for having them treated in the trenches. He finds that under the present plan of sending them to the hospitals the fighting strength of regiments is decimated. Soldiers have no more venereal disease than civilians.

Whenever the subject has been even partially and insufficiently investigated it has been found that the principal reason why men lay off from work is sickness and the principal sickness which causes them to lay off is venereal disease. The reason venereal disease looms so large in army and navy reports and seems so trifling in the reports from civilian hospitals is that soldiers and sailors sick with venereal disease are entered on the records.

Venereal disease is to be discussed by Dr. Snow of the American Social Hygiene association, Dr. Russell of the United States army, Dr. Holcomb of the United States navy, Dr. Frost of the public health service, Mr. Fosdick, and others. It was Dr. Russell who perfected the anti-typhoid vaccine used in the army—a far more effective product than that used in any other army or that used by our state and municipal health departments. Dr. Holcomb made the best studies of venereal disease—in the navy—that have been made anywhere.

Mr. Fosdick was selected by Secretary of War Baker to go to the Mexican border in 1916 and report on venereal disease and prostitution in and around army camps there. He is now in charge of a committee which is trying to control conditions in and around the present camps. It is hoped that after this discussion American cities will go after venereal diseases as actively as they now go after measles, scarlet fever, and smallpox.

A peculiar effect of exposure to heavy high power shell fire is the development of a form of hysteria known as shell shock. The terrible strain upon the mind and the terrible stimulus to the emotions made by the fighting methods of this war result in various types of mental disturbance. In the early days of the war a distinguished Harvard professor—Cannon—wrote a book in which he stated that twentieth century wars did not profoundly stir the emotions.

For instance, a man fired a gun aimed with mathematical calculation at an enemy whom he never saw. He was quiet, cool, and unemotional in his fighting. Prof. Cannon wrote from the point of view of a laboratory man at home. His book was quickly followed by "The Mechanistic Cause of War," written by another scientist, but this one a witness of and a worker at the battles of the war. He told of such strains, on the emotions, on the capacity of the mind, and of the body under the whip of the mind as had never before been heard of in the history of warfare.

War and mental diseases is to be discussed by a representative of the American Society for Mental Hygiene—Maj. Pierce Bailey.

In a recent trip through Canada I saw a multitude of war cripples. At the Canadian Conference of Charities and the Canadian Public Health association I learned of the work of making these cripples efficient that is being done in Canada. Maj. Goldthwaite is to tell the meetings of what can be done as well as of what is being done in the United States to rehabilitate the injured and crippled due to the war.

As I read over this program I am impressed with the thought that, however illy prepared we may be as to arms, munitions, and trained soldiers, we go into this war with an unusually great amount of preparation along health lines.

Among other subjects to be discussed are: Health Problems of the Present War; The Service of Health Laboratories in Time of War; Sanitation of Barracks and Surrounding Zones; Rôle of the Local Health Officer in National Defense; Notification of Disease and Protection of Troops; Need for Sanitary Supervision of Industries in Time of War; Replacement of Men by Women in War Industries; Practical Points in the Handling of T. N. T. and Allied Explosives; War Activities of Bacteriological Laboratories in France and England; Canadian Laboratories in War Service.

SHOULD MODIFY DIET.

M. J. M. writes: "Some months ago I had a numbness of my scalp, then in my right foot, and now in my left hand. I am 70 years of age, take two lapactic pills every night, regular action, and health good. I use very little tobacco, no alcohol."

REPLY.

I suggest that you modify your diet. Eat meat not oftener than once a week. Live principally on fruits and vegetables and bran bread and bran cereal. Do not eat any bread except bran bread. Drink water freely.

SETTING-UP EXERCISES CURE.

K. T. M. writes: "I beg to tell you that when I sit down for an hour or so and then get up and try to walk along, my left knee does not act properly for five minutes because it gets stiffened. Would you kindly tell me how I can be recovered from this momentary stiffness of my left knee?"

REPLY.

Go to the nearest military camp and watch the men going through their setting-up exercises. Note the amount of exercise they get in a day. Go home and follow their example. Spend about thirty minutes a day going through the same movements and then increase the amount of exercise taken in other ways.

KILDARE AVENUE PAVEMENT.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—I would like to know why they do not pave Kildare avenue between Wrightwood and Diversey avenues. Every other street in the neighborhood is paved except Kildare avenue.
SHERMAN L. JASPER.

We have no proceedings on our books for paving Kildare avenue between Wrightwood and Diversey avenues. If the property owners on this street will petition the board of local improvements an investigation will be made and if found necessary, proceedings for this improvement will be instituted.
M. J. FAHERTY,
President Board of Local Improvements.

PAVEMENT IN GOOD CONDITION.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—[To the Friend of the People.]—As a taxpayer I desire to know why no provision is made to drain the water that settles in the alley entrance on the north and south side of Rosedale avenue, just off Magnolia avenue west.
S. G.

Investigation shows that Rosedale avenue is asphalt pavement in good condition, with no ruts or depressions anywhere between Broadway and Glenwood. There is no water standing on the street, and alley entrance complained of is in perfect condition, with only the natural pitch from alley to gutter to be safe.
F. S. MITCHELL,
Superintendent of Streets.

CHALMERS PLACE LIGHTING.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—Who is responsible for the lighting of Chalmers place, or the continuation of Fremont street from Belden avenue to Fullerton avenue, which runs through the property controlled by the McCormick Theological seminary? The neighboring streets are lighted by electricity, but there are only three dim lights on this street. It is unsafe for pedestrians at night.
M. S. B.

This is not a public street, and consequently must be lighted by the owners of the property.
WILLIAM G. KEITH, Commissioner.

WILL WATERPROOF VIADUCTS.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—[To the Friend of the People.]—On rainy days dirty, oily water drips from the viaduct on Le Claire avenue and Cortland street, making it impossible to walk on sidewalks below.
A. OVER.

We have notified the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway company to waterproof this bridge at once.
F. J. MITCHELL,
Superintendent of Streets.

CODICIL TO WILL.

Hinsdale, Ill., Oct. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—A party desirous to change his will, which bequeaths to his heirs all his property, with a condition as to the expenditure of part thereof for a specified purpose, so as to devise it all to the same heirs without condition of any kind. Will a properly attested codicil setting forth the desired abolishment of the conditions, attached to the original will, be a legal way to accomplish the desired change, or should a new will be drawn?
H. C. G.

It can be done in either way. The choice is largely one of convenience. If done by codicil, that instrument should be executed with all the formalities of a will.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CUSTODY OF CHILDREN.

Galena, Ill., Oct. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife left me, taking our two small children with her. She has no statutory grounds upon which to base an action for divorce. She has no means of support. If I am unable to persuade her to return to me who has the legal right to the children? My income does not warrant a separate maintenance. I do not wish to divorce her.
L. V. A.

The decision would be discretionary with the court and would be governed largely by the interests of the children.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

REPLACING WINDOW SHADES.

Franklin Grove, Ill., Oct. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Is a landlord obliged to replace window shades for his tenant if the previous owner took them when he sold the house?
H. E.

Not unless he so agreed.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ACCOUNTS ARE OUTLAWED.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can debts which have been allowed to run for six years be collected?
MR. ELLMAN.

Open accounts are outlawed in five years.
TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

ANNULLING MINOR'S MARRIAGE.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Can the marriage of a boy of 18 years, who gave his age as 21, be annulled?
FATHER.

You might be able to have the marriage annulled if all parties so desire.

KNITTING FORBIDDEN IN COURT

Chicago, Oct. 11.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Under the present system of trying cases in our courts there is necessarily much time spent by litigants in the various courts waiting for their cases to be called. The other day a woman who intended to improve this otherwise wasted time by knitting for the soldiers was forbidden to do so by the bailiff. She was obliged to sit with idle hands throughout a tedious day, while some soldier in France may be sorely needing the warm garment her labor could have furnished. A remonstrance with the bailiff elicited the pompous assertion, "This is a Temple of Justice, and no place for such things."

"Justice, forsooth! Are not our boys in France making the bitterest possible sacrifices in the name of Justice, and should not a "Temple of Justice" be the very place for work that will help make their lot more endurable? If this matter is brought to the attention of our judges through your valuable paper I am sure they will recognize that the dignity of their courts is not being impaired by the women who are "doing their bit" in performing this sorely needed work for our brave boys, and they will see to it that the work is not interrupted by over-zealous employes.
EMMA JACOBSON,

JOKER IN THE GAS METER.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Some time last summer a representative of the Peoples Gas company addressed the retail druggists of Chicago asking their help for a new ordinance allowing the gas company to furnish gas of less illuminating power but of greater heating power, as only 5 per cent of gas consumed was used for light and 95 per cent for heat. This, he said, would furnish cheaper gas of greater heating power. It now seems that the present gas is not any cheaper, gives less heat and very much less light. If I am not stating facts, let the druggists who heard the arguments correct me. And let me ask the question, why did our council permit the gas company to put this one on our citizens?
UNVARNISHED FACTS.

WHO CAN ANSWER HIM?

Chicago, Oct. 10.—[Editor of the Tribune.]—What is the cause for the sudden and continuous increase in the cost of food and other necessaries of life? Is it patriotic for the dealers with necessaries of life to burden the people with the high costs? Do you notice that the common people [exclusive of the dealers] are complaining? Don't you think they have a perfect right to complain?

Petitions are being circulated protesting against such increases, when there is no occasion for it.
SAMUEL MICON.

NIETZSCHE AND CHRIST.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—To your fine editorial "Hope for Germany" please allow me to add a few lines. Modern Germany is obsessed with psychology. That is the fly in the ointment. What the political authority of Germany ought to inquire about is in reference to the metaphysics of the United States. The civilization of the United States of America is not vitalized by psychology. It is spiritualized by metaphysics.

The first and second commandments, upon which hang the law and the prophets, the Sermon on the Mount, do not refer to the cold logic of German psychology. Fundamentally they set forth the warm color of American metaphysics.

Nietzsche's thought vibrates with logical splendor, which, however, it must be conceded, is only one wing of the bird of progress. Christ's thought carries more intensifications and employs as well the other wing of progress—to wit: consecration. The contest between the civilization of modern Germany and that of four-fifths of the world is whether a one winged bird can fly in a race, in peace or war, with a two winged bird.

The center of modern Germany is cold with frozen egoism. The center of America is warm with spiritualized energy. Undoubtedly spiritualized force will master barbaric force as definitely as the Caucasian has overcome the aborigines.

The toast of Germany is "To the day." The toast of the United States of America is, "To the day, to the morrow."
GEORGE R. WALKER.

COMPARATIVE PRICES OF FOOD.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I was much interested to read in THE TRIBUNE a table showing the comparative cost of food products in various cities of the United States. What astonished me most was the discovery from the tabulated figures that beef costs less in Milwaukee, San Francisco, St. Paul, Cincinnati, Denver, Los Angeles, Detroit and other cities than it does right here in Chicago, the center of the meat packing industry. Why is it?

I have been told that better meats and cheaper meats can be purchased far away from Chicago—as far as European cities, before the war—than here at home, but could not accept the reports as true. THE TRIBUNE figures, however, corroborate these surprising statements.

Why should pork chops be 5 cents a pound cheaper in Milwaukee than in Chicago? When Mr. Armour was blaming the high cost of living on the consumer, why did he not explain this phenomenon? Or are Chicago consumers more to blame than those of Milwaukee and other cities, who buy Chicago meats cheaper than we here at home?

LA FOLLETTE AND VALLANDIGHAM

By Walter Clyde Jones

THE case of Vallandigham during the civil war has been mentioned as a parallel to that of Senator La Follette in the present conflict. La Follette claims that the freedom of speech guaranteed by the constitution is full warrant for his utterances, which the senate is now investigating to determine whether they are in violation of law and of such character as to warrant his expulsion from the senate. A similar claim as to the right of freedom of speech was the basis of the Vallandigham case.

The Vallandigham story is told by James G. Blaine in his "Twenty Years of Congress" and in more detail in the "History of Abraham Lincoln" by Nicolay and Hay. In brief, Vallandigham had been a congressman from Ohio during the early part of the civil war, had made repeated disloyal speeches, and in 1863 was defeated for reelection because of his anti-war views. Gen. Burnside, in command of the department of the Ohio, had issued an order warning against the utterance of disloyal sentiments calculated to aid or encourage the enemy.

Vallandigham in a public speech at Mount Vernon, O., carried away by the applause of his sympathetic audience, denounced the administration, charged it with an attempt to usurp a despotism, impugned its motives and honesty of purpose throughout, denounced the conscription act, and said that the people were not deserving to be free men who would submit to such encroachments on their liberties. He called the president "King Lincoln" and advised the people to cast their ballots to hurl the tyrant from his throne. Vallandigham was an anti-war Democrat and this speech was made in the progress of a political campaign.

He was arrested by order of Gen. Burnside, tried by a military commission, found guilty, and sentenced to confinement in a military prison for the period of the war. Vallandigham in his own defense uttered these words, which sound strikingly familiar today:

> It is words spoken to the people of Ohio in an open and public political meeting, lawfully and peacefully assembled under the constitution and upon full notice. It is words of criticism of the public policy of the public servants of the people, by which policy it was alleged that the welfare of the country was not promoted. It was an appeal to the people to change that policy, not by force, but by free elections and the ballot box. It is not pretended that I counseled disobedience to the constitution or resistance to laws and lawful authority. I never have. Beyond this protest I have nothing further to submit.

The court, however, placed a different interpretation upon his words. It held that he was guilty of publicly expressing > his sympathy for those in arms against the government of the United States, declaring disloyal sentiments and opinions, with the object and purpose of weakening the power of the government in its efforts to suppress an unlawful rebellion.

Judge Leavitt of the United States Circuit court at Cincinnati, on petition for writ of habeas corpus, refused to set aside the judgment of the military court, holding that the president and those acting under his authority had the right to arrest any one who by acts of disloyalty impeded or endangered the military operations of the government.

PRESIDENT LINCOLN, when appealed to, commuted the sentence and ordered that Vallandigham be sent to his friends within the confederate lines, thus at once adding to the situation a touch of grim humor, making Vallandigham the butt of national ridicule and preventing him from becoming a martyr in the public eye, as imprisonment might have done. The common sense and political wisdom of Lincoln has been seldom exercised with greater practical success than in this instance.

Vallandigham was received kindly by his sympathizers in the confederacy, who under the fiction that he was a prisoner of war took him to Richmond, where he conferred with Jefferson Davis, giving him counsel and advice inimical to the interests of the union; went thence to Bermuda, and by a British steamer to Canada, where he lived as an exile at Niagara Falls, within sight of his native land. The anti-war Democrats made an issue of Vallandigham's case and nominated him as candidate for governor of Ohio in 1864. The Union party nominated Pugh, the lawyer who had prosecuted Vallandigham before the military court. Vallandigham's platform was based on the so-called "freedom of speech," and he was supported by the pacifists and peace advocates, known in those days as "copperheads." The issue was sharply and clearly drawn. Vallandigham was defeated by the overwhelming and unprecedented majority of 101,000 votes.

LA FOLLETTE is planning, it is understood, to make himself a candidate for president on a peace and pacifist platform based on the same theory of the right to "freedom of speech" which Vallandigham and his political confrères demanded in 1864. Will La Follette fare any better than Vallandigham?

Vallandigham in one way did the nation a signal service. By his conduct he made a clean cut issue of a question which otherwise might have remained vague and undefined and therefore more dangerous to the security of the republic. La Follette is performing unwittingly a like signal service for his country and in the end is destined to do as much harm for the enemy as Vallandigham did for the confederacy.

The Vallandigham case afforded Lincoln an opportunity to bring to bear upon this question his superb logic and power of analysis. Lincoln defined the lengths to which one may lawfully and safely go in indulging in "free speech" in times of war, and those who feel the call to indulge in so-called "free speech" at the present time would do well to ponder Lincoln's words.

Referring to the confederates, Lincoln said:

> The rebellion thus begun soon ran into the present civil war, and in certain respects it began on very unequal terms between the parties. The insurgents had been preparing for it for more than thirty years, while the government had taken no steps to resist them. . . . Their sympathizers pervaded all departments of the government and nearly all communities of the people. From this material, under cover of "liberty of speech," "liberty of the press," and "habeas corpus," they hoped to keep on foot amongst us a most efficient corps of spies, informers, suppliers, and aiders and abettors of their cause in a thousand ways.

This sounds a good deal like recent history.

LA FOLLETTE complains of arrests of alleged spies and disloyalists on suspicion. With respect to similar arrests Lincoln said:

> Yet, thoroughly imbued with a reverence for the guaranteed rights of individuals, I was slow to adopt the strong measures which by degrees I have been forced to regard as being within the exceptions of the constitution and as indispensable to the public safety. Nothing is better known to history than that courts of justice are utterly incompetent to such cases. Civil courts are organized chiefly for trials of individuals, or at most a few individuals acting in concert, and this in quiet times and on charges of crimes well defined in the law. . . . Again, a jury too frequently has at least one member more ready to hang the panel than to hang the traitor. And yet again, he who dissuades one man from volunteering, or induces one soldier to desert, weakens the union cause as much as he who kills a union soldier in battle. Yet this dissuasion or inducement may be so conducted as to be no defined crime of which any civil court would take cognizance.

Vallandigham afforded the administration during the civil war an opportunity to set forth clearly and by exact metes and bounds the extent to which a citizen might go in exercising the right of free speech under the constitution, and the case of La Follette will no doubt give the present government an opportunity to perform a like service for the nation in the present crisis.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

IN the death of Francis Ledwidge in action in Flanders the last of July, Ireland lost one of her most romantic poetical figures. There is only one published volume of his poems, "Songs of the Field" (Duffield), and that was published last year in this country. Lord Dunsany was the one who "discovered" him and he wrote an introduction to the little volume of verse. Like Patrick MacGill, Francis Ledwidge was desperately poor. He thinned turnips, swept roads in County Meath, went to work in a copper mine, but was discharged because he tried to organize a strike, and went back to road sweeping. And all the time he was writing verses and stories which were published in the local papers and which won him a little local recognition. He was only 24 when he was killed—but, 24 or 94, it makes little difference to a poet when he dies.

Here are the facts of the strange case of his "warning." In the Saturday Review (London) of July 7 there appeared this letter:

> B. E. F., 20 June, 1917.
> Sir: A few weeks ago we were resting in a little village which had the reputation of a haunted house. I made several attempts to extract from the owner a little information concerning his ghostly tenant, but each time he was visibly pained and warned me severely against impetuous (?) steps. I was determined to see it through, however, by sleeping in the place for a night. I had some difficulty in forcing an entry, but eventually succeeded in getting through a window as the village clock told eleven hours p. m. I lit my pipe, spread my ground sheet on the clay floor, and nestled down in my great-coat. I was tired and must have fallen asleep almost immediately. On a sudden I was awakened by a noise like a rushing of wings or falling water, and a voice which I had heard before, once in London and once in Manchester, a familiar voice, distinctly called my name. Then silence fell for a few minutes, only to be broken by a similar noise and, this time, footsteps, such as are heard where men are surprised. Although I am not a brave man, I cannot admit to having any tremors beyond that of intense excitement at so wonderful a thing as the supernatural; and then I have my own private way of explaining a voice which is as dear from the soul as from the body I loved. Yours truly,
> FRANCIS LEDWIDGE.

"The Grim Thirteen" (Dodd-Mead) is a new thing under the sun of books. It is a collection of thirteen stories of tragedy or starkness which were rejected with praises by at least one American editor, because they hadn't happy endings. Frederick Stuart Greene, whose tragic tale "The Cat of the Canebrake" caused much comment, has edited the collection, which includes stories from the pens of Mrs. Belloc Lowndes, Vance Thompson, Dana Burnet, Stacy Aumonier, Conrad Richter, Wadsworth Camp, Richard Matthews Hallet, and Will Levington Comfort. Edward J. O'Brien, the "Best Short Stories of 1916, et al. man," has written an introduction to the fascinating volume.

Harry A. Franck's new book of tramping, "Vagabonding Down the Andes" (Century), will be his last book of that sort for the duration of war. He is a second lieutenant now in the United States cavalry with Gen. Pershing in France.

Percival Wilde, the author of "The Unseen Host and Other War Plays" (Little-Brown) has had more plays produced this year in Little theaters than any other American author.

In the foreign room of the public library here is a shelf of new French war books. Among them is "Le Feu," by Henri Barbusse, the book which won the Goncourt prize in 1916 and a translation of which, with the title "Under Fire," is published in America by the Dutton company. The Goncourt prize is held in the highest esteem of all the literature prizes of France, although it has a money value of only 5,000 francs as compared with 6,000 of the Academy and Lasserre prizes. M. Barbusse is a veteran writer—the prize is supposed to go to a young writer for a work of fiction—but the awards have seldom been made according to the literal interpretation of the founder's wishes. "Gaspard," by Rene Benjamin, the winner of the 1915 Goncourt prize, is also there—though neither of these books lies long unused on the shelf.

PREPARING FOR WAR

By Maj. Gen. William Harding Carter

THERE is quite a general desire in the country for a more comprehensive and definite knowledge of what we are doing to fulfill our obligations as one of the allies at war with Germany. Due to the wide ramifications of the German spy system and propaganda in general, it has seemed necessary that an embargo should be placed not only upon all news concerning the movements of our army but that the utmost secrecy should prevail concerning many other activities in which our people have normally exhibited great interest in all our former wars. It has not been practicable to lift the ban on the eventful things that are occurring day by day in American preparation to enter the war, but secrecy concerning the making of our army is no longer demanded.

When Germany made its onrush across peaceful Belgium and battered down the forts and cities of that gallant little nation it became apparent that we were being drawn nearer to the firing line day by day than we were willing to think possible. As the war dragged along its fitful existence, and time lengthened into months and finally into years, we stood at the threshold of the cataclysm without any real preparation to meet the obligations of an ally in case of rupture with Germany.

During this period our military authorities were not ignorant as to conditions nor silent as to our obligations. Repeatedly our military experts appeared before congress and gave testimony as to our needs and the extent of preparation to which we should at once devote ourselves if we would not be found wanting in the hour of the nation's peril. There was no sentiment amongst the people for war, and this was reflected in congress to a very grave extent.

It is entirely probable that the members of congress who hesitated and those who contended against all preparation represented the sentiment of their constituents, who were not in position to be as well acquainted with the needs of the nation as those in authority. This is the price democracies pay for representative government. Nothing but centralization of power which carries the control of all the money, men, and munitions of a nation can make such previous preparation for war as we have observed in Germany.

IN the army which we are now sending to France we will have regulars, national guard, and the national army created of those called into service under the draft act. This army will be organized in a manner quite different from that to which our people have been accustomed in the past. This arises from the character of the warfare in the trenches, where the use of bombs, grenades, gas, and an infinite variety of new means for destroying life have come to prevail in the daily operations.

Prior to the enactment of the national defense law of 1916 our army was organized without any provision, except during war, for brigades, divisions, corps, and armies. These are the great fighting units of all armies, but we have heretofore depended upon the appointment of generals and the creation of staffs and supply organizations after war was declared; all of this under the old volunteer system. In 1916 congress was prevailed upon to make provision for the creation of these larger units at the discretion of the president during peace so that the army would be ready to move at once to the front to the limit of its organized strength. This applied to the mobile army. The coast defenses of the United States, Panama canal, and our island dependencies had been provided for by the creation of a corps of coast artillery which embraced also the operation of submarine mines, which are provided for in all our greater harbors.

With the progress of the war in Europe it became apparent that further modification of the American organizations would be necessary. The tactical or fighting unit of armies is the division. The new organization for a division in our army embraces an extensive division headquarters, with two brigades of infantry of two regiments each, one artillery brigade of three regiments, one engineer regiment, one signal field battalion, one machine gun battalion, one depot brigade comprised of training battalions; one infantry regiment, colored; one train headquarters, including military police; one ammunition train, one supply train, one engineer train, one sanitary train, and one mobile ordnance repair shop. The infantry regiment formerly comprised 1,800 men. This has now been modified by increasing each infantry company to 250 men, making the total for the regiment 3,755.

THE character of operations in Europe may be further comprehended by some of the new units added to our army for special service, some of which are included in a gas and flame service, mining service, water supply service, road service, forestry service, light railway service, standard gauge railway service, general construction service, mechanical and supply department, and other special services, not heretofore included in our army, which was intended for open field fighting, reliance having always been placed upon our ability to create expedients to meet siege operations and other special military demands when required.

Without going into all the details of the modern organizations and arrangements for carrying on the campaign upon which American soldiers are about to enter, it will be very apparent that war has become an all embracing science involving many complex matters never associated with armies operating in open field service under our former system. The character of our previous wars and the nature of the terrain in which they have been fought seem to indicate that no such trench warfare as that now being carried on in France and Belgium could ever take place on American soil. It is probable, therefore, that the American army will not retain all the temporary organizations now being given to it for special service in Europe. Our country is too big for any such "digging in" as has occurred on the western front; there are very few parts of this country where such intrenched lines could be created without being subjected to operations around a flank.

There has been a natural desire on the part of the people to know more about what is being done by the government to get into this war, but it has been impracticable to make public all our preparations, and particularly those which relate to the transfer of men and material to the seat of war. The censorship rules will gradually be relaxed as time goes on and it is certain that we will not have to protect ourselves within our own country. At present the censorship rules permit the making public of everything concerning the selection of men, the appointment of officers, the organizations and the life in the camps and cantonments; the only reservation now enforced is that actual train schedules and routes should not be published until a movement is completed.

Experimental work, such as new trench operations or formations, may be described discreetly. Honest comment and criticism from a military point of view will always receive careful consideration. Of course when the time comes for moving the army to the front no word of their departure or preparation for departure from the camps or their embarkation and sailing from ports can be permitted. Such things would give notice to the enemy and enable them to forestall the government in its serious work. Of course when the troops have reached the seat of war and the fighting has begun absolutely nothing should be said of all this without governmental approval. This should apply not only to dispatches but to editorial comment. In fact, the censorship rules contemplate that American newspapers and American editors shall not be limited to comment and criticism except by the rules of good faith, intelligence, and patriotic intent.

THE LIEUTENANT

By Centurion

ON the day he was born his father wrote two letters. One was addressed to the head of a certain school of ancient foundation in a southern country; the other to the dean of a college at Oxford. For, like some London clubs, they took a good deal of getting into, and his father, whose name was on the registers of both of them, determined to leave nothing to chance.

The boy grew and waxed strong in spirit. He lay for hours on his back cooing to himself and doing mighty Swedish exercises, breasting the air like a strong swimmer with his arms and kicking lustily with his legs. "Isn't he sweet?" said his mother to the doctor for the thousandth time.

"Hum, his patellar reflexes seem all right," said the doctor, who was used to such maternal ecstasies.

They called him Anthony—Tony for short. He began life with a face of extraordinary solemnity that was almost senile, but it grew younger as he grew older. His eyes, which were at first a neutral color inclining to mouse gray, gradually changed till the irises revealed the deep brown tint of his mother's, so that looking into them she seemed to be looking into a mirror. But his nondescript nose took on the clear cut Grecian profile of his father.

ONE night, when he was about 3 years old, he was lying asleep in his cot in the nursery when a log fell from the untended fire and, sending up a spurt of flame, threw a gigantic shadow on the wall by his bed. He woke with a start and a cry, for the shadow was now leaping, now crouching, as though it were going to pounce upon him. And he cried lustily. The next moment there was a light footfall of bare feet, two soft arms were clasping his neck, and a shower of auburn hair, soft as silk, fell around his face. "What is the matter with mummy's boy? Is he frightened then? Where's the little man who was going to kill Apollyon? What will poor mummy do when she meets Apollyon if her little man is afraid?"

"I'm not afraid," he said stoutly, his lips quivering. And after that, although he sometimes knew fear, he was never afraid. For he always remembered in the nick of time that some day mummy would want him to fight Apollyon. But he had made a great discovery—almost as portentous as the discovery of self and not self. He had discovered that he had two selves, the self which said "I am afraid" and the self which said "Go to! I am not afraid." And from that day he learned to despise the former and respect the latter. The first he called "Mr. Feeble Mind" and the second "Mr. Great Heart." And when he was sure he was alone he often talked with the former, hurling the most abusive epithets at it and bidding it get behind him, for it had an alias which was "Temptation."

HE passed from the hands of a tutor to the public school for which his father had put his name down on the day of his birth. He was the lowliest of fags and the first thing he discovered was that for his name, which was Anthony, was rudely substituted another and a homelier—"Freckles." He came back after his first half with an immense stock of knowledge not to be found in books and a vocabulary which was unfamiliar to every one at home except his father—a vocabulary in which "to thoke" is to slack, "to brock" is to bully; in which "Longmeads" stands for a day off and "Moab" does duty for a lavatory. It is a vocabulary which once learned is never forgotten; men of his school speak it in the hill stations of India, on the African veldt, in the back flats of Australia, and wherever two or three of them are gathered together. Also he exhibited a discolored eye. At all of which his father rejoiced, but his mother was sorrowful, feeling that he had passed without the cloister of her heart. But in this she was mistaken.

In due time he reached the dizzy heights of the sixth and became a prefect with the right to turn his trousers up and to wear brown boots, which is only permitted to the elect. Also he won his cap as center forward in the school fifteen. Small boys imitated him, big boys envied him, and he had a retinue of clients like a Roman patron. He put down bullying in his house with a strong hand—and other things. By this time he had learned to turn out a good hexameter and a neat iambic; also to put Burke into a Latin prose that was stately without being pompous.

Thence he went to Oxford. His name was already on the books of his father's old college, but, as it turned out, he needed no precedence, for he took a classical scholarship. There he learned the same lesson that he had learned at school—namely: that the first thing to do is to live down an outside reputation; the greater the reputation the more modest it behooves you to be. He found that a first year man does not call on a second year man, but waits to be called on. No; not though the one be a scholar and the other a commoner! Also that one is never elected into the best clubs or college societies in one's first term.

But not being a pushful person, he had really no need to learn these things, for he knew them by instinct. But the men sought him out and discovered his worth so that in his second term, when he lavishly returned the hospitalities of the first, the size of his battles drew a mild rebuke from the dean. But beyond occasionally getting gated he managed to keep on good terms with the dons, who can rarely resist the man who is at once an athlete and a scholar.

After tubbing in the Morrison fours, he rowed seven in the Torpids, and his boat did a bump every night near the "gut." Great faggots blazed in the quad the last night, and for once in his life Tony got rather drunk and was with difficulty restrained from mounting the pyre, having to be put to bed by his friends, loudly protesting that he was Joan of Arc. He got ploughed in divinity mods for a character sketch of St. Peter, which the examiners voted learned but profane; your Anglican don does not like to hear the disciple described as "the enfant terrible of the twelve." Also he entertained a Socialist chimney sweeper in his rooms like a man and a brother and (what was far worse in the eyes of Anglican dons) a Nonconformist draper with whom he insisted on discussing the right of entry in single school areas.

For it was his fashion to try all things. In long walks over Shotover and Cumnor, in high talks at night in the quad or in his rooms, he discussed in the manner of Plato's dialectics the nature of the state, the responsibilities of the empire toward subject races, the meaning of good, the nature of truth, and the ornaments rubric. For of such things do men talk at Oxford, plumbing the depths of speculation in a world where speculation takes the place of experience and men see life, like the dwellers in the cave of Plato's myth, by the shadows that the outer world throws upon its enchanted walls.

HIS first long vacation was less than half way through when a cloud no bigger than a man's hand rose upon the horizon. It first appeared when his father opened the newspaper at breakfast one morning and read out that an archduke had been assassinated in a tiny satrapy of the Austrian empire. "Another of those Balkan melodramas," he said lightly as he turned to the stock markets. But in a few days the cloud grew bigger. The bank rate went up like a rocket, dark hints of "mobilization" appeared, the word ultimatum was repeated in the papers, one read curiously of an encounter between patrols on the Franco-German frontier and noted with consternation that a man had been killed. And then the storm burst. The king called for men.

The cornfields were brilliant with scarlet pimpernel and rest harrow, and the wheat, changing from sea green to gold and heavy in the ear, gave promise of an early harvest. But father and son ceased to talk of days among the stubble; the boy was silent, until one day he announced his intention of "doing his bit." His mother turned pale, but said nothing.

That night she entered his room, according to her habit, to kiss him good-night. She went down on her knees beside him and with her arms around his neck said, "Don't—you are all I have." He looked straight into her face and said reproachfully: "Mummy, who was it told me—do you remember?—never to fear Apollyon?" And from that moment she knew it was useless, nor did she otherwise. They remained in long communion as he told her all the secrets of his heart, and when she rose to go her eyes were dry, for in that hour she knew, as she had not known since he was a little child, that he and she were one.

He joined the O. T. C. He learned section drill, platoon drill, company drill, and many other things. And then one day he applied for a commission. He duly filled up all the interrogatories on M. T. 392 and against "unit preferred" he wrote the name of a well known west country regiment in whose officers' mess his family name was a household word. And he sent it to his old head for the usual certificate of moral character. He blushed when it came back and was slightly annoyed, for the head, not content with the words "I certify," had added an after thought: "He is an excellent fellow; one of the best."

At the school of instruction he learned the art of war, his tutor being a major invalided home from the front, who taught him all that can be learned by oral instruction on rationing, patrols, relief by sections, and the making out of work tables. And when all homekeeping folk were in bed he marched them out in column of fours to a lacerated field where they practiced "Night Op," with the aid of a trip wire, a flare pistol, and implements of husbandry. The major was a wise man; he had drilled with the recruits of his own regiment on the square when he had been first gazetted from Sandhurst, and he held that the best training for an officer is to learn to do what you want done. Wherefore he made his cadets learn their job by the sweat of their brow, dig their own trenches, and thrown out their own saps—always remembering, when you begin to dig a sap, to put up a sandbag on the end of a fork first, otherwise you may never live to finish it.

The palms of their hands became as hard as a cobbler's, but it was good schooling, for it taught them the most valuable of all lessons, to know when they were giving orders exactly how much they were asking of their men to do. And in dealing with men this is the beginning of wisdom. Also he gave them two pieces of advice, one of which was that at mess you are practically on parade and should behave accordingly; the other that the first duty of a young officer is to place the comfort and well being of his men before his own. But being a gentleman, Tony did not need to learn the one, and having been head of his house he had already learned the other. So that when the O. C. sent in his report upon him on his "paper work," "bearing," "punctuality," and "power of handling men" he marked the first three "good" but the fourth "excellent."

THE major must, I think, have taken rather a fancy to him, for one day he asked him if he knew anything about revolver shooting and on being answered in the negative he took him privily aside and taught him a thing or two—first, that you mustn't grip the revolver too tight or it will throw your wrist off; second, that you really fire with the whole hand rather than with the trigger finger and should absorb the shock into your whole frame; and, last and greatest of these, that in shooting a descending figure you should incline the whole body as you lower the arm and never make a series of elbow jerks. At the end of it all he plugged the target with six shots in an eight inch circle and the major gave him his blessing—and his revolver. He was to owe his life more than once to what the major had taught him.

Then he joined his battalion and was put in command of a platoon.

"It's very like being a prefect again with the adjutant as the 'head,'" he wrote to his mother of his first day's duty as orderly officer, and so it was. To carry on as orderly officer from reveille to tattoo—and later—requires tact. From the time when he inspected the issue of rations in the early dawn to the hour when he turned out the quarterguard just before midnight he was responsible for the "tone" of that camp. He had to see that everything from cookhouse to guardroom was "clean and regular," to examine the rations with the eye of an inspector of food and drugs, and to smell the men's dinners with the nose of a chef, to see that the utensils were unspotted from the world, and the rifles of the guard, barring the safety catch, ready to go off of themselves. Also he had to hear and adjudicate upon "complaints" like a cadi under a palm tree.

The first thing he did was to get to know his men. He taught them that cleanliness was next to godliness, and, having commended their souls to the padre, he devoted himself to their bodies. He made them take their caps off on parade to see if their hair was parted and hold out their hands like bishops at confirmation to see if their finger nails were clean. Also he encouraged them to play "footer," which keeps the pores open and is an infallible remedy for "grouse" disease. And one night he talked to them like a man and a brother in one of the hutments on the history of the regiment. He told them of a certain glorious episode in the defense of the residency, in virtue of which they were entitled to call themselves "L. I.," and how the soup tureen, now safely banked with the regimental mess plate, got the hole in it. Also why they were entitled to wear a red flash on their hats and a half red pugaree on their helmets in virtue of their having shown the red feather by way of biting their thumbs at Montcalm's men in Quebec. And other such things, till his men felt—and, as things turned out later, proved—that the honor of the regiment was dearer to them than their lives.

HE went out with his battalion to the front. His letters home told his mother that he was having "a ripping time." He did not tell her that he wrote them in a cave of clay with his feet in water and his head in a cloud of smoke from damp coke and damper wood. He endured without grousing rain and cold and frost and mud and, what was far harder to bear, a sad deficiency in machine guns and trench mortars that were made out of stove pipes. He went through the second battle of Ypres, and when his company officer and all his fellow officers were knocked out he carried on with a handful of men in a hole about the size of a dewpond and saved the position. The next thing he knew was that his name appeared in the Gazette with the military cross. The only comment he made was that other fellows had a better claim to it—which was untrue.

And when he came home on a seven days' leave his mother discovered that her boy had become a man. At 20 he was wise with the wisdom of 35—wiser, perhaps, for he had seen things such as come not once in a generation to the sons of men. His leave coincided with one of those recurrent interludes in which that elusive mirage, "the end of the war," appears before the wistful eyes of men, and they talked of his future at Oxford. But he shook his head.

"No," he said pensively, "I shall never go back, mummy—I couldn't. My year's scattered like the leaves of the forest," he went on as, with his back to them, he gazed through the window at the dead leaves spinning under the beeches in the park. "And anyhow I'm too old." This at 20. But they knew what he meant, and talked of the bar, a seat in parliament, quarter sessions. To all of which he returned no answer.

He went back. They saw him off by the boat train from Victoria. He held his mother a long time and kissed the eyes into which his own had first looked when he opened them in wonder upon the world. And father and mother went home together to the big country house which suddenly seemed to have grown still bigger—so forlorn and empty did it seem.

One night he had to go out on patrol—a reconnoitering patrol, which is always a small affair and does not command the full complement of a fighting patrol. He sat in his dugout writing a letter home on the flimsy paper of a "messages and signals" form. The N. C. O. appeared at the dugout and raised the screen of sacking. Tony folded up the letter, sealed it, addressed it, and marked the envelope, "To be forwarded only in the event of my death." Then he examined the chambers of his revolver and rose and went out into the night.

FAR away across a sodden land lit up by the flashes of guns like sheet lightning, across a waste of waters where a chain of destroyers rose and fell with the channel swell, beyond the rolling downs of the south country, a woman in a great house awoke with a cry out of a troubled sleep and put out her hand. "Jack," she said, "Tony's dead."

Her husband woke with a start and bent over her.

"Nonsense, Mary," he said with faltering lips, "you've been dreaming." She was sitting up in bed, a shower of hair, still auburn and still soft as silk, falling about her shoulders as she gazed at the window. She sank back and buried her head in the pillows.

"No," she said. "I've seen him."

Three days later a boy came up the drive with an orange colored envelope in his hand. The father saw him approaching from the dining room window and something pierced him like a two edged sword. He learned—but that was later—that Tony had gone out on patrol with a corporal; they had been surprised by a party of the enemy and the N. C. O. had got badly hit. He begged Tony to leave him. But the boy took him up on his young shoulders and made his way back. Sometimes he fell, for the man was heavy and the ground bad, but he labored on. A star shell went up behind them and the earth was suddenly stricken with a pallid glare of light. Then a hail of bullets enveloped them and the boy fell—this time to rise no more.

The corporal said afterward—this to the boy's parents when they came to see the corporal in hospital—that the boy had said something at the last—"something I couldn't quite understand, ma'am, not being a scholar like him, something that sounded like 'Apollyon.' But I fancy his mind was wandering like. And he never said no more."

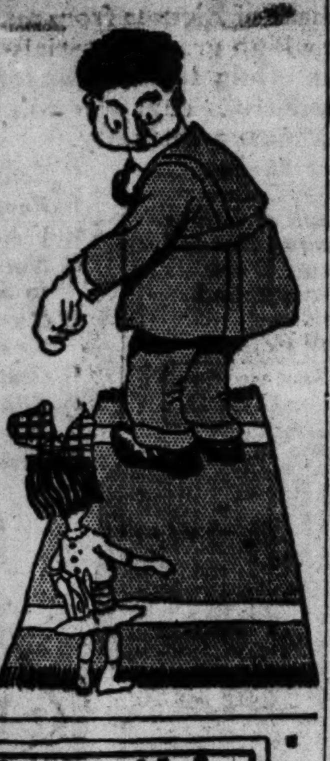
Pslams of Life

by J. P. McEvoy



GIRLISH NERVE.

I sorter figgered you would be Away above the crowd,
A child of rare supremacy
Of whom I could be proud.

A modest, timid little maid
I pictured you, alack!
But all my dreams are rent and frayed—
You call your daddy "Mac."

The only children I have got
And you so brash and bold,
To call me "Mac"—my little tot
One year and two months old.

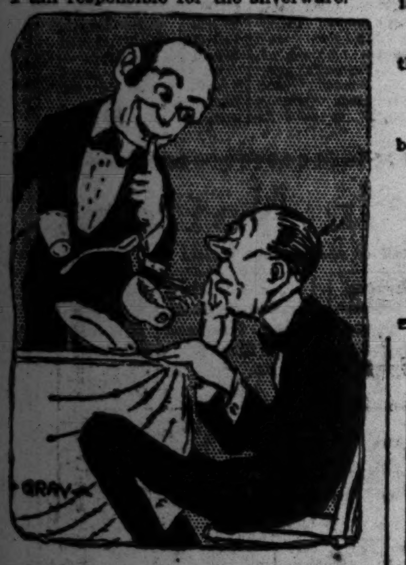
One year and two months old—that's all—
A lady you should be,
Instead of that you're full of gall—
You holler "Mac" at me.

You might have called me daddy, see?
Or pa, or even pop,
But this here squawking "Mac" at me
Has simply got to stop.

They Laugh at this in Vaudeville

McVICKER'S.

"Caesaro": I preferred not to eat at the table d'hote, so I had my meals served in my own room. I didn't care for the looks of the servant who waited on me, so I told him to retire from my room. The servant bowed and disappeared. Well, I finished my soup and just as I finished it, the servant stepped forward to remove my empty plate. "Where were you?" I asked. "Did I not tell you to leave my room?" "Yes, sir," said he. "Then leave it at once; I wish to be alone," says I. "Excuse me, sir," answered the servant, "but I am responsible for the silverware."



I attended a little social party last night at my friend's house. During the evening the conversation was on automobiles. "Yes, I think I really must get a motor car in the spring," said the host. "I haven't quite decided what make yet, but there is no use getting a cheap one. They're sometimes so unreliable. I suppose I can get a really serviceable affair for three thousand or so." While the company were still gasping at this careless mention of wealth, one woman turned to the host's small son and remarked: "I say, George, your father is going to buy a motor car for you to ride in." George turned gleefully to his dad and said: "Say, dad, will that funny looking man call every week for the money like he did last year when you bought the bicycle?"

Lanigan and Jones:
"Well, how are you feeling today?"
"Like a policeman."
"How's that?"
"Out of sight."
"And how are you feeling."
"Like my mother-in-law's appetite."
"And how's that?"
"Immense."

"Say, why should a barber prefer to shave three Englishmen than one Italian?"

"I don't know."

"Because he gets more for shaving three than one."

"Go on, you talk like a has been."

"You mean a could be."

"What's the difference between a could be and a has-been?"

"I'd rather be a could be
If I couldn't be an are,
For a could be is a may be
With a chance of touching par.
I'd rather be a has been
Than a might have been by far,
For a might have been has never been,
But a has was once an are."

NEW YORK SOCIETY by MME. Y.

Debutante Dances Are Off for the Coming Season

NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.]—The debutantes are disappointed. They are not to have the good time which their sisters and the other girls of years back have enjoyed on being introduced. The debutante dances for this year are nearly all of them canceled and these girls coming from classrooms and from comfortable homes cannot realize the gravity of the national situation which takes their first little fling of worldly dissipation away from them. One of the prospective debutantes is reported to have cried last week when she heard that for the first time in many long years there are this winter to be no junior assemblies.

"My dear," said her mother, "do you really feel like kicking up your heels while your brother and your cousin, in the uniform of officers of the American army, may be leading other young American men into battle against the foes of your country?"

"Of course, I do not, mother," the girl answered. "I never thought of its being like that."

The sentiment expressed by these two is the one which has made the executive committee of the junior assembly declare that the nights of Dec. 4, Jan. 11, and Feb. 1 shall be blank nights in the social calendar and these are the evenings which, except for our serious national situation, would have been full of merriment.

Other subscription dances for the debutantes and for the older sets of girls may be likewise abandoned this season. The dances for girls who cannot think of becoming debutantes yet awhile and for the boys not yet quite old enough to fight our foes in Europe may take place, however, as well as other afternoon and early evening amusements. Personally, I cannot see why the younger set should ignore the lofty sentiment which inspires the others to their attitude. But it is mine to record and not to criticize the machinations of the smart set.

Young Men in the Army.

A separate little society department could appropriately be organized to record the items of our young men of fashionable families who have joined the colors. Private Kindgon Gould, son of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould, is one of nine men at Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N. J., picked from their regiment, the Three Hundred and Eleventh infantry, to be transferred to a new headquarters troop. It is understood that they will receive warrants as sergeants. In their new military environment their superior officer will be Second Lieut. Raymond Belmont, son of August Belmont. Maj. Bradley Martin of the Three Hundred and Eighth infantry is on duty at Camp Upton, Lieut. S. Bryce Wing also is stationed at Camp Upton. Richard Mortimer Jr. is taking the final intensive training at Oxford, Eng., with other members of the aviation section of the signal corps, with the American expeditionary forces now overseas, and in so doing he is living up to the precedent of six generations of aggressive ancestors. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mortimer of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and a great grandson of John Jay, first chief justice of the United States. His cousin was Victor Chapman of the Franco-American aviation corps, who was killed at Verdun.

Charley Taft married! I can scarcely fathom my reaction to it—whether I am more resentful or sad. I have known him only over one brief period of about a week. But then he was a child, and it seems only day before yesterday. It was when his father was running for the presidency the first time and I went down to Hot Springs, Va., to interview him.

Chow with Bridal Trousseau.

Mr. Taft seemed to feel a little shy about giving out interviews, but Charley, the 12 year old, didn't, and he would talk to me about any subject suggested, from how it felt to be running for the presidency down to and inclusive of how to catch a wild duck and what to do with it after you had caught it. Whatever his subject, his mind was always fastened with greater interest on the end of his golf stick, and on the important matter of whether his mother was going to let him go in swimming that afternoon.

Now he is married, and his bride is Miss Eleanor Kellogg Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving H. Chase. As might be imagined, they were married in the presence of a notable company, the flag of the United States constituting the principal decoration. The bride was given away by her father, and her gown was of heavy white satin, made with a court train and tulle sleeves.

Here is an important item of fashion which you should know about—now that the war is raging. I have noticed it in Krin Lowe's column. It is said that no trousseau is complete without a chow puppy in it. Every bride is carrying one this fall. Three interesting young women, sisters, are raising them in New York. When I asked one of them—Miss Pauline Thompson—whether she found it profitable to do so she replied that so many brides were using them that the business was advantageous indeed.

Here is one way of helping the world's work. In order to make it pleasant for the reservists, stationed at Newport, women of society gather at their rest quarters on Saturday evenings and dance with the men. Mrs. J. Francis A. Clark started the social occasion. Among those who attend are Mrs. Richard Stevens and her pretty daughter, Miss Elsie, Miss Julia A. Berwind, Miss Dorothy Bigelow, Mrs. Reginald Norman, and Mrs. Edward M. Paddleford.

The women who gather on these occasions do not lack partners, for the reservists—mostly college men—outnumber them two to one, and eagerly await their turns.

Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, the latter of whom was Mrs. George Widener, have decided to pass the winter at their beautiful Newport residence. They will make occasional trips, of course, to Boston and New York. Here they keep quarters permanently at the Ritz.

Baron Reading, lord chief justice, and Lady Reading are at the Gotham hotel. Others there are Dr. and Mrs. James W. Markoe and Mr. and Mrs. Bradish Johnson, who came from their house at East Islip, L. I., to pass a few days in the city.

"I'll Show You How Corns Peel Off!"

Ever Peel a Banana Skin? That's It!

"I should worry about those corns—I just put some 'Gets-It' on." Corns used to pester the world into a frenzy, enduring pain, digging, slicing toes, tinkering with plasters and tape, trying to fix a corn so it wouldn't hurt. But now no one in the world "should worry," because the moment you put "Gets-It" on, it means the end of a corn. There is nothing in the world like "Gets-It"—nothing as sure and certain—nothing that you can count on to take off a corn or callus every time, and without danger. The corn never grew that "Gets-It" will not get. It never irritates the flesh, never makes your toe sore. Just two drops of "Gets-It" and presto! the corn-pain vanishes. Shortly you can peel the corn right off with your finger and there you are—corn-free and happy with the toe as smooth and corn-free as your palm. Never happened before, did it? Guess not.

ISOLATION vs. INSULATION

IN a storage battery, the electric current must flow from plate to plate. But the plates, like the points of a spark plug, must not touch. The plates must be isolated.

Solid rubber insulation would prevent the flow of current. Isolation permits it to flow in the path desired — through the acid.

Current will flow through holes in rubber insulation but the capacity is reduced because of a limited path.

Vesta Indestructible Isolators, by positively locking the plates apart, eliminate possible short circuits—because the plates are not allowed to touch. These isolators are not in the path of the current.

Vesta Impregnated Mats between the plates absorb the acid freely presenting a free path for the current. These mats are treated by a patented process which makes them tough and lasting, and they prevent "treeing."

VESTA DOUBLE LIFE STORAGE BATTERY

Vesta plates are comparatively hard and long-lived. The free flow of the current makes a soft, spongy plate unnecessary.

With all of these improvements the Vesta costs you no more.

There is a Vesta Battery for your car. Investigate it before you buy a new battery or have your old one replaced.

Vesta Batteries are sold on an 18 months' adjustment guarantee.

N. A. C. C. Allots Spaces for Big Motor Exhibits

THAT the magnitude of the two great national automobile shows of 1918, to be held in New York and Chicago next January, will be in keeping with the remarkable strides of the industry is evidenced by the large number of car exhibiters already allotted space for the exhibitions. The drawing was held the other day at the October meeting of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in New York, with more than 100 companies represented.

The number of exhibiters for both cars and accessories is greater than for any previous show, and all the space on the four floors of New York's Grand Central Palace and the Chicago exhibition buildings will be filled to overflowing. The New York show will be held the week of Jan. 5 to 12 and the Chicago show from Jan. 26 to Feb. 2.

The exhibitions will be devoted exclusively to passenger carrying cars designed for private use, while the accessory division will offer the hundreds of parts and accessories that go to make up the modern motor car and the conveniences and comforts of those who drive and ride in them. The demand for the display of accessories and parts exceeds all previous records. The motor and accessory manufacturers' organization has applications to allot space to about 100 of its members, and when the final allotment of accessory space is made the total will reach close to 300 for each show.

Among members of the chamber of commerce seventy-six makes of gasoline cars and five of electric were served at the first drawing for both shows. Of these seventy-one will be exhibited at both events, four at Chicago only and one at New York only.

First position for both shows was obtained by Willys-Overland, with Buick, Dodge Brothers, Studebaker, Maxwell, Chevrolet, Cadillas, and Hudson following in the order named. For the Chicago show the four leaders selected the four corner spaces in the center of the Coliseum.

Space was allotted also to four concerns not members of the organization, and further allotments to nonmembers are to be announced later.

The manufacturers voted to subscribe $10,000 of the organization's funds to the second issue of the Liberty loan, and also to carry bonds for its employés. R. H. Collins, president of the Cadillac Motor Car company, was elected a director to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Wilfred C. Leland, who is now building aeroplanes.

Exhaust Echoes

Largely at the suggestion of W. G. Tennant, president of the Tennant Oakland company, many of the dealers along "motor row" are uniting this week in a special fall display of used cars. The Harry Newman-Stratton company has combined business with patriotism by purchasing a block of second issue Liberty bonds, to be distributed to folk who purchase of them used cars selling at $500 or more.

The Elgin car which reached Chicago last week after completing the first lap of its zigzag journey over the principal American transcontinental trails, was driven from Arizona to Chicago without a fan belt. The belt parted while the car was still on the Arizona deserts, but the drivers continued their journey with the hood sealed, and no adjustment was made until they arrived in Chicago. The complete record under seal now stands at 6,128 miles.

The little whirling flags which have appeared on the radiator caps of the yellow taxis are the product of the Prismolite company of Columbus, O., makers of the automobile headlight lenses. "Cloth flags soon get faded and torn," explains an official of the company who is in Chicago to see about marketing the device, "and silk flags have been mounting to a prohibitive cost. Our manufacturing department hit on this whirling metal flag idea a while ago, and it seems to be a good one."

The army kitchen perfected recently by Capt. F. H. Buzzacott of Chicago and mounted on an Overland chassis is being driven to Washington for army tests. Its capacity is 250 meals at a time and it can be operated as well when traveling from ten to twenty miles an hour as when at a standstill. Two delivery wagons with special army bodies of the prairie schooner type and a touring car are convoying the kitchen on its cross country voyage.

H. J. Staebler, manager of the Chicago Reo branch, reports that his concern did 28 per cent more business during September than in the corresponding month of 1916. Trade in Reo trucks hereabouts, he says, has more than doubled.

A "fall style show" opened yesterday at the headquarters of the Tennant Oakland company, with a group of fashion models, headed by Miss Mae Burns, in attendance to do the demonstrating, refreshments served in an alluring nook, and all that sort of thing. The new Oaklands on view include roadsters, touring cars, coupes, and sedans in a wide variety of color finishes. Distinctive features of the 1918 models include new aluminum alloy pistons and an improved intake and exhaust system by which vaporization of the fuel is obtained in three stages of heat from the exhaust in a way designed to overcome the difficulties presented by low grade gasoline.

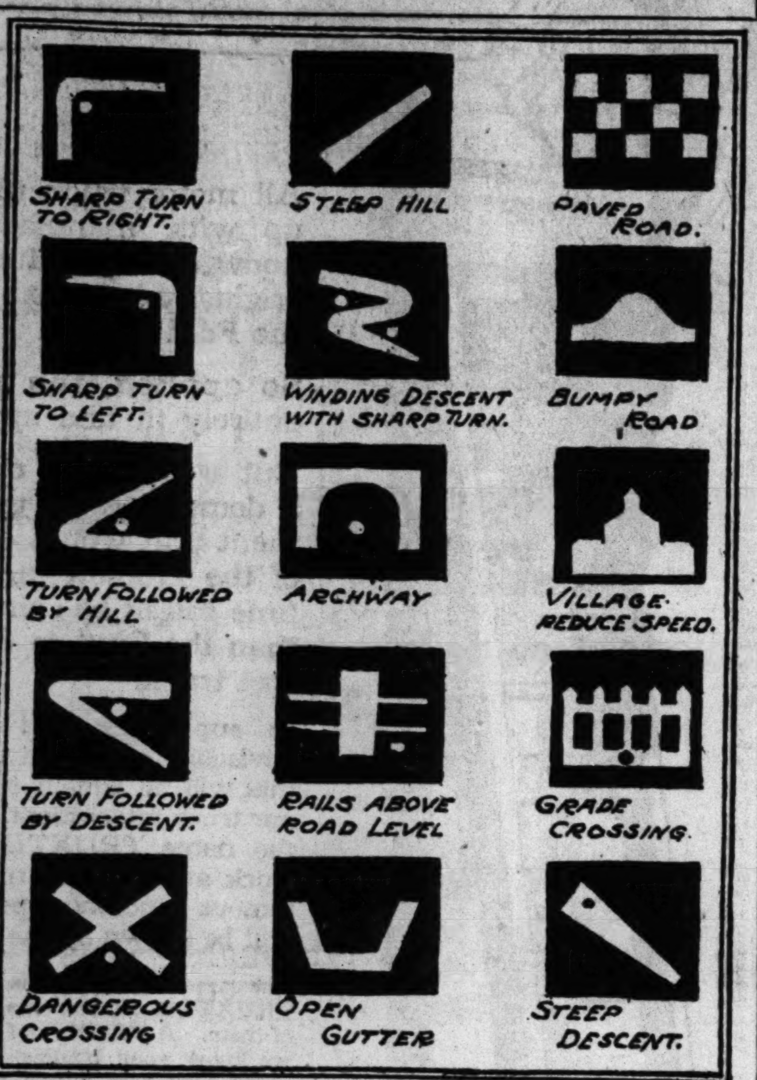
French Road Signs Urged for Adoption Throughout the United States as a Panacea for Motor Car Accidents.



W. H. Doherty, a New York motorist, wants the American Automobile association to start a campaign for universal adoption of these road signs to take the place of the various devices now in use. He thinks if every motorist knew what they meant and encountered them everywhere it would greatly reduce the dangers of touring.

The symbols are of French origin and are now used extensively on the Pacific coast. Certain sections of the east experimented with them some years ago, but they have since disappeared almost entirely in that part of the country.

Rain Isolates Army Camp.

On account of damage done to the southern portion of the Dixie highway between Chattanooga and Atlanta by a ten days' rain, which almost isolated Camp Gordon near Atlanta, it was found necessary to postpone, for thirty days, the military motor truck test between the quartermaster's depot in Atlanta and the supply depot at Fort Oglethorpe, scheduled to take place last Thursday. The county in which the damage was greatest has placed all of their available road forces at work cutting through a new road, which, when surfaced, will eliminate the possibility of another heavy rain interfering with the test.

Westcott Convertible Cars

Recognize No Closed Season for Motoring

IN THE Westcott Six, Series Eighteen, the Westcott engineers have anticipated the demand for a chassis whose efficiency is altogether independent of weather conditions. This they accomplished by means of a thermostat that automatically controls internal temperature of the motor at all times and by the adoption of wick-fed oil cups for all chassis lubrication.

With perfect consistency the Westcott coach designers have anticipated the requirements of the future in the refinement and completeness of the new Westcott Convertible Sedans and Coupes. In every feature of design and appointment these cars easily maintain the Westcott reputation for leadership among builders of sixes.

Advance orders for these models indicate the advisability of placing your requisition at an early date to insure prompt deliverv.

Willys Plans to Rival Ford with Huge Production

FURTHER details are at hand to supplement THE TRIBUNE'S announcement of ten days ago that John P. Willys of Toledo has plans under way to rival Henry Ford in the production of a light car to sell at less than $500.

The new car, it is said, will appear in huge quantities in the late spring or early summer of 1918. It is now complete in every detail and has been subjected to a long series of tests in the factory and on the road.

With its complete equipment, which includes a starting and lighting system, it weighs 1,500 pounds—approximately 100 pounds less than the Ford. A two-speed sliding gear is used, with a clutch of the conventional type. Tests of the engine have indicated that it will produce 52 per cent more power than the Ford motor, though it is 13 per cent smaller.

To designers one of the chief items of interest about the car is a novel system of spring suspension which, it is reported, produces the riding effect of a 130 inch wheel base with an actual wheel base of only 100 inches. This spring arrangement, it is said, may have a revolutionary effect on many items of motor car design.

All the resources of the Willys-Overland concern are to be used to insure production in enormous quantities—the chief requisite in successful manufacture of a low priced car. The plant facilities include a $5,000,000 establishment at Elmira, N. Y., and a $1,000,000 foundry at Pontiac, Mich., in addition to the main plant at Toledo. Few people outside the Overland organization have even known that these other plants existed.

Notables in Road Campaign.

A state wide campaign for passage of the proposed $60,000,000 state road bond issue in November, 1918, will be inaugurated Wednesday, Oct. 24, at Bloomington, whither the Illinois Highway Improvement association has summoned the good roads clans for its sixth annual meeting.

The speakers of the day will include Gov. Lowden, Judge Leslie T. Puterbaugh, state director of public works and buildings; S. E. Bradt, state superintendent of highways; Pres. E. J. James of the University of Illinois, and W. G. Edens, president of the association. Bloomington is making elaborate preparations for the event. There will be committee meetings in the morning, a business session in the afternoon, and dinner and addresses in the evening.

The Experts Say---

When the spring hanger of a cantilever spring breaks the car is difficult to steer; in fact, it will not keep the road at all. When this happens on the road an emergency repair is possible. Place the lifting jack under the forward end of the spring and raise the part so that it can be wired against the frame. This will hold if the car is driven slowly.

With the slanting type of windshield water is likely to leak through the slight opening between the two panes of glass when a heavy storm is encountered. This trouble may be obviated by making one of the panes overlap the other, which, of course, calls for the fitting of a new upper or lower half.

In tightening opposed nuts, such as those holding the bearing caps in place, one nut should be drawn up a little and then the opposite one tightened a little. It is wrong to tighten one nut fully and then proceed with the other, as this method tends to spring the metal and cause poor contact.

Changes in temperature exert an extremely unhappy effect on the finish of the car because of the difference in the coefficients of expansion of metal and paint and varnish. To insure the highly finished surfaces from cracking the car should be housed in a garage maintained at a nearly uniform degree of temperature. Car owners who utilize their barns as garages make a mistake in so doing, as the ammoniac gases always present in a stable are ruinous to the varnished surfaces of the car.

AT THE BOTTOM

Chicago's Record for Recovery of Stolen Cars Is Poorest in the Great Lakes District.

ACCORDING to statistics gathered by the Cleveland Automobile club, Chicago's batting average in the matter of recovering stolen automobiles is the lowest in the great lakes territory. The organization has made inquiry as to the number of thefts and recoveries in six cities during the period from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1, 1917, and has obtained the following figures:

	Cars stolen.	Cars recovered.	Per cent recovered.
Columbus	294	264	89
Cleveland	1,375	1,214	88
Buffalo	493	432	87
Toledo	443	385	86
Detroit	3,052	2,333	76
Chicago	2,515	1,718	68

At that, the Clevelanders aren't satisfied with their comparatively advantageous position. "The police are recovering a large percentage of our stolen cars and making many arrests," says Fred H. Caley, secretary of the club, "but those arrested have not been punished in a manner to deter others from stealing cars."

Quite right, Mr. Caley. It happens in the best regulated of cities, including Chicago.

PAIGE

"The Most Beautiful Car in America."

The Only Practical Car for Winter Driving

Three weeks ago, we announced a new Paige power plant—"The motor that was developed by the war." You will probably remember that advertisement. It was a real He-Man announcement—straight from the shoulder, clean cut and decisive. The echoes are still reverberating through motordom.

We had a real story to tell, and we told it without quibble or compromise. We made statements that were perhaps a bit shocking to some tender sensibilities. You may recall, for instance, that we said, "The old orthodox gasoline motor is dead—deader than yesterday's newspaper."

Well—we meant just that. The old type of motor is dead. A newer type—a finer type—a more efficient type has been evolved to take its place. And that type is the Paige.

Perhaps we can best express the strength of our conviction by one more "shocking" statement. Here it is: The new Paige power plant is the only PRACTICAL internal combustion engine for winter driving in a motor car.

If this statement is true—and we believe it implicitly—it naturally follows that there is only one practical enclosed car on the market—the Paige. And we mean just that.

To be practical for winter driving, a motor must be able to do two things—start instantly and run smoothly in zero weather. The requirements appear to be simple, but, so far as we know, there is only one car that measures up to that standard.

No matter what the temperature may be, a Paige will start instantly because an electrical heating attachment insures a warm carburetor—combustible fuel.

No matter what the temperature may be, a Paige will run smoothly because of two remarkable new engineering features — our super-heated Manifold and Valve Polishing Device.

One extracts every last atom of energy from the gasoline. The other guarantees 100 per cent compression at all times and forever eliminates the necessity for valve grinding.

These are the features that make an enclosed car practical. You can "get along" without them, to be sure, but only at the expense of constant annoyance and inconvenience—a poor kind of practicability. They are found in combination only on the Paige.

But come in and see "The Most Beautiful Car in America." It may be the sedan, town car, coupe or limousine that makes the strongest appeal to your fancy. In any case, it will be the most satisfactory winter model that you can buy.

In the light of these facts, can you afford to purchase any closed car until you have investigated the claims that we have put forth?

Modern Ways of Cleaning the Car Make Work Easy

By High Speed.

THE last two or three years have brought a remarkable development in American body building. The mechanism of the modern motor car has reached an approximate degree of perfection, leaving the manufacturers free to devote more time to increasing the attractiveness of the vehicle.

The present day American car, as it leaves the factory, is really a thing of beauty, with its highly polished surfaces and shining metal. Naturally this has induced the owner to take more pride in keeping up the appearance of his gasoline steed. The result is that cleaning methods and equipment have greatly advanced over those of a few years back.

The present day owner, using modern methods, may keep his car looking new all the time, nor will he have to spend more than a few minutes a day to accomplish this end. For instance, there are now on the market a number of liquid and wax polishes which will give admirable results, if they are used as directed.

In the use of wax polishes, the first step is thoroughly to clean the body of the car. The polish is applied to the surface with a piece of cheesecloth and then another clean cloth is used to distribute the wax evenly all over the surface.

Car owners commonly make the mistake of thinking that the more wax applied the better. As a matter of fact, a thin film is all that is needed. The polish will last from four days to a week and after it has been applied at the beginning of the week a little rubbing with a clean cloth will bring out the luster again.

The wax polish may be used for body, fenders, hood, and other lustrous surfaces, and it will also be found that if the under side of the fenders is cleaned and given a good coating of the wax less mud will be deposited and what there is may be easily removed.

The most recent type of body polish is that which is sprayed on the surface with a large sprayer. In using this polish the body must first be thoroughly cleaned with water. If the body surfaces are merely dusty, the polish may be sprayed on and then be wiped off with a clean cloth. After spraying the polish over the surface, a piece of cheesecloth is used to wipe of the excess. There is no necessity for vigorous rubbing.

The present day owner must not assume that these new and really useful aids to beautifying the motor car have superseded plain water. The contrary is true. The car must be washed just as formerly, after which the new polishes do bring out the luster of the original finish.

Washing the car is not the casual job some owners seem to imagine. To begin with, the car should be washed immediately after it has been soiled. If mud is allowed to remain on the varnish surface for more than a day, it is difficult to eradicate it.

For the washing plain water should be used, neither too hot nor too cold, about 50 degrees F. being the proper temperature. A large sponge soaked in clear water and then sopped against the surface, so that the water trickles down, is best. Never turn a stream of water at high pressure on the body. This will grind particles of sand and other grit into the varnish to the detriment of the finish. The idea is to float the mud and dirt off the surface.

Soap should never be used on the body except for removing grease or oil spots. A small piece of soft cloth, well covered with castile soap suds, serves well to remove grease from the panels. The hood should never be washed while it is hot, as this will result in discoloration. In cleaning the radiator send a stream of water from the rear instead of from the front, to keep moisture out of the mechanism.

In drying the body a clean chamois skin should be used, the rubbing being done in straight lines. If spots of tar or road oil are found on the body, it is best to treat them with salt butter or kerosene. The butter softens the deposit so that it may be wiped off easily. Kerosene should be applied locally and wiped off within a minute.

To keep pace with the improved appearance of the body, it is necessary to give some attention to the top and to the upholstery. A weekly brushing of the top inside and out will add materially to its life. Fabric tops should never be cleaned with gasoline, kerosene, or other oils, as they tend to destroy the rubber in the top. Castile soap and water, applied with a stuff brush, are the best cleaning medium for the top.

The upholstery ought really to be cleaned once a week. This means not only wiping the surface of the cushions, but cleaning out the dirt that inevitably accumulates under the piping and in the corners. After the dust has been removed, leather upholstery may be cleaned with a cloth soaked in a weak solution of ammonia and water. Castile soap and water are also used on leather, but gasoline should not be employed because it tends to cause cracking.

The leather should be treated occasionally by giving it a light coating of linseed oil, thinned with vinegar. This solution should be applied with a cloth and be allowed to remain for a few hours, after which the upholstery should be wiped. For imitation leather, soap and water may be used for removing spots and linseed or sweet oil in small quantities for brightening the finish.

After examining the running gear of the ordinary car, one might be tempted to forego telling the owner how to clean this part of the vehicle. However, a stick for removing incrustations of mud, soap and water and a stiff brush will make this job not so bad after all. Mud deposits on such parts as torque tubes, universal housings, rear axle, brake drums, etc., ought to be removed, as they have a destructive effect in time.

In flushing parts of the undergear with water, care should be taken not to let the fluid get into the bearing surfaces. This refers to such parts as the braking system, steering connections, etc.

A final plea: Be sure that all paraphernalia, cloths, sponges, chamois skins, etc., used in cleaning the polished surfaces are clean themselves before you employ them. Sponges, even new ones, are peculiarly liable to have sand in them. They should be washed out in warm water before use.

O, SKINNAY! LOOKUT!

It's Got a Regular Whistle, Bell, and Air Brakes, and Goes Sixty Miles an Hour—At Heart, Though, It's Just an Automobile.

Funny what some folks will do. Consider, for example, A. F. Sternad, a Chicago designing engineer. He has spent $10,000 and his odd moments for four years building this hybrid, which looks and makes noises like a locomotive, but has the family habits of an automobile.

The contraption has proved itself capable of sixty miles an hour and better. Five hundred pounds of aluminum were used in its construction, which, from cowcatcher to cab, is a series of ingenious adaptations of the details of locomotive design to the motive principles of the gasoline engine. There are air brakes, an air operated whistle, a regular bell, and everything.

Now that it's done, you ask, what's Mr. Sternad going to do with it? Gosh, we don't know.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

What its sponsors term their second annual "all year car" show opened yesterday at the salesrooms of H. P. Branstetter, Chicago distributer of the Kissell Kar. An elaborate variety of new Kissel models is on view, with special emphasis on the removable winter top feature which the concern introduced in 1915. This displays no visible fastenings or attachments and is designed to dovetail into the specially constructed body so accurately that all the draughts, rattles, squeaks and leaks are eliminated. The real novelty of the exhibit is the so-called four passenger sedanlet. This has a top which may not only be removed bodily but which while in place, may be thrown open by the lowering of all six windows.

The new Nokomis which H. E. Dodge, the Detroit automobile manufacturer, had built to replace the $250,000 yacht turned over to the government for war service several months ago, has followed the trail of its predecessor. Mr. Dodge had his new boat just long enough for a month's cruise and one fishing and hunting trip to the northern lakes. Then he decided Uncle Sam needed it more than he did. A lot of costly furnishings were removed, and Nokomis II. sailed away to war last week.

The "Hyatt roller"—the old Buick which has been showing what it can do on its ancient set of Hyatt bearings—has completed its 12,000 mile swing around the continent and returned to Detroit, its starting point. Its arrival was marked with festivities of various kinds which included the receiving by Mayor Marx of Detreit of a letter sent him, via the Buick, by Mayor Rolfe of San Francisco. The eight year old car has now traveled 272,963 miles and has worn out more than $8,000 worth of tires.

"National used car work" starts tomorrow for Packard dealers throughout the United States. An unusually large assortment of tested and approved used cars of various makes is to be shown by the Chicago distributors in their used car department.

Henry R. Levy, general manager of the concern which sells Studebakers in Chicago, entertained 150 employés of the organization last Sunday with a barbecue at Black Bear farm. Field athletics, speeches, and a ball game completed the program. A cavalcade of twenty Studebakers took the guests to the farm and brought them back.

Accident Doctor Maps Pavements to Make 'Em Safe

SYSTEMATIC study of the causes of accidents on the streets of St. Louis has brought unexpected recognition to C. M. Talbert, city director of streets and sewers. Some time ago Mr. Talbert worked out a plan for reducing traffic mishaps about town. It worked so well that it has attracted nation-wide attention, and on the strength of it its author has been appointed chairman of the public safety division of the national safety committee.

Mr. Talbert's method as he describes it was this:

"When the outcry against many street accidents came it occurred to some of us that the police and the street railways had been tabulating accident reports for some years and that we might learn something from a study of those reports. We plotted them with colored tacks on a map and soon had the accident corners designated.

"Then we looked for the causes. Here it was an abrupt turn; sometimes too little light; slippery paving; too little policing; peculiar topography. Very often heavy traffic was to blame."

Mr. Talbert tells how these causes were corrected by placing additional lights on some corners, by buying additional land to permit eliminating a jog in crossings, and by treatment of subsurface to correct paving. Each corner was made a special problem and by comparison with other corners near by with heavier or equal traffic it did not take long to ascertain the causes.

In half a dozen cases a few lights have done the work, but at other corners it has taken a traffic policeman. In some places it has been necessary to turn traffic from narrow streets leading to busy corners. Jogs in streets at crossings are most difficult to remedy.

Zeppelin Pups.

Motorcycles in England have taken up the practice, originated by the motor busses, of using illuminating gas as fuel. When the gasoline shortage first became acute the operation of motorcycles for private use came to an absolute standstill. Then it was found that coal gas would serve the two wheeled vehicles as well as the larger ones.

A gas container in the form of a balloon is hoisted on steel supports above the machine, giving the outfit, according to one observer, the appearance of a Zeppelin pup. In London they call them "balloon bikes." It is reported that they operate much more cheaply than on gasoline, but can you imagine riding one in a good, husky windstorm?

SUPER CORD TIRES

TALK to the users of Firestone Super Cord Tires wherever you see them. They have a message worth many dollars to you. Lower cost per mile in tires and gasoline counts big these days, so here, there, everywhere Firestone Super Cords have become the goal of motorists.

These are Firestone Super Cord features that produce extraordinary performance. Numerous walls of stout cords. Pure gum separates cords and prevents friction. Extra thick cushion layer of pure gum under tread absorbs shocks and protects inner body of tire. Tough, thick, resilient tread.

Bead, which holds tire in rim, strongly reinforced, as is also the side wall. Hinge or bending point of tire thrown high where strain has least effect. Result, Most Miles per Dollar.

THE outstanding feature of all Firestone accomplishments is continuous advancement. Firestone never stands still. Here are the definite improvements: Tougher Tread; More Cushion Stock; More Rubber Between Layers; Reinforcement in Side Wall.

See cross section of tire at your dealer's. A brief explanation will convince you that Firestone on Fabric as well as Cord Tires means Most Miles per Dollar.

That motorists find extra values in Firestone Tires is proved by the fact that our sales increased 72 per cent this year up to September 1st. Our total business this year will exceed $60,000,000.

All motor truck users who have kept up with manufacturing developments know that the Hudford attachment was originally intended to be used only with the Ford chassis.

So applied, the name Hudford was entirely fit and appropriate.

But as the fame of the Hudford spread, a demand grew up for a truck attachment that would embody all the merits of the Hudford, and which at the same time might be combined with cars other than the Ford to form an efficient, low-cost truck.

In supplying this demand, it has become advisable to change the name Hudford to one that will be equally applicable to all models of our truck attachment. And so we have adopted the name TRUXTUN, and in the future all truck attachments made by us (including the famous Hudford type for use with Ford cars) will be known by the new name—TRUXTUN.

The same high standards which mark the manufacture of TRUXTUN attachments are also reflected in the selling of them. A TRUXTUN will be sold to you only after we know your hauling conditions and when we can assure you that it will give you more efficient service than your present method of hauling.

And when you buy a TRUXTUN we assume an obligation to see that it will continue to fulfill our promises. To this end our day and night service stations are constantly at your command.

STEPHENS

STEPHENS SALIENT SIX

Backed by George A. Stephens

More than half a century ago the name Stephens became identified with quality products. Down at Moline, Illinois, the first Moline plow was manufactured and instantly conceded to be a superior article. Stephens was the name behind that plow. As time passed other products were made and marketed by the Stephens family. All of them stood the test of time—gave satisfaction. A reputation for honest goods—honestly made and honestly exploited—was built up. Today, the name Stephens on a product means all that Tiffany does on a jewel or Sterling on a bit of silverware.

George A. Stephens, in time, took over the business established by his father. He is today president of the Moline Plow Company—a 19 million dollar corporation. He has preserved the family reputation for square dealing and master workmanship. Believing there was still room for improvement in the construction of motor-cars, he determined to manufacture a perfect car. And when it was finished he found it so good that he gave it his name. The Stephens Six is backed by a reputation. The name serves as a guarantee of worth. A demonstration will convince you. See the 1918 models at our show room.

Best of Trails to Florida Are Still No Primrose Path

By John De Long.

THIS is the season when motorists who have the time, the price, and the inclination emulate the birds' example and migrate to the south. And they are doing it in steadily increasing numbers, despite the fact that the Dixie highway, the main artery connecting Chicago with Florida points, is in poor condition at several places along the route. The highway, which measures approximately 1,537 miles from Chicago to Miami, Fla., is steadily undergoing improvement, however, and it is likely another year will see a route that is uniformly good over its entire length.

At present those who use the Dixie highway must be prepared to do so under some strenuous touring conditions, especially between Nashville and Chattanooga, which is the worst stretch on the entire route. This section, which crosses the Cumberland mountains, is under construction, and is practically impassable in wet weather. Two or three detours, none of which is good, afford doubtful means of touring between the two cities. It is a wise tourist who puts his machine on the cars at Nashville and ships to either Chattanooga or Atlanta.

A recent inspection trip made by officials of the Dixie Highway association developed the fact that while about 75 per cent of the difficult construction work across the Cumberlands has been completed, there still remain bad gaps that cannot possibly be finished in time for travel this fall and winter. In the meantime, if one attempts to follow the regular route, it will be found necessary to use as detours many mountain trails that were never intended for automobile traffic.

That the work of constructing a good permanent route from Chicago to Miami is progressing is indicated by the fact that, through the efforts of the Dixie Highway association, $5,500,000 has been expended on 2,800 miles of road. According to V. D. L. Robinson, secretary of the Dixie highway, the route between Chicago and Tallahassee consists of ninety-four miles of permanent road, thirty-eight miles of asphalt, 578 miles of macadam, rock, or gravel, and 276 miles of sand, clay, or dirt roads. Tallahassee is located on the western branch of the highway, and is on the route that will bear a heavy amount of travel when the new road now being built across the Everglades, from Fort Meyer through Marco to Miami, is completed. The route now used runs along the east coast of Florida.

Between Chicago and Miami there now remain only twenty-eight miles of natural trails and 141 miles of unsurfaced roads. It is these sections, however, that tax machines and drivers and take much of the joy out of an automobile trip to the far south. In case of wet weather there are many places where the unwary tourist may become mired in the mud, so chains, tackle, tow rope, and possibly a small shovel should be added to the car's equipment at Nashville, where the most strenuous portion of the trip begins.

In starting out from Chicago the route down through Indiana to Indianapolis is recommended instead of the regular Dixie highway routing south in Illinois to Danville and thence across to the Hoosier metropolis. The Indiana route is considerably shorter and has the additional advantage of superior roads. The Illinois Highway Improvement association is making rapid progress with the work of improving the route to Danville and it will not be long before the roads consist largely of concrete, brick, and asphalt, but in the meantime it is better to stick to the Indiana route and pick up the Dixie highway at Indianapolis. Good, hard roads will be found between Chicago and Indianapolis.

The section between Indianapolis and Louisville consists of fairly good gravel and stone roads, with only thirteen miles of dirt on the 135 miles of the route. This is not the shortest way, but the best. The route passes through some hilly but beautiful country. From Louisville to Cave City (ten miles east of Mammoth Cave) and on to Nashville, approximately 126 miles, the route follows stone and macadam which is considerably worn in places. It is the next 140 miles to Chattanooga that present the hardest problem of the trip for the tourist.

Here the highway is under construction, but two detours are offered. One, the shorter, is the old road over the Cumberland mountains. This is rough and offers slow going, but the trip may be safely made in dry weather. If the roads are wet from recent rains it would be far better to go through Huntsville, Ala., which would take the motorist about 100 miles out of his way. The old road over the mountains takes one through Murfreesboro, Tullahoma and Alto to Monteagle and thence into Chattanooga, where the headquarters of the Dixie Highway association are located.

The trip from Chattanooga to Atlanta, 124 miles, and from Atlanta through Macon to Waycross, 268 miles, offers no hazards for the tourist, the roads consisting principally of good graded sand-clay. South of Waycross there are several miles of bad sand which will slow the tourist up and call for much use of the low and intermediate gears; still it may be negotiated without danger.

The distance from Waycross to Jacksonville is eighty and one-half miles. It is mostly improved or graded sand as far as Callahan, fifty-eight miles from Waycross. At this point bad sand is encountered and continues to within nine miles of Jacksonville, where a brick road leads into the city.

The 113 miles to Ormond and Daytona consists of good brick, shell, and sand-clay roads, with the exception of about ten miles of sandy or swampy trails. From Daytona to West Palm Beach, 196 miles, will be found a fine trip through the citrus fruit country on winding roads along the beautiful Indian river. The highway consists of shell, marl, and coquina, and there are only one or two short bad stretches of road. This section makes a wonderfully scenic trip.

The final lap of the long journey is from Palm Beach to Miami, seventy miles. The trip goes down the gulf stream boulevard, between Lake Worth and the ocean, through Delray and past Fort Lauderdale to Miami.

The roads from Macon down the Florida west coast through Valdosta, Lake City, Gainesville, Ocala, and Lakeland to Tampa do not average quite as good as those along the east coast, but they do not present enough difficulties to deter one from making the trip. Improvement is the order of the day, and by another year a tourist may be able to drive with absolute comfort from Chicago clear through to any objective point in Florida.

Yessir, an Auto's Mighty Handy Around the House

The legion of pipe smoking motorists will be interested in a novel method of cleaning the "glimmy." The spark plug cable is removed from one cylinder. The pet cock is then opened and the bowl of the pipe is held over it, when the compression will blow the stem clean of any obstruction.

Sound Your Horn.

When the motorist wishes to pass a more slowly moving vehicle, it is his duty to sound a warning signal. It then becomes the duty of the other party to give way. Either driver who fails to observe these requirements, according to the courts, is guilty of negligence.

Driving Comfort.

A warm cloth bag of proper size slipped over the steering wheel so that the hands may be inside when driving will afford much comfort in cold weather.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS by HIGH SPEED

Because of the large volume of requests for automobile routes and the relatively small amount of space in which to answer them, readers wishing immediate replies are advised to inclose a 2 cent stamp with inquiries so they may be answered by mail. Questions of general interest, such as those pertaining to driving and the care of the car, will be answered as far as possible in this column.

Will you please explain why it is necessary to use a magneto instead of a battery for ignition in a Ford car?
INQUISITIVE, Beloit, Wis.

The fact that no chemical battery is able to maintain a constant supply of electricity has militated against their use to a certain extent. The modern motorist demands some appliance that will deliver an unfailing supply of electricity. The strength of a battery is reduced according to the amount of service it gives. Naturally the more batteries used the weaker they become. The modern multiple cylinder engines are especially severe in their demands upon the current producer. The rapid sequence of explosions in the Ford high speed motor produces practically a steady drain upon the battery. When dry cells are used their discharge rate is low. They are designed only for intermittent work and when the conditions are such that a constant flow of current is required they are unsuitable and soon deteriorate.

In order to settle a little friendly argument will you state which car will give the greater mileage from a gallon of gasoline, one running at a speed of ten miles an hour or one running at the rate of twenty or twenty-five miles an hour?
R. D. A., Chicago.

With cars of the same weight, piston displacement, number of cylinders, etc., and with everything working perfectly at all speeds, the greater the speed the more gasoline would be required, due to increased resistance of wind and bearings.

Please publish the list of the principal cities on the route between Chicago and Denver via the Lincoln highway.
J. D. P., Chicago.

Clinton, Ia., 148.4; Cedar Rapids, Ia., 91.3; Marshalltown, Ia., 77.1; Omaha, Neb., 219.4; Grand Island, Neb., 150.9; North Platte, Neb., 160.9; Big Spring, Neb., 76.8; Fort Morgan, Colo., 124.3; Denver, Colo., 114.6. The Lincoln highway is followed only as far as Big Spring, Neb.

* * *

Did Rario Resta ever drive a Delage car in any of the big speedway races won by him?
SPEED BUG, Chicago.

No. Resta won all of his races with Peugeot cars.

Will you please inform me how long an automobile with the license tag of another state may be used in Chicago without the purchase of a city tag or a state license?
C. D., Chicago.

An automobile carrying the license number of another state may be operated in Illinois for a period of sixty days without the purchase of a tag, providing the number plate of its home state is properly attached. Out of town motorists are not required to pay a Chicago wheel tax fee.

* * *

Please publish the best route from Chicago to Muncie, Ind., via Rensselaer, Ind.
READER, Morgan Park, Ill.

Drive through South Chicago, Hammond, Dyer, St. John, Crown Point, Thayer, Roselawn, Rensselaer, Remington, Wolcott, Montmorenci, Lafayette, Dayton, Mulberry, Frankfort, Boyleston, Tettersburg, Tipton, Elwood, Alexandria, and Bethel to Muncie, 219.6 miles.

When I discovered that my motor was missing I went over all of the wire terminals, checked up on the spark plugs and valves, and did everything possible to find the source of the trouble, but with no result. The engine still misses and I am quite certain there is a short circuit somewhere. What do you suppose the trouble can be?
L. A. D., Ripon, Wis.

When the secondary cables get old and grease soaked the motor often starts missing mysteriously. I have an idea your trouble may be due to this cause. Turn out all of the lights in your garage and, with the motor running and the hood raised, look and see if there are any places where the current jumps across from the cables to some nearby metal. Wherever you find wires through which the current is leaking remove them at once and replace with new ones.

Order Your Car—And Get It—The Same Day!

Ordinarily people must wait days—often weeks—before closed car orders are delivered.

But a progressive factory policy has provided Overland closed cars this season in advance of the demand.

Consequently you can order your car—and get it—the same day.

And they are beauties—Springfield Type—sides open entirely from end to end and may be easily and quickly closed as tight as a limousine.

But they were produced with materials bought in the low cost market of months ago and at remarkably low manufacturing cost on account of the enormous order they were part of.

It probably will be a long time before such luxurious cars can again be produced to sell at such low prices.

We'll be glad to show them to you.

KESSEL BROS. UNCLAIMED Storage Sale

WE WILL PAY YOU WELL IF YOU WILL HELP US.

Several of our customers find themselves in a position where they are unable to meet the storage charges on their furniture.

They have therefore left the goods with us to sell for storage charges. Remember that the prices at which these goods are marked represents only a fraction of their real value. The goods will be sold not on a basis of their worth but on a basis of the storage charges alone.

We must dispose of these goods immediately, as we need the warehouse space which they occupy, and we desire to get our storage charges, even though we have to sell at ridiculously low prices.

Remember that we are merely a storage house which at times finds itself with some excellent furniture on its hands. Just at present, because of the general abnormal condition, we have an unusually large amount of such goods on hand and this explains why our prices on high grade furniture are so much lower than the prices offered by regular furniture houses for the same class of goods.

The lot of goods which we must dispose of this week includes all kinds of furniture, stoves, rugs, carpets, linens, cut glass, pianos, and Victrolas. The goods are but little used and thoroughly dependable in every respect.

Take a State-st. car south to our door. It will take you but fifteen minutes from the loop and these fifteen minutes will mean real money to you. Place your order during the week and we will deliver the goods as soon as you are ready for them. Delivery will be made by our motor truck free.

Remember the Name and Address. Do not be deceived by misleading signs.

AGENTS WITH FORDS WANTED—
All our live agents are making big money selling Kero-Karburetors —the first perfected kerosene carburetor. The work is easy and congenial because every Ford truck or pleasure car owner wants a Kero-Karburetor, as we guarantee to save them from 50 to 75 per cent of their present fuel cost. Our selling plan makes sales easy, as we give an ironclad, rock ribbed "satisfaction or your money back" guarantee with each Kero-Karburetor and allow a 30 day FREE demonstration test to prove it. There is a big winter business ahead for live men, as temperature has no effect on the efficiency of Kero-Karburetors—20 below or 98 in the shade makes no difference to this remarkable carburetor. There are 1,000,000 Fords waiting for Kero-Karburetors and we can offer exclusive Chicago and outside territory to live, substantial men. Write or call at once. Kero-Karburetor, Room 959, 29 S. La Salle-st., Chicago, Ill. Phone Central 2352.

EXCLUSIVE PARK AND BOULEVARD
Apartment Homes
1225-1237
Hyde Park-blvd.
1224-1236
Madison Park.

Between WOODLAWN and DORCHESTER-AVS., in Madison Park, the heart of BEAUTIFUL KENWOOD. No other spot like it in all Chicago. A QUIET, REFINED neighborhood in the midst of TREES, SHRUBBERY, and yet in the immediate vicinity of ILLINOIS CENTRAL—EXPRESS, LOCAL, and THROUGH trains, electric lines, BATHING BEACHES, PARKS, HOTELS, GOLF COURSES, UNIVERSITY, Y. M. C. A., SCHOOLS and CHURCHES.

COMBINING the exclusiveness of the country with the convenience of the city.

Each Apartment Home contains Large LIVING ROOM and DINING ROOM across entire front of apartment, opening into a spacious SUN PARLOR.
THREE LARGE OUTSIDE MASTER CHAMBERS, with 2 tile baths, completely equipped with showers, etc.; spacious kitchens and pantries with outside refrigerators; double quarters for maids, with bath, closets, etc.
Buildings are completely detached, giving outside light and view of park and boulevard from every window.
The design, appointments and decorations are refined and costly, the French idea predominating throughout.
Automatic electric elevators for each three apartments insures convenient, easy access to all apartments.
Both in arrangement and surroundings these High Class Apartment Homes make a strong appeal to the discriminating taste.

Telephone Main 1776.
Chicago, Oct. 14, 1917.

BULLETIN:

Today's best bargain is on Delaplaine road, between Shenstone and Addison roads, in

RIVERSIDE

This lot has a frontage of 50 feet, is 162 feet on south line, 182 feet on north line, faces a small park and contains 8,600 square feet, or 1,100 square feet more than two Chicago lots of average size. All the improvements are in and paid for, and it is only five minutes' walk from the Harlem station of the C. B. & Q. R. R. and the electric line.

In this section of Riverside homes costing $3,500 to $5,000 predominate.

Today's price is only $800. Exceptionally easy terms.

Our Riverside office just north of C. B. & Q. depot [Telephone Riverside 83] is open every afternoon, including Sundays.

JUDSON F. STONE, AGENT.

California.

FOR SALE — IN FRESNO AND KING Counties, San Joaquin Valley, California, ideal land for alfalfa, grain, and fruit growing, stock and poultry raising. One-tenth down and nine easy annual payments on balance at 6%. In good farm neighborhood, close to market. Over 15,000 acres of choice land, at very reasonable prices, to select from. To be sure you are getting what you want, you may lease for one, two, or three years, with option to purchase on above terms. Write for details of this attractive method of buying on terms in reach of any one. You could ask for no fairer deal. San Joaquin Valley is in the heart of winterless California; 40 acres enough and should pay for itself in five years. You can start here with only $1,000 and make good. I will gladly place you in touch with those having the lands for sale. This is such an easy way to get a California farm that my advice is to act quickly. C. L. SEAGRAVES, Industrial Commissioner, A., T. & S. F. Ry., 2100 Ry. Exch., Chicago.

FOR SALE—PROFITABLE CALIFORNIA DAIRY. 480 acres of land, 135 head of dairy stock. Present income $1,000 per mo.—can be rapidly increased. Price, $125,000, includes everything in complete running order. No cyclones or tornadoes to fear; no long cold winters and deep snow, when barn feeding takes all the profit out of a short summer. Green feed nearly all the year. Can accept clear eastern land up to $30,000 if priced at proper value, but must have at least $30,000 in cash in addition. Balance easy terms. This is a fine income property, worthy the closest investigation of any one able to handle it. Located only a short distance from 20,000 acres of land recently purchased and being developed by Louis Swift, the Chicago packer. This property can be leased for one-half the total income if desired by purchaser. Dairying and live stock will offer wonderful opportunities for profit during the reconstruction period following the war. For full particulars address FRED B. FOX, FRESNO, CAL., 228 CORY BUILDING.

Louisiana.

FOR SALE—THE NEW ORLEANS GREAT Northern Railroad, for the first time in a systematic way, opens to homeseekers the splendid cut-over lands along its lines in the rich states of Louisiana and Mississippi.

Hitherto, lumber being the chief asset, the land itself, regardless of its great agricultural worth, has been carried on the books at a mere nominal value, but as the lumber companies, pine tar product plants, and wood pulp paper mills are using up the trees, stumps, and waste wood on the logging fields, a large acreage near in to towns, churches, schools, and markets is available for trucking, dairying, and like stock farming, and the greatest inducements to settlers in prices, terms, and co-operation are offered.

In addition to our American settler, a Scandinavian-American colony and a flourishing German-American colony are building up on our lines near Bogalusa, La. Numbers of families move down in November. Glad refer you to members of these colonies.

Write Walter S. Ayres, Industrial Commissioner, N. O. G. N. Ry., 864 McCormick Bldg., Chicago, Ill., how to get a farm home or specially selected live stock ranch, directly through the railroad and from the owner.

Liberty Bonds
At 10% Premium

DURING THE NEXT TWO WEEKS while Liberty bonds are on sale, we will accept them as first or down payments on purchases of land, thus for a $50 bond we will credit you $55 and for a $100 bond we will credit you $110, etc. We will also credit whatever interest has accrued.

FOR THE BIG LAND OPENING OF OCT. 16. Here are some facts of interest to any person desirous of becoming an independent farm owner: They are of interest to you because, never again will you get a better opportunity to purchase lands at these low prices.

ON OCT. 16 we are opening up 40,000 acres of land in Kalkaska, Antrim, and Charlevoix counties, Michigan. These lands have never before been offered to the public. Persons coming on this excursion will not be offered lands that have been picked and culled over, but will have the opportunity of securing first choice from one of the finest tracts of lands that have ever been offered for sale in the state of Michigan.

IT IS STRICTLY UP TO YOU, Mr. Farm Renter, are you content to allow rent to eat up the greater part of profits which ought to be yours? Mr. Farm Hand, are you going to continue to work hard for some one else all your life when you might just as well be working for yourself on your own farm? Mr. City Man, are you willing to pay high prices and make your children live in the crowded streets of the city when the opportunity is given you to share in the profits of high food prices and to give your children the advantage of a healthful normal life?

YOU CANNOT MAKE A MISTAKE in purchasing any piece of land offered in this sale. It is sugar maple, elm, and beech land and adjoining our tract are beautiful virgin forests still standing. These lands will produce excellent crops of alfalfa, clover, vetch, wheat, rye, oats, corn, beans, peas, potatoes, buckwheat, and all vegetables. Dairy and live stock farming yield large profits in this section. Good markets, schools, churches, gravel roads, telephones, etc.

THE FIRST MAN ON THE LAND gets the pick of 40,000 acres. Remember this and see to it that you are among the first. Make preparations to join the BIG PULLMAN CAR EXCURSION TUESDAY, OCT. 16. Be prepared. Call us up by phone or wire at our expense for reservation on our train. Opening prices will be $15 to $30 per acre. Sell in tracts of 20, 40, 80, 120, or 160 acres. Cash or easy payments of $2.50 per acre cash down and 25c per acre per month on tracts of 40 acres or more. On 20 acre tracts $50 down and $10 per month. Payments can be arranged on a yearly basis.

IF YOU CANNOT JOIN US ON THIS EXCURSION we will make a selection for you on the following basis and hold it subject to your inspection for 30 days: A deposit of $10 will hold 20 acres; $25 will hold 40 acres; $50 will hold 80 acres. The balance of the first payment can be made when you make your trip of inspection. IF THE LAND DOES NOT ENTIRELY SUIT YOU EVERY DOLLAR OF YOUR DEPOSIT WILL BE CHEERFULLY REFUNDED.

BE ONE OF THE ADVANCE GUARD in this land army of ours. We leave our Chicago office at 11 a. m. TUESDAY, OCT. 16. Round trip rates, including railroad fare, Pullman car, hotel and two days' automobile trip over the lands, $14.70. First class accommodations for both men and women at our fine new hotel.

NO WORDS CAN EXAGGERATE the opportunity now open to you and it is a duty you owe to yourself and family to take advantage of it, if you wish to better your condition. Write today for our new handsome illustrated free booklet, giving full information about these lands and their advantages.

Oklahoma.

FOR SALE—OKLAHOMA. DO YOU WANT money, land, or home? Be patriotic. Buy some land from your Uncle Sam. Eastern Oklahoma Indian proven farm land and prospective oil land is good for both investment and home. Schools, markets, and trees, and plenty rain for crops. Total cost $5 an acre; terms, $2 an acre cash, $1 in 1, 2, and 3 years at 5%. Write me what you want, inclosing check, draft, or money order for as much as you wish to invest. Time is now too short for us to send you booklet and further particulars. Sale Oct. 15 to 25. Only a few know of this sale, and on account of war and bond sale a very few will buy. Here is an opportunity. I will buy for you and assist you about renting. Oil and coal leases and surface rent has paid for land. Your official papers will come direct from Washington. Trusting that I can buy and suit you, as I have others the last twenty years, I am yours for continual service. JOSEPH CLARK, Indian Purchasing Agent, Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Oregon.

THE JORDAN VALLEY

in Southwestern Oregon, is a beautiful, fertile district that you ought to investigate. Many shrewd farmers are buying there because their keen business foresight tells them that investment will pay big returns from the natural increase in the value of the land alone, to say nothing of the big crops that they can produce. Prices low; terms easy.

Ask me for authentic information, absolutely free.

Texas.

FOR SALE — NEW FARM OPPORTUNITY IN ONE OF THE GREATEST STATES IN THE UNION. A new line of the Santa Fe is tapping a rich and fertile prairie section of Northwest Texas, near the Oklahoma line, where already many farmers have MADE GOOD in a big way with wheat, hogs, and live stock. Here, if you ACT NOW, you can get first choice—get in on the ground floor of a great opportunity. You can get in AHEAD of the railway—ahead of the people whom the railway will bring—ahead of those who act more slowly than you do. This is the chance of a lifetime for a man of moderate means. A certain number of thrifty, farseeing farmers can acquire good land at an astonishingly low figure and on long, easy terms. If you have confidence that a great railroad like the Santa Fe would only recommend what it considers a good thing and because it wants to see new territory developed and wants newcomers to PROSPER and PRODUCE—then write me TODAY for particulars about this district. Mild climate, social advantages, schools, churches, telephones, good roads. Everything there but enough men with their families. Will you be one of the fortunate first comers to reap the advantages of a section that has been minutely inspected by a Santa Fe agricultural agent and pronounced RIGHT? Write me NOW and let me send you a copy of the special illustrated circular we are getting out. C. L. SEAGRAVES, 1105 Railway Exchange, Chicago.

INVESTMENT—GIVE YOUR MONEY a real chance to make good for you. Successful business, established over twelve years. Exclusive product with great demand through the world. No competition. Working day and night to fill orders. This is no experiment, but a well established, safe, high class business. During first six months of this year it earned profits equal to 42% per annum on the capital invested. Obliged to turn down many orders for want of additional capital. With additional manufacturing facilities installed, profits should easily double. Why speculate in uncertainties when you can secure a safe and profitable stock interest in a big ESTBLISHED, RAPIDLY GROWING MONEY MAKING enterprise? If you can believe your own eyes and have from $300 to $3,000 to invest safely [without services], come to see us or write for full particulars. Highest bank and commercial references. It will cost you nothing to investigate. Address F L 508, Tribune.

INVESTMENT—WANTED, A PARTY WITH from $1,000 to $10,000 to invest in a business controlling a patented product of worldwide demand. No bond is more safe. Many thousands of dollars worth of business HAD TO BE refused last year for lack of capital. Business for 1918 shows enormous profits. We prove all we claim, and more, before you shall invest a dollar. You cannot refuse this offer if you learn it. Do you desire great profit with the safety of a bond? Address N 284, Tribune.

INVESTMENT—AN IDEAL OPENING FOR a capable man with some capital to become identified with a trunk and bag manufacturing concern in St. Joseph, Mo.; plant in operation past 40 years; business well established; factory building and equipment thoroughly modern; product in great demand; an excellent opportunity for a man with proven business ability, etc. For detailed information address Commerce Club, St. Joseph, Mo.

BUSINESS CHANCES.

A PROPOSITION OF EXCEPTIONAL MERIT NEEDS A PROFESSIONAL OR BUSINESS MAN WHO IS IN A POSITION TO INVEST OR SECURE INVESTMENT OF $10,000. TO A MAN OF GOOD REPUTATION WHO CAN QUALIFY THIS MEANS AN INCOME OF $10,000 OR MORE YEARLY. THIS BUSINESS IS CLEAN CUT AND HIGH CLASS AND WILL STAND CLOSEST INVESTIGATION. ADDRESS N 363, TRIBUNE.

FOR SALE—ONE OF THE LARGEST AND most highly developed fruit orchards in the famous fruit resort section of the State of Michigan, located on the West Michigan Pike and Dixie Highway. This orchard has been developed as a commercial proposition, having switch track for receiving fertilizer and shipping fruit, is on a high plateau with perfect air drainage, and is only five miles from dock on Lake Michigan, from which fruit can be delivered in Chicago in one night. More than 20,000 trees [apple, pear, peach, and cherry] have been given constant and unusual care, and within two or three years the crop will be very large and annually increasing as the trees mature. Further details will be furnished if you are interested and able to handle such a proposition. Address F L 90, Tribune.

FOR SALE—CASH AND BANKABLE NOTES can close deal; young man of 29, subject to next call in army draft, offers you an up to date hardware store, old stand, well advertised, as the prominent hardware store; everything in the tip top shape and no dead stock. The large part of this stock will be priced to you at prices which prevailed before any advances took place. Can be run on a $5,000 stock and sales will run $20,000 to $25,000 when crops are fair. The last year ran $18,000 and crops were poor. Good fixtures, tin shop in connection and equipped with good tools. A mighty good chance for a branch in plumbing, autos, and implements. The war has caused me to offer this for sale. GEO. MINIER, Augusta, Illinois.

NOTICE

I have the town for a desirable manufacturing plant. Good railroad facilities, and can raise $75,000 capital for the right proposition. What have you to offer? Address B F 18, Tribune.

BUY CHEROKEE OIL NOW

During the past week 2 new wells were brought in by this company on the Baker Farm in Powell County, Kentucky, which are flowing better than 500 barrels per day. THIS GIVES CHEROKEE A TOTAL OF 13 WELLS IN KENTUCKY with an approximate DAILY PRODUCTION of close to 18,000 BARRELS. Another good well has reached sand and should come in at once. Several other wells are drilling in Kentucky and a big well in the Trap Shooter pool in Kansas.

Remember that CHEROKEE has direct pipe line connections to the CUMBERLAND PIPE LINE CO. and that Kentucky OIL is selling at the present time for $2.45 per barrel.

Paying 10 Per Cent Dividends

ANNUALLY, and prospects of extra cash dividends, based upon increased production and earnings, are excellent.

PRICE

$1.50 PER SHARE.

TO BE TRADED ON THE CURB.

CHEROKEE has shown greater progress than any low priced INDEPENDENT OIL stock ever brought out in this market. The company is officered and directed by some of the strongest financial and commercial men in the central west and numbers among its stockholders some of the foremost men of the country today.

INSTRUCTION.

LEARN BOOKKEEPING BY YOURSELF.

MOST SIMPLE, EASIEST LEARNED SYSTEM. PRICE ONE DOLLAR. Winspear's Bookkeeping Manual condenses into the shortest possible form the theory of bookkeeping. Master this little Manual and you have obtained at minimum cost of time and money the same information for which the average business college charges a high tuition and requires months of attendance.

The only book of its kind which makes journalizing easy. Is a twenty dollar course for one dollar.

WINSPEAR'S 1917 BOOKKEEPING MANUAL introduces four plain, concise, simple rules for determining the laws of debit and credit.

Can be acquired in a few spare hours. Of incalculable value to everyone interested in bookkeeping.

Don't wait to write. Attach a dollar bill to this ad. with your name and address, plainly written. We will send you the cloth-bound, gold-lettered Manual postpaid. C. S. Winspear, P. O. Box 5, Sta. C, Cincinnati, Ohio.

To you who have children and have no piano or player piano

Kranich & Bach

ULTRA-QUALITY PIANOS AND PLAYER PIANOS,
235 S. Wabash-av., 2d floor.

Gives notice of the most important piano and player piano sale ever held in the city.

The reason—Jacob Doll & Sons of New York, one of the oldest piano manufacturers, have closed their Chicago warerooms, and we have acquired their beautiful new stock that enables us to offer you the latest model pianos and player pianos at prices unheard of.

The prices are marked in plain figures, and are the same to every one. Save now $175 on an up to date upright piano. Save now $275 on a brand new Doll & Sons 88 note player piano. There is also a beautifully toned Weber piano, slightly used, in model mahogany case, at $180, and one Kranich & Bach used black case for $90. These are only a few of the remarkable piano bargains offered. There are many other used and sample pianos at various prices.

You must see the stock to appreciate the magnitude of the sale.

Easy terms and liberal allowances for used pianos taken as part payment.

Railroads' Gross Earnings Continue to Show Gain

Gross earnings of the United States railroads making weekly returns continue to show gratifying gains over all previous corresponding periods, and indicate that traffic is being maintained in enormous volume in practically all parts of the country. Almost every important system from which a statement has been received reports more or less gain for September and the total, $43,393,814, represents an increase of 12.9 per cent, as compared with the same month a year ago.

FINANCIAL NOTES

HEAVY specifications are being received by the steel mills from the government for the manufacture of ships, war munitions, and railway equipment. The indications are that orders from the United States government and allied governments will be even larger than outlined a month ago. The program for the manufacture of projectiles, it is estimated, will call for approximately 2,000,000 tons of bars and steel forgings. All naval requirements for steel and the steel orders to come from the Emergency Fleet corporation for cargo boats, for which specifications are to be received within the next sixty days, are estimated at 7,000,000 tons. Some of the steel forms required, however, for both shipbuilding and for ammunition will not be specified upon for six months or more.

Recent appraisal of the assets and property of the American Writing Paper company has shown a satisfactory bulk of assets. It was discovered, after months of appraisal work, that the company has in physical plant and net working capital a total of over $26,000,000 of assets. Against this the corporation has outstanding in the hands of the public about $11,000,000 in first mortgage bonds. This leaves a balance for the stocks of substantially $15,000,000, or $120 a share for the $12,500,000 preferred. The earnings of the company fell down somewhat the first half of 1917, but the second half year should be better.

J. M. Grueber, vice president in charge of operation, will assume the duties of general manager of the Great Northern Railroad company, it was announced yesterday. At the annual meeting of stockholders and directors L. W. Hill, William B. Dean, F. E. Weyerhaeuser, and A. B. Hepburn were reëlected directors for three years.

Frank W. Haussmann, vice president and cashier of the Noel State bank, has been elected a director of that bank. Mr. Haussmann has been identified with the bank since 1906, and next to Joseph R. Noel, the president, is senior in the service.

CHICAGO CURB QUOTATIONS

TRADING in local unlisted securities market was inclined toward dullness, stock changing hands at slightly lower prices. Moline Plow preferred declined to 96¼, closing 96 bid, offered at 97. Avery common was traded in at 89, closing 88 to 91; Emerson Brantingham preferred at 43½.

Motor issues were somewhat weaker, Reo Motor Car selling at 23 and closing 23 bid, offered at 24. Continental Motors changed hands at 6. Smith Motor Truck was offered at 40, and the common at 1¼.

Colorado Fuel and Iron Co. Shows Net Gain of 89.9%

New York, Oct. 13.—Gross receipts from sales of $40,004,887, as compared with $25,626,606 the previous year, a gain of 56 per cent, were shown in the annual report of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company. Operating expenses were $31,771,568, compared with $21,280,520; net earnings from operations, $8,233,319, an increase of $3,887,233, or 89.9 per cent; income from sources other than operations, $768,824, making a total net income of $9,019,602, compared with $4,971,077; fixed charges, $2,801,545, leaving a surplus above all operating expenses and fixed charges of $6,218,057, compared with $2,201,171.

A dividend of 3 per cent was declared on the common stock, payable at the rate of ¾ of 1 per cent quarterly, beginning with July.

Says Kansas City Leads St. Louis in Bank Clearings

A loyal friend of Kansas City writes to THE TRIBUNE as follows:

"Kansas City has led St. Louis in weekly clearings with few exceptions this year and will run up a much larger total for the year, according to the outlook. Yet THE TRIBUNE still places St. Louis ahead in its tabulated statement of clearings. Possibly the view is held that because of the discrepancy in size as regards the two cities the leadership of Kansas City in respect of bank clearings must be ephemeral or irregular. Any doubt on this score may be cleared up by a study of the increases of late years, coupled with the recognition of the position Kansas City holds in the midwest oil fields, the effects of which have only recently made themselves fully felt."

Midwest Oil Completes Its Casing Head Plant

According to word received yesterday the Midwest Oil company has completed its casing head plant for the conversion of gas into gasoline in the Salt Creek field, and operation of this plant is expected to add some $150,000 annually to the company's earnings. The Illinois pipe line had already begun to lay its new transportation system from the Salt Creek field to the refinery at Casper, and when this is in operation it will be possible for Midwest Oil greatly to increase production.

LOWER MARKET FOR CORN, WHILE OATS DO BETTER

More Long Corn Comes Out Under Bearish Influences.

Further liquidation carried corn futures to lower levels yesterday, resting spots showing net declines of ¾@1⅛c, December delivery being relatively weakest. Houses with seaboard connections were the most conspicuous sellers. Demand was tame during the early part of the session, but shorts took considerable corn toward the end and caused a fair rally from bottom levels. Fine weather for drying out the corn, offerings of southern corn at sharply reduced prices, and the government activity in the direction of lower food values were chief depressing factors. The fact that the maximum prices were left as they were also had some influence.

Cash corn was steady with local shipping sales 15,000 bu. New corn is being offered more freely. The weather forecast for next week is generally favorable. Argentine shipments for the week were 43,000 bu, against 3,552,000 bu a year ago. Primary receipts for the day were 502,000 bu, against 481,000 bu a year ago. Local arrivals were 75 cars.

Export Buying of Oats.

Oats were more or less affected by the weakness in corn, but met with good buying and at the finish were steady to a fraction higher. Thomson & McKinnon, Jackson Bros., Bartlett-Frazier, and Armour bought oats on a liberal scale and most of this business was believed to have been for export interests who figure on changing over the futures for cash oats when the latter become available. Most of the selling was by local traders, one of the leading operators being credited with disposing of nearly a million bushels. The movement of oats is materially restricted by shortage of cars.

Cash oats were steady with local shipping sales 520,000 bu, including 400,000 bu for export. Receipts here were 312 cars for two days. Primary markets had 1,978,000 bu, compared with 1,442,000 bu a year ago. Seaboard clearances were 545,000 bu. No oats were reported shipped from Argentina this week.

Hog Products Are Lower.

Provisions closed generally lower with January product showing most weakness. The market was extremely nervous and price fluctuations were rather wild, although the volume of business was not large. There was a return of liquidation early with fair buying on the break. Packers were credited with buying November lard, while shorts covered near the finish. Hog prices were sharply lower than Thursday, and there is still much talk of price reduction through government measures.

Hog receipts at western markets for the week totaled 331,700 head, against 275,400 last week and 452,000 a year ago. Local meat shipments for the week were 13,333,000 lbs, compared with 15,255,000 lbs a year ago, while lard shipments were 4,793,000 lbs, against 5,232,000 lbs last year.

Firm Market for Rye.

Rye was firm. Cash No. 2 sold $1.81@1.81½; No. 3, $1.77@1.79; No. 4, $1.74, and sample grade, $1.72. Receipts, 29 cars.

Barley ruled easy and unchanged. Malting was quoted $1.25@1.37 and sold $1.28@1.36; feed and mixing quotable $1.30@1.38, with sales at $1.26@1.28; screenings were quoted 70c@$1.10 and sold 75@88c. Receipts were 98 cars.

Timothy was steady. March closed $8.92½ bid and $9.10 asked. Cash lots sold $7.25@7.65. Cloverseed ruled firm. Cash lots were quoted $17.00@23.00 and spot prime $25.00 nominal.

Flaxseed closed 3¾c lower with cash quotable $3.09¼.

PIT PARAGRAPHS

MILLERS in this division will be required to use not less than 15 per cent of soft wheat in their hard wheat flour mixtures and must also restrict their use of spring wheat. B. A. Eckhart, chairman of the milling division of the food administration in this district, says that as the wheat this year is very glutenous, the use of soft wheat in mixing will really be beneficial. The bulk of the local receipts have been of soft wheat and it is the aim of food administration officials to make the hard wheat go as far as possible. Mills in the Minneapolis district are required to limit their output to 60 per cent capacity so as to give spring wheat a wider distribution and relieve scarcity at some eastern points. Northwest mills must also use a 15 per cent soft wheat and 10 per cent durum wheat mixture.

Cash corn and oats were steady. Premiums on oats were same as previously, No. 3 white being 1¼c over December price and standard 1¼c over. Local shipping sales were 15,000 bu corn and 52,000 bu oats, latter including 400,000 bu for export. New corn was offered more freely. A point in Tennessee reported new corn offered at 95c a bu, against $1.20 a week ago.

The Modern Miller says: "Thrashing of wheat from the stack is more general in the two great belts. This is the case especially in the southwest. Rush of fall seeding is well finished and the acreage seeded to winter wheat and plowing for spring wheat is above normal. Interior markets report increased deliveries by farmers and terminal markets expect larger receipts. Germination of early seeded wheat has surpassed all previous years and southwestern reports are that the plant will be in strong shape to go into winter quarters. Farm work in western Canada exceeds all previous years and thrashing there is now on a larger scale than ever before. Northwestern and Canadian movement is larger. Corn crop is made and harvesting is progressing as far north as central Illinois. Early movement will be large."

"Efforts at price regulation so far have been directed mainly to the demand end of the market," says F. H. Babcock of Thomson & McKinnon. "Subnormal movement of wheat and oats is now receiving the attention of food administration officials, which in due time will be extended to corn. Demand is already under control and thereby reduced. What is the inevitable price action when increased supply efforts become operative? Further, peace means restoration of world's traffic channels, releasing the now embargoed southern hemisphere accumulations. Central Europe may need foodstuffs, but what country in the world will accept their paper in payment?"

Missouri state report for October, as wired by C. A. King & Co., makes the corn crop 284,000,000 bu. It says the condition has improved in the past five weeks and quality is placed at 94. All corn safe from frost except that replanted. Wheat acreage prospect is given as 127 per cent of the 1917 area, or 2,161,000 acres, with 48 per cent planted.

The Food Administration Grain Corporation will assume fire risk on wheat purchased and ordered by them to elevators in the Chicago district, and in addition will assume fire risk on wheat in cars on tracks which are located either in elevators or track sheds, or on track adjacent, not to exceed 200 feet from elevator.

There was considerable selling of December and buying of May corn yesterday by Shearson-Hammill and Block-Maloney, which was believed to be in way of closing spreads. Export houses were free buyers of December oats and at one time the latter was only 1c under the May price.

Crary-Johnson's Streator, Ill., office wires: "I fail to find any indication of a willingness to contract corn for year shipment at 4 cents over December, net track Chicago. It looks as though farmers would hold tenaciously to every bushel of grain, both corn and oats."

Receipts inspected Saturday: Wheat, 41 cars; corn, 75 cars; oat, 312 cars; rye, 29 cars; barley, 98 cars. Hogs estimated for Monday, 26,000 head, and for all next week 105,000 head.

Hog market at Chicago yesterday started steady at Friday's big decline, but developed strength as the session progressed and closed 10@25c higher. Pigs sold briskly at firm prices. Best hogs reached $18.75, while the bulk sold at $17.25@18.40. Receipts were posted at only 8,000 and nearly half of these were direct to packers.

Final prices made hogs $1.00@1.10 lower than a week ago, while pigs showed a loss of $1.50@2.00, compared with last week's closing. The average price of all hogs here this week was placed at $18.30, compared with last week's record average of $18.90.

CATTLE.

Beef cattle values at Chicago this week closed 25@50c lower than a week ago. Receipts showed a fair increase for the week, but consisted chiefly of common to fair light-weight cattle. Prime beeves were scarce. Prices held on a steady basis most of the week and dropped late only because of the scarcity of fancy stock. Packers and shippers were loaded down with low priced offerings early in the week and had little need for the stock received on closing days. Calves held steady and closed practically unchanged from a week ago.

Cattle at seven western markets for the week, 378,000, against 365,000 the preceding week, 309,000 a year ago, and 279,000 two years ago. Total for 1917 to date, 8,064,000, against 6,764,000 the same period in 1916.

SHEEP.

Sheep values finished the week about steady with a week ago, while lambs closed 35@75c lower. Receipts for the week showed a substantial increase and consisted chiefly of lambs. There was a good trade, with killers and feeders aggressive competitors for most desirable offerings. A feature of the week was the sale of yearling breeding ewes at $20.00, the highest price of record. Lambs topped the week at $18.40 and sheep at $13.00.

Investors Must Protect Themselves.

The steady decline in market value of railway shares that has been taking place in the last few months is due primarily to the refusal of the interstate commerce commission to allow an advance in rates. The decision was given on June 27, after hearings lasting many days. The evidence presented made it clear to nearly everybody except the commissioners that an increase of rates was essential to the prosperity of the roads. The annual pay rolls had just been increased $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 by law and the cost of all supplies had risen.

Since the ruling was made traffic has been increasing, and the roads, being permitted now to pool their operations for the sake of efficiency, have handled all the freight at the lowest cost possible. Nevertheless, expenses have grown faster than receipts, and net earnings are showing a tendency to decline.

The stock market usually anticipates the future. It does not wait for profits to be wiped out before marking down the prices of stocks. As a result, it has marked down leading railway shares more than twenty points on the average in the last few months, thus registering a decrease of something like $1,500,000,000 in capital value. This does not include declines in bond values, which may more properly be attributed to government loans and war finances in general.

This enormous loss does not fall on multi-millionaires, as apologists for it affect to believe. Much of its falls on small investors. Two of the stocks most affected are St. Paul and New York Central, which are widely distributed among teachers, clerks, and others who save and invest part of their small salaries.

The government has been in complete control of railway rates for some years, and it is gradually reaching out to control the earnings of other corporations. There is urgent need for investors to unite and protect their property.

Public Light and Power.

H. H., Kalamazoo, Mich.—The Public Light and Power company furnishes no reports whatever of its earnings, except the statement that "it has always shown earnings well in excess of interest and dividend requirements." There were outstanding at last accounts $1,100,000 of 5 per cent bonds, $343,600 of preferred stock, and $3,000,000 common. Evidently earnings might be sufficient to cover interest and preferred dividend but show a very narrow margin of safety for the bonds. Without complete financial reports these bonds are not very desirable.

Chicago, Milwaukee-St. Paul Bonds.

C. W. W., Davenport, Ia.—There is no bond of the St. Paul railway requiring that dividends on stock be paid whether fully earned or not. If there was such a bond no prudent person would buy it. What you have in mind is a section of the New York savings bank law, which provides that mortgage bonds of the St. Paul and Rock Island railways shall be legal investments for savings bank funds, so long as these companies "shall continue to earn and pay at least 4 per cent on their outstanding stock." The Rock Island bonds dropped out of the savings bank class some years ago. The St. Paul has been making great efforts to keep within the requirements.

Brief Answers.

D. S.—In the present condition of the bond market it would seem advisable for you to buy only secured short term notes or high grade mortgage bonds. Both can be had at low prices. If you buy short term notes and the bond market declines further the notes will decline only a little and you can sell them and buy long term bonds at lower prices. If the market does not decline further long term bonds will prove to be the best.

M. M., Kansas City, Mo.—We suggest that you ask two or three reputable bond dealers for offerings. We will help you make a selection if you wish.

25 Producing Wells

Several thousand acres of proven oil lands, a conservative capitalization and aggressive management make the

Cumberland Producing & Refining Company

which is undertaking a large campaign of active development of additional proven territory, a most desirable investment at current levels. The stock now earns at the rate of 12% Annually

(Dividends Payable 1% Monthly)

and with new production, dividends should be increased. Send for our circular showing how this stock measures up to the following:

The Essentials of an Oil Stock

1. Extremely low capitalization
2. Capable and successful management
3. Responsible bankers
4. Producing wells
5. Low operating costs.
6. Dividend paying ability
7. Territory for expansion
8. Ready marketability of stock
9. Low selling price of stock
10. Increased dividends prospects

This most unusual opportunity is offered because funds are desirable for company purposes faster than surplus earnings would provide above dividend requirements and operating expenses.

Write at once for circular C. T. 10-14-17, as we expect to immediately see Cumberland selling at materially higher levels.

A SPURT of activity in apartment property at the close of the week was about the only redeeming feature of a dull week's real estate market, although, considering that the many handicaps against which the market is contending was further accentuated by a holiday, the showing was not necessarily of a discouraging character.

It probably may be safely said that the market has become a spotty one, not only with reference to its most active zones [rather poor at the best, it may be added] but also with reference to its periods of news announcements, several days frequently passing without any deal of any importance being reported, to be followed by the almost simultaneous announcement of a number of highly interesting if not important transactions.

In other words, it is a "feast or famine" in a news way, with the famine end having rather the best of it. This was particularly the case last week, and if the experience of the recent past is to serve as a criterion, next week is likely to play the "active" role.

Bond Sales a Factor.

Unfortunately, however, this is not at all certain, and particularly because of the unsettling effect which the present furious Liberty bond campaign is having on the market. The generally disturbed situation incident to war legislation furnished rather more unsettling conditions than the market could well assimilate, and when to this was added the distracting influence of the bond campaign, it is not surprising that the market should for the time being lapse into a semi-moribund state.

When it will recover, and to what extent, say within the next six months or year, is a question which the wisest brokers and operators are asking themselves with much anxiety and perplexity at the present time.

This is due to the many uncertainties attaching to the war, the length of its continuance together with the tax burdens it will leave in its wake, in case it should be protracted for several years, and the possible effect of an early peace on the industrial and general business interests of the country.

Predictions Are Futile.

So many predictions have gone wrong with reference to the effect which the war was likely to have on the financial and general business interests of the country that he is a bold man, indeed, who is prepared to express a confident opinion now regarding probable future conditions.

For the present, at least, we know that the bond issue is having a demoralizing effect on the downtown market, particularly because of its attractiveness to investors, as compared with land investments, and to a somewhat less extent on the outside market, because of the pronounced tendency on the part of investors in general to play safe in the present unsettled state of affairs and put their money for the time being into these bonds, awaiting the coming of more stable conditions.

As to the future of downtown property the outlook is not particularly encouraging in view of the prospective heavy tax burders, particularly income tax, which owners of finished property are likely to have to assume, even for a long time following the end of the war. In the opinion of many experienced brokers an adjustment of values to a lower level, such as will make these properties attractive to investors, is the only remedy which promises to meet the situation.

A. L. Strauss Gives View.

Albert L. Strauss voiced this sentiment in the statement:

"The future of the downtown market is up to owners. If they show a disposition to meet existing conditions and price their properties on a basis such as will make the returns of an attractive character to investors, there is no reason why we should not have a good market after a little, for the reason that properly priced downtown Chicago property is the best investment in the world."

While not looking for any particular general market improvement in the near future Mr. Strauss sounded an encouraging note in the statement that the average investor who has been intrusting his money to the care of directorates and others might naturally be expected, in view of the recent trend of events in stock and bond investments, to conclude that it might be a good idea to place his money where it would be under his own control.

The ownership of property in fee simple and real estate mortgages, he said, furnished abundant opportunities for this, and he looks to see a material stimulation in the real estate market from this cause. The long standing complaint against real estate because of its alleged nonliquid character and the troubles incident to its management, he said, should not weigh now against it in view of the manifold advantages it offers for safe investment.

WEST SIDE IMPROVEMENTS

Another Moving Picture Theater Is in Course of Construction in West Twenty-second Street. Below Is a View of the New Krause State Savings Bank Building in Milwaukee Avenue.

Another new west side moving theater building is the Fairfield, in course of construction at 2737-45 West Twenty-second street, between Fairfield and California avenues. In addition to the theater, which will have a seating capacity of 1,000, the building will contain four stores and six offices. It is being erected by Edward Kounovsky and its cost is placed at $91,000. C. C. Mitchell & Co. have underwritten a bond issue of $57,500 at 6 per cent on the property.

The Krause State Savings bank is erecting an unusually attractive building at 1339-41 Milwaukee avenue, near Ashland avenue, after plans by Architect Emil H. Frommann. It will occupy 50x100 feet, will cost $50,000, and besides the banking floor will contain safety vaults. The bank is said to be the oldest banking institution on the northwest side, having occupied its present location since 1898.

SEVERAL FAIRLY GOOD SIZED LOANS MADE

There were several fairly good sized loans reported and made matters of record, although none of any great magnitude. There is nothing yet to indicate that the big Liberty loan is having any particular effect on the mortgage loan market, either as regards the supply of funds or interest rates, although the tendency is toward a stronger market.

S. W. Straus & Co. have closed a loan of $175,000 to Modie J. and Sidney M. Spiegel on the Williams building at the southeast corner of Wabash avenue and Monroe street and the leasehold interest in the land occupied by it. The loan is in the form of a serial bond issue maturing in two to ten years at 6 per cent, the funds being used in connection with the remodeling and general improvement of the building. The Spiegels formerly held the ground, 160x170 feet, under a ninety-nine year lease, which was canceled some time ago and a new lease for a term of twenty years was entered into with the University of Chicago at an annual rental of $80,000.

S. Yondorf & Co. have made a loan of $40,000, five years at 5 per cent, to William J. Starr on the twenty-four flat building at the southeast corner of Sixtieth street and South Park avenue; also a loan of $18,000, same rate, to B. M. Mai on the flat building at the southeast corner of Broadway and Buena Park terrace.

Greenebaum Sons Bank and Trust company have made a 6 per cent serial bond issue loan of $77,500, seven years, at 6 per cent, to Jeremiah W. Dowd on the Dowd building at the northwest corner of Michigan avenue and Forty-fourth street, lot 195x161 feet.

DEALS IN BUSINESS PROPERTY SLOW

Business property was decidedly in eclipse last week, the showing comparing most unfavorably with that of the previous week. In fact, there was nothing at all doing of an important character either down town or outside.

A transaction in business vacant in the west side terminal district was the purchase by William Rumely of the Rumely-Wachs Machinery company, 117 North Jefferson street, from Minerva K. Mitchell of the 50x100 feet, east front, in Jefferson street, 198 feet north of Adams street; also of the alley lot 198 feet north of Adams street, 15x25 feet.

A nominal consideration is given, the transfer being subject to an incumbrance of $22,500, but the Jefferson street frontage is thought to be worth in the neighborhood of $800 a front foot. Mr. Rumely owns seventy-five feet of vacant adjoining this parcel on the north, but it is not known whether he has any plans looking to its improvement. It is said to have been a personal purchase on his part.

Record was made of the transfer by Thomas J. Walsh to Allen Houseworth of the property at the northeast corner of Broadway and Winona avenue, lot 25x235 feet, west front, with business improvements, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $35,000.

William Ill Property Conveyed to M. J. Travers

There was filed for record the transfer by William C. Cummings to William Ill the property in Congress street, 145 feet east of Throop street, lot 100x120 feet, south front, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $20,000. The property was then conveyed by Ill to M. J. Travers, subject to an incumbrance of $22,500.

BANKER SMITH SELLS RESIDENCE

An interesting south side residence deal was the sale by Frank W. Smith, secretary of the Corn Exchange National bank, to James S. Sheafe of the property at 5539 Cornell avenue. It is a modern twelve room stone front structure on a lot 35x150 feet, overlooking Jackson park, and is said to have cost Mr. Smith $16,000. A nominal consideration was given in the deed. The sale was negotiated by T. D. O'Hern of C. W. Hoff & Co.

Mrs. Florence M. Liebling of Brookline, Mass., formerly of Chicago, has sold to Frank B. Stenson of the Stenson Brewing company, the residence property at 1222 Astor street, lot 25x90 feet, improved with a nine room brick dwelling, price not disclosed, but said to have been $18,000. The sale was negotiated by James J. Parker & Co., who recently sold to Mr. Stenson the Woodruff residence property adjoining on the north the Liebling residence.

Transfer of Eleven Parcels Recorded by W. B. Walrath

Record was made of the transfer by W. B. Walrath to the Chicago Title and Trust company of the property at 5858 Hermitage avenue, lot 25x125 feet, and ten other parcels, a nominal consideration being given.

WILL ERECT TWO STORE AND FLAT BUILDINGS

Two transactions, involving the erection of $60,000 store and flat buildings by Milton S. Plotke, the builder, figured in the week's business. One is to occupy 120x100 feet at the southeast corner of Devon and Waynes avenues, which was purchased by Mr. Plotke from Adolph W. Waldman, a nominal consideration being given. The property, however, is said to be valued at $32,500. The deal was negotiated by R. A. Connell.

The other building, which will contain private garages in addition to stores and flats, will be at the northeast corner of Lawrence and St. Louis avenues, on 117x125 feet of ground, which first was conveyed by Abraham Weil to August Meierhoff in exchange for a farm of ninety acres on the Telegraph Trail road, north of Schermerville, and cash. The corner subsequently was conveyed to Mr. Plotke at a reported valuation of $30,000. The farm is said to have been valued at $27,000. Howard S. Evans of Broomell Bros. and F. J. Williams of Stafford & Trankle were the brokers.

James H. Rhodes & Co., importers and manufacturers of industrial chemicals, are erecting a building to cost $40,000 on their property at Twenty-eighth street and Albany avenue, on the line of the Illinois Northern road and adjoining the plant of the Barrett Manufacturing company.

September Transfer Showing Unfavorable

The September transfer showing was of a rather unfavorable character, there being a decrease in both the number as well as consideration of the deeds recorded. Thus, there were 3,704 deeds with total considerations of $5,655,931, as against 4,074, and total considerations of $8,149,129 for September, 1916. This is a decrease of 970 in number and $2,493,198 in considerations.

Trust deeds showed a decrease of 208 in number and $15,772,010 in consideration, while transfers under the Torrens system showed a decrease of 208 in number and $232,108 in consideration. Applications for initial registration showed a decrease of twelve.

FLAT PROPERTY LEADS WEEK'S REALTY BUSINESS

$175,000 Transaction in Woodlawn District Is Completed.

The feature of the week's market was the activity in apartment property toward the latter part of the week, the aggregate showing in the way of important transactions being the best for several weeks.

The most important of these was the purchase by John S. Reiner, coal dealer, from Louis C. Wagner, former president of the Washington Park National bank, of the Kenwood apartment building at the northwest corner of Marquette road and Kenwood avenue for a reported consideration of $175,000. The building, which is said to have a gross annual rental of $30,000, occupies a lot 130x165 feet. In part payment Mr. Reiner conveyed the twelve apartment building at 8001-3 South May street, a two story frame and cottage at 328 West Twenty-fifth place, and five lots in Englefield subdivision, two in Cobe and McKinnon's subdivisions, and the old homestead at 1259 West Thirty-first street, consisting of six flats and two stores, and $50,000 in cash.

Apartments All Taken.

The deal was negotiated by John P. Downes of James H. Ryan & Co. Wagner Bros. will have charge of the Kenwood building, which is about one year old and is said to be all rented, with leases running one, two, three, and four years.

Another south side deal was the sale by J. G. Keidel and M. B. Moran to Clarence H. and Ellen Clifford of the extra high grade two six apartment buildings of five and six rooms with two baths, sun parlor, etc., on a lot 104x109 feet at 5222-24 and 5226-28 Ingleside avenue for a reported consideration of $90,000, subject to an incumbrance of $42,000 at 6 per cent. The purchasers also gave back two trust deeds securing a part purchase money mortgage for $23,000, three years at 6 per cent, with monthly payments. They also conveyed in part payment two clear farms of 120 and 720 acres, respectively, in Monroe county, Wis., including implements and stock, at a reported valuation of $25,000. The apartment buildings are said to have a total gross annual rental of $10,000. I. J. Bliss of M. B. Moran & Co. represented the sellers and H. O. Stone & Co. the purchasers.

Deal on West Side.

A big deal was reported in west side apartment property in the sale by Jasper T. Bright to Mayo Friedberg of the forty court apartment building of four and five rooms at 3534-46 Colorado avenue, just north of Central Park avenue. The building, which occupies a lot 138x230 feet, has a court of fifty-six feet and is said to have a gross annual rental of $18,000.

While a nominal consideration is given, subject to $90,000, the actual figure is said to have been $150,000. The purchaser conveyed in part payment the vacant 200x125 feet at the northwest corner of Mildred and George streets, which Mr. Bright plans to improve with a large court building to cost in the neighborhood of $150,000. The deal was negotiated by J. E. Ehrenhalt and Draper & Kramer.

An important north side deal was the purchase by Charles D. Off, a nonresident, from Biscoe Hindman of the twenty-four flat building at the southwest corner of Drake avenue and Ainslie street, lot 153½x125 feet, consideration nominal, subject to $60,000 incumbrance, but property is said to have been held at about $118,000. The building is said to have a gross annual rental of between $11,000 and $12,000.

Mr. Off also appears as acquiring from Alexander Weisz the apartment property at teh southwest corner of Perry avenue and Cornelia street, lot 49x124 feet, consideration nominal, subject to an incumbrance of $32,200. He also acquired from same grantor the flat property northwest corner of Rockwell street and Leland avenue, subject to $24,500.

The twelve flat building of four and five rooms, lot 56x125 feet, northwest corner Vernon avenue and One Hundred and Twelfth street, Roseland, has been conveyed by James L. Cameron to Herman Teninga for a reported consideration of over $40,000, vacant in that vicinity being given in part payment.

24 Flats Transferred.

The twenty-four flat building, known as the Willowlaen, on 99x160 feet, northeast corner Wabash avenue and Sixtieth street, has been conveyed by Miss Alice W. Rogers to David Levi, consideration nominal, subject to $33,500, but property is said to have been valued at $65,000 The purchaser conveyed in part payment the eight flat building southeast corner Balmoral and Winchester avenues, valued at $35,000. James Lawlor was the broker.

Leases and Loans

There was much doing in connection with leases of buildings since last week, both in the retail as well as wholesale districts, and while there were few, if any of particular magnitude, the number was large.

In the most important of the downtown transactions E. F. Keebler & Co. leased for Arthur L. Farwell and Judge George A. Carpenter, representing the estate of Katherine S. Isham, to Z. Ganis the store at 326 South State street, between Jackson boulevard and Van Buren street, for four years from May 1 next at a term rental of $24,000.

In another downtown lease they leased for Walter H. Wilson and Seymour Morris, representing the L. B. Otis estate, to William Meyer, the store at 7 West Van Buren street, southwest corner of State street, for four years and four months from Jan. 1 next, at a term rental of $17,200.

They also leased in connection with Ben Rosenberg's office for Schiller the florist to the Toyo Japanese shop, the store at 36 South Wabash avenue in the Windsor-Clifton Hotel building for a term from Oct. 1 at an annual rental of $3,600.

The most important of the outside leases covered the corner store in the building southwest corner of Michigan avenue and Eighteenth street, which has been leased to the Brown Cigar Stores company for fifteen years from May 1 next at a term rental of $36,000, to be occupied as a retail cigar store. It will give the lessee company four stores, the others being in the St. Regis Hotel building, North Clark street and Grand avenue, also the southeast corner of Clark street and Chicago avenue, and a store in the John R. Thompson Commissary building, Clark and Kinzie street, leased through Keebler & Co.

They also leased to Sidney A. Engel a store adjoining the hotel lobby on the west in the building at Michigan avenue and Eighteenth street for fifteen years from May 1 at a term rental of $42,000.

Willis & Frankenstein, in connection with Winston & Co., have leased the store at 122-24 West Adams street, Home Insurance building, northeast corner La Salle and Adams streets, to the Horders Stationery stores for a term rental of $25,000. It will give the company six retail stores in the loop.

The same brokers have leased for William M. Cahn the second floor of the Butler building at 164-70 North State street, to the Union Credit Clothing company, for a term rental of $25,000.

Albert H. Wetten & Co. have leased for William B. McIlvaine to the Rex Typewriter company space on the fifth floor at 160 North Wabash avenue for a term rental of $18,000; for Edwin J. Stubbs to Theodore Cuny the building at 325 West South Water street for a term rental of $13,000; for Fuller & Fuller to Butler Bros., building at southeast corner Franklin and Randolph streets, for term rental of $11,000.

Thomas A. Collins has leased to Ascher Bros. the Grand Oak theater on Grand boulevard, near Oakwood, for a term, at an annual rental of $7,500. It will give the Aschers twelve moving picture theaters in the city. B. W. Eisendrath and David S. Simon were the brokers, Nicolas R. Jones and L. F. Jacobson attending to the legal details.

A. J. Nickopoulos has leased from the trustees under the Wilmore trust agreement the store at 1035-39 Wilson avenue, in the Kenmore Theater building, Wilson and Kenmore avenues, for a term rental from May 1, 1918, of $48,000, said to be an increase over the rent for the last five years. George P. Chiagouris and J. P. Strickland & Co. were the brokers.

C. E. Hurlbert & Co. have leased for William F. Adams and Katherine A. Wells to Kalven & Stern the second floor of the Adams building at 315-21 West Adams street, for a term from Jan. 1, at a term rental of $16,500. The floor is leased as additionall space to store and basement of same building which Kalven & Stern have leased for ten years from Jan. 1 at a reported term rental of $95,000.

Publishers' Corporation Acquires N. Y. Building

The United Publishers corporation of New York, publishers of more than twenty trade and technical papers, including the Dry Goods Reporter of Chicago, has closed the purchase of the building occupied by it, known as the McGraw building, at 239-43 West Thirty-ninth street, New York City, the deal being based on a valuation said to be in excess of $1,300,000.

J. R. Hotchkiss Sells Flats to S. B. Binkowitz

G. R. Hotchkiss has conveyed to Samel B. Binkowitz the property at the southeast corner of Newport avenue and Lincoln street, lot 51x124 feet, with flat improvements, a nominal consideration being given, subject to an incumbrance of $28,000.

BETTER HOUSING FOR THE POOR IS REALTY PROBLEM

Expert Is to Tell Conference How Minneapolis Met Question.

That the progressive real estate dealer is among the strongest champions of better housing for the poor, and is ready to work hand in hand with all other groups or organizations interested in this important subject of insuring to the poor well lighted, well ventilated, and sanitary homes, is the message which Fred G. Smith of Minneapolis will deliver in Chicago tomorrow at the first day's session of the sixth national conference on housing in America.

Mr. Smith was one of the first to recognize the national movement for better housing of the poor as one in which the real estate dealer should play an important part, not only as a matter of pride in his profession, but because better housing is an important factor in promoting normally increasing real estate values.

Mr. Smith is president of the Minneapolis real estate board and chairman of the housing committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, and fathered the passage at the recent national convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, of a resolution indorsing the movement for better housing and pledging the coöperation of the real estate boards to that end.

In his address Mr. Smith will tell of how the Minneapolis real estate board worked nearly a year upon a housing code suitable for enactment into law by the state of Minnesota, and of how, in securing its passage this year, it has placed Minneapolis among the foremost American cities as regards housing, with its citizens assured of sensible standards of lighting, ventilation, safety from fire, privacy, and sanitation in all dwelling houses.

Net Returns 6½ Acres Cabbage was what we received from New York market during February of this year, sold by John Nix & Co., N. Y., commission merchants, at the lucrative rate of $225.00 a ton. We have already commenced planting 200 acres of this commodity which will help supply the demand of the North during the cold winter months, when the North is more dependent than ever on Florida for its supply of fresh, green vegetables.

The business of the Indian River Gardens Corporation is the production of beans, cabbage, potatoes and other vegetables, and the growing of grapefruit, oranges and tangerines. The great demand for these necessities makes this a lucrative business which is conducted on an absolutely cash basis.

"The World's Greatest Want-Ad Store"

—Just Around the Corner from the Shopping District

You'll find in this spacious store a special department for women. There are courteous women attendants to serve the hurried shopper. There are convenient desks equipped with want-ad stationery. There is, about this modern Want-Ad Store, an atmosphere of efficiency, thoroughness, ease.

You women who want maids, cooks, nurses, janitors—you who have rooms to rent, real estate to sell, automobiles to offer, apartments to lease, or household goods to dispose of—you'll appreciate the convenience of this ground floor Want-Ad Store "just around the corner from the shopping district."

And there's a reliance in results of Tribune Want-Ads. Your want-ad message in The Tribune reaches the "preferred class"—the responsible, dependable sort of folks. For a very small sum your message is delivered in more than 350,000 copies of The Daily Tribune and in more than 600,000 copies of The Sunday Tribune. Call if you can, or phone Central 100 and ask for an Ad-taker.
